STATIONS, CLERICAL AND LAY MISSIONARIES, AND NATIVE CLERGYMEN,

ON JUNE 1, 1899.

 A STATION is the place at which a Clerical or Lay Missionary is stationed, or at which Native Christians are located under the superintendence of a Native ordained pastor in connexion with the Society.

The figures after the Names of the European Labourers show the year of their first sailing for the Society's Missions, or of their reception into connexion in the field. Their University or College is indicated thus: Oxford, "Oxf."; Cambridge, "Camb."; Dublin, "Dub."; Durham, "Dur."; Edinburgh, 'Edin."; London, "Lond."; Archbishop of Canterbury's Degree, "Lamb."; Islington, "Isl."; London College of Divinity, "Lond. Coll. Div."; King's College, London, "K.C.L." In the case of men trained at the Society's Preparatory Institution, Clapham, or of ladies trained at "The Willows," Stoke Newington, "The Olives," South Hampstead, or at the Society's Highbury Training Home, "Clapham," or "The Willows," or "The Olives," or "Highbury," occurs after their names. The letter ð after the names of ordained men, whether Europeans or Natives, indicates that they were Deacons at the above date.

The terms "Hon." and "partly Hon.," in parenthesis, after the name of a Missionary, means that such Missionary draws no allowances, or only a portion of the usual allowances. Where Missionaries are supported by individual friends of the Society, or by Associations, or other bodies, the fact is indicated. In the case of the Colonial Associations (N. S. Wales = New South Wales, Vict. = Victoria, New Z. = New Zealand) the Missionaries have been selected, and, when necessary, also trained by the Associations, by which likewise they are supported in the field. In nearly all the instances referred to the Society is responsible for house rent, &c., as well as for the expenditure which is involved in the maintenance of the work.

*This mark * denotes that the Missionaries to whose name it is prefixed are in Local Connexion, i.e. that their offers of service were accepted by the Society's representatives in the several Missions.*

The mark ‡ denotes that the name to which it is prefixed is that of an Agent supported by Native Church Funds, which are in most instances aided by the Society. The Native Ministers in New Zealand are supported partly by Subscriptions from Native Christians, and partly from the rents of lands belonging to the Society in the Colony.

The Names of Native Clergymen are printed in Italics. The figures after their names show the date of ordination as Deacon.

The Maiden Names of Wives of European Missionaries, and the year of marriage, when known, are given in parenthesis. In the case of each lady who was a Missionary of the Society before marriage, the Mission in which she laboured, and the year of joining it are given; and in the case of ladies who were Missionaries of other Societies, the initials indicating the Society ("C.E.Z.M.S." = Church of England Zenana Missionary Society; "Z.B.M.M." = Zenana Bible and Medical Mission; "F.E.S." = Female Education Society) are given, as well as the country and year of joining. Wives of Missionaries are always expected by the Society to lay themselves out to do good among the native women in every practicable way, such as by cultivating familiar intercourse with them, educating children, and instructing the adult women.

The Names under each station are printed in order of date, without reference to nationality, sex, orders, or other difference; except that, the Secretaries of Missions are placed first in order at the stations where they reside, and wives of Missionaries are placed, in almost every instance, immediately after their husbands.

At the Annual Meeting of the Church Missionary Society, held at Exeter Hall, London, Tuesday, May 2nd, 1899, being the Society's One-hundredth Anniversary,

THE RIGHT HON. SIR JOHN H. KENNAWAY, BART., M.P., President, in the Chair.

AFTER READING OF SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER,

The General Review of the Year was read, followed by the CHAIRMAN'S address, after which, on a motion by the RIGHT REV. THE LORD BISHOP OF HEREFORD, V.P., seconded by the REV. J. P. HAYTHORNTHWAITE (N.-W.P. India), it was Resolved—

That the General Review which has just been read, together with the Report, of which an abstract has been presented, be adopted and printed under the direction of the Committee; that the thanks of the Meeting be given to the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Worcester, V.P., for his Sermon before the Society last evening, and that it be printed and circulated; that Colonel Robert Williams, M.P., V.P., be the Treasurer of the Society; that the Committee be appointed for the ensuing year, with power to fill up vacancies; and that this Meeting renders humble and hearty thanks to Almighty God for His blessing upon the Society and its labours through the entire hundred years of its history, acknowledging once again the shortcomings of the whole Church in fulfilling His work, and His undeserved mercy in owning and honouring the feeble and inadequate efforts of His servants.

On a motion by MR. J. INSKIP, seconded by DR. D. DUNCAN-MAIN (Mid China), it was Resolved—

That while rejoicing in the widespread interest in missionary work, the existence of which has been strikingly manifested in connexion with the Centenary Commemoration, and gratefully acknowledging the brotherly sympathy of the leaders and members of other Societies and Missions, this Meeting earnestly trusts that the commencement of a new century may prove to be a starting-point for greatly enlarged zeal and labour in the missionary cause, and that whether the years yet to be given to the Church for the fulfilment of her duty be few or many, all her members may be found watching and working, and therefore not ashamed to meet their Lord at His Coming.

On a motion by MR. C. R. WALSH, Hon. Sec. of the New South Wales C.M. Association, seconded by the RIGHT REV. W. G. PEEL, Bishop-Designate of Mombasa, it was Resolved—

That in now girding itself to the arduous tasks of the new century, especially the occupation of new fields with a view to the speedy evangelization of the world, and the organizing of the Native Churches with a view to their taking a leading part in that supreme service, the Society may justly claim the increased sympathy, enlarged support, and more fervent intercessions of all its members and friends; and this Meeting earnestly prays for the outpouring of the Holy Ghost upon the Church, so that all Societies and Missions engaged in the one great work may be abundantly supplied with the men and means necessary for the accomplishment of the grand Divine purpose.

The following Meetings were also held in London on the same day in connexion with the Anniversary:—

At the KING'S HALL, NEWTON STREET, Holborn, at 3 P.M. for Ladies; the Rev. H. E. Fox in the Chair.

At EXETER HALL, Strand, at 7 P.M.; the Right Hon. the Earl of Aberdeen in the Chair.

Addresses were delivered at these Meetings by Ven. Archdeacon Phair (N.-W. Canada), Rev. H. J. R. Marston, Rev. F. Melville Jones (Yoruba), Dr. Arthur Lankester (Punjab), Miss M. Maude, Miss G. A. Gollock, and Miss M. Laurence (Japan).

Ten days' notice shall be given in Three London Daily Newspapers, and in two other Newspapers, of any such intended Meeting, and of the purpose for which it is called; which shall be deemed sufficient publicity.

IX. None of the Laws and Regulations of the Society shall be repealed or altered, nor any new ones made, but at the Annual Meeting or at a Special General Meeting called for that purpose.

X. An Anniversary Sermon shall be preached at some Church in London, by a Clergyman appointed by the COMMITTEE. An Annual Report of the Society shall be printed for the use of its Members.

OF THE COMMITTEE.

XI. The COMMITTEE shall consist of the following, being members of the Established Church of England or of the Church of Ireland:—(a) Twenty-four Lay Members of the Society elected at the Annual Meeting. (b) All Clergymen who are Members of the Society and have been so for not less than one year. (c) All Honorary Governors for Life, and all such other Governors as have been so for not less than one year. In every year so many of the elected Members shall go out of office as, with the vacancies, if any, occurring among them during the preceding year, will make six vacancies, and shall not be re-eligible until the following year. The COMMITTEE shall decide which Members go out of office in each year.

XII. The COMMITTEE shall elect, at their First Meeting in every year, either from among themselves, or from the other Members of the Society (being members of the Established Church of England or of the Church of Ireland), a Committee of Patronage, a Committee of Funds and Home Organization, a Committee of Correspondence, a Committee of Finance, and a Committee of Estimates, and shall have power to fill up vacancies. Each of the said Committees shall keep Minutes of its Proceedings, and shall make such reports of its proceedings to the COMMITTEE as the COMMITTEE shall require.

XIII. The office of the Committee of Patronage is to procure patronage and support to the Society; and to nominate to the COMMITTEE proper persons as Patrons, President, Vice-Presidents, Honorary Life Governors, Honorary Life Members of the Society, and preachers of the Anniversary Sermons.

XIV. The office of the Committee of Funds and Home Organization is to circulate information respecting the Society; to adopt means of obtaining Subscriptions, Benefactions, and Collections in Churches, Chapels, and at Meetings; to take a general oversight of the Associations; and to nominate, from time to time, to the COMMITTEE, suitable persons to act as Agents and Representatives of the Society for these objects.

XV. The office of the Committee of Correspondence is, to seek for proper Missionaries, to nominate them to the COMMITTEE, to superintend their instruction when necessary, to recommend their location, and to correspond with them when sent out, and generally to direct the foreign work of the Society. Subject to the control of the COMMITTEE, the Committee of Correspondence may delegate any of their duties to Committees elected from among themselves, and may authorize such Committees to report directly to the COMMITTEE, and may fix their Quorum.

XVI. The office of the Committee of Finance is, generally, to superintend the accounts and financial affairs of the Society, and from time to time to note and to report to the COMMITTEE how far the expenditure corresponds with the sanctioned Estimates.

XVII. The office of the Committee of Estimates is, to prepare and submit to the COMMITTEE an estimate of the probable expenditure of the Society.

XVIII. The Committee of Correspondence shall appoint from among themselves, at their First Meeting in every year, a Clerical Sub-Committee, and may appoint at their discretion other Committees, for the examination of Missionary Candidates.

XIX. The COMMITTEE may make regulations as to the conduct of business by themselves and by the other Committees, and subject to and so far as not inconsistent with any such regulations for the time being in force, the COMMITTEE shall receive and deal with the Reports of the other Committees, shall decide upon the countries where Missions shall be carried on, and shall superintend and control the affairs of the Society in general. The COMMITTEE may authorize any Committee appointed under Law XII., and with the consent of the Committee of Correspondence any Committee appointed under Law XV. to deal with and dispose of any matters and classes of matters the consideration of which falls within its province, reporting its action to the next meeting of the COMMITTEE. Subject to the control of the COMMITTEE, every Committee may make Bye-laws for its own government, and may appoint Sub-Committees and fix their quorum.

XX. The COMMITTEE shall have power to appoint such Officers and Assistants as they shall deem necessary for the well-conducting of the affairs of the Society, subject, in the case of the appointment of Secretaries, to the approbation of the next Annual Meeting. One, at least, of the Secretaries shall be a layman. The COMMITTEE shall also have power to acquire property of every description for the purposes of the Society, and to invest the funds of the Society as they may deem expedient, and to vest all or any portions of the property and funds of the Society in such Trustee or Trustees, or corporate body, as they may in each case think fit.

XXI. The COMMITTEE shall meet on the second Tuesday in every month, and oftener if needful. The other Committees shall meet as often, and at such places, as shall be by them agreed on. All Committee Meetings shall be opened with reading a Form of Prayer composed for that purpose, or one or more suitable Prayers selected from the Liturgy.

XXII. The Patrons, Vice-Patron, President, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer and Secretaries shall be considered, ex officio, Members of all Committees.

XXIII. Five Members shall be necessary to form a Quorum of the COMMITTEE; and Three of each of the Committees provided for in Law XII.; in each case exclusive of the Secretaries. In cases of equality of votes, the Chairman shall be entitled to a second or casting vote. Every Committee may act notwithstanding vacancies.

XXIV. All payments on account of the Society shall be signed by Three Members of the COMMITTEE, in Committee, and the Lay Secretary, or in his absence by one of the other Secretaries.

XXV. The accounts of the Society shall be audited and reported upon by Public Accountants appointed by the COMMITTEE, and Five Honorary Auditors, Members of the Society (of whom not more than two shall be Members of the COMMITTEE), shall be appointed annually by the COMMITTEE for the purpose of considering the Reports of Public Accountants, and of making recommendations thereon, and generally on the Accounts to the COMMITTEE once at least in every year.

OF MISSIONARIES.

XXVI. Every offer for Missionary Service shall be referred by the Secretaries either to the Committee of Correspondence or in the first instance to the Clerical Sub-Committee or other Committee appointed under Law XVIII. to which it shall belong under rules laid down by the Committee of Correspondence; and the Committee of Correspondence shall have power to deal with the offer, both as to the training and as to the nomination as a Missionary of the Candidate. Provided that no one shall be sent out as a Missionary without having been approved by the Committee of Correspondence; and without, as a general rule, having appeared before them.

XXVII. Candidates nominated by the Committee of Correspondence, and accepted by the COMMITTEE, shall receive instruction in such parts of knowledge, and be prepared in such a manner for their future employment, as the Committee of Correspondence shall judge expedient.

XXVIII. Candidates shall consider themselves engaged to go to any part of the world, and at any time that the COMMITTEE shall decide, and be subject to such regulations as may be established by the COMMITTEE for the direction of the Missionaries: respect, however, being had to their personal circumstances, or to any previous stipulation made by them with the Society.

XXIX. Men who have been duly prepared and finally approved for Missionary work, shall go out, either ordained or unordained, at the discretion of the COMMITTEE.*

XXX. The Missionaries who go out under the direction of this Society shall be allowed to visit home, permission having been previously obtained from the COMMITTEE; and after having laboured in the cause of the Society, to the satisfaction of the COMMITTEE, at the Stations committed to their care, until age or infirmity prevent further exertion, such provision shall be made to render their remaining days comfortable as in the judgment of the COMMITTEE is suitable. The COMMITTEE shall have the power to assist also, in particular cases, the dependent Relatives of those Missionaries, who, by devoting themselves to the service of the Society, are prevented from contributing to their support. The COMMITTEE shall be further empowered in special cases to make such arrangements with those employed by them as they may think fit.

GENERAL.

XXXI. A friendly intercourse shall be maintained with other Protestant Societies engaged in the same benevolent design of propagating the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

XXXII. All questions relating to matters of Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline, respecting which a difference shall arise between a Bishop of the Church of England abroad and the COMMITTEE, shall, in the absence of any tribunal having legal cognizance of the same, be referred to the Archbishops and Bishops of the Provinces of Canterbury and York, whose decision thereupon shall be binding upon the Society and its agents, and representatives. The proposed reference shall be made by the COMMITTEE, through His Grace the Primate, accompanied by such explanations and statements as the COMMITTEE may deem advisable.

XXXIII. The object of the preceding Law being only to provide a mode of settling questions relating to Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline as to which no provision has yet been made by the Society, it is not to be so construed, as in any other respect to alter the principles and practices of the Society, as they are contained in its Laws and Regulations.

XXXIV. It is recommended to every Member of the Society to pray to Almighty God for a blessing upon its designs; under the full conviction that, unless He "prevent us, in all our doings, with His most gracious favour, and further us with His continual help," the Society cannot reasonably hope to meet with persons of a proper spirit and qualifications to be Missionaries, or expect their endeavours to be crowned with success.

* The Bishops of the Church of England under the authority of the law of the land ordain and send forth [ecclesiastically speaking] the Society's Missionaries; and in the event of their being appointed by the COMMITTEE to labour at stations within the jurisdiction of a Bishop of the Church of England abroad, it is the practice of the Society to apply to the Bishop for licenses in which are specified the districts to which the Missionaries have been assigned. This is done on the understanding that licenses will neither be refused nor when granted be withdrawn from the Missionaries during their connection with the Society, except for some assigned legal cause.

PRAYER USED AT THE ANNUAL MEETINGS OF THE SOCIETY, AND AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE GENERAL COMMITTEE.

ALMIGHTY and most merciful FATHER, we give Thee humble thanks for the light of Thy Gospel. Make us more grateful for this Thy mercy, and more zealous for the salvation of all mankind.

Visit in mercy the Church of Christ; enrich it more abundantly with the grace of Thy Holy Spirit; and bless its endeavours to make known Thy Truth. Unite, as one man, all who are truly labouring for Thee. Disappoint the designs of Satan. Let all Christian Societies live in harmony and love; give them wisdom in all their plans; perfect Thy strength in their weakness; and direct their labours to Thy glory.

The harvest truly is great, but the Labourers are few! O Thou Lord of the Harvest, send forth labourers into Thy Harvest! Fill with Thy Spirit those whom Thou hast sent forth; and enable them faithfully and boldly to preach, among Jews and Gentiles, the unsearchable riches of Christ. Keep them from the snares of the world, the flesh, and the devil; deliver them from all evil; and make them wise to win souls.

Upon all the Native Converts whom Thou hast gathered to Thyself, through Thy labouring servants throughout the world, pour out Thy Holy Spirit, that, as Thou hast begotten them again unto a lively hope, so they may ever be followers of Thee as dear children. Deliver them from all remaining darkness and ignorance; destroy and abolish in their hearts all that remains of Satan's kingdom; grant that their faith, and hope, and love may grow exceedingly; make them to be ready to every good work, and more especially to exert themselves for the salvation of those around them; that so, by their zeal and faithful testimony, by their holiness and fruitfulness, they may glorify Thy name before their countrymen, and bring in unto Thee, from the midst of them, such as shall be saved.

Have compassion, O Most-merciful Father, on all those who have come under instruction, though they be not yet altogether Christians. Convince them effectually, by Thy Word and Spirit, of their sinful and miserable state; pour upon them the spirit of grace and supplication, and draw them to Jesus.

Take away blindness from the Jews. Let them receive Thee, O Jesus, as their Messiah, and proclaim Thy saving Name among the Gentiles.

Deliver all Mohammedans from the delusions of the False Prophet! O Thou True Prophet of Thy Church, enlighten them by Thy Holy Spirit, and bow them down at the foot of Thy Cross!

Pity blind Idolaters who are kept in cruel bondage by the god of this world. Turn them from idols, that they may serve the Living and True God.

O Thou Almighty Saviour, who by the right hand of God art exalted, and hast received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, shed forth His light and grace on this dark world!

Cause all Christians, we beseech Thee, to sow bountifully; that they may reap also bountifully. O Thou that lovest a cheerful giver, let all grace abound toward them, that they may minister liberally of their substance to the making known of Thy Name!

With these our humble prayers, we join our praises and thanksgiving for what Thou hast already done in making known Thy salvation; perfect Thy work, O Lord; shortly accomplish the number of Thine elect; and hasten the coming of Thy Kingdom.

Be present with us, O Lord, at this time. Give us all a single eye to Thy glory May Thy blessing rest upon our meeting; and may all our hearts be this day quickened and encouraged to fresh and persevering efforts in Thy Service.

We ask these mercies for the glory of Thy Name, through the merits and mediation of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; and would ascribe to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, Three Persons in One God, everlasting praise. Amen.

OUR Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name; Thy kingdom come; Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven: Give us this day our daily bread: And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us: And lead us not into temptation, But deliver us from evil: for Thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, For ever and ever. Amen.

PRAYER USED AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE.

ALMIGHTY GOD, our heavenly Father, Who hast purchased to Thyself an Universal Church, by the precious blood of Thy dear Son, we give Thee hearty thanks that it hath pleased Thee to call us to the knowledge of Thy grace and faith in Thee, and to appoint our lot in an age and country where the true light shineth. We bless Thee that Thou hast awakened us in some measure to feel our responsibilities. We praise Thee for what we have seen and heard of the power of Thy Word among the heathen, we adore Thee for Thy many servants who have gone out from amongst us to toil, and suffer, and die in making known Thy salvation; and we thank Thee that Thou dost allow us, unworthy sinners, to unite together in this work of faith and labour of love.

We humbly confess our past lukewarmness in this Thy service, notwithstanding these Thine inestimable benefits and mercies. For our Lord Jesus Christ's sake, forgive us our past negligences, and so endue us with Thy Holy Spirit, that we may more earnestly seek Thy glory in the salvation of souls.

Grant us, we beseech Thee, Thy very present help at these our meetings. We ask, most gracious God and Father, for a constraining sense of the love of the Lord Jesus, and for wisdom to direct us in all our endeavours. Increase upon us the spirit of power, and of love, and of a sound mind. Give us faith and courage; give us zeal and patience; give us a single eye to Thy glory, and help us to bear and to forbear. The silver and the gold are Thine, O King of kings! Supply us with what is needful for Thy great work, and make us faithful stewards of Thy bounty, for proclaiming to the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ.

We pray also for all who are united with us in the direction of this sacred cause.

May Thine especial blessing rest upon our Committees, with their Secretaries, throughout the world. Bestow on them the help that we feel so needful for ourselves. Enable them to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace, and ever to find favour in the sight of all with whom they may have to do.

Especially we beseech Thee to look, O most merciful Father, upon our Missionary brethren. Draw out our hearts towards them more and more; and while they are bearing the burden abroad, give us grace to help and succour them by our sympathy and prayers at home. Bless every letter written to them from this house, and all our intercourse with them. We pray for them that they may be filled with Thy Spirit. Grant that the same mind may be in them which was also in Christ Jesus. Let them never lose their first love. Raise them above the cares of this world. Help them to deny themselves and to endure all things for the elect's sake. Give them the tongue of him that is taught. Clothe them with humility. Teach them to follow peace with each other, and with all men. Support them under spiritual distresses, temptations of the adversary, bodily sickness, domestic anxieties, and hope deferred. And so confirm Thy word from their lips by the power of the Holy Ghost, that through them multitudes may be turned from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto Thee, our God.

We commend to Thee the Missionaries' children entrusted to our charge. Bring them all to a saving knowledge of Christ Jesus. Defend them with Thy heavenly grace, that they may continue Thine for ever; and daily increase in Thy Holy Spirit more and more, until they come unto Thy everlasting kingdom. Give all needed grace to those who have the direction of the Home in the discharge of the arduous work with which Thou hast been pleased to entrust them.

We most heartily thank Thee, O Lord, for those whom Thou hast already sent forth through this Society; and we pray for a yet larger outpouring of a Missionary spirit on our younger Clergy, on the members of our Universities, on those who are elsewhere preparing for this holy work, on the young men of all ranks and orders throughout our land. And herein do we implore Thy special favour on our Training Institutions, that their numbers may be replenished continually: and that none may go forth from them but such as shall be able ministers of the New Testament, full of Faith, and of the Holy Ghost.

We praise Thee, O Thou God of all grace, for the Converts, the Native Catechists, and the Native Clergy, whom Thou hast granted to us in our several Missions. As Thou hast raised the Native Churches thus far, bring them, we pray Thee, to full ripeness and perfectness of age in Christ. Pour out upon them Thy Holy Spirit. Stablish, strengthen, settle them, and so enlarge their liberality, that they may both maintain Thy Word among themselves, and may make it known to the regions beyond them, till all the Gentiles hear the glad tidings of Thy love.

And now, O Lord God, be Thou in the midst of us to-day. Give us a constant sense of Thy presence, and may all our undertakings be begun, continued, and ended in Thee, to the honour of Thy great name for the sake of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

NOTE ON SPELLING OF NATIVE NAMES.

In the year 1896 the Council of the Royal Asiatic Society adopted the system for the Transliteration of Oriental Alphabets which will be found in the Journal of that Society for October of that year; and, on December 8th, 1896, the General Committee of the Church Missionary Society passed the following resolution relating to the same subject:—"The Committee recommend the use of this system, and hope that the missionaries of this Society who are engaged in translational or other literary work in the Roman character in the languages referred to in the Royal Asiatic Society's scheme or in those connected with them, will employ it; and that it may be used in transliterating the names of persons and places in all communications with the Committee, except those well-known and familiar names which it would be unwise to alter."

This system for spelling Native Names is, therefore, recommended to the Society's Missionaries generally for adoption in their letters and reports. It should not be applied, of course, to those well-known places of which the spelling has become so fixed that it would be mere pedantry to disturb it; as, for instance, Travancore (Travankur), and Lucknow (Laknau). Other well-known names, spelt correctly according to this method, are not pronounced accordingly by English residents. For example, the a in Lagos is always pronounced by English residents, when speaking English, as in the word make.

The powers of the vowels are as follows:—

a as in "*a*bout."
ā usually as in "f*a*ther" (in North-Indian words as in "*a*ll.") e as in "p*e*n."
ē as in "fête."
i as in "th*i*n."
ī as in "p*i*que."
o as in "n*o*t," or as in the French "b*o*nne."
ō as in "n*o*te."
u as in "f*u*ll."
ū as in "tr*u*ly."
ai as i in "th*i*ne."
au as ou in "b*ou*gh."

It needs only to be noticed further that—

y always sounds as in "you."
g „ as in "*g*o."
j „ as in "*j*oin."
gn as in "poi*gn*ant."
ng as in "thi*ng*."

h has always a separate sound, except in ch as in "*ch*urch," and sh as in "*sh*e," th and dh should, therefore, not be used in South Indian names to express the dental t and d.

c, whether for k or s, being superfluous, is not used.

Doubled letters should each be pronounced distinctly, as in Italian.

FROM THE CHURCH MISSIONARY INTELLIGENCER, AUG. 1899.

THE PARAMOUNT CLAIMS OF FOREIGN MISSIONS.

A Sermon preached at St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street, on the One Hundredth Anniversary of the Church Missionary Society,

BY THE RIGHT REV. J. J. S. PEROWNE, D.D., Lord Bishop of Worcester; a Vice-President of the Society.

"And He said, It is a light thing that thou shouldest be My servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel: I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be My salvation unto the end of the earth."
Isaiah xlix. 6.

"I PRAY thee, of whom speaketh the prophet this, of himself or of some other man?" The question is not easy to answer. Who is this servant of the Lord who occupies so prominent a place in the latter portion of this prophecy, and whose character and work are described in terms of such lofty eloquence? If we looked at the first verse of the chapter only, "The Lord hath called me from the womb, from the bowels of my mother hath He made mention of my name," we might suppose that the prophet himself was addressed as the servant of the Lord. But in the third verse we are told distinctly that the nation at large is the Lord's servant, "The Lord said unto me, thou art My servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified."* And yet, in the very next verse, we are baffled in our interpretation, for it is no longer the nation at large which is addressed. The servant of the Lord is distinguished from the people, for he is to "raise up the tribes of Jacob and to restore the preserved of Israel." The true servant, then, is not the nation, it is the Israel within the Israel, the remnant according to the election of grace, which is to accomplish God's work in raising up the tribes of Jacob and in bearing His salvation unto the end of the earth.

Yet within a while all these pass from the field of the prophet's vision. These may have had each their appointed task, but they after all are but feeble types and figures presenting in shadowy outline the true Redeemer of Israel. The true servant of the Lord stands alone in His work as He is supreme in His Person. He is One who "shall deal prudently, and be exalted and extolled, and be very high," but who also "hath no form or comeliness, who is despised and rejected of men," yet One who shall justify many by bearing their iniquities, and who "shall see of the travail of His soul, and be satisfied," and in whose hand the "pleasure of the Lord shall prosper."

But leaving aside the fuller discussion of the passage, which would detain us too long, I do not hesitate to say that within the whole of this prophetical book there is not a single verse in which the character of the evangelical prophet is more conspicuous than it is here. How must he have been transported beyond himself, how far must he have been raised, not merely above the vulgar passions and prejudices, but above even the noblest and the purest aspirations of his contemporaries! How deeply must he have been permitted to enter, not only into the secret purpose, but into the heavenly spirit of the Divine counsels, before he could have given utterance to words such as these! Try to realize in some measure—we can never do it to the full—the import, the power, the charm of these names, the names of Jacob and of Israel, in the mouth of every faithful Israelite. Think how not only his human affections but his deepest religious feelings were centred in the prosperity of Zion and the peace of Jerusalem. Think of the grief and the longing, the prayers and the tears, of the exiles in their captivity when they remembered Zion. Think of the passionate cry, "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning. Let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy." What joy, what blessing, what privilege could there be for such an one, comparable for a moment to the joy, the blessing, the privilege of raising up the tribes of Jacob and bringing back the preserved of Israel? And yet he is called upon by the voice of God to regard this as "a light thing."

And in comparison with what is it "a light thing"? What object was so far to transcend that which must have appeared in his eyes as the greatest of all? It was that the servant of the Lord should be given as a light to the Gentiles, and that he should be the bearer of God's salvation unto the ends of the earth. How doubly strange must such a commission have seemed to the prophet who received it. Like every other child of Abraham, he had been wont to look down with mingled aversion and contempt on the mightiest and wisest of the nations; he had directed his bitterest sarcasm against their idols and their idolatry; he would have held himself defiled by sitting down at the board even of their nobles and princes; yet now the honour and the welfare of the Gentiles is to be set far above the deliverance and exaltation of the chosen people. He must break the bands of prejudice; he must learn a new estimate of the world and of life; he must learn that God's thoughts were not as his thoughts; he must learn that it was "a light thing" to raise up the tribes of Jacob and to restore the preserved of Israel, seeing that God would make His servant a light to the Gentiles, and His salvation unto the ends of the earth.

The object which was thus set before the prophet's view as the highest aim of his ministry, beside which all that had hitherto most powerfully stirred his patriotic and religious zeal sank into insignificance, is the same object on behalf of which I am addressing you this evening. But as our point of view is far removed in time and place and circumstance from that in which the prophet contemplated this object, it is clear that if I would enhance its dignity by a comparison, it must be by one of a different kind from that which is employed in the text, though the difference would be rather in the letter than in the spirit of the comparison. I shall not speak to you of Jacob and of Israel, but I shall endeavour to commend the claims of the missionary cause by reference to the interests of a Christian State and a Christian Church; and then I shall consider some of the peculiar motives furnished by the present occasion to call forth our sympathy with the efforts of this great Church Missionary Society.

I. And first of all, I venture to say, looking at the diffusion of Divine truth and its attendant blessings which are shadowed forth in the words of the prophet, that even our national greatness and glory is "a light thing." I would not, indeed, say a word which would seem to cast a chill on the warm glow of patriotism or to speak slightingly of all those temporal advantages by which our beloved country is distinguished amongst the nations of the earth;—the prodigious compass of her dominions and the treasures that she has gathered into her bosom; the widespread awe and wonder of her name, and the more solid glory of her domestic institutions. She stands in the very forefront of the nations. Like Tyre of old, she has been "replenished and made very glorious in the heart of the seas." Nor do I forget that I am speaking in a place where any attempt to disparage these advantages would appear strangely inappropriate—in the heart of this Metropolis which in its vast extent, its overflowing wealth, its world-wide commerce, and its social framework represents, as in a luminous focus, all the power and opulence and majesty of this great Empire. Let us acknowledge all this, not in any boastful spirit, but in fear and trembling, remembering that He who has given us all these tokens of His favour can withdraw them at any moment. But when we have done this, we may still admit that, compared with the great object set before us by the prophet in the text, our national glory is "a light thing." I will even say that apart from that object it is an empty, unreal thing, a mere shadow and counterfeit. For consider for a moment what is the true test and measure of real glory. I am not now speaking of it as it appears in the sight of Him by whom the nations are counted as the small dust of the balance, and who taketh up the isles as a very little thing. I would have you look at it from a human, but still from a manly and reasonable, point of view, as it appears in the estimate of strangers, as it will appear in the eyes of posterity and in the pages of history, and as it appears in your own sober judgment when applied to other circumstances, where you are not under the bias of personal feeling or national prejudice. Take the case of an individual. Would you seriously account it an honour and a glorious thing for a man to have amassed great wealth, to have risen to a high situation, to have acquired extensive authority; or do you not think it necessary to inquire what use he has made of these advantages, what traces he has left of his passage through the world? Do you reckon it the glory of that nation which established its dominion in the New World that it overthrew two mighty and flourishing empires, that it spoiled them of their treasures, that it marked its progress by bloodshed and havoc and ruin, and reduced the conquered races to the lowest depths of misery and degradation? Was that glory or was it shame? Is it a bright or a dark spot in its annals? So in our own case, it is not a sufficient or a solid title to glory that our name, our race, our possessions, our power, our influence have been extended to the ends of the earth, and that every quarter of the globe has yielded its tribute to our arms, our industry, and our commerce. There still remains the question, What use have we made of all our gifts and opportunities? What are the things we have carried with us abroad in exchange for those which we have brought home? What are the tokens and monuments of our presence in the lands where we have settled and borne rule? If by one of those revolutions to which all human affairs are subject, and from which no mortal greatness was ever yet exempt, we should be deprived of that Empire which we exercise in the richest and most famous country of the ancient world, where will be our glory if it should be truly said that we had left them poorer and weaker and not better or happier for our rule? Or where would be the glory of having gained a footing on that other mighty realm in the Far East, long closed by a watchful jealousy against foreign intrusion, if our intercourse with it is to be conducted so as rather to excite increased alarm and hatred than to make it more accessible to the feet of Christ's messengers? Or, once more, what is the glory of being masters of a fifth continent as large as that on the skirts of which we dwell, if we people it with the outcasts of society, and make it a vast sink to receive the dregs and refuse of our corruption? One thing is clear. The ampler our means, the greater our powers; the more commanding our influence, the greater is our responsibility and the stricter the account which we must render at the bar both of Divine and of human judgment. I trust, indeed, that on a survey of the whole field there is much to which we may look with well-grounded satisfaction and thankfulness. We have imparted to distant regions and barbarous races some measure or tincture of the knowledge, the arts, the laws, the institutions, the habits and manners of civilized life; and these are excellent things in their place. But if we have not sent with them the Gospel, which is "the power of God unto salvation," we have kept back the best thing that we have, that without which all the rest is worthless and barren of all real and permanent good. And they are things that we carry with us because we cannot help it, for our own use and benefit, and not for the sake of others. And therefore by them alone we can never obtain either gratitude of man or praise of God.

It may be said, indeed, that the immediate and proper object of the State is to provide for the temporal welfare of an earthly society. It is no part of the duty of the State, we shall be told, to send Missions to the Heathen. I grant it; but it is a part of the duty of a Christian State to encourage all efforts for the extension of Christ's kingdom upon earth. It is a part of the duty of a Christian State to place no obstacles in the way of that extension, but boldly to avow its Christianity with no unworthy fear of consequences, and not to shut the door against missionary enterprise. The great men who saved our Indian Empire, our Lawrences and our Herbert Edwardes, our Havelocks, and men of that stamp were not ashamed to declare the faith of Christ, to avow boldly the faith that was in them. They did not think it wise or politic to hide their convictions lest they should offend the prejudices of Mohammedan or Hindu. The faith of Christ which they held in their hearts they confessed openly with their lips, and God honoured His servants who honoured Him. Mohammedan and Hindu know well how to respect conscientious convictions, and the courage which leads men to avow them, for they would never conceal their own. It will be an evil day, indeed, for England if our statesmen, whether at home or abroad, should ever think that the safest way to govern an empire is by attempting to conceal their Christianity.

II. In the next place, how is it as regards the Church? There can be no question that the sending forth of the Gospel is the proper work of the Church. This has never been denied, at least in words, though practically it has often been overlooked and forgotten. This part of the work of the Church has been treated as "a light thing." It is my object to show that, rather, all the rest is "a light thing" in comparison with this. The prophet himself may be our guide here. He draws a distinction between raising up the tribes of Jacob and restoring the preserved of Israel and sending light and salvation to the ends of the earth: that is to say, he draws a distinction between the building up of the Church at home and the sending of missionaries abroad. I am comparing here not the Church's missionary effort or any other of her operations with the doctrine of the Church, or the constitution or discipline of the Church, or anything else that is inseparable from her Divine and her distinctive character. I am speaking only of her action. I am speaking only of the indications of life and vigour which are afforded by the various modes in which the Church exerts herself in action. And of these I affirm that, apart from the sending of the Gospel to the Heathen, all the rest may be called "a light thing," partly as being ineffective and insufficient, and partly as being fallacious and unreal. For consider. Let us suppose a Church pure and sound and flourishing in all other respects, pure in her doctrine, ritual, and government, sound in the principles, affections, and mutual consent of her members, flourishing in the prosperity of her institutions, in the abundance of intellectual and spiritual gifts vouchsafed to her ministers, and in a rich supply of temporal advantages. Here is a Church which may be said to be a glorious Church arrayed in the beauty of holiness. But if a Church thus favoured puts forward no expansive energies, if she is content merely with the enjoyment of her external prosperity, then the fulness of her blessings only renders the deficiency of her outward actions the more glaring and the more reprehensible. Whatever appearance there may be of health or vigour in a missionless Church, all such indications must be hollow and fallacious. Such a Church deceives herself like that of Laodicea of old, saying, "I am rich and increased in goods and have need of nothing," being in truth wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked. You will remember that lukewarmness is the cause at once of the misery and of the self-delusion. It was such a Church that received the warning, "I know thy works that thou hast a name that thou livest and art dead." Is that too much to say of a Church which, so far as regards those who are without, is deaf and dumb and blind and palsied, without an ear for her Lord's cry, without a voice to proclaim His message, without an eye for those whom He came to seek and save, without hands or feet for His service, or, rather, to speak more plainly, without faith to trust His word, without hope to abide His time, without love to spend and be spent for His cause? Where these things are wanting, what can be the worth of all other possessions, or what can any other tokens of vitality avail where there is a numbness at the heart? Surely where that is the case all else may well be counted as "a light thing."

Yes, it is "a light thing" to build up a Church compared with this supreme object on which the Prophet fastens our attention—to carry God's light and God's love to the uttermost ends of the earth.

III. But why is this? What is the transcendent glory of missionary enterprise? Why is it a greater thing to send Christ's message to the Heathen than it is to sit at home quietly contented with the gifts that God has given us? Well, without taking the highest ground, I ask, is there not something inspiring in the whole history of missionary effort? Is it not a good thing, an inspiring thing, to have lifted up before our eyes the noble examples of the men who have gone forth sacrificing their earthly prospects, and encountering privations, suffering, and a martyr's death, that they may spread amongst the nations the unsearchable riches of Christ? These are not adventurers, or sportsmen, or traders, or discoverers, seeking amusement or fame or wealth as the result of their labours. They have gained no earthly reward. They have looked for none. They have indeed enriched the world. They have been the pioneers of civilization. They have raised the savage. They have reformed men sunk in the lowest depths of degradation, misery, and crime. They have exhibited the Christian graces of domestic purity and truth and love. They have rebuked the shameless vices of a corrupt Heathendom, and they have breathed new life into its effete and decaying civilizations. The splendid heroism of our missionary martyrs has given us a loftier conception of duty and made our hearts throb with holier emotions. It has put to shame the weakness, the cowardice, the selfishness of our lives. Surely on this ground alone we may say that the work of the Church at home is "a light thing" compared with the Mission work of the Church abroad.

But again—and here we take higher ground—the Mission work abroad gives us new impulses and new motives, because it is done in simple obedience to the command of our risen Lord, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature," and in simple trust in His promise, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the age." This Mission work is a greater work because it is the proper and only adequate discharge of that Great Commission. It is a greater work because of the grandeur and far-reaching compass of its conception as putting no limits beyond those of the habitable globe to its aims; greater, because it is not limited by the bounds of a parish or church; greater, because it bears in its bosom the inspiring truth that the kingdom of God is one, and that all work for Christ is one, essentially one in its range and power and objects, however manifold it may be in the forms which it assumes, or in its application to the various phases of society, and the infinite diversity of the needs which it meets. It is greater, because, as all experience shows, it breathes new life into all the work at home. By an eternal law Home work and Foreign work flourish or decay together. Contributions to Home work have never been diminished because the work of the Church abroad has taken its proper place in our parochial organizations. On the contrary, they will grow and increase, for Foreign work acts and reacts on the Home work. Schools, Bible-classes, Services in Church are all stronger, brighter, healthier in proportion as the duty to preach the Gospel to the Heathen is recognized. The duty once recognized becomes a privilege and a joy. It is a sovereign antidote to that selfishness which is so often a canker in our work. It is quite possible for even the religious work of a church or a parish to be "sicklied o'er with the pale cast" of selfishness; and it does us all good to be driven out of our narrow parochial groove, to be compelled to take a wider outlook, to be made to feel that Christ's kingdom is not confined to our own parish, our own diocese, our own country, but is wide as the world. "Ask of me, and I will give thee the Heathen for Thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for Thy possession."

But, finally, the Mission work of the Church is a greater work because of its regenerating power in the revival of the whole life of the Church. No one who has watched the development of Missions and the development of the Home work side by side can question this. It must often have awakened our surprise that at the Great Reformation which shattered the fetters of superstition, and brought out a nation beloved of God into the glorious liberty of His children and gave them the Word of Life, no attempt was made to carry the precious treasure to the rest of the world. It may be that the work which God had given our reformers to do at home—the work to which He had specially called them—so absorbed all their thoughts and interests that it left no room for anything else. One man only, and he a scholar, not an evangelist, lifted up his voice in a noble and touching appeal to the great leaders of the Reformation that they should not forget their Lord's command. But the appeal of Erasmus was disregarded. Now, thank God, we may hope for better things. A work has been going on of which we have taken too little account—a work deeper, we may hope, more abiding and more fruitful than any that has gone before. A power is gone forth which the Church feels in her inmost heart, and which pulsates in all her veins. And whence has the power come? Not from man, not from any design or purpose of man, not from great leaders in Christ's army, but from the finger and Spirit of God. There is no more striking instance of the reflex action of missionary effort than this—that it has been made in God's hands the instrument of a mighty revival in the Church at home. We all feel it, though we may not acknowledge the source from which it comes. In fact, we have been so accustomed to connect that revival with another movement that we have forgotten the movement in the midst of which we are standing. But compare it for a moment with that other movement, which began in Oxford some sixty years ago. There is a disposition in many quarters to speak of that movement as though it were the exclusive instrument by which the great change which has passed over the Church has been effected. I do not wish to disparage the Oxford movement, or to deny the good which it has wrought. It not only rebuked the prevalent slovenliness and disorder, it not only restored our churches and made worship more seemly, more beautiful and more reverent; but it drew attention to the neglect of sacraments and ordinances, and above all it revived a truth that had been too much forgotten—that the Church is not a number of loosely aggregated units, but a body of which Christ is the head, a living communion informed by one Spirit, and which, "built together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love." The assertion of this truth was no doubt pushed beyond the limits of Scripture, when the Church was identified with a particular form of government, and when it was laid down that it existed only in a triple form, Greek, Roman, and Anglican. But the belief in one Holy Catholic and Apostolic Church had almost been lost among us, and it was needful to reassert it. The earlier Evangelical revival, striking as were its results in the awakening of souls and the turning of men from darkness to light and from the power of Satan unto God, left out of sight the corporate unity of the Church. Its weakness was there. It was spiritual, and mighty in its spiritual intensity, but it forgot that Christ came not to convert individuals only, but to build up a Church. The Oxford movement, on the other hand, dwelt too exclusively on this aspect of the truth. It became external in its character. Ritual and ceremonial darkened the spiritual life, and the work of God the Holy Ghost was almost overlooked in its teaching. Now, thank God, there has gone forth a power, which is destined, I believe, to change the face of the world, the power of the Great Commission. Christ's Church has obeyed His word. His Church is sending forth her Missions to the Heathen. Many in His Church are offering themselves to go in obedience to His command. And so the Church is not only winning fresh victories for Christ abroad, but it is breathing new life into her organization at home. This movement does not despise sacraments or ordinances; but it puts these in their proper place. It does not disregard apostolic order or episcopal government; but it knows that God has His own instruments and can work by other means. The Evangelical revival has not been lost and swallowed up in the sands of time; it is rather like one of those mysterious rivers which disappear for a time in the bowels of the earth only to emerge again in larger volume. The fertilizing stream in its mighty progress is cleaving for itself a thousand channels and reviving the whole life of the Church.

IV. Lastly, let me briefly glance at some of the motives, which this our Jubilee year suggests, of thankfulness and hope. No doubt the blast of the trumpet which proclaimed to the Jews the close of the seven weeks of years and ushered in the secular Pentecost, the holy year of liberty and rest, was a joyful sound. That, too, was, in a degree, a raising up of the tribes of Judah and a restoring of the preserved of Israel. It was the release of those who were bowed down under the yoke of bondage or the weight of burdensome obligations. It was the recovery of long foregone possessions and privileges by those who had been stripped of their patrimony. It was an easy and cheap redress of wrong. It said to the slave and the debtor, "Go free," and inasmuch as it was hallowed by a Divine command and guaranteed by an act of Divine sovereignty, we cannot doubt that it was attended by spiritual blessings far outweighing all the material and temporal benefits which it bestowed. It did not fail to strengthen the common bond and the common trust in God's providential care, and to quicken the sense of gratitude for His fatherly lovingkindness, to revive, where it might else have languished, the consciousness of national brotherhood, and to knit together divided hearts by the ties of a renewed affection.

But is not ours a greater Jubilee to-day? Do we not listen to a much more joyful sound? For what was the object of the Jewish festival after all? It was nothing more than reparation or restitution. It brought back persons and things into their old place. It did not invest them with any new prerogatives. It did not hold out any new hopes. The bondsman received his natural freedom; the alienated land returned to its hereditary owner. But there was no advance; no progressive movement. Each Jubilee was like the one which went before. It was a revolution in a fixed orbit, and whatever number of such revolutions might be completed, there was no greater cause for joy or thankfulness or hope for one than for those which had gone before. How essentially different from that is the character of our celebration! It marks an epoch in the history of the Society and the history of the Church. It is an occasion not merely for thankful retrospect, but for thankful anticipation. The Society knows no limits to its work. It reaches forth to the utmost bound of the habitable globe. It claims all nations as its possession, because they are the possession of its Lord. It would, indeed, be matter for mourning and humiliation if it were to content itself with the mere retrospect of what God has accomplished by its instrumentality. That deserves our most grateful acknowledgment, as it goes far beyond our poor deserts. But that which excites our deepest joy and thankfulness on this Anniversary is not that we are permitted to look back over one hundred years during which the Society has steadily pursued its labour of love, though such a retrospect might well fill our hearts with gladness and our tongues with praise. But it is that in this our own day and generation there has been vouchsafed to it a wider blessing and a brighter promise and a surer ground for future exertions than at any previous epoch in its annals. It is that its enterprises are formed on a larger scale and conducted with redoubled energy and more far-sighted prudence. It is not only that missionary tents have been pitched here and there in the wilderness, but that the temple has been raised for a permanent worship. It is not merely that apostolic men have gone forth singly or two and two, as if rather to explore the strange land than to occupy and settle in it; but it is that the Church has been exhibited, in the integrity of her ordinances and her polity, in all her beauty and in all her strength, "comely as Jerusalem" to engage the affections and satisfy the longings of her children, "terrible as an army with banners" against the powers of darkness, ready to go forward conquering and to conquer under the great Leader at whose feet she lays all the trophies of her warfare. It is that at home evangelistic labourers are more carefully trained for work. It is that abroad provision has been made for the constant pastoral superintendence by which the efforts of individuals, which must otherwise be scattered and wasted, are combined and directed to the common end. When we look back, all that the Society has accomplished from the beginning seems little compared with her gains in the last ten years. Indeed, we thank God that during the hundred years of its existence each decade has been an advance more fruitful and richer in blessing than that which went before.

And yet we must not forget that if our gains have been greater it is because our opportunities have been tenfold greater. From that annus mirabilis 1858, when so many open doors were set before us, and so many barriers thrown down, there has been a perpetual advance. More fields have been occupied, more labourers have offered themselves for foreign service, and yet even this has been only a seed-time big with the promise of the future harvest. Have we not reason, then, as well as Israel of old in the year of Jubilee, only incomparably stronger, for joy and gratitude? Can we desire any plainer token, any surer pledge, that the Lord has not withdrawn His presence from our Church, that His hand is still over her, that His Spirit is still within her, notwithstanding all her imperfections and unworthiness, that He still regards her with the eye of love, that He is still graciously pleased to use her as His chosen vessel to bear His light unto the Gentiles, and His salvation unto the ends of the earth? Are we not encouraged to join in the humble yet hopeful prayer, "Strengthen, O God, that which Thou hast wrought for us. Strengthen it in the mission-field abroad. Strengthen it in the Church at home. We pray for a yet larger outpouring of Thy Spirit"? And then, when we reflect on the undeserved mercies of God's hand, ought not our hearts to melt in brotherly love one towards another; ought not our miserable strifes and jealousies to be swallowed up by the contemplation of the glorious object set before us? Ought not the Church to pray with one voice, "Unite my heart to fear Thy Name"? Oh, that there were such a heart in us that it might be well with us and with our children for ever! It was on the day of atonement that the trumpet of Jubilee was to sound throughout the land. Has there not gone forth among us a louder yet sweeter summons to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace?

How then may each of us best hallow this Anniversary? First of all, let us all give it its rightful position in our thoughts and affections. Let us try to break the spell of habit and custom that makes all familiar things light and worthless, however precious they may be in themselves. Let this occasion rouse us to prize our privileges as partakers of the Gospel and to value the dignity of our calling as permitted to take part in the holy work of making known Christ's salvation to the ends of the earth. Be assured that in God's will and purpose this is the great end for which our country has been raised to her proud pre-eminence amongst the nations of the earth, and endowed with means and opportunities that were never vouchsafed to any nation before. Think not to elude the obligation by regarding it as a public and national responsibility which touches none because it rests on all. Remember that it becomes a private and personal duty to every one of us who has been able to understand its import. Do not let us practically make light of it, as we shall do, if we postpone it to any indulgence of sense or fancy or vanity, and if we withhold from it what we can really give; but let the fulness of our spiritual blessings draw out our compassion to those who are sitting in darkness and in the shadow of death, the millions of the Heathen who have never heard of Christ and His salvation, and who are perishing in their sins. Let it be a loud call upon us to give our active help, our sympathy, our prayers to the missionaries who, in their self-denying zeal for souls, are breaking down under the strain of their solitary labours. Do not let us meet their need with an empty pity. Let us respond with all our hearts to the call which this Society makes upon us all. Let those of us to whom God has vouchsafed any measure of worldly prosperity consecrate their gains by a substantial offering to Christ and His Gospel, not the mere casual refuse of luxury and ostentation, but a regular and permanent contribution, never slackening its hand, but increasing with the increasing means vouchsafed to us according to the measure of each man's ability. Let us thus again prove that we are true to ourselves, and that we are earnest in our expressions of goodwill. Weigh the object in the balance of the sanctuary, and you will not account it "a light thing" or grudge some sacrifice for its sake.

Let the sound of our Jubilee be wafted to earth's remotest shores, reviving the hearts of Christ's servants with cheering hopes. Let it proclaim to those who are far off and those who are nigh that Christ our Lord is with us still, that He is fulfilling His promise, that our Church has been honoured as God's chief minister in evangelizing the world, that she is rising to the height of her glorious commission, and that she is fully purposed with His help not to fail one jot, but to redouble her efforts and sacrifices, and, forgetting those things which are behind, to reach forth unto the things which are before, and never to rest until she has carried Christ's message to every tribe under heaven and made known His salvation unto the ends of the earth.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE.

General Review of the Year.

(READ AT THE ANNIVERSARY AT EXETER HALL, MAY 2nd, 1899.)

"Make a joyful noise unto the LORD, all ye lands."—PSALM C. I.

THE One Hundredth Psalm, the "Jubilate" alike of the Old and the New Testament Church, the one Psalm bearing the title "A Psalm of Praise," fitly expresses the desires and aspirations of the Committee as they render their account at the close of the Society's One Hundredth Year. Whether or not the "joyful noise" of the Psalmist had reference to the jubilee trumpets, the expression is appropriate to the year under review, the Society's Second Jubilee Year, for indeed the notes of thanksgiving which have signalized the Centenary Celebrations are still prolonged. In London and the Provinces these celebrations have not only enlisted the enthusiasm of the Society's friends, but have given occasion for manifestations of affectionate goodwill—which the Committee gratefully acknowledge—from members of other Missionary Societies: those of the Church of England, those of the Presbyterian Churches in Scotland, those of the Nonconformist Churches, and those of the Protestant Churches of the Continent; while the sister Church of Ireland and the Protestant Episcopal Church of America were officially represented, the former by the Bishop of Derry and the latter by the venerable Bishop Whipple of Minnesota. But the celebrations have not been confined to the British Isles. Colonel Williams, M.P., the Society's Treasurer, whom we welcome back from his visit to Australasia, reports that he found wherever he went, in New Zealand, Victoria, New South Wales, in India and Ceylon, that preparations were in progress to commemorate the occasion; while in Sierra Leone the Acting Governor proclaimed April 12th as a general holiday. It may almost literally be said that the Centenary has been kept in "all lands," and everywhere its purport has been an Evangelistic Message—a proclamation of "the acceptable year of the Lord." The Committee desire that the Anniversary may be a faithful echo of the Centenary. They invite the whole Society, every Association and Auxiliary in the homeland and the colonies, every Native Church and congregation throughout the world, to unite with them in a fuller and deeper consecration to the service of the Lord and the evangelization of the world, to proclaim afresh, "Make a joyful noise unto the LORD, all ye lands."

Society's Centenary.

What are the forces available to make effective such a summons? The Psalmist indicates them: (1) There is first the power of personal testimony, "Know ye that the Lord He is God: It is He that hath made us, and we are His; we are His people, and the sheep of His pasture" (R.V.). Such a personal recognition of the Divine claims, such a personal persuasion of the privileges of the Lord's people—the plentiful pastures, the unfailing guidance, the perfect safety of the Lord's sheep—are the necessary qualifications of the Lord's witness. He must know who says "Know ye." He must be a spiritual man who engages in spiritual work. The Committee praise God for His grace to their fathers in teaching them this truth, and giving them and their followers strength and courage to assert it and to hold to it throughout the hundred years. (2) Next to testimony there is the force of loving invitation: "Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise: give thanks unto Him, and bless His Name." The evangelist's message is an invitation to enter the kingdom. The courts of the Lord's house have ample room; the gates thereto are wide open; there is the access to the Holiest through the rent veil by the blood of the Lamb. "Enter with thanksgiving" is the summons which the Lord's heralds are privileged to address to all lands. (3) And when, alas! testimony and invitation prove without avail, when ignorance disposes to fanatical hostility, when worldliness and sensuality deaden the senses in impenetrable apathy, there is the force of patient persuasion, of instruction, of demonstration. He argues:—"For the Lord is good; His mercy is everlasting; and His truth endureth to all generations."

These forces—Testimony, Invitation, Persuasion—are at the disposal of the Church to-day. The life-evidences of the reality of grace; the open doors for delivering, and the open ears for receiving the message of grace; the apparatus for demonstrating to the prejudiced will or the clouded understanding the goodness of the God of grace—these were never before available as they are now.

Native Christians,

I. A hundred years ago non-Christian Nations could only witness the power of personal Testimony in the lives and in the deaths of Christians who came to them from foreign lands. Now, in the Society's fields alone, it may be looked for in the persons of over 240,000 baptized Native Christians. How incalculable the potency of their influence, if in all of these Native Christians were seen indubitable proofs of the changes wrought by the Spirit of God! The Annual Letters bear witness that to some extent this is the case. The uprightness of Christians as contrasted with the Heathen is observed and acknowledged. When, for example, last autumn the northern island of Japan was visited by devastating floods which rendered homeless more than 30,000 people, and the Buddhist monks and priests of Hakodate offered to collect their moral character, and distribute money and clothing among the distressed, the response made to their offer was insignificant. But when the Native Christians appealed to the townspeople for gifts of clothing, and sent round carts surmounted by red cross banners, the people greeted them with cries of "Here come the Christians!" "They crammed old clothing into the carts," Bishop Fyson says, "some even taking off what they were wearing and throwing them in; shopkeepers gave new goods out of their stores, and some gave money as well." Over 10,000 articles were collected, the townspeople saying that they gave so freely because they could trust the Christians to be honest and judicious in distributing their charity.

Missionary zeal.

In many fields there are instances also of a warm and zealous missionary spirit. The Church in Uganda affords the most conspicuous example. Bishop Tucker last summer visited Toro, under the shadow of Ruwenzori Mountain, supposed to be the famous "Mountains of the Moon," to the far west of the Uganda Protectorate. He found there twelve churches with accommodation for 3,000 worshippers; 2,000 were able or learning to read, one hundred were communicants, and forty-five of these hundred were engaged as teachers, supported by the Natives themselves. The pioneers of this work had been native evangelists from Uganda. Moreover, these Uganda missionaries have penetrated to the confines of Stanley's Great Forest, and the Bishop came in contact with two individuals of the remarkable race of Pygmies who were under instruction. Speaking of these evangelists, the Bishop says:—"These men are living lives of such self-denial and devotion as almost to make one ashamed of the little one has given up in the same great cause." If such zeal and such fruits of zeal were common in missionary annals, a single generation would seem none too short a period for the evangelization of the world.

But the Committee are sadly aware that in the Mission-field, as at home, there are names on the roll of baptized Christians, yes, and of communicants also, whose profession of Christ is little more than a nominal one. An experienced missionary, writing from one of the oldest and outwardly most successful Missions, says that large numbers in past years embraced Christianity from worldly motives, and as a consequence some have relapsed, and others are irresponsive to appeals to forsake sin and serve Christ. He is able, however, to add, "God is graciously gathering round us a little company of earnest souls who believe in a life of prayer and in the baptism of the Holy Ghost." And the Committee believe that this is true in many places where disappointment has been experienced. There is a growing consciousness of having come short of the attainments to which the Gospel summons and the possibilities which it presents in and through Christ, an increasing sense of dependence on the power of the Holy Ghost, a more general setting apart of special days for humiliation and prayer, a more hopeful and trustful looking for the fruits of the Spirit. The Committee learn with much thankfulness that the Three Years' Enterprise and the Centenary of the Society have been used by God in many of the Missions to promote prayer and fresh evangelistic efforts, as well as to evoke many free-will offerings. In some places daily prayer-meetings have been held; in others, earnest efforts to make the Gospel Message known in every village within reach have been organized; in others again, as in the congregation of the Rev. W. D. Clarke, of Madras (now amongst us), prayer that a large increase of consecrated labourers might be raised up from their midst has been unitedly offered. Second-Jubilee and Centenary donations have been cheerfully contributed by the Native Christians at practically all the stations, to be expended generally on local objects—on church building and restoration, or on evangelistic work. But over and above these local claims some have sent generous remittances to the Society's own Centenary Fund. For example, the Christians in Travancore, who have been perhaps the most eager of all in responding to the Three Years' Enterprise appeal, have sent to England a sum of about £60, while some of the Christian coolies on the tea estates of Central Ceylon have remitted no less a sum than one hundred and twenty guineas.

Native labourers.

The Committee invite special and frequent prayer for the native labourers on the Society's staff. Their number is little short of six thousand. Upon them falls the brunt of the opposition and persecution which have to be encountered, and on their example and teaching, under God, depend the vitality and power of the congregations. In order, moreover, that the recruits to their ranks may be men and women of spiritual tone and vigour, the missionaries and all engaged in the training colleges and classes throughout the Missions need a constant outpouring of the sevenfold gifts of God the Holy Ghost. Such institutions are found at Sierra Leone; at Oyo, a fresh effort in the interior of Yoruba-land, of which Bishop Tugwell writes in most hopeful terms; at Frere Town, East Africa; at Mengo, Uganda, where Archdeacon Walker conducts a class, from which several have just been admitted to the Diaconate; at Jerusalem; at Calcutta and Allahabad, Lahore and Poona, Madras and Masulipatam, Palamcotta and Cottayam, in India; at Cotta in Ceylon; at Fuh-Chow and Ningpo in China; at Osaka in Japan; at Gisborne, New Zealand; and at Winnipeg and Prince Albert in North-West Canada. Those at Madras and Cottayam supply candidates year by year who sit for the Oxford and Cambridge Preliminary Examination for Orders, and these Tamil, Telugu, and Malayalim students rarely fail to pass creditably. More encouraging than even these evidences of patient industry in the study of theology are such complaints as were urged by a Heathen regarding one of the Fuh-Chow students: "He is always telling us to repent, to give up sin, and to believe in one called Jesus, who died to save men from their sins. He never says anything about Confucius and our Chinese worthies; it is all Jesus and repentance."

On the whole the Committee are able to look forward hopefully to the progress of the Native Christian communities, which the Society has been instrumental in raising up. The new century, they humbly trust, will not have far advanced before many, if not all, of them will have attained that measure of maturity which is represented by a higher standard of spiritual life in combination with a capacity for self-government and a joyful willingness to support their own pastoral agents and the ordinances of their Church. Then it may be hoped that another great step towards the euthanasia so long aimed at will be marked by the appointment of Native Bishops. Meantime the Committee rejoice at the appointment of their missionary, Mr. Hoare, to the See of Victoria, to supervise the growing congregations in Fuh-Kien and Hong Kong and Kwan-Tung, and of another missionary, Mr. Peel, to the Diocese of Mombasa. Four of the Indian dioceses have been vacated, the three Presidency Sees of Calcutta, Bombay, and Madras, by the retirement after long episcopates of Bishops Johnson, Mylne, and Gell, the last of whom was the senior English Bishop present at the Lambeth Conference of 1897; and the See of Lahore by the sudden death of Bishop Matthew. All the successors to these Sees have found, or will find, that a large proportion of their clergy are connected with the C.M.S., as the new Metropolitan of India, Bishop Welldon, gracefully acknowledged in his message of congratulation to "my great benefactor, the C.M.S.," read on the Centenary Day. Bishop Pym has succeeded Bishop Walsh in Mauritius; and Mr. Foss, a missionary of the S.P.G., has been appointed to the Diocese of Osaka in Japan, in succession to Bishop Awdry, who is transferred to the South Tokio jurisdiction, rendered vacant by the lamented death of Bishop Bickersteth.

Episcopal appointments.

II. A hundred years ago the founders of the Society were unable to find a single English missionary whom they could send to carry the Gospel Invitation, and it seemed as if the doors of access to the heathen and Mohammedan world were hermetically sealed. Now, thank God, the open doors abound on every hand, and the missionaries who have gone out from Great Britain and Ireland in the Society's ranks, though far too few, are numbered in thousands. The two thousand and third missionary, not counting wives, sailed in March last. The one thousandth sailed in 1880, so that more have gone out during the past nineteen years than during the previous eighty-one. The average number sent out yearly during the first fifty years was eight and a half; from 1849 to 1887 it was nineteen; and from 1887 to 1898 it was seventy and a half. But when from contrasting the supply of men now with the supply in past years, the Committee's thoughts turn to comparing the supply with the existing demand, it is at once realized how grievously inadequate, humanly speaking, the forces are for compassing in any practical and serious way the work of evangelization within the areas for which the Society has accepted responsibility. It would be impossible to convey in this brief Review a due sense of the multiplied open doors and open ears which are presented to the little bands of evangelists in India and Ceylon; in China and Japan; in Africa, West and East; yes, and even in Mohammedan Persia and Palestine and Egypt. The Committee do not wish to imply that open ears means always open hearts, but they believe no Christian could read through the Annual Letters from the field without being again and again solemnized and stirred and humbled and distressed at the general readiness to listen and at the rarity of the opportunities to do so because the labourers are few. And the ladies give the same report as the men, of ready access to the people. Whether in Yoruba-land or at the Niger stations, they visit the compounds and take their seat with a group of women and children around them; or on the East Coast they visit the Swahili and Beluchi ladies; or enter the huts of Syrian or Bedawin peasants in Palestine; or in China receive and return the visits of mandarins' wives; or show an interest in the factory girls, students, soldiers, and policemen in Japan; or, as has been done at Hakodate, take up their abode in the midst of the poorer quarter of the native population—they are almost everywhere welcomed. In India, and in some districts in China, most of the work among the women and girls at the stations occupied by the Society is done by the C.E.Z.M.S. or the Z.B.M.M., or the F.E.S., to which Societies, the Committee are deeply sensible, the progress witnessed and the fruits gathered are largely due.

Open doors—

The sense of the utter insufficiency of the existing evangelistic force further increases when the eye turns from the fields in which some labourers are found, to those where no ray of Gospel light as yet penetrates the dark and terrible gloom, and whither God's providence appears to summon the Society. However the successive political events affecting Africa and the Farther East may be viewed, it is palpable to all that they are opening long-closed and densely-peopled lands to the ambassadors of Christ. The revolts and mutinies in the Protectorate of Sierra Leone, in Nigeria, and in Uganda are obliging the Government to strengthen its position in those places, and thus afford guarantees for security to life and religious liberty; while the railways which are advancing from both the East and West Coasts and from Cairo and the Cape are a warning and a challenge to the Church not to be outrun by the trader; and the warning becomes more urgent where the trade, so far as imports are concerned, is likely to consist largely of spirituous liquor, deleterious and destructive to the native races. The Committee are preparing to send pioneer parties into the vast Soudan by the two routes through which it is most accessible. At Tripoli a small band are studying Hausa, and will, God willing, shortly proceed up the Niger for the Hausa States; and from Cairo, in the autumn of the year, it is hoped a party will go up the Nile to occupy some places in the Equatorial Provinces of the Eastern Soudan. The Committee anticipate that, in answer to many prayers, the existing interdict on missionary work among the Mohammedans of the Upper Nile will shortly be removed. In Japan the expectation of the New Treaties, which will come into force this year, has led to a widespread desire for the knowledge of English, affording many avenues for influencing the official classes; while the re-election of a Christian as President of the Lower House of the Diet is a reassertion with emphasis of the nation's confidence in the impartiality of Christians. In China the political disturbances, whatever their ultimate effects may be, are exciting a curiosity to read the Bible and Christian books. The Committee sympathize with the Roman Catholic Christians in Si-Chuan whose friends have been murdered and their property destroyed. They are thankful for the safety, amidst vehement threats of danger, of the Society's own missionaries in that province, who have enlarged their borders in troublous times by occupying Song-pan, on the frontier of fast-closed Tibet. Wuchau-fu also, on the West River, has been occupied as an outpost, from which it is hoped to penetrate the province of Hunan. On the above lines advance is projected, but it is tardy and slow, and in detachments miserably out of proportion to what the occasion demands. Bishop Tugwell, who has taken Mrs. Tugwell overland through Yoruba-land to the Niger—a unique journey for a lady in West Africa—writes: "The British Government can send forth two hundred officers and non-commissioned officers, picked men, for service in Lokoja alone when British interests are threatened; but the Church of Christ cannot muster ten men either for Benin or the Hausa country." He adds, "May God speedily remove this reproach from us."

especially in Africa,

and the Far East.

III. The hundred years were well advanced before the method of evangelizing the proud and exclusive high-caste men of India through Mission Schools was adopted; and still more advanced before Medical Missions were utilized as an agency for surmounting the fanaticism of the Moslem, the exclusiveness of the Chinaman, and the callous indifference of the African. The Society's schools and colleges and seminaries, upwards of 2,250 in number, are found in every Mission, and range from the village primary school, with mud walls and primitive appointments, to the college, with its staff of professors preparing men for the highest degrees at the Universities. In all, the Bible is taught to Christians and non-Christians alike, and it illustrates the value of this instrumentality to read that in the competition for an Examination in the Bible and Christian evidence, which is open to all candidates of whatever race or religion in the Madras Presidency, the second and third prizes were carried off by two Brahman students, of the Noble College, Musulipatam, the boy who won the second having known nothing about the Bible when he entered the College two years before. The Society's high schools and colleges for girls in India are mainly for Christians, and the educational progress of Christian women in that country is one of the most striking and hopeful features in its development. At Osaka, on the other hand, Miss Tristram's boarding school receives non-Christians, but, with God's abundant blessing on the holy, loving tone and influence of the school, sends out very few that are not, in will and desire at least, and often also by outward profession, Christians. One who died a victim to influenza during the year was a daughter of a Buddhist priest, and she did all she could by conversation and letters, by sending him a marked Bible, and by prayer, to win her father to Christ.

Medical Missions.

The Society has now twenty-eight stations at which there are Mission Hospitals; there are on its staff fifty-five missionaries (including six women) with medical diplomas, many being graduates of British Universities. But in addition to the above stations—which are mostly in East Africa, the Mohammedan Lands, the Punjab, and China — dispensaries for treating simple ailments are found at many stations in West Africa, among the Santals, in the North-West Provinces, in Mauritius, and elsewhere. The Peshawar Medical Mission, opened in 1897, has made a hopeful start, and new medical stations have been commenced during the year at Onitsha on the Niger, at Yezd in Persia, and at Hakodate in Japan. To mention only one or two among the hospital patients: there are found a former steward to Madame Blavatsky, of Theosophist fame; a Sikh priest; a Buddhist priest; a former highway robber; many Afridis wounded in the frontier war; and a sea pirate at Pakhoi. The hospital at Pakhoi may also stand to represent work among lepers, of whom it has accommodation for over a hundred. These unhappy sufferers are cared for in asylums and visited in their camps by the Society's missionaries in many places in Africa, India, China, and Japan. These labours of love, revolting oftentimes to the senses and depressing to the spirits, are exercising a potent and far-reaching influence; they are exhibiting unostentatiously, but with an efficacy that cannot be hid, the true nature of Christ's religion. Minds are being prepared to inquire into His claims, and hearts attached to His obedience.

Translation work.

Would that it were possible to say that there existed in the many vernaculars an adequate Christian literature to guide inquirers into the Truth. The Religious Tract Society, which celebrates its Centenary this month, the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, which celebrated its Bi-centenary last year, and in India the Christian Literature Society, have rendered invaluable help in printing and distributing books of devotion, education, and controversy; but in this field of operations it is even more true than in most others, that the need is great and the labourers are few. The Word of God is, of course, the chiefest and best Book, whether for inquirers or for mature believers, and some of the Society's missionaries are at all times engaged, in consultation and co-operation with others, under the supervision of the British and Foreign Bible Society, in the work of translating and revising the Scriptures in the many languages used in the Society's Missions. The MSS. of the revised Nupé Gospels have just been brought home, after having been immersed for ten days in the Niger and given up for lost. Archdeacon McDonald is seeing through the press, while in England, parts of the Tukudh Bible, the whole of which he has been privileged to translate during his forty-six years on the confines of the Arctic Circle. Mr. Peck writes from Cumberland Sound of the value the Eskimo attach to the version of the Gospels in their language which he saw through the press while last at home. And in Uganda it is stated that £700 was expended by the Natives in purchasing books and stationery during six months of last year.

Baptisms.

And what have been the fruits of the year's evangelistic labours; the fruits of lives lived in humble faith, and lives laid down in peaceful, joyful hope; the fruits of invitations uttered often in weakness, with a stammering tongue, but with the consciousness that the message is the power of God unto salvation; the fruits of daily plodding in the schools, of the loving ministry of healing in the hospitals, of the translation and distribution of Christian books? What have been the results? Who will undertake to tell? The actual baptisms can be numbered, and few though they may seem, what praise and thanksgiving would they have called forth a hundred years ago! The adults, converts from Paganism, Heathenism, or Mohammedanism, who were admitted by baptism into the visible Church during the year were 6,878, an average of 132 a week. They include a blind woman at Onitsha, who has experienced persecution; the first-fruits of the valley station at Mamboia, "Persis, beloved by everybody," and who loves to labour for her Saviour; a young sheikh, a student at the El Azhar University, Cairo; a Pathan from over the frontier of British India, whose first lessons in the Gospel were learned from a torn copy of St. Matthew which found its way to his village; a Rajput leper; a Brahman at Bombay, instructed by Mr. Anderson of the S.V.M.U.; an Arabic-speaking Jew in the same city; a Tamil-speaking Mohammedan, known as Lubbais, at Madras; a Hindu sorcerer; the first-fruits of Kien Yang, the remotest station in Fuh-Kien; a college tutor at Ning-po, aged eighty-nine; a Japanese artillery corporal at Hiroshima; a number of Blackfeet Indians, gathered in after many years of labour; and an influential Nishga chief, whose name was used to conjure with by the medicine men of the Naas and Skeena Rivers.

Home organization.

At home, the Rev. G. B. Durrant, a missionary of over twenty years' standing, has been appointed as Secretary of the Society, and his name is hereby submitted for approval in accordance with Law XX. No new or startling developments in the organization for diffusing missionary information, spreading missionary interest, and collecting missionary funds have been inaugurated during the year. The methods devised in former years have been worked by an army, mostly volunteers, of earnest labourers, and their reports agree that at home, as abroad, there remains much land to be possessed. There are signs, however, that Christians are beginning to realize that it is the common right of all mankind to hear the Gospel of Salvation, and that it is the right and duty of every one of them to share in the privilege of making the Gospel known. The spiritual tone which has pervaded the crowded Centenary gatherings, both in the Metropolis and the provinces, is a sign of this; so also is the friendly attitude manifested by the press; and most encouraging of all is the hearty interest shown by the Bishops. Within the circle reached by the Society's officers and friends, the lines of mutual co-operation and fellowship in prayer are ever being drawn closer. Attempts are made from headquarters to influence all classes—the clergy, laymen, women, scholars (boys and girls), and young children—and at the same time to strengthen and stimulate the healthy action of local associations. Publications adapted to all capacities and tastes were widely circulated, to the number last year of eight millions. The shorter and the larger History of the Society have had a circulation which for missionary literature has been probably unique. The Committee are thankful that these books appeared—though the second is not yet complete—before the Centenary Celebrations, and they heartily thank God for the cordial reception which they have met at the hands of the public and the press.

Finances.

There remain to be noticed the finances of the year. The Lord's goodness has been not less manifest in the supply of means than in the opening of doors and the harvest granted in the fields of toil. During the hundred years the sums expended by the Society have amounted to over eleven millions, and of those more than nine millions have been disbursed since the First Jubilee. The supplies year by year to meet these ever-growing demands have been sometimes delayed, but never denied. During the year under review the payments on the general account amounted to £325,223. The sum available to meet this, without drawing from the Centenary Fund, was £315,126. It was feared that the special efforts for the Centenary Fund might affect adversely the ordinary receipts, and to some extent this has probably resulted. But, notwithstanding this, the sum available is £11,000 more than last year, and only falls short of meeting the expenditure of the year by £10,000. But the receipts of the year also include £53,260 towards the Centenary Fund, a sum which would be more than adequate to balance the deficiencies both of the past and of the previous years' ordinary receipts. This Fund is now being largely increased every day by contributions from all parts of the country. Including Special Funds, the total amount to be acknowledged for the year is £379,827; and without including them it is £360,920, more by £55,000 than those of the year before, £60,000 more than the year before that, and £100,000 more than any previous year. The Associations have remitted in appropriated and unappropriated and Centenary contributions £20,000 more than in 1897–98, and £32,000 more than in any previous year.

It is with a profound sense of the Lord's marvellous loving-kindness that the Committee draw this Review to a close, and, as the reminiscences of His mercies in the past hundred years crowd on their thoughts, they are constrained to say, in the words of the Text selected from those suggested by the anonymous donors of birthday gifts: "There hath not failed one word of all His good promise." Moreover, as they contemplate the opportunities of the immediate future, and recollect the temptations to neglect and the tendency to forget the Saviour's great command, their prayer is, "The Lord our God be with us, as He was with our fathers; let Him not leave us nor forsake us: that He may incline our hearts unto Him . . . to keep His commandments." And their aspiration, their confident expectation, as it is their end and aim, is, "that all the peoples of the earth may know that the Lord, He is God; there is none else."

Home Operations.

The Society's Centenary.

THE Celebration of the Centenary of the Church Missionary Society, which took place in London from April 10th to 15th, 1899, inclusive, and in the Provinces occupied the remainder of that month, was in one sense a fitting culmination of the Three Years' Enterprise. Since April, 1896, efforts have been made throughout the country, by the improvement of organization and the adoption of new methods, to set on foot a general advance which might render it possible worthily to commemorate in 1899 God's abounding mercies to the Society during the one hundred years of its existence, and this time of special preparation naturally closed with the Centenary itself. But while the Celebration referred to has in one sense been the goal to which the efforts of the three years have been tending, in another sense it should prove a starting-point for fresh effort. For at the various meetings which were held, stress was laid upon the utter inadequacy of the steps taken for the Evangelization of the World, and upon the obligation resting on the individual Christian to work more strenuously in order that the great world-need may be supplied. The Centenary was a time of looking back, it is true, but only that it might lead to going forward. The joy for what God had done was mingled with self-reproach for what man had failed to do, and also, it is believed, with high resolve on the part of many to be in the future more faithful in the discharge of the primary duty of the Church. The motto selected for the new century, "There hath not failed one word of all His good promise. . . . The Lord our God be with us, as He was with our fathers: let Him not leave us, nor forsake us: . . . that all the peoples of the earth may know that the Lord, He is God; there is none else," taken from 1 Kings viii. 56, 57, 60 (R.V.), indicates the spirit in which the Committee both regard the days gone by and look forward to those to come.

A starting point for fresh effort.

A fuller exposition of the views of the Society is contained in the following resolutions which were carried unanimously at the meeting of clerical and lay representatives of members of the Society, held in Exeter Hall on Centenary Day, April 12th:—

"On the one hundredth anniversary of the foundation of the Church Missionary Society, this meeting of clerical and lay representatives of members of the Society here assembled would first record their humble and hearty thanks to Almighty God for His abundant goodness manifested to the Society during the successive generations of those to whom has been given the honour of serving Him in its ranks at home and abroad. They remember with adoring gratitude His grace bestowed upon the founders of the Society and His faithfulness to them and to their successors, especially in enabling them to maintain the spiritual and evangelical principles which have been and are the life of the Society. They praise Him for the vastly multiplied opportunities of proclaiming the Gospel which He has set before His Church during the past century, for the devoted men and women whom He has sent into the Mission-field, for the great company of converts whom He has gathered out of all nations, and for the increased zeal which He has given to the Church at home. In all these mercies His servants cannot but see proofs of His good pleasure in the past and pledges of larger blessing in the days to come."

"To their grateful record of the exceeding goodness of their Lord the Committee and supporters of the Church Missionary Society are compelled to add the acknowledgment of very much on their part which may well cause sorrow and humiliation. They confess with shame the grievous disproportion between that which the Church of Christ has done during the past century and that which it ought to have done. They mourn over the indifference shown by many to the 'command of commands.' They think with pain of the vast unevangelized areas inhabited by multitudes still without the opportunity of hearing of Christ, and of the many openings for which the supply of missionaries is wholly inadequate."

"Both for the Church's sake and for the sake of a sin-stricken world, but chiefly for the honour of Him who gave His life a ransom for all, this meeting calls upon all Christian people to join in earnest prayer that it may please God to heal their unhappy divisions, and by the outpouring of the Holy Spirit unite them with one heart to fulfil His gracious purposes in the evangelization of the world."

"Conscious of the unprecedented opportunities and the solemn responsibilities of the present time, the friends of Missions here assembled look forward with ardent expectation to the future. They believe that in the Scriptural doctrines and primitive order of the Church of England, in the history and character of the English people, and in their commercial and political power, there are peculiar privileges which constitute a Divine call to the Christians of the Empire to engage in missionary enterprise in a far larger and bolder spirit than has ever yet been manifested. They earnestly long that the English-speaking race may have the honour of leading the way in a policy of Christian imperialism which shall have no other object than to bring nearer the fulfilment of the Divine promise that the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ."

In due course a volume will be issued describing in full the Centenary Celebrations both at home and abroad. It will suffice therefore to place on record here a few facts, and to call attention to one or two salient points connected with the Central Celebration.

Breakfast in Castle and Falcon Inn.

In addition to the formal meetings which have been enumerated, there were two gatherings at the Castle and Falcon Hotel, in Aldersgate Street. On April 12th, 1799, sixteen clergymen and nine laymen met in that hotel and founded the C.M.S.; and again on Jubilee Day, November 1st, 1848, there was a breakfast in the same room, and the gathering was addressed by one who had been present fifty years before; and accordingly once more, on April 12th, 1899, in a room on the same site, though not the same room, for the Castle and Falcon has since been largely rebuilt, there met, on the invitation of the Secretaries of the Society, one hundred friends at breakfast, and these again were addressed by one who had been present as a lad at the Jubilee Breakfast. On April 13th a number of ladies, friends of the Society, met in the same place for tea.

Some utterances of the Centenary Week.

Anything approaching a full record of the many memorable utterances of the week is quite impossible in this Report, but the few quotations which are appended will serve to indicate in some measure the tone which prevailed at the meetings. Speaking at the meeting in Exeter Hall on April 12th, the Archbishop of Canterbury said:—

> We have a great work to do, not only in the Mission-field itself, but in the Church of England here. We have to rouse the Church everywhere now that the way has been pointed out. We have to rouse the Church everywhere to some real sense of what the Lord has intended for us. We have to convince men that it is an essential part of an ordinary Christian's life to take his share, however humble, in carrying forward the message of the Gospel. We have to make men see that a man who cares nothing for the spread of the Gospel over the world is but a half Christian after all. Such a man has not yet realized how the Lord is perpetually calling every member of His body to take a part in the work that He Himself began; how He has given us the high honour and privilege of being workers with God; and in answer to the call that He has made upon us, we expect from every Christian that lives that he shall not put it aside as if that were a business to be done by somebody else, and not by him.

At the same meeting, Viscount Cranborne, the eldest son of the Marquis of Salisbury, said:—

Gentlemen, we are proud of our Empire—we here in Great Britain. We see it extending its boundaries in every hemisphere in all parts of the habitable globe. Decade after decade, nay, year after year, we see thousands of square miles acknowledging the sceptre of Her Majesty and the supremacy of the British people. Indeed, sometimes we almost tremble at the weight of responsibility which is upon us, and sometimes we view with a certain shrinking the necessary bloodshed which the expansion of that Empire involves. Can it be justified? Can this burden of responsibility be defended? Only upon one consideration: only because we believe that by the genius of our people, and by the purity of our religion, we are able to confer benefits upon those subject populations greater than it has been given by God to any other nation to be able to afford; and it is only because we know that in the train of the British Government comes the preaching of the Church of Christ that we are able to defend the Empire of which we are so proud. Therefore, gentlemen, I ask you to pledge this meeting to the Christianity of the British Empire. I do not care in what quarter of the globe it may be, I do not care what may be the political exigencies of the moment, I do not care what colleges of secular instruction you may establish—unless, sooner or later, in due and proper time, you carry with those institutions the definite teaching of Christianity you have done nothing at all.

The last quotations which can be given are from the speech of the President of the Society at the same meeting in Exeter Hall on April 12th, when he referred to the past and the present in the words:—

All has been done in prayer and in the spirit of prayer, and therein has lain our success. We have claimed our rightful heritage in the National Church, a right handed down to us from our founders when they placed "Church" in the forefront of the title of this Society. With all we claim to have been enabled to hold to their simple faith with "clear convictions," as the Times says to-day, "maintained through thick and thin." We have upheld the Reformation settlement as defined in our Prayer-Book and our Articles, and we mean, God helping us, to be true to it to the end.

With respect to the future he added:—

Onward, then, must be our motto. The call was never so clear, and the opportunity is at hand. The cry of the perishing multitudes was never so urgent, and the time never so short. Let us do our work to-day. The Master comes. If engaged in carrying out His last command, we shall be making the best preparation to meet Him.

The changed attitude of the country with respect to Foreign Missions has been strikingly exemplified by the full and sympathetic reports of the Centenary meetings which appeared in the columns of the London and Provincial newspapers. Especially remarkable was the leading article which appeared in the Times of April 12th, referred to in the above quotation from the President's speech, from which the following extracts are taken:—

The Press and Foreign Missions.

Men may ask, and even after this week will in all probability continue to ask, what is the good of Missions, and by so doing will display a strange blindness to the real character of the Christian religion. That faith may ultimately either succeed or fail, but in the meantime it is bound to be at once exclusive and inclusive, to announce alike to Jews, Turks, infidels, and heretics the sic volo, sic jubeo of the only way of salvation. Christianity, it has been reproachfully said, differentiates itself from all other religions, and then argues from the differences. Of course it does, and of course it must. It follows, on the theory of the thing, that every Christian Church, from the very nature of its belief, must take its part in the delivery to the world of this message.

After all, though all due account be taken of the revival in Church activity which the Tractarian movement has produced at home, it was Charles Simeon and the Venns and their successors who taught English Christianity that it has duties abroad, and that they cannot be carried through without the best men and the requisite money. . . .

But the ordinary Englishman who looks upon Foreign Missions as an amiable craze, serving to absorb the activities of the good old ladies of his acquaintance, will still put the practica lquestion, "What is the outcome of it all?" And we are free to confess that the Church Missionary Society has much to say for itself. In the first place, its history and its expansion establish the old truth that two cannot walk together except they be agreed, but that, being agreed, they can go almost anywhere and do almost any thing. The gigantic celebration of this week is a triumph for clear and definite convictions maintained through thick and thin.

Again, the ordinary Englishman appreciates success when it comes to him in the shape of numbers. He knows that there are no very lucrative possibilities in a missionary's life either in India or in the North-West of America. All attempts that have been made to suggest the contrary have been utter failures. Thus when the Church Missionary Society, which at the end of ten years could find only a joiner and shoemaker to send out, tells us that it has nearly eleven hundred European missionaries to-day employed at its various stations, of whom sixty-six elect to receive no stipend at all, it has a fair answer of one sort to make. But the results can be stated in another way. Practically all its envoys are sent to people of another speech. They are daily engaged in translating the message which they have learnt at home into the idiom and the genius of a foreign language. Those of them who in the course of the century have found themselves in contact with a language which is undeveloped, or even unwritten, have in almost every case added to the stock of the world's linguistic knowledge by translation work. The debt of the Bible Society and of the Christian Knowledge Society to missionaries from Salisbury Square is simply incalculable. When to this is added the fact that the Society has a large number of properly qualified medical missionaries, men and women, on its staff, it can certainly come to the ordinary Englishman with a bold face; it can tell him that, whatever he may think of its convictions and its total of converts and its vast voluntary contributions, he has to reckon with it as a civilizing and informing power, which would be still more powerful if the life of most Englishmen abroad conformed more closely to the conventions of the Englishman at home.

The Centenary was marked not only by the holding of a large number of meetings, but also by the issue of a number of books and pamphlets, the majority of which are included in the Report of the literary work of the C.M.S. which will be found on page 31. Mention must, however, be made here of two of the books. The first is the History of the Church Missionary Society, by Mr. Eugene Stock, the Editorial Secretary. It consists of three volumes, two of which were published in March, 1899, and the third is about to be issued as these pages go to press, and contains a mass of information not merely about the C.M.S., but also concerning the environment of the Society at home and abroad, and about other Societies which have as their object the Evangelization of the World. Many of the speakers at the Central Centenary Meetings referred to the work in terms which it would hardly be fitting to reproduce here, but it may be recorded that over two thousand copies of the first two volumes were ordered before the work issued from the press, and a second edition was called for within three months of their publication. A smaller history, entitled One Hundred Years of the C.M.S., by the same author, was published in October, 1898, and at once met with a large sale.

But although for many months in advance the thoughts of the friends of the Society were directed to the Centenary, and their energies were largely engaged in preparation for it, the fact that the Hundredth Year was also the Second Jubilee Year was not lost sight of. The First Jubilee was celebrated on November 1st, 1848, by a meeting in Exeter Hall, and it was arranged that the Second also should be observed on November 1st by a meeting in the same place.

Second Jubilee Commemoration.

In the morning of that day there was an administration of the Holy Communion at St. Bride's Church, when the preacher was the Bishop of Exeter, whose father, the Rev. Edward Bickersteth, of Watton, previously a Secretary of the Society, preached one of the First Jubilee sermons. It is an interesting fact that Bishop Bickersteth had himself, then a young curate, written one of the special hymns for the First Jubilee, and that he also composed one for the Second Jubilee, commencing "For My sake and the Gospel's, go." The Bishop took as his text, St. Mark viii. 35, and x. 29, "Jesus said . . . For My sake and the Gospel's." The meeting was held in Exeter Hall the same afternoon under the chairmanship of the President, Sir John Kennaway, M.P. The first three speakers after the chairman were sons of those who had taken part in the First Jubilee, viz.: the Hon. T. H. W. Pelham, son of the late Lord Chichester, President of the Society; the Rev. H. Venn, whose father, the Rev. Henry Venn, was the great statesman-secretary of the C.M.S., and whose grandfather, the Rev. John Venn, presided at the meeting at which the Society was founded; and the Rev. Canon C. Venn Childe, son of the Rev. C. F. Childe, Principal of the C.M. College from 1839 to 1858, who read the Jubilee statement for the Rev. Henry Venn at the time of the First Jubilee. These were succeeded by the Revs. T. Y. Darling, R. Pargiter, and W. Salter Price, all of whom were missionaries of the Society in 1848, and the meeting was closed by a few words from the Bishop of Exeter and Mr. Eugene Stock, the latter of whom, as a boy, was present in the body of the hall at the First Jubilee meeting. A gathering for men only, which was organized by the London Lay Workers' Union in connexion with the Second Jubilee, is referred to on page 25.

An effort was made in July to reach the members of the Houses of Lords and Commons, as well as other persons in the higher classes of society, through a meeting held at Grosvenor House, by permission of the Duke of Westminster. The chair was taken by Sir John Kennaway, who with Colonel Williams issued the invitations. The Archbishop of Canterbury and Bishop Hoare, of Victoria, Hong Kong, were among the speakers. Meeting at Grosvenor House.

The exceptional gatherings which have just been described were in addition to, and not in the place of, the usual Anniversary Celebrations. The annual service was held as usual on Monday, May 1st, 1899, the preacher being the Bishop of Worcester, whose sermon is given in full at the commencement of this Report. The Annual Meeting took place on the following morning in Exeter Hall. Sir J. H. Kennaway, M.P., presided, and addresses were delivered by the Bishop of Hereford; the Rev. J. P. Haythornthwaite, of the North-West Provinces, India; Dr. D. Duncan Main, of Mid China; Mr. C. R. Walsh, Honorary Secretary of the New South Wales C.M. Association; Mr. J. Inskip, of Clifton; and the Bishop-Designate of Mombasa. The afternoon was occupied with a women's meeting at King's Hall, Newton Street, W.C., and with sundry Conferences of Workers; and in the evening the large Exeter Hall was again filled, the meeting being presided over by the Right Hon. the Earl of Aberdeen. The Bishop of Sierra Leone was in the chair at the annual gathering of the Medical Mission Auxiliary on May 4th. Anniversary of May, 1899.

The general Financial Statement of the year under review is as follows:— Finances of the year.

The year began with a deficit of		£20,013
The expenditure of the year was		325,223
Making a total to be met of		£345,236
The funds applicable to meet this have been:—
(a) Contributions to cover the deficit of 1897-98	£1,769
(b) General Contributions	244,575
(c) Appropriated Contributions applicable to the year's expenditure (including certain balances of previous years)	66,150
(d) Contingency Fund	2,632
Leaving an adverse balance on March 31st, 1899, of		£30,110

The total receipts for the general work of the Society—that is, including Appropriated Contributions and Centenary Gifts, but excluding donations to Special Funds—were £55,000 more than in 1897-98, £62,000 more than the year before, and £100,000 more than any year before that. The gross receipts from Associations, which included nearly £17,000 of Centenary Gifts, showed an increase of £20,000 over the receipts of 1897-98, £30,000 over 1896-97, and £50,000 over those of any earlier year. Increased receipts.

Candidates.

The number of missionaries sent to the field in the year 1898 was unusually large, but this was due rather to the fact that ninety-nine were returning after furlough than to any great increase in the number of those going out for the first time. During the year under review 596 inquiries and offers with a view to service were received—379 from men and 217 from women. In many instances these were merely inquiries, and only the cases of 107 men and 127 women were dealt with by the various candidates' committees. After due investigation of their antecedents and qualifications eighty-six of these (thirty-three men and fifty-three women) were accepted for training, and twenty-one (seventeen men and four women) for immediate service. In addition, eighteen men and twenty-nine women were accepted after training, and fourteen, four of whom are men, by the Colonial Associations or C.M.S. representatives abroad. The following list gives the names of those accepted for service, together with the place from which they offered to the Society or the Colonial Association by which they were accepted, and in the case of those who have sailed, the Mission to which they have been assigned. The men's colleges or training institutions are also given :—

Valedictory Dismissals.

The public autumn Valedictory Meetings took place on October 4th and 5th in Exeter Hall. On the former date, leave was taken of the missionaries proceeding to East and West Africa, Western India, South India, Travancore, Ceylon, China, and Japan, the chair being taken by the President, and the closing address, based on Eph. iii. 8, being given by the Rev. Canon Trotter, Vicar of Christ Church, Barnet. In the morning of Wednesday, October 5th, the Holy Communion was administered at St. Bride's Church, after a sermon by the Rev. Prebendary Webb-Peploe, on Acts vii. 5; while in the evening the second public meeting was held, with Sir Douglas Fox in the chair, at which the missionaries sailing for Egypt, Palestine, Persia, the North-West Provinces of India, and the Punjab, were present, and the concluding words were spoken by the Rev. Prebendary Lunt, of Walcot, Bath, who drew attention to the three different words for service which occur in the New Testament. In the morning and afternoon of the Tuesday, and the afternoon of the Wednesday, the missionaries received the formal instructions of the Committee and words of spiritual counsel from some of the senior members of the Committee, and were commended to God in prayer.

Missionary Conferences.

Two important Conferences of Missionaries at home on furlough were held during the year. The first, which took place at the Church Missionary House on October 13th and 14th, 1898, and included both men and women missionaries, was preceded by an adminstration of the Holy Communion in St. Bride's Church on Thursday, October 13th, at 10 a.m. The Rev. G. Furness Smith preached from Col. ii. 19. The remainder of the 13th until 4 p.m., and the whole of the 14th from 10.30 a.m. till 4 p.m., with intervals for lunch, were taken up with papers on and discussions of the following subjects:—Native Workers: their selection, education, and probation; their relation to missionary and Native Church organization; their relation to the European worker. Christian Vernacular Literature; the best methods of producing and circulating it. Women's Work in the Mission Field; its place, needs, and methods. The True Spirit of the Missionary: how to cultivate love to the Saviour, love to fellow-workers and fellow-Christians, and love to the Heathen. From 4 to 5 p.m. each day was spent in confession, supplication, intercession, and giving of thanks. The other Conference was of women missionaries only; it was held at Westfield College, Hampstead, from April 6th to 10th, 1899, and closed with the opening service of the Centenary Celebrations.

Islington College.

Among the various institutions for the preparation of labourers, the first place naturally belongs to Islington College. Nineteen present and former students left in the course of 1898 for service in the foreign field, fourteen of whom were clergy, and five laymen. At the beginning of 1899 there were forty-two students in the College: one graduate, one medical student, six men who were taking the short course, and thirty-four the long. Testimony as to the efficiency of the teaching staff was afforded in various ways. The Bishop of London, speaking at the Society's Anniversary in Exeter Hall in May, 1898, said: "There is no institution that I know which is more admirably managed than the Church Missionary College at Islington. There is no one who is at present engaged in preparing young men for clerical work more competent than the respected Principal of that College, Mr. Drury." This testimony was amply justified at the Trinity ordination in the Bishop's diocese, when ten candidates were presented by the Society, for one of them, the Rev. F. B. Maule, was "Gospeller," thus obtaining an honour which has fallen to the C.M.S. students no less than ten times since 1889. All other theological colleges were surpassed in the successes which were gained at the Preliminary Theological Examination for Holy Orders, for of the nine Islington students presented, three passed in the first and six in the second class, and there were no third classes and no failures. Mr. H. F. Cowan, one of the students, whose training had been discontinued for a time on grounds of health, was drowned through the wreck of the Mohegan off the south coast of Cornwall.

Home Preparation Union.

Social gatherings of the members and friends of the Home Preparation Union, the object of which, as its name denotes, is to assist in their preparation at home those who hope eventually to offer for service in the foreign field, were held in June, 1898, and in the following March, the former taking place in the grounds of Islington College, and the latter at the Church Missionary House. The Rev. G. H. Ayerst, Vicar of Kingsbury and Neasden, the Secretary of the Union, reports that during the seventeen months ending in March, 1899, there were enrolled as members 144 men and 272 women. Of these forty resigned, two deceased, two offered to the Society but were declined on medical grounds, eleven were accepted for training, and one offered successfully to the China Inland Mission.

Missionaries Children's Home.

The C.M.S. Missionaries' Children's Home at Limpsfield may almost claim to be one of the preparatory institutions, so many of its alumni have gone out to the foreign field. It had a successful year, and did well in the Oxford Local Examinations. Two girls passed the Senior, nine the Junior (one candidate failing), and eight the Preliminary. Two of the Juniors gained Second-class Honours, and another was first in Religious Knowledge, out of 4,164 candidates; while in the preliminary examination, for which there were 3,130 candidates, the third place in Religious Knowledge was gained. A scholarship has been founded in memory of the late Prebendary Wigram to assist boys going on from the Home to public schools.

Medical Mission Auxiliary.

The value of Medical Missions, both at home and abroad, is increasingly recognized. There is a call, however, for many more offers of service from both men and women possessing medical diplomas. There are in the British Isles 28,589 men and women holding British degrees or diplomas, and 3,770 such practitioners abroad. The number who are found in the ranks as missionaries to the Heathen is only 268. The Society has on its rolls the names of fifty-five fully qualified doctors, of whom six are ladies. In addition twenty-four trained nurses are at work in different parts of the foreign field. The number of beds in the various hospitals is 1,325, in which 10,747 in-patients were received, while 612,080 visits of out-patients were recorded. But it is not only abroad that the advantage of Medical Missions, from a missionary point of view, is apparent, for at home they serve to enlist the sympathy and help of many who take no interest in ordinary missionary work. This has been evidenced in a town in Yorkshire, where a branch of the Medical Mission Auxiliary has been formed, whose ramifications extend into many parishes where the Society previously met with little or no support. Gifts amounting to over £130 were received, and a successful conversazione was held on the occasion of the anniversary of the Local Association. With a view to uniting in a bond of prayer and work those who are interested in this special form of missionary effort, a Prayer Union, called "The Order of the Red Cross," has been formed, with Miss Joyce Kennaway, a daughter of the President of the Society, as Secretary. The income of the Auxiliary increased from £6,043 in 1897–98, to £8,466 in 1898–99, while in addition £934 of the contributions in connexion with the Centenary were appropriated by the donors to Medical Work. Dr. Herbert Lankester, the Physician to the Society, and Secretary of the Medical Committee, has been appointed Diocesan Lay Reader by the Bishop of London.

Younger Clergy Unions.

The Federation of C.M.S. Younger Clergy Unions held its third annual Conference of Delegates at Derby on Thursday, June 23rd, 1898. The day began with an administration of Holy Communion at St. Peter's Church, when the Rev. H. A. Raynes, Vicar of St. Saviour's, Nottingham, gave an address on St. Matt. ix. 36. At the Conference which followed, it was stated that during the year two new Younger Clergy Unions had been formed, the one at Wolverhampton and the other at Newcastle, and that the total membership of the twenty-three existing Unions was about 1,200. It was also reported that the resolution which was passed at the Conference of 1897, viz.:—"That this Conference respectfully suggests to the Bishops of the Church the desirability of including in the list of subjects for study before ordination some book on missionary principles," had been forwarded to the members of the Episcopal Bench, and that the two Archbishops and seventeen of the Bishops had acknowledged the receipt, several in terms which expressed warm sympathy with its object. The Bishop of Sodor and Man desired that his reply should be laid before the next Conference, the substance of it being that for the past two years each candidate for priest's orders, before presenting himself for examination, had been required to send to the Bishop two sermons preached during his diaconate, of which one was to be from a missionary text, and was to deal with the missionary question. The chaplain of the Bishop of Exeter also gave the information that the Ordination Examination in that diocese had for the past seven years included a paper on Foreign Missions, and that missionary books were also recommended to candidates for Holy Orders. In many towns the Younger Clergy undertook definite work. In Bath and Nottingham special attention was paid to the task of reaching the young, while the Dublin Y.C.U. induced each of its members to offer one week a year for deputational work. The Bradford Y.C.U., following the example set by Nottingham in 1897, organized a C.M.S. breakfast for clergy and laymen on the occasion of the Church Congress, and a well-attended meeting for clergy was held under the auspices of the London Union on February 7th, at which the Archbishop of Canterbury presided, and addresses were delivered by the Bishops of Newcastle and Stepney, and the Rev. F. J. Chavasse. Mention must also be made of a noteworthy meeting of the Cambridge Younger Clergy Union, at which efforts to reach private and national schools, and also the village populations, were considered, and representatives were appointed to give special attention to the development of these forms of work. The members of the various Unions who offered to the Society for foreign service during the year covered by the Report presented at the Conference numbered eleven, eight of whom were accepted, amongst them being the Rev. R. MacInnes, one of the Secretaries of the London Y.C.U.

Lay Workers Union.

A Secretary of the London Lay Workers' Union, Mr. A. E. W. Gwyn, was also one of the year's accepted candidates. Two other members proceeded to the field as missionaries of the Society, and one went out as accountant to the Sierra Leone Mission. The Union fully maintained its reputation for energy, originality, and zeal during the year under review. Its sixteenth Annual Report tells of a membership of 678, of whom 580 are ordinary members, and of sixty Lay Unions and Bands, besides the South London Auxiliary, associated with the Union. A sub-committee was appointed to make inquiries concerning the openings in the Mission-field for business men of Christian character, who by their lives and in other ways would testify for Christ among the Heathen. In their valuable report, which was printed in full in the C.M.S. Lay Workers' Monthly Paper for January, 1899, they recommended the appointment of a permanent committee to continue the inquiry, to confer with the Y.M.C.A. and any other similar body with a view to joint action, and to take such practical steps as might appear desirable. The Preparation Class for those who hope to offer for foreign work was conducted by the Rev. J. A. Anderson, of Blackheath, and the Rev. H. Marriot, of Woking, the number of members being just under twenty. The Union organized a highly successful meeting for men only in connexion with the celebration of the Second Jubilee of the Society, which was held in Exeter Hall in November, under the presidency of the Bishop-Designate of Calcutta, and followed this by a special service, also for men only, in the Collegiate Church of St. Saviour's, Southwark, at which the Bishop of Ripon was the preacher. At the instigation of the Union similar meetings were held in Nottingham, Manchester, Exeter, Cambridge, York, Bolton, Shrewsbury, &c., the gathering in the first-named town having a practical result in the formation of a new Lay Workers' Union. Good work was done by other L.W. Unions besides that in the Metropolis. In Bristol a number of addresses to Bible-classes were arranged. Simultaneous Sunday-school addresses were organized in several places, and both in Sheffield and Manchester an outline Sunday-school lesson was published in leaflet form and sent round to the teachers in the various schools. The L. W. Union in the latter town paid special attention to making known the magazines of the Society, and up to the end of April, 1898, had circulated over 45,000 of the Society's periodicals in the city and neighbourhood. Two joint Conferences took place in the provinces: the one at Hereford of the Hereford and Malvern L.W. Unions, and the other in the North, at which members of the Newcastle-on-Tyne, Sunderland, and Durham bodies gathered for mutual counsel and help.

Women's Work.

The first Conference of the Federation of Ladies' Church Missionary Unions was held at Leicester on July 7th, 1898, when fourteen delegates from Clifton, Ireland, Liverpool, London, Norfolk and Norwich, Nottinghamshire, Peterborough, Sheffield and York were present, as well as five visitors from unfederated Unions. A business meeting in the morning, in the course of which Mrs. Faithfull was re-elected Secretary of the Federation, was succeeded by a public meeting in the afternoon. The closing words were spoken by Miss Gollock, the Secretary of the Women's Department, and were followed by a period of united prayer and thanksgiving. Several other important Conferences were organized by the Women's Department at Salisbury Square. The first, held at York from October 11th to 14th, was attended by about 100 women workers from the Dioceses of York, Ripon, and Wakefield, and papers were read dealing with "Women's Work and the Centenary," "Women as Helpers in Parochial Missionary Work," "Possibilities of Gleaners' Union Branches," and "Work amongst Girls and Children." There were, in addition, two public meetings, at one of which the Hon. Mrs. Maclagan, wife of the Archbishop of York, presided, and delivered a sympathetic address. Similar arrangements were made for the Conferences at Newcastle and Carlisle, but the latter only lasted for one day. That at Newcastle was for workers in the Dioceses of Newcastle and Durham, and a special feature of it was a gathering of 200 Sunday-school teachers, to whom Mrs. Knott read a paper on "How to deepen missionary interest in Sunday-schools." In Ireland the formation of Diocesan Branches of the Hibernian C.M.S. Ladies' Union proceeded apace, and a large number of drawing-room and other meetings were held. The Young Ladies' Missionary Study Bands aim, as their name implies, at the extension of the scientific study of Foreign Missions among those whose school-days have passed. Twelve Bands have been formed in two years, and there are now twenty of them altogether, with a membership of over 330 girls.* Some successful drawing-room lectures on "The Manners and Customs of Hindu and Mohammedan Women in India" were organized by one of the Bands, and in various other ways efforts were made to arouse missionary zeal outside the circle of members. A number of tours among girls' schools in various parts of the country were made by Miss Etches and Miss Storr and others with encouraging results. In one school a Missionary Association was formed and placed under the management of some of the "old girls" and of those still in statu pupillari. The Women's Department organized a joint meeting of women engaged in fostering a missionary spirit at home and of women missionaries of the Society on furlough. This was held at the Church Missionary House on May 5th, 1898. Over sixty missionaries from East and West Africa, Palestine, Persia, India, Ceylon, China, Japan, and North-West Canada were present, the large Committee-room being so arranged that they sat at right angles to the home workers. Mrs. H. E. Fox presided, and was supported by Mrs. Henry Wright and Mrs. F. E. Wigram. After prayer and a devotional address by Miss Gollock, the missionaries rose in turn, and each gave her name, station, a text, and a request for prayer. In the afternoon Miss B. Glass, an accepted missionary of the Society and the Lady Travelling Secretary of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union, spoke of the missionary movement among women students. Miss A. E. Allen has been appointed an honorary assistant worker in the Women's Department.

Gleaners' Union.

The number of persons enrolled in the Gleaners' Union during the twelfth year of its existence was not quite so great as during some of the years immediately preceding, but nevertheless it was not inconsiderable, since 10,306 new members joined this Union for prayer and work, making a total of 112,522 enrolled since its formation. Sixty-six new Branches in the United Kingdom were registered, but ten formerly existing were disbanded, leaving 858 on the roll at the beginning of November. Of the Branch Secretaries, seventy-nine are clergymen; 146 laymen; and 645 ladies. Several of the Secretaries resigned their posts because they were going out to the Mission-field in connexion with the Church Missionary Society or other Societies. There was but little development of the "Own Missionary" movement among the Branches, but several undertook the support of native agents, and gifts to the amount of £1,274 were received towards the support of fourteen "Own Missionaries" in connexion with the Union in general. In India and the Colonies the Branches in 1897 numbered 289, with a total enrolment of 11,286 Gleaners. Native catechists are supported in many cases, while the Canadian Branches have their "Own Missionary," and those in Victoria contribute towards the support of five missionaries. The Twelfth Anniversary of the Union, which was celebrated in London from October 31st to November 2nd, was amalgamated with the Second Jubilee of the Society, and was to a certain extent overshadowed by it. The proceedings commenced with a reception by the President and Lady Kennaway, held at the Church Missionary House in the evening of October 31st, the next distinctively Gleaners' gathering being the Annual Meeting in Exeter Hall the following evening, when the chair was taken by Dean Howell, of St. David's, and addresses were given by Canon Denton Thompson, of Southport; Mr. Henry Thornton, of Nottingham; the Rev. G. H. Parsons, Secretary to the Indian Branches; and the Rev. A. H. Bowman, of the Home Special Deputation Staff. On November 2nd the morning was occupied with devotional exercises, followed by a Conference of Branch Secretaries; and the afternoon by a meeting in the lower Exeter Hall, at which Mrs. Bickersteth Cook; Miss R. D. Howard, of Japan; Miss May Grimes, of the South Africa General Mission; Mrs. D. Hooper, of Jilore; and Miss Maude, of Ruabon, were the speakers. In the evening there was a final Conference, with closing words by the Rev. H. E. Fox. On the recommendation of the Gleaners' Union Auxiliary Committee, the Rev. G. H. Parsons was appointed Visitor to the Branches of the Union for a period of six months. Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Flint continue their self-denying labours in connexion with the Gleaners' Library, to which many fresh Branches have become subscribers.

Work among the Young.

A forward step in the Work among the Young was taken in April, 1898, by the Committee authorizing the appointment of an Auxiliary Committee, with the Rev. C. D. Snell as Secretary, to which the task of developing that work should be entrusted; and the step was followed by many signs of general advance. The importance of inspiring the children with a zeal for the evangelization of the world, and the means to be used for the attainment of that end, were laid before several of the Younger Clergy Unions, and some of the Lay Workers' Unions, as well as other friends of the Society. In Manchester, Bristol, Blackburn, and other towns, Central Junior Associations were formed, in order that systematic efforts might be made to enlist the sympathy and help of the children connected with Sunday-schools, as well as of those who belong to the upper classes. Proof was soon forthcoming of the value of such organizations, for the Huddersfield Junior Association enrolled a thousand members in the course of a few months, and under the auspices of the Bristol organization several parochial Sowers' Bands were set on foot. The Junior Association in Nottingham held a remarkable meeting in the Christmas holidays, at which 188 children, all of the well-to-do classes, were present, nearly every one bringing an article of work or a contribution of money as a birthday present to Him who was born on Christmas Day. In other places, besides those in which a Central Junior Association has been formed, attention was paid to the long-neglected children who do not attend public elementary schools, and by means of meetings in drawing-rooms, or combined gatherings by invitation in public halls, or by large town meetings, at which seats were specially reserved for them, the Great Missionary Command was brought under their notice. Nor must the continued work among boys' schools be forgotten. The headmasters of Eton, Liverpool, Rugby, Sherborne, Uppingham, Malvern, Christ's Hospital, Birkenhead, and other schools, kindly allowed the Rev. C. E. Tyndale-Biscoe, of Kashmir, who devoted much of his time to this work, to address their boys. Several tours, in which the members of various Younger Clergy Unions rendered great assistance, were also undertaken among the preparatory schools, and the circulation of the Paper for Schoolboys doubled between April, 1898, and the same month in 1899. The missionary seaside services which were held at Silloth in Cumberland in August, 1897, were repeated with marked success, and similar efforts were made at Southwold and at Alnmouth. At the latter place the meetings were well attended both by visitors and by villagers; a considerable number of missionary books were sold at the stall, and several boxes were taken. The urgency of the call for efforts such as have been described is evidenced by the fact that of the 5,533 parishes in the Provinces of Canterbury and York, which in the year 1896–97 supported the Society in one form or another, in only 929 was as much as £5 raised by the young, while in no less than 2,374 nothing at all was given by the children. The total contributions of the children in England and Wales to the C.M.S. amounted in that year to £17,811, rather more than a tenth of the whole sum remitted. Many Sunday-schools, especially in the North of England, gave largely, and the Junior Association of Christ Church, Gipsy Hill, contributed £213. At the end of July, 1898, there were 430 Sowers' Bands, sixty-eight having been formed during the preceding twelve months. The returns from 347 of the Bands showed that £1,926 was raised by them for work in connexion with the Society, and even this sum does not represent the full amount contributed by Sowers, since in many parishes no separate record is kept of what they give. Two "Own Missionaries" are supported by the special gifts of the Bands. Miss Bayley is now associated with Miss L. C. Gage-Brown in the Secretariat of this branch of C.M.S. work.

But while the different C.M. Unions which have been described are rendering services the value of which it is difficult adequately to estimate, it is indubitable that the supply of pecuniary means for the maintenance and extension of the work depends chiefly, under God, on the parochial, town, and country associations. Several changes were made in the staff of Association Secretaries during the year. The Rev. H. M. M. Hackett, who accepted the position of Principal of the Diocesan Theological College, Montreal, was succeeded in Dublin by the Rev. T. McClelland, Vicar of Wingfield, and formerly a missionary of the C.M.S. in the Fuh-Kien province of China. The following were also appointed as Association Secretaries:—the Rev. J. Ashton, Vicar of Fethard, for the Southern District of Ireland; the Rev. G. C. Williamson, Vicar of Holy Trinity, Bordesley, for the Archdeaconry of Birmingham; and the Rev. J. S. Flynn, of St. Mewan's, St. Austell, for the Diocese of Truro; the two last-mentioned are honorary, and retain their parochial charges. The Rev. F. C. Smith, late missionary of the Society in Uganda and Busoga, was placed on the Deputation Staff as an honorary member. The Annual Conference of the Association Secretaries and others took place on January 11th to 13th, 1899, at the Church Missionary House, when various matters affecting the home organization were considered, the Secretaries at headquarters mentioned matters of interest in connexion with their several departments, devotional addresses were listened to, and prayer was made concerning the work abroad as well as at home. The hopefulness which was so marked a feature of the reports in 1898 was still manifested in spite of the continuance of difficulties resulting in part from the general trend of Church patronage. There was a consensus of opinion that attention is more readily given to the "primary duty of the Church," and that meetings are better attended than in days gone by; and general acknowledgment was made of the cordial help rendered by nearly all the Bishops.

Association Secretaries.

The James Long Lectures, which deal with the various non-Christian faiths, and are delivered by missionaries who are qualified to speak with some authority, assist in showing the need of missionary effort. The Rev. J. Ireland Jones is at present the only lecturer on the Fund, his subject being Buddhism.

James Long Lectures.

Among the methods employed to bring before people the claims of the heathen and Mohammedan world, Missionary Loan Exhibitions occupy a prominent place. Several of these were held in 1898, and resulted almost invariably in the gathering together of large crowds to gaze at the curiosities and listen to the addresses, and also in the raising of a considerable sum of money. The Dean of Norwich, referring to the exhibition in that town, has stated that some 35,000 people found their way to it, although the population of Norwich itself is only 110,000. Special mention must also be made of the Exhibition in Liverpool, which was attended by such numbers of people that the Liverpool Daily Courier described it as "the popular daily resort for every one" during the ten days it was open. A new departure was made in holding an exhibition in a country house —Brownshill Court, near Stroud, in Gloucestershire—the total receipts of which amounted to nearly seventy pounds, and in a similar effort in the parish of St. Mary's, Sheffield, where sixty short lectures and talks were given by missionaries and others, over thirty pounds was realized. In the case of nearly all the exhibitions which were held, the aid of Mr. H. G. Malaher, the indefatigable Secretary of the Missionary Leaves Association, was requisitioned. From the Loan Department at the Church Missionary House 252 loans of curios were made, 2,925 of magic lantern slides illustrating the various Missions of the Society, 1,040 of sets of diagrams, 1,421 of maps, and 2,360 of books from the Loan Library. All of these were lent without charge, on payment by the borrowers of the cost of carriage both ways. The desirability of having some permanent centre in the large towns whence missionary literature may be circulated is increasingly felt, and in Newcastle-on-Tyne and Bristol, Church Missionary Houses, which also serve as Book Depôts, have been opened. The premises in Clifton devoted to the circulation of missionary books and literature, which were opened in January, 1896, proved too small for the rapidly growing work, and the Depôt* was accordingly transferred into a more commodious place. In 1898, £31 was taken over the counter for missionary publications, in addition to £29 the proceeds of bookstalls at meetings in the neighbourhood, while objects of interest sent by missionaries for sale for special purposes connected with their work were readily disposed of.

Book Depôts.

The supply of books and papers dealing with the work of the Society, and with Foreign Missions in general, continued without diminution. The chief new publications of the year under review, besides those already mentioned which were issued in connexion with the Centenary, were the following:—The Church Missionary Hymn-Book; Missionaries at Work; a new Service of Song, entitled Among the Indians in the Far West; With One Accord, or the Prayer-Book in the Mission- field, by Miss E. Baring-Gould; The Penny Man and his Friends, by Miss E. F. Fox—the last two being Christmas books for children. Second editions of What's O'clock and The Great Big World have been issued. In connexion with the Centenary of the Society a special medal was struck and issued in aluminium, bronze, and silver. The average numbers of magazines printed monthly were:—Intelligencer, 6,600; Gleaner (including 45,000 for localized editions), 83,400; Awake, 44,250; Children's World, 60,500; and Mercy and Truth (relating to Medical Mission Work), 6,000. Of the Quarterly Paper, 20,000 copies were printed each quarter, and of the Quarterly Token, an average each quarter of 225,000 English, 5,500 Welsh, and 300 with pictures only for a Chinese edition. Picture insets are supplied direct from Salisbury Square for Indian magazines published in the vernacular. The circulation of the Society's Sheet Almanack for 1899 shows a most encouraging increase, the number of copies circulated having risen to 28,500 of the ordinary, and 25,750 of the localized editions, making a total of 54,250. The total circulation of the Society's magazines and papers during the year exceeded eight millions, of which about two and a quarter millions were T.Y.E. and Centenary Papers.

Ingenious methods of raising funds.

Corresponding to the energy manifested in the diffusion of information are the zeal and ingenuity displayed in the raising of funds for the prosecution of the evangelization of the world. Many illustrations of this occurred in the contribution lists attached to last year's Report, in which the following more or less uncommon entries are found:—Sale of water-colour drawings; sale of Persian kittens (this occurs three times, one entry showing that £17 had been realized in this way); sale of apple jelly, honey, canaries (twice), puppy, milk, lavender-bags, pears, fruit, flowers, rabbits, Christmas-cards, crochet shawl, eggs, raffia-grass balls, dolls, photos, pigeons, plants, wool, turkeys, foreign stamps (three times, including the entry of £236 through the Rev. C. F. Jones), sweets, marmalade (three times), and gloves. Other entries worthy of notice are: Marriage fees returned, £2 9*s.*; copies of marriage registers; carols (several times); baptismal thankofferings; churching fees; bicycle instruction, 10*s.* 6*d.*; vegetable market, £5 11*s.* 11*d.*; tuning pianos, 10*s.* 6*d.*; "Instead of three week-end holidays," £5; "In lieu of sending and receiving Christmas-cards," £1 12*s.* 6*d.*; handbell ringers, 10*s.*; coffee-house profits, £33 0*s.* 11*d.*; loan of Bath-chair, 10*s.* 6*d.* A striking example of what work can accomplish is furnished by the case of a Mission church in the North of England. It was opened in December, 1890, and in the first year £15 was raised for the C.M.S. During the seven years 1891–97, as much as £1,023 was contributed to Foreign Missions, and that by people nearly all of whom were poor. At this church the Queen's Diamond Jubilee was commemorated by a special subscription list being opened for thankofferings, the £38 thus raised being sent to the Society. The children helped by obtaining weekly and monthly subscribers, and in that way collected more than £41 in 1898. A somewhat similar case is that of a parish in the Midlands, the population of which consists of miners and iron-workers. The amount contributed to the Society in the parish in 1888 was £30, but in 1897 it had risen to £56. This, too, did not involve any detriment to the home work, for the fund for Church expenses, which was more than £80 in debt at the earlier date, had a balance of £17 in hand in 1898. In many instances the power of littles was manifested. At Malpas, in Monmouthshire, over £14 was contributed by monthly and weekly penny subscribers, and in a Birmingham parish, when the 144 boxes which had been given out five months previously were opened, they were found to contain 9,252 coins, the value of which was more than £40; only 459 of the coins were silver, the rest copper. Most of the gifts in Sunday-schools, especially in working-class parishes, are of small sums, and the raising of £115 in the Sundays-schools of St. James', Leeds, constitutes another proof of the wisdom of the old advice to "take care of the pence." Not only collectively, but also by individuals, is much done by means of missionary boxes, as is evidenced by the case of a box which was asked for by two little girls, aged eight and six, in the year 1848, and has been opened every year but one since then, and the contents sent to the Society. The full sum collected in it during the fifty years is not known, but since 1877 the amount has been £48 10*s*. The total sum collected in missionary boxes in England and Wales in 1897–98 was £38,072, an increase of £1,384 over the previous year. So far as could be ascertained £13,337 of this amount was given by young people. The following dioceses raised over £2,000 by means of boxes:—London, £4,849; Rochester, £3,113; Manchester, £2,532; Worcester, £2,078; and Canterbury, £2,037. Less than £2,000, but more than £1,000, contributed in this way, came from each of the Dioceses of Winchester, York, Liverpool, St. Albans, Norwich, Exeter, Chichester, Southwell, and Bath and Wells. Sales of Work were also a fruitful source of income; in the Province of Canterbury, 827 sales realized £20,983, and in the Province of York, £5,641 was raised by 222 sales.

Boxes and Sales of Work.

But while there has been of late years a steady increase in the amount contributed in aid of the evangelization of the world, the gifts come from comparatively few people, and the total amount is, after all, but small. A study of the contribution lists of the Church Missionary Society and the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel has revealed the fact that in no diocese do the contributions to these two Societies amount to as much as 6*d.* per head of the population, and that in the Dioceses of Manchester, Bangor, Wakefield, St. David's, and Llandaff they are less than one penny. While it is true that there are other Church Societies and many Societies composed of Churchmen and Nonconformists, as well as others of which Nonconformists alone are members, which engage in missionary work, it yet is sufficiently evident from the above calculation that much still remains to be done to enlighten Christians at home regarding the missionary obligation and to urge them to fulfil their duty.

It must, however, be confessed that the lukewarmness concerning the evangelization of the world which is displayed in so many quarters cannot be attributed to any lack of zeal on the part of the episcopal leaders of the Church, many of whom, with the Archbishop at their head, are unflagging in their efforts to arouse the clergy to a sense of their duty in the matter. And while Foreign Missions were hardly so prominent at the Church Congress of 1898, which was held at Bradford, as at that of the preceding year, they yet had a fair measure of consideration. Fully two thousand people were present at the meeting which dealt with "The Church and the World," over which the Bishop of Wakefield presided in the absence through family bereavement of the Bishop of Ripon. The Bishop of Bath and Wells read the first paper on Colonial Missions. The Bishop of Newcastle, who followed, had for his subject the motto of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union, "The Evangelization of the World in this Generation." The Bishop of Melanesia dealt with the subject, "The Church and Aboriginals," and the Dean of Windsor with "The Revival of the Missionary Spirit."

Church Congress.

Many warm friends of Foreign Missions and of the Society were removed by death during the year. Included in the number were six Vice-Presidents: Bishop Alford, formerly of Victoria, Hong Kong; Archdeacon Scott, of Lichfield; Mr. Arthur Mills, M.P.; Bishop Matthew, of Lahore; Mr. Abel Smith, M.P.; and Sir M. Monier-Williams, K.C.I.E. Five Honorary Governors for Life were called to their rest: The Rev. Canon H. Powell; the Rev. Canon R. J. Knight; Mr. Abel Smith, M.P.; Colonel Urmston; and Mr. N. Bridges, of Blackheath. Three Honorary Life Members died: Miss S. G. Stock, the authoress of many well-known missionary hymns, who might almost be termed the historian of the Uganda Mission; Mrs. J. Mills, of Peterborough; and Mrs. Ripley, of Norwich. Among other home friends who were called away were the Rev. Canon Tugwell, Rector of Stapleford Abbotts; Mr. T. H. Davies, of Tunbridge Wells; Colonel J. M. McNeile, a member of the Com-

French Adams, and Mrs. Henry Baker, Travancore; Mrs. H. D. Buswell, Mauritius; Mrs. S. Coles, and Miss H. M. W. Spreat, Ceylon; Mrs. Burdon, South China. Ten Native Clergy: the Rev. A. Cornelius, Western India; the Revs. J. Pakianadhan and J. Sebagnanam, South India; the Revs. K. Kuruwella and G. Kurien, Travancore; the Rev. Dzing Ts-Sing, Mid China; the Rev. T. Watanabe, Japan; the Revs. Hohua Moanaroa and Heta Tarawhiti, New Zealand; and the Rev. H. Cochrane, of N.-W. Canada.

The Rev. G. B. Durrant has been appointed as Secretary of the Society, in succession to the Rev. Philip Ireland Jones. The office of Vice-President of the Society has been accepted by the Bishop of Bombay (Dr. Macarthur); the Bishop of Calcutta (Dr. Welldon); the Bishop of Derby (Dr. Were); the Bishop of Islington (Dr. Turner); the Bishop of Mauritius (Dr. Pym); the Bishop of Southampton (Dr. Lyttleton); and the Bishop of Victoria, Hong Kong (Dr. J. C. Hoare). The Committee have appointed to the same office: the Archdeacon of Glendalough; Col. Victor Milward, M.P.; and Mr. C. E. Tritton, M.P. To vacancies in the list of Honorary Life Governors the Committee have elected the Rev. W. Abbott; the Rev. Canon R. Nicholson; the Rev. A. Oates; Mr. C. E. Cæsar; Captain J. Cundy; Col. J. B. Hutchinson; Mr. J. H. Loch, M.D.; and Mr. H. G. Malaher; and they have added the names of Mrs. Isabella Bishop; Mrs. Brown (Leeds); Mrs. Clayton (Reading); and Miss Holroyd (Hoddesdon), to the List of Honorary Life Members.

The Colonial Associations.

Imperial Penny Postage.

DURING the year under review an important step was taken which should serve to strengthen the bond of union between the Mother Country and the British Colonies, for on Christmas Day, 1898, what is known as Imperial Penny Postage came into operation. By the new arrangements letters up to the weight of half an ounce can be sent to nearly all the Colonies for a postage of one penny, and that rate suffices for a letter even to Hong Kong or Uganda, or to the remotest portions of the Dominion of Canada. Some of the most important of the Colonies, however, notably those in Australia, could not see their way to join in the movement owing to financial difficulties, though it is probable that their holding aloof will only be temporary.

In the brief reports which follow of the several Colonial Church Missionary Associations, it is matter for regret that so little, almost nothing indeed, can be said under "Victoria" and "Canada"; and that nothing whatever appears, as was also the case in the last Annual Report, about the Association in South Africa. The Committee's resolution regarding the mode in which they were prepared to deal with candidates for missionary work from South Africa was quoted in the Annual Report of 1896-97. No candidates have yet been sent to England under the conditions then laid down, but in 1896 two ladies came from the Cape to England and were accepted in the usual way, and went through a course of training at The Olives. One of these, Miss A. L. Earp, is now labouring in Ceylon, and the other, Miss M. Watermeyer, is in East Africa. The former is supported by the South Africa C.M. Association, and the other by the Wynberg Branch of the Gleaners' Union. Of the pages in this Annual Report devoted to the acknowledgment of contributions, few are more encouraging than those which tell of what is being done in Holy Trinity Parish, Cape Town; St. Peter's, Mowbray; and St. John's, Wynberg. In 1891-92 these three parishes sent the Society an aggregate of £58; in 1895-96 they sent £600; in 1897-98 they sent £1,080.

I. NEW SOUTH WALES.

Mission to the Chinese in Australia.

REFERENCE was made in last year's Report (page 52) to the negotiations which were in progress concerning the undertaking by the New South Wales and Victoria Associations of some of the Mission work among the Heathen in Australia itself, which was then being carried on, though with a sense of inadequacy, by the Australian Board of Missions. The visit to England of several of the Bishops to attend the Lambeth Conference of 1897 caused the suspension of the negotiations, but after their return the Executive Council of the Board of Missions, which had previously disapproved the proposal of the Bishops, passed resolutions in support of it, and accordingly it was at once carried into effect. That proposal was that the above-named C.M. Associations should become responsible for the carrying on of the Mission to the Chinese settled in the Colony. The staff of this Mission included one Chinese clergyman, the Rev. Soo Hoo Ten, and four lay Chinese agents. The members of the Association, like missionary-hearted friends in the home land, have been reproached for sending money out of the country, and being indifferent to calls nearer home. The injustice of this charge has received a striking refutation by their attitude in this matter.

The New South Wales Association sent out during the year three new missionaries to C.M.S. fields, viz.:—Miss Rose Bachlor to China, Miss Mary Harrison to Palestine, and Mr. George Burns to Eastern Equatorial Africa. Offers of service were received and accepted from five persons, one of whom is a doctor and another a fully qualified nurse. Two candidates were in training when the Annual Report of the Association was presented.

Under the circumstances it is not altogether surprising that while the income grew from £1,188 8*s.* 2*d.* in 1897 to £1,515 18*s.* 10*d.* in the year under review, an increase of 27½ per cent., the expenditure advanced even more rapidly, so that although the financial year closed with an actual balance in hand of £55, there was a liability to the Parent Society for the support of missionaries in the field which would more than absorb the credit balance. A considerable proportion of the income was derived from the annual sale of work, which realized just £100. Funds.

The New South Wales Branch of the Gleaners' Union held its fifth annual meeting on December 13th, 1898. Miss Mary Walsh has retired from the post of Honorary Secretary to the Branch, and has been succeeded by Miss M. Harper. The children as well as the adults have their annual missionary meeting in the Colony, and the Report of the Sowers' Band which was read at the gathering spoke of forty-four affiliated Bands, with a total membership of 1,200 young people.

The diffusion of information was carried on by means of literature as well as by meetings, and the Depôt, which was removed during the year to more commodious premises, continued to prove most useful. Four hundred new volumes were added to the missionary library, which was increasingly appreciated and utilized, and the circulation of the magazines of the Society showed an encouraging growth. The same number of copies of the Intelligencer were taken in 1898 as in the preceding year, but there was an advance of 170 in the monthly circulation of the Gleaner, of 260 in that of the Children's World, and of sixteen in that of Awake.

The Committee of the Association sought for a clergyman to undertake the duties of Organizing Secretary, but were not successful in finding any one permanently to undertake the work; the Rev. R. P. Carroll, of Dublin, however, occupied the post for six months. The workers were cheered by a visit in December from Colonel R. Williams, M.P., the Treasurer of the Parent Society.

Visit of the Hon. Lay Secretary to England.

Mr. C. R. Walsh, the Lay Secretary of the Association, visited England at the time of the Centenary, and spoke in Exeter Hall at the meeting held on April 12th, and also at the Annual Meeting of the Society on May 2nd. On the latter occasion he gave a brief but deeply interesting and encouraging account of the history of the Association in the following words:—

The history of the Association.

Prior to 1889 we had for many years an Auxiliary of the Church Missionary Society, which simply enabled us to collect funds and forward them to the Parent Society. We were visited from time to time by missionaries who came to recover their health, and they occasionally addressed us. In 1889 we were visited by the Rev. Charles Hope Gill, and he suggested that we should have a branch of the Gleaners' Union. A meeting was held and a branch formed, which I believe did very much to increase our missionary interest, our missionary knowledge, and our missionary zeal. It prepared us, early in 1891, to frame a letter, which was readily signed by his Grace the Archbishop of Sydney—and here let me say that at all times we have the hearty sympathy of his Grace the Archbishop and constantly his presence at our meetings—inviting the Church Missionary Society to enable us to frame a constitution which would give us enlarged powers, and also to send us a deputation. Mr. Stock and the Rev. R. W. Stewart came out, and the result of their visit was that a constitution was framed on identically the same principles as govern this Society. I was glad to find that Mr. Stock and Mr. Stewart both recognized that we were even more anxious than they that we should be linked on for ever to those solid principles which have been the guiding principles of your Society. They moved about the Colony forming branches of the Gleaners' Union. At that time we only had ninety-seven gleaners; now we have fifty-nine branches of the Gleaners' Union and 3,080 members. In 1895 a Sowers' Band was commenced in Sydney, and now we have forty-six branches and 1,350 members. I assure you it is a very great pleasure to go year by year now to the annual meeting of that Sowers' Band, to see the large Y.M.C.A. hall filled with deeply interested and intelligent children. Numbers of them write papers; prizes are given; and we have every evidence that an immense amount of most useful information is being planted in the minds of those children.

Then again in 1892 we had not a single missionary in the field. Up to the present time we have sent out thirteen from New South Wales alone. They are now either in the field or at home on furlough. Then we have there, through the liberality of our friend, Miss Hassall—a grand-daughter of the Apostle to the Maoris—a training home, in which lady candidates reside and attend lectures, so that they may go out as fully equipped missionaries.

II. VICTORIA.

It was mentioned in last year's Report that the Victoria C.M. Association had taken over from a diocesan Society the management and control of the Mission to the Chinese in the Diocese of Melbourne, some 8,500 in number. The practical difficulty of effectually superintending the work of Chinese agents without possessing a knowledge of their language at once made itself severely felt, and failing to secure an Englishman with this qualification, the Association invited its Secretary, the Rev. E. J. Barnett, to visit China for eighteen months, and thus fit himself in some degree for this branch of the work. Mr. Barnett, who gave up an important school in Melbourne some years since in order that he might devote himself entirely to the cause of the World's Evangelization, responded readily to the invitation of the Committee, and sailed for China with Mrs. Barnett on December 21st.

The Rev. E. J. and Mrs. Barnett's visit to China.

At the request of the Association the Rev. and Mrs. A. N. C. Storrs, of the South India Mission, visited Australia on their way back to the Mission-field.

No copy of the Annual Report of the Association for 1898 has been received.

III. NEW ZEALAND.

The Sixth Anniversary of the New Zealand Association was held at Nelson on February 21st and 22nd, 1899. On the 21st there was a service in the Cathedral, and a sermon was preached by the Rev. W. G. Ivens, who has been a missionary of the Association in the Melanesian Islands since 1895. The following day was opened with a service of Holy Communion in the Cathedral at 7.30 a.m., and in the evening the Annual Meeting took place, under the presidency of the Bishop of Nelson. The Report read by the Rev. F. W. Chatterton, the Clerical Secretary, spoke of advance in every department of the work, and stated that the Committee had come to the conclusion that the time had arrived when an Organizing Secretary should be appointed who would give the whole of his time to the work of the Association. Besides the Chairman, the Rev. F. G. Evans, of New Plymouth; the Rev. A. P. Clark, of Taradale, Napier; and the Rev. W. G. Ivens and Mr. Clatworthy, of Napier, addressed the meeting.

Sixth anniversary.

No missionaries were sent out during the year, but the training of one of the candidates, Mr. A. J. Carr, has been completed, and it was hoped that both he, and also Miss McCallum, who was in training at Sydney, would shortly commence their work in the Mission-field.

The Balance Sheet presented by the Treasurer, Mr. W. G. Filleul, shows payments amounting to £920, and receipts to £1,083. Balances amounting to £207 were carried forward. The receipts in 1897 only amounted to £743, but, owing to an alteration in the method of keeping the accounts, only eleven months were included in that financial year. The Napier Gleaners raised a fund for their "Own Missionary," and their good example was followed by the Christchurch Gleaners, who expressed their desire to support one of the Maori clergy on the Society's staff.

The Gleaners' Union continues to be the chief means of the diffusion of information. Renewals were received from 1,014 members, and exactly 100 persons joined the Union during 1898. The importance of the children does not appear to meet with general recognition, for there are only twelve Sowers' Bands with an aggregate membership of about 400 children.

The monthly issue of periodicals was as follows:—Intelligencer, 13; Gleaner, 1,123; Mercy and Truth, 42; Children's World, 415; and Awake, 56. Arrangements were made with the Maori Board to publish a supplement to the Gleaner, giving particulars of the work among the Maoris, and 1,750 of these were issued every month.

IV. CANADA.

Visit of Miss M. C. Gollock and Miss M. R. S. Bird to Canada.

At the request of the Canadian C.M. Association, the Parent Committee sent out a deputation, consisting of Miss M. C. Gollock and Miss M. R. S. Bird, for a three months' visit to the Colony. Their first meetings were held at Winnipeg, but the greater part of their work was in Eastern Canada. At Toronto, Hamilton, London, Ottawa, Kingston, Montreal, and Quebec, and in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward's Island, one or both of them—both in most instances—addressed meetings of women, and sought to quicken and stir up a missionary spirit. They were much impressed with the zeal manifested in some of the places they visited, and in particular they testified in the warmest terms of the whole-heartedness of the friends in Toronto in the cause.

The Annual Report of the Association has not come to hand.

THE WORLD.

Growth of the Christian Church.

The extension of the visible Church of Christ is a subject of the deepest interest to those who acknowledge Him as their King, and the statistics, compiled from the best authorities, which are given in a work entitled The Growth of the Kingdom of God,* by the Rev. S. L. Gulick, are worthy of their careful study. The number of Christians at the end of the third century appears to have been about five millions; this had grown to ten at the end of the fourth, fifty at the end of the tenth, one hundred at the end of the fifteenth, and two hundred at the end of the eighteenth. Then the number is given as 410 millions in 1880, in 1890 as 493 millions, and in 1896 as 500 millions. During the present century the increase exceeds that of the previous 1800 years.

Two-thirds of the World's population

The comparative growth of the populations under the rule of Christian Governments and of those ruled by non-Christians is also instructive. Between 1786 and 1890 the world's population is estimated to have increased from 954 millions to 1,499 millions. The Christian-governed nations increased in the same period from 341 to 891 millions, while those governed by non-Christians receded from 613 to 608 millions. Protestant nations governed 520 millions in 1890 as compared with 157 millions in 1786; Roman Catholics 243 as compared with 154 millions; and Greek Christians 128 as compared with 30 millions. In other words, Christians, who constitute about one-third of the world's population, govern about two-thirds of it.

and five-sixths of its area under Christian governments.

And this before the recent partition of Africa, which adds over 100,000,000 of Polytheists to those under the sway of Christian lands, reducing the other figures to the same extent. During the past three hundred years the great bulk of the world's area has changed hands. In 1600, Christian nations ruled 3,480,900 square miles of the earth's surface, and non-Christians 45,619,100 square miles; in 1893 there were 40,317,700 square miles under Christians, and only 8,782,300 under non-Christians. Protestant nations have increased the area of their territory from 727,200 to 17,417,900 square miles.

Protestant and Roman Catholic nations.

Mr. Gulick draws special attention to a comparison of the statistics of Roman Catholic and Protestant lands. At the end of the fifteenth century, when the population under Christian rule was 100 millions, there were no Protestants; but in 1890 they numbered 520 millions out of a total Christian population of 890 millions. France (Roman Catholic) had 19 millions of population in 1700 and 38 millions in 1890; while Great Britain's population grew to the same figure in 1890 from eight millions in 1700. When the Armada threatened England Spain had 43 millions of subjects, and England only four millions; now England has 38 millions of population and Spain 17 millions.

* See C.M. Intelligencer, May, 1898.

United States and Spain.

But events which occurred during the year under review have led to a modification of some of the figures. In April, 1898, war broke out between the United States of America and Spain consequent upon the ineffectual attempts of the latter to maintain order in the island of Cuba. In a very short space of time the superiority of the United States in strategy as well as naval equipment was manifested, and a victory at Manila, in the Philippines, by Commodore Dewey, and the destruction by him of the Spanish fleet, followed by the annihilation of Admiral Cervera's Spanish squadron outside Santiago de Cuba, and the eventual surrender of that town, compelled the Spanish Government to sue for peace. Negotiations were soon commenced, and on December 10th a treaty was signed by which it was arranged that Spain should withdraw all claims to sovereignty over Cuba on the understanding that the island should be governed as an American Protectorate, that Puerto Rico should be ceded to America, and that the Philippine Islands also should be ceded in return for a payment of twenty million dollars. By this treaty nearly eight million persons have been transferred from Roman Catholic to Protestant rule. The public sympathy manifested by England on the side of the United States during the war, contrasted as it was with the disfavour of some of the great European Powers, resulted in a most friendly feeling springing up between the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon race, which if maintained should prove in the future a great security for the peace of the world, and should lead to the extension of liberty, of justice, and of Christianity.

Centenary of the Religious Tract Society.

It is fitting to refer under the heading of "The World" to the Centenary of the Religious Tract Society, which was founded on May 9, 1799, since it publishes tracts, magazines, commentaries, theological and educational literature in no less than 229 different languages, of which more than fifty are employed by C.M.S. missionaries. The Pilgrim's Progress alone has been translated into ninety-one languages. In addition to printing, the R.T.S. makes grants of money and paper to foreign workers, and fosters the production of original works by Native Christians. The money spent on home work since 1799 has been £833,014, and on foreign work £1,396,271.

AFRICA.

Anglo-French agreements

The early part of the present decade was characterized by a scramble for territory in Africa on the part of various European powers, and although efforts to develop the lands then obtained have been the main feature of later years, nevertheless causes of dispute not unfrequently occur. Thus both the North and West of the Continent were the subjects of negotiation between Great Britain and France during 1898. In the West, the outstanding questions concerning the valley of the Niger were happily settled after prolonged discussion by an agreement signed in Paris on June 14th. Under this convention France abandons her claim to Boussa and all places on the Lower Niger up to and including Ilo. She remains, however, at Nikki, a place situated just within the Lagos Hinterland, about 100 miles from the river. The British northern boundary, which ran formerly from Say on the Niger to Barua on Lake Chad, has receded at its western end, starting now from Ilo. But, in compensation for this, it is carried at another point beyond the old line, leaving to England everything within a hundred miles' radius of the town of Sokoto. Though the French are thus excluded from the navigable part of the Niger, they have obtained the lease for thirty years of two reserves on the right bank of the river, with the right to bring goods from their colonies and ship them under their own regulations. Behind the Gold Coast, where the Black Volta is now to mark her western boundary, England gives up her claim to Mossi and Wagodugu, retires from Bona and Dokta, and allows her hinterland to stop at the eleventh parallel. In return for these concessions, France undertakes to give British subjects equality of treatment with her own as regards tariff and trade facilities in her Ivory Coast and Dahomey possessions.

relating to the Niger region, and the Valley of the Nile.

The position of affairs in the North was such as for a time to engross public attention. The advance of the combined British and Egyptian forces under Sir H. Kitchener towards Khartoum was steadily continued. On April 8th, 1898, a battle was fought with the forces of the Khalifa near the Atbara River, which resulted in the decisive defeat of the Dervishes, and the capture of Mahmud, one of the Khalifa's generals. This led to the concentration of the remaining forces of the Khalifa in and about Omdurman, and before further operations could be conducted it was necessary to make careful and complete preparations for the advance. At length, about the middle of August, a forward movement was made, and on September 3rd, Sir F. Grenfell, commanding the army of occupation in Cairo, was able to send a message home to the effect that a great battle had been fought and won on the previous day. The defeat of the Khalifa was complete, though he himself contrived to escape capture; Omdurman was instantly occupied; and the following Sunday the Sirdar proceeded to the ruins of Khartoum, and there, in Gordon's own palace, the Union Jack and the Egyptian Crescent were hoisted, a salute was fired, and an impressive religious service was held in memory of the dead hero. But in a short time the serious news reached this country that the French had occupied Fashoda, which is situated on the White Nile, below the confluence of the Nile and Sobat rivers. Soon after the battle of Omdurman, the Sirdar, with a considerable force, ascended the river, and found Major Marchand, with a few French officers and about a hundred Senegalese troops, in possession of the town. They refused to accede to the demand for their withdrawal, and for some weeks the situation as between the two countries was critical in the extreme; but happily the French Government eventually decided to retire.

The relations between the two countries in this part of Africa shortly afterwards became the subject of negotiations, which were brought to a happy issue by the signing on March 21st of an agreement which is regarded as the complement of the Niger Convention already referred to. This agreement merely draws a line running roughly north and south, and pledges England not to acquire either territory or political influence to the west of this line, and France not to acquire them to the east of it. The line begins on the northern frontier of the Congo State at the watershed of the Congo and the Nile, and follows that watershed up to the eleventh degree of north latitude. From this point up to the fifteenth parallel north it is to be traced by a mixed commission between Darfur and Wadai, leaving the former to England and the latter to France. The second section of the line begins at the intersection of the sixteenth degree east of Greenwich with the Tropic of Cancer, is drawn south-east until it cuts the twenty-fourth degree, and then follows that degree until it reaches the northern border of Darfur. By this arrangement Great Britain holds the entire basin of the Upper Nile right up to the Great Lakes, while the claims of France are uncontested as far as England is concerned from the Congo and the Ubanghi to her possessions of Algeria and Tunis. Certain commercial provisions are also included in the agreement.

A memorial to Gordon.

The Sirdar, who was raised to the peerage under the title of Lord Kitchener of Khartoum, before his return to the Soudan at the close of 1898 issued an appeal for £100,000, in order that a college for technical education might be erected in Khartoum as a memorial to Gordon. The appeal met with an immediate and generous response; in a few weeks £118,000 was contributed, and on January 4th Lord Cromer laid the foundation stone of the new College. He took the opportunity of making the important political announcement that in future the Soudan would be "governed by the Queen of England and the Khedive of Egypt," and also of proclaiming religious liberty in the following memorable terms:— Proclamation of religious liberty.

> The Queen and her Christian subjects are devotedly attached to their own religion, but they also know how to respect the religion of others. The Queen rules over a larger number of Moslem subjects than any Sovereign in the world, and they live contented under her beneficent rule. Their religion and religious customs are strictly respected. You may feel sure that the same principle will be adopted in the Soudan. There will be no interference whatever with your religion.

The development of the resources of Africa naturally proceeds with less rapidity than marked its exploitation and partition. Plans for the attainment of this end are, however, not lacking, and much energy is manifested in the carrying of them into execution. The construction of the telegraph from the Cape to Cairo is being continued, and the probability that at no very distant date a railway will accompany it was accentuated by the remarkable visit of Mr. Rhodes to Berlin, where he was granted an interview with the Emperor of Germany, and successfully carried through some important negotiations. While North and South are being linked by electricity, East and West are being drawn nearer by steam: the Congo railway is opened as far as Leopoldville, and the construction of the Mombasa-Victoria railway is being rapidly pressed forward, in spite of difficulties arising from man-eating lions, the unhealthiness of the climate, and other causes. By May, 1898, the first 100 miles were open for passenger traffic, before the close of September the rails reached the 237th mile, and the line was open for passenger traffic as far as Kibwezi. Progress of railways and telegraphs.

But while the progress of civilization was marked during the year under review, troubles were not unknown, for both in East and West Africa disturbances occurred which involved the loss of valuable lives. Since they seriously affected the work of evangelization in the Hinterland of Sierra Leone, and in Uganda and the surrounding countries, they are referred to under the Missions which they more directly concern.

The steps taken to procure the total abolition of slavery, especially in East Africa, have a peculiar interest for the friends of the Church Missionary Society. The prominent leaders of the Society from its birth onwards have ever been numbered among the friends of the slave, and have taken an honoured part in the efforts within and without the Houses of Legislature which have resulted in the successive Acts abolishing first the Slave Trade, and then Slavery in the possessions of Great East African slavery.

Britain. In 1869 the Committee presented a memorial to the Government, praying them to obtain from the Sultan of Zanzibar "the adoption of such measures as will effectually terminate this remaining relic of that infamous traffic which it is the pride of England to have swept from the Atlantic," and two years later the Society's present President was one of a small Parliamentary Committee of fifteen members which, after sitting for nine days and examining a number of witnesses, presented a report giving proofs of the terrible activity of the trade. It was in consequence of these revelations that Sir Bartle Frere was sent to Zanzibar on a special mission in 1872, and, by the Treaty of June the following year, the Sultan agreed to terminate the export of slaves from the mainland; he then issued the first of the long chain of recent Decrees, terminating in that of April, 1897 (there had been two previous ones in 1822 and 1845), which have brought about the virtual cessation of the slave-trade on the East Coast, and are now aiming at the total extinction of slavery.

The hope was entertained that the recent enactments (see Annual Report, 1897–98, p. 62) which provided for the emancipation of the slaves under certain conditions, and for the compensation of the owners, would result in the liberation of a large proportion of the 140,000 slaves living in the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba, some of whom worked in the households, others on the plantations, while a third class were hired out to employers of labour. The official correspondence, however, which was presented to Parliament in July, 1898, showed that apparently there existed no general disposition on the part of the slaves to leave their owners altogether, for in 1897 only 2,000 applied for and obtained a formal recognition of their freedom, and between 2,000 and 3,000 made contracts with their masters as free labourers. The sum paid by way of compensation proved insignificant, and was less than one-seventh of the amount spent in the maintenance of the courts which investigated claims. This appears to indicate that the evils in the form of the general forsaking of the plantations by the slaves which it is anticipated would be involved by total abolition are rather imaginary than real, and that it would be stretching prudence to the lengths of pusillanimity to defer much longer the adoption of the step in question, so earnestly desired, and so often postponed.

Slow progress of emancipation.

SIERRA LEONE MISSION.

Africa was the first field entered by the Society. Its first two missionaries were sent in 1804 to the Susu tribes on the Rio Pongas. In 1816 the Society's efforts were concentrated upon the colony of Sierra Leone, which, since the abolition of the slave-trade in 1807, had become the depôt for Negroes rescued from slave ships by the British cruisers. Much blessing attended the labours of W. A. B. Johnson and other missionaries, and in 1822 nearly 2,000 of the freed slaves, adults and children, were in the Mission Schools, several thousands were attending public worship, and some hundreds had become sincere Christians. The work continued to prosper, but at a great cost of life; fifty-three missionaries and missionaries' wives dying between 1804 and 1824. In 1842 a Parliamentary Committee attributed the "considerable intellectual, moral, and religious improvement" of the people to "the valuable exertions of the Church Missionary Society more especially." Port Lokkoh, in the Temne country, was occupied from 1840–50 and reoccupied in 1875; Ro-Gbera was occupied in 1896; and Sinkunia, in the Yalunka Country, near the boundaries of the British Protectorate, in 1897. A serious rebellion took place in the Temne country in 1898, during which several English and American missionaries were put to death by the insurgents.

In 1852 the Bishopric of Sierra Leone was founded, and the first three Bishops—Vidal, Weeks, and Bowen (the two latter C.M.S. missionaries)—died within three years of their consecration. Since then the following have succeeded to the charge of the Diocese: Bishops Beckles (1860–69), Cheetham (1870–81), Ingham (1882–96), Taylor Smith (1897).

In 1862 the Sierra Leone Church was organized on an independent basis, and undertook the support of its own pastors, churches, and schools, aided by a small grant from the Society. In 1876 the Sierra Leone Church Missionary Society was founded, and has since carried on the outlying Missions established by the C.M.S. in the Bullom and Quiah countries. More than one hundred African clergymen have been ordained on the West Coast (including Yoruba and the Niger). Several of them are Government chaplains.

Political disturbances—their causes.

Reference was made in last year's Report to the disturbances in the neighbourhood of Sierra Leone, which resulted in the murder of the Rev. W. J. Humphrey and a number of American missionaries, and it was stated that the cause of the outbreak was not then clear. It was at first supposed that the insurrection was due to the imposition of the hut tax, but it afterwards appeared that the native chiefs were accustomed to levy similar contributions when they were in need of money, that the troubles commenced in a district which was exempt from the tax in question, and that the rebellion was in reality a final struggle on the part of the chiefs for freedom to continue their old customs. Prior to the proclamation of the Protectorate over the Hinterland, with its area of 30,000 square miles, they were free to organize raids for the purpose of obtaining slaves and plunder; human sacrifices were frequently offered; and cannibalism and other savage customs were practised without restraint. Nearly all the wealth of the chiefs consisted of their captives, or was derived from forced labour and from the sale of their surplus stock of slaves. But with the advent of British authority the revenue derived from such sources was stopped, and the resulting discontent culminated in the rebellion.

At first the troubles were confined to the Karene district, but towards the close of April, 1898, the Mendis, who, before rising, passed on from town to town the signal for revolt in the form of a twisted bracelet of green palm leaves, without any warning put to death in cold blood the English-speaking missionaries and traders, and, in fact, all, even their own children (so it was said), who could speak and write English. It was estimated that in all as many as 2,000 people were massacred, including 200 of the Sherbro native Christians and missionaries. It was found necessary to recall the missionaries who were residing in the disturbed districts, and so serious was the insurrection that it was not without considerable danger that the journey to Freetown was made. Mr. T. E. Alvarez, while returning from Sinkunia, was for a time in great peril, being protected for a fortnight, by the chief of one village, from the people who wished to kill him. The Rev. H. Castle and Mr. T. Caldwell, who had been itinerating from Ro-Gbera, were captured while on their way to Port Lokkoh, and had a very providential escape. Mr. Caldwell says:—

Massacre of Christians and others.

Providential escape of Messrs Castle and Caldwell.

A Council was held to decide what should be done with us. Some were for killing us on the spot, some for binding us and carrying us before the rebel leader. However, we were in the town of a chief, and he was present; so he said, when appealed to, "Had you killed the white man before coming here I should have said nothing; but now they are in my town I cannot have them injured, and you must therefore take them back to where they came from." The reason he would not allow them to injure us was because he knew he would be held responsible, seeing we had saluted him in his own town; whereas, had we been killed before reaching him he would have pleaded ignorance and pretended to be indignant. We were taken back, and remained in Ro-Gbera until Colonel Marshall, with a flying column, relieved us on April 26th. We had in the meantime been joined by the Rev. C. G. Hensley, who came up and found it impossible to return again. I cannot speak too highly of the kindness shown us by Her Majesty's officers during all the time we were in contact with them.

This extract forms a curious commentary on the statement made by the rebel chief, Bai Bureh, to the Rev. A. A. Elba, to the effect that the Rev. W. J. Humphrey was killed by an unmanageable force without his authority! A portion of the remains of Mr. Humphrey were recovered, and interred in the chancel of Bishop Crowther Memorial Church by the Bishop of Sierra Leone in the presence of a large congregation, which included the Governor and Lady Cardew.

Interment of remains of the late Rev. W. J. Humphrey.

For some time after the outbreak it was impossible to do much for the restoration of order, since the rains prevented any operations by the troops between the beginning of August and November; but in the middle of the latter month Bai Bureh (the term Bai signifies "a man of importance"), the prime instigator of the revolt, was captured. Early in 1899 a general amnesty was proclaimed in the Protectorate, from which, however, the murderers of Mr. Humphrey and three of the chiefs were excepted.

While the troubles were at their height the Bishop of Sierra Leone, who has had long experience in the colony, wrote that when peace was restored it would not be a case of an "open door," but of "a door off the hinges." It remains to be seen whether the Church of Christ will avail herself of the opportunity presented to her by her Lord, and discharge the responsibility which the restoration of peace involves.

"A door off the hinges."

It is worth while to put on record the following remarks made by the late Sir George Smyth Baden-Powell, K.C.M.G.,

F.R.S., M.P., at the meeting of the Society held in St. James' Hall on May 3rd, 1898. He said:—

The late Sir G. S. Baden-Powell on his visit to Sierra Leone.

My wife and the two lady friends who were with us arrived at Sierra Leone when the Week of Prayer was just beginning. We went ashore one morning, and we had to be there by seven o'clock—though I fancy we were a little late. The Wilberforce Hall is an enormous building, standing on columns. When we got into the basement, we found the spiral staircase was crowded, and the upper Hall was entirely filled. But we were two white men, accompanied by three white ladies, and the negroes, who, of course, were Christians, politely made way for us. But I must confess that, when we reached the top of those steps, we were terribly amazed, for we found ourselves in a hall as large as this, and densely packed with nothing but negroes and negresses—with the single exception of two white clergymen of the Church of England on the platform. And I do say this: I have been at many services myself, and I never saw—and I am sure my wife, who is present, will contradict me if I do not speak the truth—neither she nor I ever saw anywhere so enthusiastic and so truly religious an assemblage as there was at that meeting, organized by Bishop Ingham under the auspices of the Church Missionary Society.

The following came home during the year under review:—Mr. T. Caldwell in May, 1898; Mr. T. E. Alvarez, the Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Alley, and Miss S. Hickmott in June; the Rev. E. H. Elwin in August; Miss A. J. Long (on sick leave) in September; the Bishop of Sierra Leone in March, 1899; the Rev. Canon O. Moore and Miss C. Elwin in April; and the Rev. C. G. Hensley in May. Mr. T. Caldwell sailed for Africa in December, 1898; Mr. Alvarez in January, 1899; and Mr. Elwin in February.

Reinforcement.

The only reinforcement which the Mission received was Miss Charlotte Harriet Pidsley, of Topsham, who was trained at The Olives, and sailed in October, 1898. Mr. J. Denton, a nephew of the late Rev. N. Denton, who laboured in Sierra Leone from 1849 to 1855, proceeded to the colony in August as accountant to the Mission. The Rev. C. G. Hensley, who was originally assigned to the Niger Mission, but never proceeded further than Sierra Leone, has now been definitely appointed to the Sierra Leone Mission. Miss Hickmott, on the other hand, has been transferred from this Mission to the Niger Mission. Miss Long has retired from the work in consequence of the state of her health.

The Committee had the pleasure of an interview on July 5th, 1898, with the Revs. J. D. Ellis and H. H. Kilburn, members of the Jamaica Council, which selects candidates of African descent for service in one or other of the Society's Missions in West Africa and supervises their training. The Committee heard with much interest the expression of their opinion as to the great importance to the spiritual growth of the African Christian community in the West Indies of the movement to enlist their sympathy and efforts in behalf of the Heathen in the land of their origin.

On Trinity Sunday, June 5th, 1898, at Freetown, the Bishop of Sierra Leone admitted Messrs. P. A. Bickersteth, W. Burris, C. N. Lewis, B.A., A. E. Williams, and J. G. Wilson to deacons' orders; and on February 26th, 1899, he admitted the Revs. H. Castle and C. G. Hensley to priests', and Mr. D. Davies to deacon's orders. Ordinations.

The Rev. E. H. Elwin is the Secretary of the Mission.

SIERRA LEONE.

The Bishop of Sierra Leone has founded a cathedral chapter as a centre for diocesan work. The deed is in some respects similar to that of St. Saviour's, Southwark. The Bishop is Dean of the Cathedral; Archdeacon Robbin, Archdeacon of Sierra Leone; Archdeacon Lindon, Archdeacon of the Islands; the Rev. H. Johnson (late Archdeacon of the Niger) and the Rev. Obadiah Moore have been appointed Canons; the Rev. S. Spain, Minor Canon; Mr. Morton W. Smith, Chancellor; Mr. N. E. Browne, J.P., Treasurer; Mr. A. S. Hebron and Mr. W. F. Lucia, Lay Members; and Mr. H. C. Sawyer, Secretary. A cathedral chapter founded.

The post of Principal of the Fourah Bay College, Freetown, rendered vacant by the death of the Rev. W. J. Humphrey, was filled by the appointment of the Rev. E. H. Elwin. He expresses his appreciation of his predecessor's work in the following terms:— Fourah Bay College.

> I had worked with him for just fifteen months, and could not but admire his earnestness of purpose, his unflagging energy, and his unwearied labours. How kind he was, how concerned about all the people around him, and how misjudged! He arrived at Freetown at a time when much needed correcting, and to him fell the task. He knew he would incur odium, but he set his face like a flint and acted in accordance with what he thought his duty. To him we owe much. Our model schools at the College, our newly-completed Bishop Crowther Memorial Church, our increased Missions up-country, the new arrangement of the cubicles at the College, and the splendid régime of work, as well as much more, testify to his labours. The late Rev. W. J. Humphrey.

Many of the missionaries on the staff assisted in the work of the College at various times, including the Rev. C. G. Hensley, who was in charge during the absence of Mr. Elwin on furlough, the Rev. H. Castle, and others, while the Rev. Canon S. Spain was associated with the College during the whole of the year under review. Mr. Hensley, writing of the time when he was Acting-Principal, says:—

> One who had not yet been a year in the field was obliged to be left in charge of the whole work of the oldest Mission of the C.M.S. A list of the offices which this includes will be surprising to many:—Secretary of the Mission, Principal of the College, manager of two schools, pastor of a parish, Bishop's chaplain, besides membership of at least seven committees in connexion with our own work and that of the Native Church. To fill these posts efficiently, there is full and really useful missionary work for at least five men. Onerous office devolving on a young missionary.

At the close of 1897 one student passed the final examination for the Durham University Licence in Theology, and two others the first of those for the B.A. degree. There were thirty men in the College when Mr. Elwin wrote his Annual Letter: six of them were reading for their B.A., and four for a Theological degree, while the remainder were preparing either to be schoolmasters or to engage in direct missionary work. The students rendered some assistance in the Parish of Cline Town, which is under the charge of the clergy of the College, and possesses a good Sunday-school, superintended by Canon Spain. There were about 150 children belonging to the Mohammedan school; and the schools in the College grounds, in which the students gain practical experience, continued to prosper. One of the tutors carried on an excellent work among the Temnes by means of visiting, open-air services, and the like, in which he was helped by some of the men. Nine converts were baptized, the fruit of this work. One of them, a woman, when praying for her husband, said, "O God, my husband is like a little boat on the stormy sea without an anchor. Grant that he may soon have the anchor, Jesus Christ."

Grammar school.

The number of pupils at the Grammar School, under the Rev. Canon O. Moore, increased from 160 to 177, of whom eighty-four were boarders. One of the lads who entered came from the Vei tribe of Liberia, in order that he might be trained for missionary work in that country. The distinctive feature of the year's work was the revival of the public viva voce examination, which was held on October 27th. The Governor, Sir Frederic Cardew, who is ever ready to manifest his sympathy with missionary effort, kindly presided for three of the five hours during which the proceedings lasted, and was supported by a large number of influential men. The Bishop held a special service for the boys on April 3rd, 1898, and confirmed twenty-five candidates, and at the close of the year three pupils, all boys from Bonny, in the Niger Mission, were under instruction for baptism.

Annie Walsh Institution.

Miss H. Bissett, the Principal of the Annie Walsh Institution, speaks of a "very happy and prosperous year, full of rich blessing for many." From April to July, 1898, there were three European workers on the staff; but then Miss A. J. Long's health failed, necessitating her return to England, so that the arrival of Miss C. H. Pidsley in the autumn only resulted in the filling of the gap thus caused. The monitress system continues to answer well, and provides for the filling up of vacancies in the staff of teachers. Seventeen new girls were admitted when the school was reopened in September, a large proportion of whom came from the Roman Catholic Institution; but Miss Bissett points out that in almost every case they were the children of Protestant parents who, like so many at home, subjected their daughters to the risk of being indoctrinated with Romish error in order that they might be educated at a slightly less cost than was possible at a Protestant establishment. The difference in moral tone between the boarders and the day pupils was very marked, and Miss Bissett reports with thankfulness that many of the elder girls exercise a good influence over the younger children. Miss C. J. Elwin states that the Missionary Endeavour movement made good progress; the children by their gifts assisted work in the Hinterland and in various institutions, including the Princess Christian Cottage Hospital at Freetown, of which a former C.M.S. missionary on the Niger, Miss A. Griffin, is matron, and where Dr. W. Miller, of the Niger Mission, lent by the Society for the purpose, was the medical officer for several months.

Native Church.

The Native Church suffered heavily, as has already been stated, during the political disturbances, but the Committee trust that the sad trials and sorrows may in the providence of God be overruled to the fuller growth within the Church of spiritual life as the one chief source of peace and power for any people, and also to the increase of an earnest desire to spread abroad in West Africa the Gospel of the grace of Him who is the Prince of Peace. It was with reference to these troubles that the Thirty-sixth Annual Report of the Sierra Leone Native Pastorate Auxiliary Association, presented at the meeting held on May 25th, 1898, opened with the Lord's reply to Moses at a period of much perplexity and doubt: "Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward." It was stated at the meeting that the actual receipts for the year 1897–98 were in excess of those of the previous twelve months, and that since there was a slight falling off in subscriptions, the improvement in the funds was due to a real increase in class receipts. The year 1898 witnessed great advance in the efforts more effectually to reach the children throughout the colony, and the zeal manifested in this form of work was abundantly rewarded. For several years there have been branches of the Scripture Union in Freetown, and a few of the adjacent villages; in January, 1898, they numbered thirty-five in all, but by the autumn they had increased to sixty, with nearly 2,000 members. The Rev. E. H. Elwin, the Hon. Secretary of the Union, made a tour of the colony in July, in order to visit the branches, and everywhere had crowded audiences. A colporteur evangelist is now employed, whose sole work is to stimulate the branches, and to sell Bibles, magazines, &c.

Church Missions.

The celebration of the Twenty-third Anniversary of the Sierra Leone Church Missionary Society commenced on November 27th with an exchange of pulpits throughout the diocese. A variety of meetings were held on succeeding days, including one for young people at which 1,400 were present. Two hours before the Anniversary Service in the Cathedral commenced the people began to assemble in large numbers round the doors, and the large hall of the Grammar School was crowded for the final meeting on St. Andrew's Day. The foundation stone of a new church at Robenke, on the Bullom shore, in connexion with the Sierra Leone Church Missions, was laid in March, 1899. At the ceremony over £60 was contributed towards the cost of the church.

TEMNE COUNTRY.

Work at a standstill.

One effect of the rebellion of Bai Bureh was to bring the work in the Temne country practically to a standstill, since, as has already been mentioned, the European missionaries were obliged to abandon their stations for a time and go to Freetown. The Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Alley took advantage of their enforced inactivity to take their furlough, antedating it by a few months. Mr. Alley in his Annual Letter reviews the progress which has been made in this part of the field during the past ten years. He points out that the one district and three Mission stations of 1888 have become three districts and ten stations; that the number of European missionaries has increased from two to five; that not only at Port Lokkoh, but at Makomp and Makori also, converts have been baptized; and that translations have been made of several of the books of the Old Testament, while the existing translations of other books have been revised.

New station at Baane Lokkoh.

The story of the year consists of little more than the record of political events which has been given at the beginning of this account of the Sierra Leone Mission. The Rev. A. A. Elba with some companions had just taken up his residence at BAANE LOKKOH, which, after much deliberation, had been selected as a permanent centre for work in the country of the chief Burema Sanda, when he was compelled to make his way to Freetown; but before he left he was able to preach in twenty of the towns and villages of the district, and met with no small encouragement. At the beginning of the autumn the Rev. H. Castle, who was accompanied by the Rev. E. T. Cole, of Fourah Bay College, visited the disturbed area. At Makori they found the C.M.S. agent, Mr. Carew, and his wife well, and holding the fort alone. The people were pleased to meet them, and there seemed a general absence of trouble or anxiety about the war. The head-man, who is a Mohammedan, said he would call the people for a meeting in the church the following morning, which he did, and at 6 A.M. there were nearly thirty people gathered, including the head-man himself. After the service the missionaries started for PORT LOKKOH, which they reached in the afternoon. Immediately on arrival they went to the mission-house and saw the officer in charge of the troops. He arranged for them to speak to the soldiers at the service in church on the following morning. The large Mission-house was used by the officers, the small one for an hospital. The church was being used as a barrack-room, and during the service on Sundays the rows of narrow beds were used as seats. Messrs. Castle and Cole spent that evening and part of Sunday looking up the Sierra Leone and Temne Christians and giving them a word of cheer. Mr. Castle wrote:—

Church used as a barrack-room.

> They seemed very glad to see us, and many came to the soldiers' service and to an "open-air" we had in the evening of Sunday. The officer in command had been all along having a service for his men (the 1st West Indian Regiment), reading the lessons and prayers of the Morning Service, and we were glad to see, though the service is voluntary, the church quite full. The singing was good, including the chants, and the whole service hearty. Mr. Cole read the prayers, and I took the lessons and spoke. We realized the presence of God in our midst, and we sincerely trust He will own and use the effort. In the afternoon we had rain, but it cleared for our open-air meeting between four and five. At this gathering we got most of the traders and the old church members, and quite a company of soldiers. It proved to be a very good meeting. Mr. Cole gave them a message from God's Word. Afterwards I was kept busy with my concertina, playing favourite hymns of the soldiers and others. They were sorry we were not going to stay longer, and asked could we not come again for some future Sunday. Now that many of the people have returned, there really ought to be some one working among them. The witnesses for Mohammed are busy. There are quite a number of Heathen in the place.

Shortly after this visit the native agents, and eventually Mr. Castle also, were allowed to return to Port Lokkoh, where the latter was joined on Christmas Eve by Mr. T. Caldwell. Together they visited Makomp and other out-stations, and everywhere met with a most enthusiastic welcome, so that at the end of January Mr. Castle wrote: "The outlook is very encouraging, and we are most hopeful for the work in the Temne country." Before the disturbances commenced, the work at Ro-Gbera was full of promise; services were regularly conducted, and a night school was held, which was attended by about ten lads, whose ages ranged from ten to twenty. When Mr. Castle and Mr. Caldwell were endeavouring to make their way out of the Temne country, they had their two boys with them; one was compelled to leave them by some of his friends among the insurgents, and since the interpreter was seriously ill, a good deal depended upon the other boy remaining faithful. Mr. Caldwell describes what happened in the following words:—

Ro-Gbera.

A faithful African servant.

> We noticed that our king was not favourably disposed towards us, and, besides, we heard rumours to the effect that some night he would be arrested, and that the boy might possibly lose his life through his connexion with us. We called the boy, and explained the case to him, saying how sorry we were to part with him, but we thought it better that he should go to his father lest harm should come to him. He said, "Master, I cannot say anything now; I must stay with you till we reach Ro-Gbera, where the people know you."

In the afternoon he came and served us some tea, and said, "Master, I have looked upon you with pity; I cannot leave you." In the conversation which followed he said they would hardly kill him, but would sell him into slavery, and that did not matter, as he could afterwards escape.

YALUNKA COUNTRY.

Sinkunia.

For the greater part of the year SINKUNIA was without a European missionary, but the native agents were able to remain at their posts there and at Falaba, although they ran considerable risk in doing so. It was, however, found necessary to close the schools for a time. Mr. T. E. Alvarez says that large numbers of people used to gather together in the towns and villages to hear God's Word, and that many of the boys and girls and young men were able to describe quite accurately the pictures which illustrate the Saviour's birth, and death, and resurrection.

YORUBA MISSION.

From this country, which is 1,000 miles east of Sierra Leone, a large proportion of the freed slaves gathered at the latter place had been carried away. About the year 1840 many of them, having by that time become Christians and traders on their own account, returned to their fatherland. The result was the establishment of Missions at Badagry (1845) and Lagos (1852) on the coast, and at Abeokuta (1846), Ibadan (1852), Ode Ondo (1876), Oyo (1887), Ogbomoso (1893), and other towns and villages in the interior. The Yoruba country (excepting Lagos, which was within the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Sierra Leone) was a part of the titular diocese of the Bishop of the Niger territories. When, in June, 1893, the Rev. J. S. Hill succeeded Bishop Crowther, he received the title of "Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa," and at the same time two experienced African clergymen, the Revs. C. Phillips and I. Oluwole, were consecrated as Assistant-Bishops for the Yoruba country. Bishop Hill died in January, 1894, and Bishop Tugwell was consecrated the following March.

The movements of Bishops Tugwell,

"In journeyings often" is an accurate description of Bishop Tugwell's experiences during the year. At the close of 1897 he was at Onitsha, and he did not return to Lagos until the following March. In April he again visited the Niger Mission, but came back to Lagos in June, in which month he had a sharp attack of fever, but happily soon recovered. A great part of August was spent in a visitation of the Ijebu country, and on the 24th of that month he reached Abeokuta. From there in September he made his way viâ Ogbomoso, Ilorin, and Jebba to Lokoja, whence he moved to other places in the Niger Mission. He was back in Lagos for Christmas, and proposed shortly to visit the Gold Coast.

Phillips, and Oluwole.

Bishop Phillips remained at Ode Ondo during the greater part of the year, but in May, 1898, he made a tour through the Ekiti country, and in December he visited the stations in the Ibadan district, and confirmed sixty-six candidates. Bishop Oluwole was in charge of Christ Church, Lagos, for several months. He accompanied Bishop Tugwell on his tour in the Ijebu country in August, held an ordination service at Igbore, Abeokuta, in September, and in November went to Jebu Remo and confirmed candidates at various centres.

Missionary Conference.

A Conference of the missionaries, at which the three Bishops, eighteen clergy, and one European lay missionary were present, was held at Ibadan from January 28rd to 26th, 1899. There was an administration of the Holy Communion at the beginning of the Conference, and a devotional meeting was held each morning. Much encouragement was afforded to the workers by the reports which were given, for they served to demonstrate that the principles of Christianity are gradually but surely permeating society in the land, and overthrowing the old evil systems.

Reinforcements.

The Rev. and Mrs. N. T. Hamlyn, transferred from the Niger Mission, Mr. James Carson, a short-course student of Islington College, and Miss Millicent Blackwall, of Nottingham, were added to the staff of the Mission: the last named sailed in July, 1898, and the three others in October. Miss E. Ballson came home in June, 1898; the Rev. and Mrs. F. G. Toase were once more obliged by ill-health to leave the Mission, the latter in July and Mr. Toase two months later, and he has been compelled to resign from considerations of health; Mr. and Mrs. E. Fry and Miss S. C. Grover came to England in September; the Rev. J. Johnson, the Rev. and Mrs. F. M. Jones, and Miss M. Blackwall in March, 1899; and Mr. H. F. Gane in May. Miss M. Tynan and Miss C. C. Boyton also sailed for the Yoruba country in July; Mr. J. McKay (who came to England in June) in December, with doctor's orders, however, to spend some time at Grand Canary en route; and Mr. and Mrs. E. Fry and Miss S. C. Grover in May.

Ordinations. On September 11th, 1898, at Abeokuta, Bishop Oluwole ordained the Rev. J. J. Ransome-Kuti and Mr. J. J. Olumide priest and deacon respectively. Bishop Phillips admitted the Rev. F. L. Akiele to priest's orders on February 5th, 1899.

The Rev. T. Harding is Secretary of the Mission, residing at Ibadan.

LAGOS.

Lagos. Christ Church. The morning services at Christ Church, Lagos, were well attended throughout the year, but in the evenings the numbers present were not so large. Bishop Oluwole, who, with the assistance of the Rev. A. W. Howells, conducted the services until the arrival of the Rev. N. T. Hamlyn in November, 1898, states that the Sunday collections were good, and that thankofferings were frequent. The fact that young men form a large percentage of the congregation lends special importance to the work. The Training Institution. Rev. A. W. Howells was Acting Principal of the Training Institution. Five students left for their respective stations at Easter, 1898, and their places were filled by eight others drafted on from the Grammar School, two of whom passed out at the beginning of 1899. After an existence of more than thirty-one years the Institution was closed at Easter, the Society's training now being given at the Oyo Institution. The Lagos Native Church has as yet taken no steps to prepare men for its own work. There was a slight falling-off in the number of boys Grammar School. at the Grammar School, which was under the control of Mr. J. S. Fanimokun, assisted by five masters. The boys did well in their examinations, and stood first of the Secondary Schools at the Competitive Exhibition of school work, winning twenty prizes. An effort was made to awaken their interest in Foreign Missions; missionary boxes were made and given out, and periodical addresses were delivered dealing with evangelistic work in different parts of the world. Girls' Seminary. At the Girls' Seminary there were sixty-five scholars, ten of the girls being boarders. Miss E. Ballson, the Lady-Principal, was invalided home in May, 1898, leaving Miss S. C. Grover in charge until the return of Miss C. C. Boyton from England in August, soon after which Miss Grover came home. The Sowers' Band was carried on, though with diminished numbers. No striking event marked the year, with the sad exception of the occurrence of a case of stealing.

Badagry received a visit from Bishop Oluwole in July, when fifteen candidates were confirmed. Mr. Harding says that a very good work is being carried on by the Native who is in charge. At Leckie the work was not so promising, and it was found necessary to turn back the three candidates who were presented for baptism. Badagry.

IJEBU COUNTRY.

The work in the IJEBU COUNTRY is directed and supported by the Native Church in Lagos, whose Missionary Society has twenty-five lay agents engaged in the district, while the services of the Rev. R. A. Coker are still temporarily lent by the C.M.S. The remarkable movement towards Christianity in the country which was mentioned on page 79 of last year's Report continued and even increased during 1898. Mr. Coker compares the spread of Gospel truth in the land to a prairie fire, which advances with such rapidity as to render nugatory all attempts to deal with it. A careful calculation made by Bishops Tugwell and Oluwole resulted in the estimation of the number of adherents in the district at over 4,000; and Mr. Coker states that instead of thirty-four places with adherents, as in 1897, by November, 1898, Christians were to be found in sixty different villages. The knowledge of the truth was spread by means of the regular Christian workers, both paid and voluntary, who accompanied Mr. Coker on his visits to the villages; not, however, by these only, but also by individual Christians—"self-chosen apostles" they are termed—who taught the people to read, and instructed them in the Church Catechism; and even by some who had not as yet given in their names as inquirers. One instance is reported in which a heathen young man told Mr. Coker that he had gathered about thirty inquirers together, and was teaching them to read, although he himself was not at the time enrolled as a catechumen. Two other illustrations of the spread of the Gospel may be given. On one occasion Mr. Coker was returning to Ijebu Ode from a village in the evening, when his attention was attracted by a light at a little distance in the forest, and he heard a loud and plaintive voice saying, "O, Jesu, the Saviour, hear me, and have pity on me." At another time he was asked by the petty king of Jebu Ife, "What is this faith in Jesus that is in the mouth of every one now? Who is this Jesus?" This man pressed for a teacher to be placed in his town, and there were 200 adherents there by the end of November. In response to the appeals which were made, the Lagos Church Missions located ten new teachers to the district, but even then there were at least fourteen places, with an aggregate of about 1,500 inquirers, which were still in urgent need of help. Four of the new teachers are converts from the district, and Bishop Oluwole says of them that they are "very simple, earnest men, who are doing successfully the work of evangelists."

Bishop Tugwell, accompanied by Bishop Oluwole, visited the Ijebu country in August, 1898, and confesses that although he had heard much about the advance which had been made, he was not prepared to find the work so fully developed nor to see such enthusiasm as he actually witnessed. He says:—

People free, intelligent, and self-reliant.

I have experienced nothing of the kind elsewhere. There are three points which differentiate these people from their neighbours. They are a free people; nearly every adherent is a free man or woman. They are very intelligent. They are remarkably self-reliant, and possibly self-willed. I may add that nearly all of the adherents are young people.

He proceeds:—

Impromptu versification.

Their singing is poor, but original. Everything is sung in a minor key. Some of their native tunes they sing excellently; the native air is retained whilst Christian words and ideas take the place of the original heathen words and ideas. When singing after this fashion, verses are composed impromptu by one or another of those present, whilst the recognized chorus is taken up by all, or possibly the verse just composed is converted into a chorus. Thus one man sang—

"We are tired of 'Palm Nuts' (that is of the god Ifa),
We are tired of Sopona (the god of small-pox),
Now we have a Father; God is our Father."

Another sang—

"You can wash in the river,
You can wash in the lagoon;
But he who is washed in Jesus
Is clean in body and soul."

To my mind this is a most profitable occupation, and one much to be encouraged; it reveals the measure of the knowledge and experience of the singer, and instructs without effort the ignorant, the uninquiring, or the merely curious visitor. Seated, as these people frequently were, on the mud floor of the church, so densely crowded together that none could pass in or out, it was a wonderful sight to witness as they sang the praises of Jesus. One could not but feel that there was joy in the presence of the angels as these songs of praise ascended to the Father from dark places of the earth where hitherto for ages the tom-tom has been beaten and the sacrificial wail of the Heathen has ascended often in agony and despair to an unknown God.

It is noteworthy, as illustrating the rapid growth of the movement, that when Bishop Tugwell was in Ijebu Ode in 1892 there were only some seventy inquirers, one or two of whom could read, while the rest were learning to read the first Primer. The Bishop writes as follows concerning the motives of the people in attaching themselves to Christianity:—

Three principal causes may be enumerated:—First, a reaction against the oppression and exactions of their chiefs. Secondly, curiosity, backed by innate intelligence. Thirdly, mercenary motives.

A single instance in support of each may suffice :—

Mixed motives,

(1) A farmer in an outlying district visited the agent in charge of one of the Mission stations late at night and expressed his desire to become a Christian. The agent pressed the man to state his reasons. He replied that he had had a dispute with his neighbour as to the boundary of his farm ; he had referred the matter to the chiefs, who were now greatly oppressing and robbing him ; he needed protection, and therefore desired to become a Christian. The agent pointed out that the man had mistaken the true purpose of Christianity, and declined for the time being to put his name down on the list. He, however, promised to go with the man to the chiefs next day and assist him. This he did, and with entire success, the chiefs undertaking to molest him no longer. The man is now a most regular and grateful adherent of the Church. Unquestionably, membership of the Church does carry with it a measure of protection. The chiefs hesitate to oppress and defraud its adherents.

(2) A man living in Ijebu Ode was commissioned by one of the Christians to take a letter to a second Christian. On presenting the letter he saw that the receiver clearly understood its purport. This aroused his curiosity, and he determined to join the Christians and learn to read and write. "But," he added, "when I began to read the Word of God I forgot all about my desire to learn in my desire to be saved." He is now one of the most earnest and the happiest of the junior agents of this Mission, and his people are amongst those who have been the most carefully instructed, as far as their instruction has been carried.

(3) A babalawo, or native priest, resolved to learn to read and write in order that he might be able to record his Ifa incantations. He became a zealous student, but he testifies now :—"As I learned to read God's Word I found Jesus, and now know the systems of Ifa to be the systems of Satan." He is baptized, and takes a prominent part in the work of the Church, having abandoned his former position and craft.

but "the work of God."

Thus it is that whilst the motives may be mixed, the work is manifestly the work of God. Further, I am satisfied that there is a marked difference in appearance and conduct between those who have been under instruction for a period of two or three years and those who have but recently become adherents. As Bishop Oluwole said, you can tell by their faces what stage they have reached.

Efforts against polygamy.

Liberality.

But while the year witnessed numerical advance, Mr. Coker believes that there was spiritual growth as well, or, in other words, that the extension has not been at the expense of depth. He mentions that the elderly men, who could not be baptized because they were polygamists, were determined at all events not to add to the number of their wives, as their custom had been from year to year, and that the young men, who were not actually married, but had from two to six intended wives each, were breaking off the matches and getting back the dowry in order that they might become candidates for baptism. Another matter for gratitude was the increased liberality of the people, which was markedly manifested in connexion with the building of the new church at Iwade, one of the townships of Ijebu Ode. Mr. Coker at first proposed that each inquirer in the district should pay one shilling a quarter until the work was finished, and in this way £70 was raised in the first quarter. Before long, however, the need of paying for the support of the teachers was felt, and Bishop Oluwole and Mr. Coker persuaded the people to double their contribution, but the latter confesses that they did not take up this second suggestion with warmth! But the devotion of the converts was displayed in another way besides giving money, for within a week of the landing at Ejinrin, eighteen miles from Ijebu Ode, of the materials for the roof of the new church, which weighed fourteen and a half tons, they were all transported to the latter place by volunteers. Over a thousand adherents went down in companies to Ejinrin to take part in this work. Three confirmations were held during the year: the first on January 1st, 1898, when sixty-nine men and twenty-seven women were presented; the second on August 14th, when fifty-five were confirmed; and the third on December 2nd, when there were thirteen candidates. Encouraging testimony was received from Bishop Phillips and other workers in various parts of the country as to the Christian conduct of the Ijebu converts when living away from their own homes. It is fully recognized that many perils necessarily accompany this remarkable movement, and on this point Bishop Tugwell writes:—

Materials for new church voluntarily conveyed from the coast.

> That this work is encompassed with dangers and difficulties goes without saying. They are many and great. But our great consolation lies in the assurance that He who has begun the work will carry it on. Nor are these dangers apparent only to occasional visitors and onlookers. The workers are keenly alive to them, and have welcomed our presence and co-operation with very affectionate gratitude. Bishop Oluwole fully realizes his responsibility, and takes the deepest interest in the work. He is determined to maintain a high standard, God helping him, both in the selection of agents and of candidates for baptism and confirmation.

Abeokuta.

Changes characterized the year at ABEOKUTA. There were changes in the population, for the pacification of the country led many of the people to return to their farms in the country; changes in the staff of missionaries, for Mr. and Mrs. E. Fry left for England in September, 1898, and Miss M. Tynan returned from furlough in August; changes in the organization, for the Society's work in the out-stations was transferred to the Abeokuta Church Council, of which Bishop Oluwole is Chairman; and lastly, changes affecting the communication of the town with the outside world, owing to the advent of the telegraph and the approach of the railway. In former days a whole year would sometimes pass without a visit from a white man being received, but in the course of 1898 as many as sixty or seventy Europeans, including the Governor of Lagos and his party, called or stayed in the Mission compound. Evangelistic work was carried on in some measure by Mr. E. Fry, who itinerated in February for three weeks in the neighbourhood of Abeokuta with a band of earnest native young men, visiting some 116 farms, and reaching about 10,000 people, to the vast majority of whom the name of the Saviour was all but unknown. Mrs. J. B. Wood also visited among the farms, and with the other ladies made an effort to teach in some of the king's houses in the town itself; their hope was to have an opportunity of speaking to the women and children, and they were a little embarrassed when they found that they were expected to do their business in the presence of the king and his officers. After Mr. Fry left for home the work of the Dispensary was taken up by Miss H. J. Duncum; the attendance varied from 100 to 120, and some of the in-patients appeared to be favourably impressed with Christianity. A new departure was made in Abeokuta by the institution of a small Y.W.C.A., which was joined by forty members, representing four of the eleven churches in the town, who met every week for a sewing-class, followed by a Bible lesson.

Dispensary.

The foundation-stone of the new Townsend-Wood Memorial Church at Ake was laid by Mrs. Wood on September 6th, in the presence of a large assembly of Christians, and addresses were given by Bishop Tugwell and Bishop Oluwole. The new king, whose coronation took place only a few days before, had promised to attend in state with the minor kings, but he did not arrive until after the conclusion of the ceremony. At his own request, however, he was shown the foundation-stone, and touching it, invoked blessings on the building and on all the Christians. After the king had finished speaking, a chair was placed for him in the church building, and he was told that every Lord's Day a special prayer for the King of Abeokuta is used, and the prayer for the King's Majesty and the Lord's Prayer were then offered. Among the contributions to the fund for the building of the church was one of £100 from the Government in grateful recognition of the services rendered to British officers engaged in operations in the Hinterland by two of the Society's lady missionaries. The following extract, taken from a despatch from Governor McCallum to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, dated March 21st, 1898, explains the circumstances:—

Proposed Townsend-Wood Memorial Church.

Gift from British Government.

> To the ladies of the Church Missionary Society at Abeokuta, Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Fry, I am particularly grateful for the kind manner in which they have put the Mission premises at the disposal of many officers passing backwards and forwards. Still more grateful am I for the unremitting, thoughtful way in which, in the absence of medical aid, they have nursed several officers though serious and even dangerous illness, which has prevented their being moved farther towards Lagos. I should feel glad if you would authorize me to propose to the Legislative Council that the Government should show their appreciation of these services in a practical manner by voting a sum of, say, £100 towards the construction of a C.M.S. church at Abeokuta, for which subscriptions are now being raised, and which is being built in memory of Mrs. Wood's late husband, who devoted forty years of his life to missionary effort in this Colony and its Hinterland.

Missionary ladies thanked by Colonial Secretary.

In forwarding this extract to the Committee, Mr. Chamberlain expressed his thanks for the kindness shown by Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Fry, and stated that he had much pleasure in authorizing the officer administering the Government of the Colony to do as he proposed.

Pastorates.

Fourteen adults were baptized on Easter Day, 1898, in the Ikija Pastorate, which is under the Rev. D. Williams. One of the women was led to embrace Christianity by her little boy, who attended the day school. There were over forty heathen children in the school of the Igbore Pastorate, among them being a boy sent by the Mohammedan war chief mentioned in last year's Report. Efforts were made to lead the children to care for evangelistic work, by the formation of a Missionary Juvenile Association, which held a meeting every Thursday. The Rev. S. Doherty, the native pastor, says that Christianity is increasingly regarded by the people, with the exception of the Mohammedans, as the only true religion, and that many even of the chiefs are only withheld from embracing it by the fear of man. Progress was made with the building of the new church for the Ikereku Pastorate, which is under the charge of the Rev. J. A. Lahanmi, and vigorous evangelistic work, carried on with the assistance of a number of voluntary helpers, resulted in increased attendance at the church services. Among the new worshippers was a man who on one occasion was attacked by robbers while on a journey; all his goods were taken from him, his wife was led away captive, and he himself was kept a prisoner. In his distress he called, not upon idols, but upon the true God, spending the whole of a night in prayer: the next morning he was released, and the following day his wife was restored to him. The Rev. J. J. Ransome-Kuti, who resides at Sunren, ministers to the congregations which gather in the country district where the farms are situate. The foundation of a new church was laid on June 28th, 1898, and thirty-seven adults were baptized in the course of the year.

IBADAN.

Ibadan.

The Rev. T. Harding was the superintending missionary at IBADAN; he also discharged the duties of the Secretariat, and for some months supervised the work at Abeokuta. The other members of the staff were Mr. J. McKay, who, as already stated, came home in June, 1898, and Mr. H. F. Gane. The work of the Dispensary was in the hands of Mr. Gane after Mr. McKay left, but the attendance fell off considerably, owing in large measure to the presence in the town of an English doctor.

Dedication of Hinderer Memorial Church.

The Hinderer Memorial Church, built by the united Ibadan congregations, which was mentioned in the Report for 1895–96 as in course of erection, was dedicated by Bishops Phillips and Oluwole on February 8th, 1898, both the Bale and Balogun of Ibadan, with their attendant chiefs, occupying seats in front of the communion rails. The pulpit was the work and gift of the second son of the Rev. D. Olubi, the aged pastor of Kudeti, who was one of Mr. Hinderer's boys, and bears the inscription, "In loving memory of the Rev. D. Hinderer, by Jonathan Christmas Olubi. January, 1898." The Christians connected with the five stations in the various townships of Ibadan came together for a central communion service at the beginning of the year under review, 566 being present, of whom 170 communicated. The contributions of the people showed a gratifying increase, and Mr. Harding reports with thankfulness that the Christians sowed the good seed wherever they went, and that while their influence was marred by inconsistencies, yet it was impossible to doubt that many of them were walking watchfully and carefully. A service was conducted every Sunday afternoon in the house of the Bale, who himself made a point of attending, and also in the houses of the Balogun and Osin Bale, and steps were taken to teach the women of the households. The Bale is said to have remarked that he never slept "without offering prayer to Jesus, the Son of God, asking Him to save him, show him His way, and forgive him his sins."

A Bale's prayer.

Harvest Thanksgiving.

The Rev. D. Olubi, the native pastor of Kudeti, mentions that the Christians of the three principal congregations in Ibadan combined to build a small church at one of the farms named Onipe. The Harvest Thanksgiving services were well attended, and the collections amounted to £19 10*s*. 4*d*., a considerable increase over the sum, £11 14*s*. 3*d*., which was contributed in 1897. Eleven adults were baptized in February, 1898. The work at Aremo was under the Rev. J. Okuseinde. The congregation built a small chapel, and supplied voluntary workers to conduct the services held there. They also engaged in various forms of evangelistic effort. A number of the men assisted at the services in the house of the Bale which have already been mentioned; others went on Sundays to the farms of the neighbourhood and there preached; while some of the women made a point of going round to different houses and inviting the people to come to the services. As an outcome of this work thirteen adults were baptized. One was a woman who uttered threats and curses against her son when he became a Christian some three years before, but his only reply was to declare that he would pray that she too might find joy and peace in believing. Before long the mother began to attend the services, and eventually expressed her deep regret for her folly, and, after instruction, was baptized. In another case a young man was led to inquire about Christianity through finding his sister, formerly a staunch idolatress, diligently studying her New Testament; when converted, he commenced to witness for the Saviour from village to village, so that at his baptism he received the name of Paul. Mrs. Harding assisted the pastor's wife with a mothers' meeting, the need of which was illustrated by the discovery one day of a Native Christian busily engaged in attempting to mend a hole in his little girl's frock. When asked why he did not let his wife mend the garment, he replied that she did not know how to sew! Unfortunately the women were not very eager to avail themselves of the instruction which was offered them. Little advance was visible at Yemetu, the station within the walls of Ibadan which was opened in 1894, but that was partly due to the extreme difficulty of the work consequent on the presence of a number of Mohammedans, who constantly endeavoured to stir up opposition. From Ogunpa also the report was unfavourable; retrogression rather than advance was manifested, and it became necessary to suspend the catechist for a time. A catechist, supported by the funds of the Native Church, resides at Inolinde, the fifth station in the town, where during the year a church was built. The first valedictory meeting in Ibadan took place on February 7th, 1898, when Daniel Ali was sent forth with many prayers and words of encouragement to Apomu, a town lying on the north-east of Ibadan. He met with some success in his work, for although opposition was not lacking, a number of people gathered from Sunday to Sunday to hear God's Word, and a few gave in their names as catechumens.

Converts

The Three Years' Enterprise.

Mr. Harding points out that a great deal of such advance as was made was due to the carrying out of the scheme which was laid down in 1896, in connexion with the Three Years' Enterprise. He writes:—

> We then determined (a) to pray daily for the establishment and extension of Christ's Kingdom all over the world; (b) to have sermons in all our churches on the Sunday nearest April 12th each year, with a united missionary meeting on the Monday following, with collections at all, our sermons and speeches to deal with the world-wide work, and the money raised to go to the general funds of the Society; (c) to build a house and open a fifth station in the town (towards which the Society gave £50 and we spent £40), the agent to be placed there to be paid by the Native Church; (d) to form regulations for a native pastorate, and take up one of the pastors upon the native Church fund; and (e) to form a Missionary Association and start work in some place outside the town.
> I am afraid we have not been so faithful to (a) as we ought to have been, but much prayer has been offered by our people here, both in private and public; (c) and (e) have been faithfully carried out, and men are working both at Inolinde and Apomu. In January next we shall discuss (d) in our Church Council and submit the result to the Finance Committee and Parent Committee, and from June next support a native pastor, whose salary for the half-year is already in hand; and on April 9th and 10th next we hope to have our third course of (b), and keep the Society's one hundredth birthday with joyful consecration.

OYO AND OGBOMOSO.

Oyo. The missionaries at Oyo were the Rev. and Mrs. F. Melville Jones (now at home), Miss J. J. Thomas, and Miss J. Palmer. In consequence of false reports concerning the character of the education given at the Training Institution, several intending candidates withdrew and two or three of the students left, but the Principal, Mr. Melville Jones, was satisfied that no permanent harm was done, and that the Institution was more firmly established at the close than at the commencement of the year. His chief cause for anxiety was concerning the future supply of students. The facts that the development of the country has thrown open many lucrative positions to young men who are fairly well-educated, and that life in the interior where the Institution is situated is not so attractive as in Lagos, resulted in comparatively few applications for admission being received during 1898. Mr. Melville Jones, however, points out that there are certain compensating advantages, and says:—

Training Institution.

> One cannot help being glad that there is something in the way of a test as to the sincerity and earnestness of those that offer. The lad who shrinks from coming to Oyo, but would be willing to be trained in Lagos, is the very one who would give up (as so many in the past have done) if appointed to Ondo, Ijero, or some other of our interior stations. The lad who leaves the Institution because he is not taught Euclid and Latin before he has nearly mastered arithmetic and English, and alleges as his reason that he is "in earnest for education" (as two boys that left us actually did say), surely is not the one who will make a faithful worker. And, again, the lad who grumbles because he does not get sufficient pocket money, when his board and books are all found for him, is the one who will not be satisfied with his salary, and will leave the work on that account afterwards. Let us hope, then, if our numbers are fewer, the men will be better tried and tested, and will serve more faithfully hereafter.

The number of students on the roll was fifteen. Technical instruction was given them; they made satisfactory progress in the knowledge of Scripture and other subjects; and the evangelistic work carried on week by week in Oyo itself and in the neighbouring villages, to use a Yoruba expression, "showed its head." One or two important tours were made. In April, 1898, Mr. Melville Jones with the first class went to Ogbomoso, Ejigbo —where the Bale (head chief) showed them hospitality—Oshogbo, Ilesha, and other places. At Oshogbo, the king was much pleased with a little prayer which he was taught, and said, "If you had such a beautiful prayer to teach me, why did you not tell it me when you first arrived?" At the same time Mr. Sowande, the native tutor, took the second class by way of Isehin. It was during the absence of the majority of the students on these tours that a terrible tornado visited Oyo, and wrecked two of the Institution buildings, causing damage to the extent of some £60; happily the few boys in the place escaped uninjured. Later on, in November, a visit was paid to Shaki, an important town half the size of Oyo, to which the late Rev. J. B. Wood was assigned forty years ago. Circumstances, however, prevented him from reaching his post, and in 1894, Mr. Harding, who got within two days' journey of the town, was then compelled to turn back. Some telegraph officials are now stationed there. On the occasion of Mr. Melville Jones' visit the people listened attentively to his message, while the king offered a site for a Mission-house, and said he would help in the building. On Mr. Melville Jones leaving for furlough, Mr. J. McKay took temporary charge of the Institution.

"Such a beautiful prayer."

Escape from injury by a tornado.

Contributions to the Bible Society.

The general work at Oyo progressed satisfactorily. The Native Christians raised more than £12 for the British and Foreign Bible Society, and Mr. Melville Jones says that there was not a single member of the congregation as far as he knew, even including the children, who did not contribute something. The influence of the Dispensary under Miss J. Palmer, where 1,629 attendances were registered in a little over four months, was manifested by a considerable growth in the numbers attending the church and the Sunday-school. Miss J. J. Thomas visited in the compounds, commenced a mothers' meeting with the aid of the wife of the Rev. S. Johnson, the native pastor, and conducted several classes, including one for the king's children, which was held in the palace yard. Among the new inquirers was the grandson of King Atiba, the first of the royal family to turn to Christianity. He was influenced by a young man, whose story is thus narrated by Mr. Johnson :—

An inquirer in the royal family.

> He had long been seeking after the truth, and he could not get rid of the conviction that all Heathen shall be punished for their ungodliness. He sought for peace in the Mohammedan religion, but he could not find it there. He found that the Mohammedan's is even worse than the Heathen's, and that those who embrace it could not escape God's wrath. He regretted having given up idolatry, and he relapsed again into Heathenism. But he at length became acquainted with Christianity through his friend, and he is now rejoicing in his new religion, wherein he has found peace and rest for his soul.

Regular services took place in the new church at Awe, a village in the neighbourhood of Oyo, and the agent's house at the second out-station was commenced as a part of the local effort in connexion with the Three Years' Enterprise.

Ogbomoso.

The Rev. F. G. Toase resided at Ogbomoso until the autumn of 1898, when, as already mentioned, he was obliged by considerations of health to return to England, Mrs. Toase having preceded him by a few weeks. The congregation was under the pastoral care of the Rev. F. L. Akiele, who was cheered by visits from Bishop and Mrs. Tugwell, when they passed through on their way to the Niger, and by a visit from Mr. Harding. The latter was struck with the progress which had been made. The old church, which was blown down, had been replaced by a much better building; the number of children at the school had increased; some of the Native Christians had grown in the knowledge of the truth, and they had come to regard the work as their own, and not, as formerly, that of outsiders. Two men and five children were baptized, and Mr. Akiele mentions that some of the leading chiefs brought their children to him that they might be instructed in the truths of Christianity. One of these chiefs, who died during the year, formerly befriended the Christians when it was proposed to drive them from the town in consequence of false accusations that they had thrown stones at idols found in the streets. ODE ONDO AND ILESA.

The workers in the district had the advantage of the counsel of Bishop Phillips, who resided at Ode Ondo. He speaks of the year under review as having been one of anxiety, owing in part to his own ill-health, in part to the increased cost of living and the consequent hardship which the agents of the Society experienced, and in part to the paucity of labourers which caused some stations to be undermanned and rendered it impossible to return a favourable reply to the requests for teachers which reached him from various places. A religious movement, resembling that in the Ijebu country which has already been described, took place in the Ondo district, the origin of which Bishop Phillips indicates in the following extract from his Annual Letter:— Ode Ondo.

> Since the restoration of peace to the country, many Natives of the inland towns, who had either been sold as slaves to the coast or taken refuge in the colony, are returning in large numbers to settle again in their native towns. Some of these are Christian repatriates, who seek to introduce into their respective native towns the religion which they have adopted in their exile. They soon gather around themselves a number of inquirers, who renounce idolatry, help in building small chapels, and join their Christian brethren in the observance of the Lord's Day and in Christian services. In this way we find small Christian communities starting into existence at Ikole, Emure, Iduani, Ara Efon, and other places. Some of these towns, like Ikole and Iduani, are beyond our farthest stations, and their occupation would be an extension towards the Niger Mission. Exiles return Christians:
> On the other hand, many of the Natives of these inland towns have visited Lagos and other coast towns, either in search of employment or for purposes of trade. Some of these return to their towns impressed with Christian truths and burning with a desire to learn to read. They soon form themselves into bands of readers. This is the case at Ekun, where there are about thirty Christian adherents, and at Modakeke, where there are fifty-six. their influence.
> These small Christian communities promise to become nuclei of Christian Churches, if their zeal be directed into right channels, and these movements be properly controlled and guided.

The congregation at Ode Ondo was stirred by the relapses of some of the members into polygamy to a realization of their duty to rally round their pastor, the Rev. E. M. Lijadu, and Church restoration.

support him in upholding a high standard of Christian living; they also contributed £84, besides their free labour, which was valued at £10, in order to put their church, St. Stephen's, into a proper state of repair. Three men and eight women were baptized; one of the former was a well-to-do polygamist, who gave up five of his six wives in the face of much opposition from his relations and friends, and was received into the visible church in August. The scarcity of food combined with exceptionally trying weather led to greater mortality than usual; amongst the members of the congregation called to their rest, Mr. Lijadu instances a woman, who had returned to Ode Ondo from the Brazils, whose closing illness he describes as follows:—

Death of a Christian woman.

> Some twelve days before her death she earnestly besought us to remove her from the midst of her heathen relatives, in whose hands she said she could not die happy. We removed her therefore to a Christian's house, who ministered faithfully to her last wants. Here, as the critical hour approached, she repeated a series of Psalms; then a few minutes of whispered prayer, and lastly, in loud tones she exclaimed, "O Saviour, Thou art very beautiful indeed!"

Some trouble was caused through a communicant member of the congregation directing in her will that she should be buried in her own house, and not in the churchyard. It is true that she left special instructions that she was not to be worshipped by her heathen relatives, but, nevertheless, in accordance with their customs, they canonized her with the "Oro" spirits of Ondo. The Christians happily refrained from taking any part in the funeral rites, and soon afterwards the Church elders drew up a rule, which was accepted by most of the converts, prohibiting interments excepting in the churchyard. Mr. Lijadu adds:—

A Church rule regarding interments.

> Our distant friends may not easily understand with what horror the Ondo mind shrinks from the idea of being buried in the open air. To the Ondo, such dead seem merely thrown away, as are the bodies of slaves and criminals. To them, intramural burials are a special honour, to attain which they spend lots of money to procure the rite of exorcism, without which, and before which, they are no citizens, and therefore cannot be interred within a house. The idolatry which we know to be inseparable from these customs of exorcism and intramural burials is what the Ondo Church now distinctly pronounces against.

Out-stations.

The "own missionary" supported by the Ondo Christians continued his work at Oke Igbo, three and a half hours' walk to the north-west of the town, and a new out-station was opened as a Three Years' Enterprise effort at Ekun, an important place to the north of Ondo, where the foundation of a small Mission-house was laid in November.

The congregation at Aiyesan, considerably to the south of Ode Ondo, erected a chapel in a village two hours distant from their town, and hoped to be able to maintain an agent there, but on the whole the members were lacking in the spirit of unity and in religious zeal. The number of catechumens on the roll at Akure, due west of Ode Ondo, was seventy-nine; a chapel was opened and a Mission-house built. Mr. T. A. J. Ogunbiye, who went from Sierra Leone in 1897 to commence the work at Akure, has given a description of the character of the people amongst whom his lot is cast. He writes:—

Enormities of Heathenism.

All the detestable enormities of Benin are practised here; human sacrifices to the devil or other tribal gods; crucifixion; immolations at burials; infanticide of twins, &c. The belief in a devil is so prevalent among the people, that there is not a single compound without a devil shrine at its entrance, where the grim god is daily appeased by the inmates, and our Mission church is now standing side by side with a devil shrine. There is a grove some two miles outside the southern gate dedicated to the annual worship of the devil. Last March I witnessed the worship of the devil in the big grove; a sheep was the victim, and I understand has been for the past four years; but I observed no less than thirty-five pots in the grove, most of them representing the human victims offered. The crucifixion tree is only a few yards from our church, but I have not seen anyone crucified on it yet, though I have heard a great deal about the way it is done.

Immolations at burial seem to have been put an end to, but infanticide of twins is still practised; there is a great grove set apart for that purpose, and dedicated to the god "Olika," who is supposed to have charge of twin children; he was wont to be appeased every third year with a human victim, but since my arrival, with a sheep and other minor sacrifices. The people have such dread of twin children that when they are born the fetish priest or priests are notified, and they repair to the house and remove the children, whether dead or alive, in a pot covered up with a cloth, with comparatively costly ceremony, into the grove; on the seventh day the mother is expelled from the town to an isolated bush for three lunar months. Captain Lowie, the Government officer, with his interpreter and myself, inspected the grove a fortnight ago, and we found about 300 pots containing the remains of such children smothered to death a few hours after their birth.

Destruction of twin children.

The two out-stations in the Ekiti country lie to the north-east of Ode Ondo. At Ado the attitude of the king and his chiefs changed from one of coldness and indifference to one of esteem and gratitude. At Ise the little body of Christians made their influence felt in the surrounding country. Three adults were baptized in May, 1898. Fifteen persons joined the class of catechumens at Ijero, and three adults, one of whom had been a fetish priest and polygamist, were baptized.

A former fetish priest baptized.

The Rev. R. S. Oyebode was stationed at Ilesa. He visited Iwara, where the chiefs gave their people liberty to embrace Christianity, and granted a good piece of land for a Mission-house; he also visited Efon and Ikale, and was on the whole encouraged by what he saw of the work.

NIGER MISSION.

In 1841 a Government naval expedition, accompanied by a C.M.S. missionary, the Rev. J. F. Schön, and by Samuel Crowther, a liberated negro slave (who in 1864 was consecrated Bishop of the Niger), explored the River Niger. In 1854 a second expedition penetrated up the stream 500 miles, and found the Natives everywhere ready to receive Christian teachers; and in 1857 Mr. Crowther accompanied a third expedition undertaken for commercial purposes, and laid the foundation of the Niger Mission by establishing three stations. One of these was Onitsha. Other stations were subsequently occupied by African teachers, under the direction of the Bishop—viz., Lokoja, 1865; Bonny, 1866; Brass, 1868; Asaba, 1875; Gbebe, reoccupied, 1879; Obusi, 1890; and the Basa country in 1897. Bishop Crowther continued to labour zealously in the Mission till the end of 1891, when he died at Lagos. (For account of Bishop Crowther's successors see notes at head of "Yoruba Mission.")

The superstitions of the people, and demoralization caused by the increasing European liquor traffic and by the general low tone of Christianity on the West African Coast, have proved formidable obstacles to the spread of the Gospel; but more than 4,000 persons have been baptized, including several influential chiefs, and some of the converts have exhibited Christian fortitude in enduring persecution, and liberality in contributing to the building of Mission churches, &c. At Bonny the once famous idol temple, decorated with human skulls, has been destroyed. Nevertheless, a higher standard of Christian life is much needed.

In 1890 a party of missionaries went out under the leadership of the Rev. J. A. Robinson and Mr. G. Wilmot Brooke, with the idea of residing at Lokoja, on the Upper Niger, and thence making an effort to reach the Mohammedans of the Soudan. The climate shortly proved fatal to both the leaders, and drove the rest home, but others followed after a short interval, and itinerations have been made in the direction of Sokoto.

Bishop and Mrs. Tugwell's overland journey to the Upper Niger

Bishop Tugwell's movements in the Yoruba Mission have already been stated, but it remains to mention his journeys on the Niger. He was at Onitsha for the first two months of 1898, and, after a flying visit to Benin City, left for Lagos in the latter half of March. After a month's absence he returned to the Niger, arriving at Bonny on April 11th; he then paid a visit to Opobo, returned to Bonny for an ordination, and eventually left for Nembe in the middle of May, whence he made his way to Lagos. On September 26th, the Bishop, accompanied by Mrs. Tugwell, left Ogbomoso in the Yoruba country, travelled overland via Illorin to Jebba on the Niger, and thence by steam-launch to Lokoja, accomplishing the whole distance in nine days. From Jebba, at which he made a brief stay, the Bishop wrote:—

A wonderful transformation has been effected since I was there in December last. Some sixty English officers and non-commissioned officers are stationed there, Colonel Wilcox being in command. Men of culture, ability, and sterling courage—their discomforts have been many and great; indeed, they have been called upon to endure unnecessary suffering, but "as good soldiers" they make light of these things, and unsparingly devote themselves to the discharge of their duties. The more I see of the British officer the more I admire him. People at home little realize what the building up of the British Empire involves on the part of those who come out to promote and establish its interests. On Sunday there were forty or fifty English officers and non-commissioned officers present at a service held at 5 p.m., eight remaining afterwards for the Holy Communion. On Monday I dedicated the burial ground at Colonel Wilcox's request.

I deeply regret our inability to place a man at this centre. On Sunday morning I visited the camp with Mr. Akiele, the pastor of Ogbomoso, who accompained me to Jebba. The soldiers gladly welcomed us and quickly learnt a prayer we taught them. These men, cut off from their old idolatrous associations, are peculiarly accessible.

On his way down the Niger the Bishop passed through Eggan, where he stayed the night and breakfasted with a nephew of Lord ——, whom he found residing alone on an island in the midst of a swamp. On this the Bishop comments:—

What will men not do when engaged in secular enterprises! when shall we see a like spirit of devotion on the part of those who profess to be the followers of the One who gave His life for the world?

After a short sojourn at Lokoja, the Bishop travelled to Onitsha, where he held an ordination and presided at the meetings of the Executive Committee, which took place on October 24th and following days. At the beginning of 1899 he proceeded to the Yoruba Mission. In addition to what has been quoted above, the following moving words, in which the Bishop contrasts the seeming apathy of the Christian Church with the devotion and courage of the British naval and military officers, must be given:—

A challenge to the Church.

Curios from Benin City, specimens of native workmanship in brass, &c., have been shipped home by the ton, articles in the papers regarding the atrocities of Benin have been eagerly read by hundreds and thousands of British readers; but now that the British flag waves over the city, who cares for the spiritual needs of her people? . . . It is heart-breaking work to visit such scenes, and to realize that Christian England cannot send forth a single man to undertake work in Christ's Name. The British Government can send forth 200 officers and non-commissioned officers, picked men, for service in Lokoja alone, when British interests are threatened; but the Church of Christ cannot muster ten men either for Benin or the Hausa country; indeed, she cannot muster half that number. There can be only one right attitude for the Church of Christ in England to adopt at this crisis, and that is one of profound humiliation; shame and confusion should cover her face. Her sons dare not venture for Christ that which every soldier will gladly venture for his Queen and country, viz., his health and his life. May God speedily remove this great reproach from us!

Reinforcements.

The reinforcements of the year have been the following:—the Revs. John Downie Aitken and Ernest Alfred Wise, both of Islington College, who were admitted to deacons' orders by the Bishop of London at St. Paul's Cathedral on Trinity Sunday, June 5th, 1898; the Revs. Albert Ernest Richardson, B.A., Wadham College, Oxford, curate of St. Clement's, Ipswich, and John Claud Dudley Ryder, B.A., Trinity College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, curate of Christ Church, Blackburn; Mr. Walter Richard Samuel Miller, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., who spent the early months of 1898 at the Princess Christian Cottage Hospital, Sierra Leone; and the Misses Grace Anne Bennett, of Calthwaite, Carlisle, and Eleanor Sarah Philcox, of Islington, who was trained at Highbury. Miss S. Hickmott has been transferred from the Sierra Leone to the Niger Mission. Of the above, all but Miss Philcox, who sailed in January, 1899, left for the Mission in the latter half of 1898. The Rev. C. G. Hensley, who never reached the Mission, having been detained in 1897 by the Committee's instructions in Sierra Leone, as explained above (see page 50), has now been definitely assigned to the Sierra Leone Mission; the Rev. and Mrs. N. T. Hamlyn have been transferred to the Yoruba Mission; and the Rev. J. L. Macintyre to the Egypt Mission.

Dr. Miller joined Mr. L. H. W. Nott at Tripoli in October, and later Mr. Richardson and Mr. Ryder proceeded thither. All three were engaged in the study of Hausa, with a view to eventual work in the Central Soudan. Mr. Nott's health having failed, he came home in April, 1899, and retired from the work. He pointed out that while officials and traders have gone out to Hausaland in large numbers, the Church of Christ has as yet made no real attempt to place its representatives in a single interior Hausa town for the purpose of evangelizing the people.

Ordination.

At an ordination in Bonny Cathedral on May 1st, 1898, before an immense congregation, Bishop Tugwell admitted Mr. David Okfarabietoa Pepple to deacon's orders. Mr. Pepple, who was educated by Archdeacon Crowther, passed an excellent examination. He is the first native-born Ibo to enter the ministry. Archdeacon Crowther wrote regarding the ordination service:—

> We consider this the crowning-point of the wonderful work of God in our midst, and a fruit of the labours of the late Bishop Crowther. The Cathedral was full to overflowing of people who came to witness their own brother and countryman, David Okfarabietoa Pepple, being received into the ministry of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The Rev. David O. Pepple will be the first pastor of Ohambele, one of the three Mission-stations in the Ibo market towns, once slave marts.

The Bishop also ordained the Rev. S. R. Smith, priest, and Mr. H. Proctor, deacon, at Christ Church, Onitsha, on November 27th; and Bishop Oluwole admitted the Rev. Henry Proctor to priests', and Messrs. Horatius Benjamin Merriman and Samuel Silvanus M'Carthy to deacons' orders, on April 30, 1899.

The Rev. G. N. Anyaegbunam, whose ordination was recorded in last year's Report, met with a great sorrow by the death of his wife on June 13th, 1898.

The Rev. T. J. Dennis is Acting Secretary of the Mission.

I. DELTA AND LOWER NIGER.

The Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Bennett sailed for the Mission in August, 1898, and Miss E. Dennis and Miss M. H. Holbrook, who came home in July, 1898, returned in January, 1899. On the other hand, the Misses S. Hopkins and Mr. Hamlin came home in May.

BONNY.

Bonny. Archdeacon Crowther, of BONNY, has sent to England an account of a tour in the district occupied by the Niger Delta Pastorate in a letter written from Bonny on July 8th, 1898, from which the following extracts are taken :—

New churches. I have been enabled to visit all the seven churches in the pastorate, as well as a good number of the chapels in the interior Ibo market towns ; have held baptisms of well-tried and prepared candidates in three of the churches, and opened two new chapels voluntarily built by the converts, one in the Bonny and the other in the Opobo districts.

On April 12th we had the pleasure of welcoming Bishop Tugwell and his wife here. The Bishop, Mrs. Tugwell, and myself visited Opobo station, travelling in the new boat, towed by a steam launch, a distance of six hours' steam from Bonny. On Sunday, April 17th, we held a series of services, comprising marriage, confirmation, and the partaking of the Lord's Supper, at the church called St. Paul's, Opobo.

Confirmations. Seven couples were joined in Christian marriage, sixty-two persons were confirmed, and sixty-eight partook of the Lord's Supper. At the other station in this district, St. John's, Queenstown, on Wednesday, the 20th, nine couples were married at church, forty-three confirmed, and forty-four received the Lord's Supper.

We returned to Bonny on the 22nd, and at St. Stephen's Cathedral on Sunday, the 24th, forty-eight persons were confirmed, nine couples were married, and 350 partook of the dying memorials of our Lord. Then, on Tuesday, the 26th, we visited St. James' Church across the river, and forty-two received confirmation, ten couples were married, and forty-four partook of the Lord's Supper.

Reoccupation of New Calabar. In May, 1898, a few days after Mr. Pepple's ordination, the Bishop and the Archdeacon went to Obonoma, New Calabar, where the former C.M.S. station was reopened and handed over to the Delta Pastorate. The older chiefs, who had so long been hostile to the introduction of the Gospel, expressed their intention to withdraw their opposition.

BRASS.

Brass Tuwon. The missionaries at BRASS TUWON, viz., the Rev. H. Proctor, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. R. Wilson, and the Misses M. Hamlin and S. A. Hopkins, were joined in the summer by Miss G. A. Bennett, one of the recruits, who commenced a dispensary on a small scale. Mr. Proctor describes the spiritual work as most difficult; he says :—

Polygamy universal. Polygamy has got such a hold upon the people that from the highest chief to the lowest of the slaves it is in common practice. Men in leading positions, eager to help us in many ways with money, labour, &c., &c., and willing to attend services and prayer-meetings with great regularity, are yet, as it were, fighting against us by adhering to their many wives, and even increasing their numbers rather than give up the stumbling-block which is shutting so many out from being partakers of the Supper of the Lord.

The attendance at the Sunday services showed no improvement, and the people are declared to be "sleepy or dead." At the same time there were some signs that the Holy Spirit was at work in the hearts of a few, and Mr. Proctor mentions the following encouragements ;—

(1) A big woman amongst the ju-ju people is seeking baptism and coming to church regularly. Encouragements.

(2) The head ju-ju priest has left the country as he can no longer make it pay, the people refusing to make offerings.

(3) A lapsed chief of twelve years ago is seeking re-admission to our Church and desiring our prayers.

(4) Two or three chiefs are talking about putting away their many wives, and desiring us to pray that they may have the willing heart to give them up for His sake who gave up much for them.

Instruction in Industrial Work, i.e. in carpenter's and blacksmith's work, was given; the former by Mr. Dodds, a European, who is engaged by the Bishop and supported by Diocesan Funds, and the other by Mr. Wilson. Miss Hamlin was successful in raising the tone of the Day School, but experienced a good deal of difficulty in controlling the boys, who are accustomed to look with contempt upon women in general. Unfortunately the people had a decided objection to vernacular teaching, which was fostered by the presence of European traders and English-speaking Natives from Sierra Leone. A training class for girls, which had four members at the close of the year, was commenced by Miss Hopkins, who also held regular meetings for the women. Mrs. Wilson and the other ladies visited the people diligently in their homes. On one occasion, a woman who was anxious to accommodate Miss Hamlin with a seat found an empty gin case the most available article for the purpose! At Little Fish Town, distant a few miles from Brass Tuwon, an ex-Mission boy gathered together thirty children in a day school; for while the older people in the town dislike Christian teaching for themselves, they are quite willing that their children should come under instruction. Twenty-one adults were baptized in the district during the year. Industrial and school work. An empty gin case the only available seat

At Brass Nembe, the capital of the district, and the seat of the native government, the number of attendants at the church increased steadily, and the contributions of the people for religious purposes amounted to nearly twice as much as in 1897. Mr. Wilson, who was residing there when he wrote his Annual Letter, speaks of the departure of the chiefs to arrange for the opening of the Oil Rivers to Brass trading canoes, and mentions that, at the request of the Christians among them, he held a special service in church a few days previously to ask for God's blessing on their undertaking. Brass Nembe

ONITSHA AND ASABA.

The Rev. T. J. Dennis, who discharged the onerous and increasing duties of the Secretariat, points out that the work of the Society at Onitsha may be divided into two parts: first, that which is carried on in the old C.M.S. compound and in that part of the town called the "Ozala"; and, secondly, that which is connected with Christ Church (Onitsha Waterside), Immanuel Onitsha.

Church (Onitsha Town), Umuaroli Village (Onitsha Town), Ogidi, Ogbunike, Nkpo, and Oze. The first division of the work is almost entirely evangelistic, and was marked during the year by decided progress. Especially was this the case as concerns the Medical Work, which received a great impetus from the arrival of Dr. A. E. Clayton, in October, 1897. He reports that from between 15,000 and 20,000 attendances were registered at the dispensary. These figures do not represent separate individuals, since the same patient often attended again and again for several months, but nevertheless they serve to show the far-reaching influence of this form of missionary work. Every effort was made by Miss L. M. Maxwell, Miss F. M. Dennis, and Miss S. Hickmott, as well as by the Rev. G. N. Anyaegbunam, and Mr. Nzekwu, a native agent, to set before the patients the way of salvation, and the increase in the number of candidates for baptism attending the classes for instruction at the Waterside and elsewhere proved that their ministrations were not in vain. At least two of the patients destroyed their idols as a consequence of the teaching which they received. One was an old man who was brought to the hospital with a compound fracture of the leg, and was accompanied by his wife and child. While in the hospital his child sickened and died, and the native doctors tried to persuade him that this happened as a punishment because he had gone to the Christians. Gradually he recovered his health, and soon after he left for his home he requested that some Christian workers would come to see him, since he wished to destroy his idols. Miss F. M. Dennis has written a graphic account of what took place, from which the following extracts are taken; but it should be explained that Ikenga, the god of victory, and the chief of house gods, occupies a prominent position in the house, and is supposed to keep away evil and bring good fortune to the owner, who never approaches the idol with empty hands. Miss Dennis says:—

Dispensary.

An idol destroyed.

The old man went into the house and brought out a mat and an Ikenga, with a piece of wood of no particular shape, called Ofó. He spread the mat out, sat down upon it, and placed the Ikenga on the ground beside him. My seat was an empty gin case, turned bottom upwards, by the door. The wife, who is already a Christian, came to look on, and also another woman who happened to be in the yard at the time.

Then he told us about his accident, and of a vow he had made while lying in the Mission compound to sacrifice a fowl to Ikenga if his leg became strong again, and went on to say how he gradually became convinced of the truth of the words he heard about Jesus and His love, so that upon his recovery he could not offer his sacrifice to Ikenga, but felt he must give himself to God and be baptized. He concluded by asking us to take away his idols; he had only these two, Ikenga and Ofó, and he had done with them. But Mr. Nzekwu thought it would be good for the man to see the helplessness of his Ikenga, and asked him to break it up. His wife brought out a matchet.

It was comparatively easy for the man to give us his idol, but it was another matter to smash it up with his own hand. He said he was afraid; he could not do it, since for a man to smash up his Ikenga was an unheard-of thing. Mr. Nzekwu went on speaking, and the man sat fingering his matchet and listening attentively. Then he took it up, laid hold on the right ear of the Ikenga, and dealt it a savage blow on the head. The woman who had come into the yard was sitting a few feet off staring in astonishment. The wife, Mr. Nzekwu, and myself were all seated near the door of the little mud house. The central figure was the grey-headed old man sitting with crossed legs on a mat before the idol, the sun shining down upon him, his lips tightly shut, and his hands, as he lifted the matchet, trembling. Somehow the first two blows did no damage. The Ikenga was made of hard wood, and his hand was not strong. He asked for an axe, which was brought, and the first blow cut off Ikenga's left ear. Then the old man looked up triumphantly to tell us that all fear had gone, and he knew the idol could not hurt. He turned it on its side and hacked away at it, until I was afraid he would leave nothing for me to bring away to show our friends in England. However, I have its remains, which are the most valuable of all my curios.

But we had not quite finished. There was one other thing—a pot containing "medicine" to keep away sickness. This was brought out, and Mr. Nzekwu emptied the contents on to the ground. Rotten roots and hundreds of little creatures came out of it.

The lack of a competent European instructor has militated against the success of the Industrial Work in past years, but the existing need was supplied in October, 1898, by the arrival of Mr. F. J. Mackett, sent out as an industrial agent by the Committee. The Girls' School, under Miss E. A. Warner, had thirty-one boarders and eight day scholars on the roll, and great improvement was apparent when the condition of the school was contrasted with what it was two years before. Six or seven of the pupils were baptized, and a special mission for children, conducted by the Rev. E. F. Wilson-Hill and Dr. Clayton, was productive of much good, and led to a manifest change in the lives of some of the girls. Miss Warner mentions that one child who was greatly impressed by the story of the Pilgrim's Progress which was being taught, one day came to her teacher and, turning her back, said most earnestly, "Is the burden of sin there?" At the commencement of 1899 the Committee gave their sanction to a proposal to open at Onitsha a Crêche in which "Nso" children, i.e. those, whether twins or not, who would be thrown away to die, might be received. Something has been done in the past to battle with this custom of abandoning twin children, a custom which is due to a superstitious conviction that they are under a curse. Mr. Dennis instances the following case:—

Girls' school.

The "burden of sin."

A Crêche for children abandoned by their parents.

A heathen slave woman was brought to Miss Maxwell in May, and gave birth to twins. The friends were horrified at this, and would doubtless, if the twins had been born anywhere else, have put them to death at once as an abomination. However, Miss Maxwell refused to give up either the mother or the children; and, after much palaver, obtained the permission of the owner to keep the children as long as she pleased, and the mother until they were weaned. One child died after a few days, but the other is still alive and in excellent condition. The mother has been carefully taught the truths of the Gospel by Miss Maxwell, and is now ready to be baptized. Miss Maxwell is negotiating with the owner for the redemption of the woman, as otherwise it will not be advisable to baptize her.

Congregations.

The congregation of Christ Church, the largest in the Ibo district, was without a native pastor during the year, and was ministered to by Mr. Dennis and Mr. Nzekwu. Mrs. Dennis undertook the management of the day school, which increased in numbers and improved in discipline, and also superintended the Sunday school, the attendance at which doubled. The inquirers' class, conducted every Tuesday by Miss F. M. Dennis, was attended by from fifty-five to sixty-five people, some of the men coming from towns situated at a distance. The Bishop confirmed about twenty candidates, but the Christians generally were lacking in missionary zeal. The Rev. G. N. Anyaegbunam was in charge of Immanuel Church. The first candidates from the congregation, fourteen in number, were confirmed in February, 1898, and several lads and a few old women were baptized during the year. Over £20 was raised by the people for church and missionary work, and the new converts commenced regular preaching in an adjacent village. No baptisms took place and but little progress was apparent at Umuaroli Village, although the Christians were not deficient in evangelistic zeal. At Ogidi the converts displayed a lamentable love of the world, but at Ogbunike the work appeared to be in a healthy condition, and the young men and boys proved themselves able to endure hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ. Nkpo and Oze are two small towns near to Onitsha, where the work is maintained by the Onitsha branch of the Scripture Union, and is carried on by young men connected with the Immanuel and Umuaroli congregations. Mr. Dennis paid a visit to Oze in March, 1898, and was greatly pleased with the reception which was accorded him by the native magnates. The Rev. S. R. Smith held two classes, the one in theology for four or five of the native agents, and the other for pupil-teachers.

Miss E. Dennis and Miss M. H. Holbrook were stationed at Obusi, until they left on furlough in May, 1898. They were not without encouragement in their work, for eleven adults were baptized in the spring, all of whom "knew what persecution meant," and the school with some thirty pupils progressed satisfactorily. Every fourth day—Eke Day—the Christians went out in a band to preach in the different villages. Miss Dennis did some simple dispensary work, and some of the patients began to attend the class for the Heathen which was held every Sunday.

Asaba.

At ASABA the want of a European superintendent was greatly felt, for the Rev. J. Spencer was mainly occupied with the Training Institution, which began the year with thirteen students. It became necessary to expel three of these for immorality, and two others left of their own accord; but Mr. Spencer believed that the fall of their companions led the remaining students to become more conscious than ever of their own weakness, and to draw nearer to the Lord Jesus for strength. As a result of the Three Years' Enterprise, three school chapels were built by the Asaba Christians, making four in all, besides the mother church of Holy Trinity: the services at most of these were conducted by the students of the Institution and members of the Holy Trinity congregation. A harvest thanksgiving service was held for the first time on November 20th. The Bishop was the preacher, and the collection in yams, fowls, cloth, tobacco, cowries, &c., amounted to over £5. Many of the Native Christians gave cause for thankfulness by the consistency of their lives; but, on the other hand, much difficulty was experienced through the aggressive tactics of the Roman Catholics, concerning which Mr. Spencer writes:— Training Institution.

Whenever they could find opportunity of misinterpreting our actions and imputing wrong motives to us they gladly did so. As an example of this, an adherent of ours, a rich and influential king, but a polygamist, asked to be baptized during his illness, although he still clung to his wives. Of course, I could not do it. The Romish priests were then applied to, and he was baptized. The chief of the slaves and many other slaves were the property of this man. The crafty priests made these slaves believe that my refusal to baptize their master was a proof that I wished him to die in his sins; and before baptizing him a promise was extracted from the slave chief that he and his should become members of the Romish Church. The result is that many of the slaves who were adherents of our Church have left us and joined the Roman Catholics. Hurtful conduct of Roman Catholic agents.

During the mid-rain holidays, whilst I was away on a short leave, one of the slaves, a member of our Church, died after a short illness, and was buried by one of our native agents. About an hour afterwards the corpse was disinterred by the Romanists, and after their ceremonies had been performed over it, was re-buried. The reason they gave for this unseemly, unchristian, and, I dare say, unlawful action, was that during the man's illness he had been re-baptized by them.

The out-stations, Akwukwu and Onitsha Olona, were temporarily closed in consequence of the outbreak of some hostilities, and the Osomali Christians, who were mentioned on page 93 of last year's Report, severed their connexion with the C.M.S. and joined the Roman Catholics, because they were told that no native agent could be appointed to superintend the work among them unless they provided one-third of his salary.

II. UPPER NIGER AND SOUDAN.

The Revs. J. L. Macintyre and E. F. Wilson-Hill came to England in July, 1898. The latter sailed again for the Mission in March, 1899.

LOKOJA.

Many difficulties and trials were experienced by Mr. E. A J. Lokoja.

Thomas and the Rev. J. J. Williams, the native pastor, who were stationed at LOKOJA. Deaths, removals, and the inconsistency of some of the communicants reduced their number from thirty-five at the beginning of 1898 to thirty-three at its close, in spite of the confirmation of five candidates in October; and only two women, one boy, and three girls, besides infants, were baptized during the year. Some of the converts, however, manifested increasing concern about their spiritual welfare, and there was always a good attendance, both at the open-air services held in the markets, and at the preachings in the various compounds. At the suggestion of Mrs. Tugwell, who while in Lokoja conducted a Bible-class for the Christian women who could speak English, a mothers' meeting was set on foot, under the superintendence of Mrs. J. J. Williams. From forty to fifty children came to the school daily, and one of the pupil-teachers was deemed worthy of being sent to the Training Institution at Asaba. The work at Kporo was maintained, and the people there paid much attention to the teaching of Christianity; and at Gbebe, which is spoken of as a difficult place, good work was done by the catechist, Mr. Bako, who also visited Victoria, the Hausa freed-slave settlement, every week. Mr. Thomas mentions in his Annual Letter that the Roman Catholics were about to reopen their Mission at Lokoja, and asks for special prayer for the C.M.S. workers who, in their efforts to spread the light among the Mohammedans and the Heathen, are to be confronted by the hostile influence of the followers of Rome.

An evangelistic tour up the Niger, above the confluence.

Mr. Thomas made a fortnight's evangelistic journey up the Niger by canoe in February, 1898, in the company of Mr. Bako. The following extracts from his journal serve to show how many are the openings for Christian workers in that densely populated portion of the Dark Continent :—

February 9th, 1898.—Reached Keya. Being market-day, there were many people. We preached in the chief's katamba (or reception-house). The noise, dust, and heat were such that the preachers there were nearly choked. Dakaki spoke to the chief and people in a fine katamba built of mud and wattle, with walls twenty feet high, and lids of English china let into the mud. The chief sat on a raised throne; but when I said I wanted all to hear my message, he came outside, and we had a good gathering.

11th.—At Sokun, King Mamadu was very friendly, and quickly gathered his people. He seemed amused when I said I wanted women and children to hear as well as the men; the women had to sit outside, and all listened well as we told the "Glad Tidings," and they repeated the little prayer, "Isa Almasihu egi Soko bomiya" ("Jesus Christ, the Son of God, save me"), Mr. Bako carefully explaining what the words meant. King Dirisu, at Budon, received us gladly, and some 300 people crowded in and round his katamba. The dust was very trying; we could scarcely sing or speak at this place. A fine coloured cartoon, "Christ blessing the Children" (R.T.S.), I showed, and the people shouted for joy. Of course we carefully explain what a picture is, merely paper, using the word banza, a word well understood by all as something worthless in itself.

15th.—At Eggan. We went ashore at 7 a.m. I bought some cloth at the factory, then called on the king, or Rogan, as he is called. Finding he had work to do, we promised to see him later. We next visited the Lemam (a title, I believe, which comes from "Imam," a leader), who is the head of the Moslem mallams, of whom there are many at Eggan. The Lemam received us graciously, and I told him who I was, and said I should much like to have a friendly chat with him if he could spare me an hour or two. He agreed, and bringing a handsome mat, we all sat down together. A friendly discussion with a Mohammedan teacher. Mr. Bako and I had prayed in the canoe for wisdom in speaking to this man, and we were much pleased to find how ready he was to hear. I said I was a teacher of Jesus Christ, and that I knew my words and teaching were contrary to his, therefore he was good in letting me tell him plainly the teaching of Jesus, and must regard me as his friend. I said I had read the life of Mohammad, and also the Koran, and would like to tell him my reasons for believing Jesus to be the true Prophet of God, and the only Saviour of men. He agreed, and listened patiently while Mr. Bako told the Life of Jesus, and interpreted my comments thereon, and comparisons with the teaching of Mohammad. I then listened to his remarks, and was pleased at his courteous manner and evident zeal to know the truth. He was delighted when I gave him a copy of the New Testament in Arabic, promised to read it, and warmly grasped my hand while pouring countless blessings upon my head. When we turned to leave, we found that quite a large crowd had heard our conversation. This afternoon we went to the Rogan's compound, and in his katamba preached Christ to a large and excited crowd. So excited were they that they almost made it impossible for us to be heard.

16th.—All the Kapu country has been overrun and depopulated by the Fulahs, therefore the English are much respected, and looked upon as deliverers of the oppressed. At our first stopping-place the poor women flocked round us, dancing, singing, and prostrating themselves, rubbing dust over their bodies, and doing other acts of extravagant joy. It was easy to get the attention of such people. The chief, Zaboru, gave us his katamba, and when we had rested, called his people together to hear our "Message." We sat under a tree, and about a hundred men came, and fifty women, but the latter were not allowed near the tree. I taught them very simply, dwelling much on God's love, and how he wants all people to put away kuti (idols) and to become followers of Isa Almasihu.

BASA COUNTRY.

The Rev. O. Thomas, the native clergyman at KPATA, in the Basa country, who was joined in October by the Rev. J. D. Aitken, reports a certain measure of progress, although some of the people, who at first came to the services out of curiosity, ceased to attend. The largest number present at the Sunday morning services was seventy-four. In the early part of the year, the Natives are much engaged in giving feasts in honour of their national god, during the celebration of which no bell but that connected with the feast is allowed to be rung. Mr. Thomas was told in February that some of the people were accordingly planning to stop the ringing of the bell calling the people to the service on Sunday, and in the course of a few days the ringing was ordered to be discontinued. Mr. Thomas replied, however, that the call to worship God is a Divine command, and they were bound to obey God rather than man, and the ringing of the bell was continued without further molestation. There were usually good audiences at the open-air Kpata.

preachings, and by November the names of eight men, nine women, and eighteen children were on the list of catechumens.

Akabe.

The occupation of AKABE, where the Rev. J. L. Macintyre and the Rev. E. F. Wilson-Hill resided until their return to England, albeit less interrupted than during 1897, was not very effective. The town is an important one, and furnishes a convenient centre for work in the Basa country, the population of which is estimated at over 50,000. It was found impossible to do much itinerating, but a number of visitors gathered at the Mission-house, and on some occasions as many as twenty were present. The neighbouring tribes, the Akpotos, the only people between the Basas and the Ibos, and the Basa Comos, who live on the other side of the Binué River from Akabe, expressed a desire that teaching should be commenced in their country. Many of the people, including some chiefs, manifested a wish to learn about the things of God, and although there was no general movement towards Christianity, yet the work afforded considerable encouragement. Mr. Macintyre was engaged, with the assistance of Mr. Bako, the catechist at Gbebe, in the revision of the translation of the four Gospels into Nupé, and in other literary work. He was enabled to accomplish his task before leaving for England, but on his way down the river, the native canoe in which he was travelling was overturned in a tornado, and all the luggage thrown into the river. As much as possible was recovered in the gathering darkness, but the box containing the MSS. could not be found, although the scene of the accident was visited on three separate occasions. Happily the box was eventually discovered by some Natives, and careful treatment soon restored the MSS. to legibility.

Nupé translations submerged and recovered.

EASTERN EQUATORIAL AFRICA MISSION.

In 1844 Dr. Krapf, having lately been expelled from Abyssinia, established himself at Mombasa, and in the following year was joined by the Rev. John Rebmann, who opened the station at Kisulutini (Rabai) in 1846, and laboured on the coast twenty-nine years. Their remarkable journeys into the interior led to all the subsequent geographical and missionary enterprise in East Africa. It was chiefly through the Society's efforts that the Parliamentary Committee of 1871 was obtained, which led to Sir Bartle Frere's Mission to Zanzibar in the following year. In 1874 the Rev. W. S. Price, formerly in charge of the Asylum for rescued slaves at Nasik, Western India, was sent out; some 200 African Christians from the freed slaves entrusted to his care were collected as the nucleus of an industrial colony; land was purchased for a settlement, which was named Frere Town, in honour of Sir Bartle Frere; and some 500 rescued slaves were, in 1875, received from H.M. cruisers, and housed, fed, instructed, and led to work for their living. Stations were opened in the Taita country in 1883; in the Chagga country, at the base of the snow-capped mountain Kilima Njaro, in 1885, but the Mission was removed in 1893 to Taveta, within the British sphere of influence as fixed by treaty with Germany in 1886; and in the Giriama country, at Jilore, in 1890.

When in 1876 a Mission party was sent up country to establish a Mission in Uganda, the route travelled was from Bagamoyo, on the coast opposite Zanzibar, through Usagara, Ugogo, and Unyamwezi, and intermediate stations between the East Coast and the southern shore of the Lake were established in the Usagara hills—at Mpwapwa in 1876, at Mamboia in 1879, and at Nassa, in Usukuma, the south end of the Lake, in 1888.

For these Missions a new bishopric was established in 1884, with the title "Eastern Equatorial Africa," and the Rev. J. Hannington was consecrated the first Bishop on June 24th, 1884. He was murdered on October 31st, 1885, in Busoga, by the orders of King Mwanga. His successor, the Rev. H. P. Parker, previously a C.M.S. Missionary in North India, was consecrated on St. Luke's Day, October 18th, 1886, but his episcopal career was also of brief duration; he died from fever on March 26th, 1888. His successor, the Right Rev. A. R. Tucker, was consecrated on April 25th, 1890. In 1897 the diocese was divided into two: that portion of the original diocese which falls within the Uganda Protectorate forming the Diocese of Uganda, and the remainder the Diocese of Mombasa. Bishop Tucker elected to retain the interior division, viz. the Diocese of Uganda, under his own episcopal supervision, and in 1899 the Right Rev. W. G. Peel was appointed to the Mombasa Bishopric.

Appointment of the Rev. W. G. Peel to the bishopric of Mombasa.

THE partition of the Diocese of Eastern Equatorial Africa was theoretically effected in 1897, but it was not until the commencement of 1899 that the Rev. W. G. Peel, Secretary of the Bombay Mission, was appointed to the newly-formed Diocese of Mombasa. Mr. Peel was born in India, where his father was an officer in the army. He is an Islington College man, and is the ninth from that college to attain to the office of Bishop. He has laboured in India with intervals for furlough since 1880; first in the Telugu Mission, as the Rugby-Fox master at the Noble College; then in Madras, as Acting-Secretary of the South India Mission; and since 1892 in Bombay, as Secretary of the Western India Mission. Thus for two out of the four C.M.S. Bishops hitherto appointed East Africa is indebted to the India Missions.

Famine in the Coast District.

The year 1898–99 will be memorable in the Mission on account of the grievous famine which prevailed, and, alas, still prevails. At one time only three inches of rain fell in nine months, and there was a consequent almost complete failure of the crops.

As early as April, 1898, there were rumours of threatened famine in Frere Town, Taita, Taveta, &c., and as the time passed it became clear that the scarcity of food would be even more serious than had been anticipated, and that the area affected would be extensive. In December the Rev. H. K. Binns spoke of villages being deserted, and of from two to three hundred people coming to his door every morning in search of work by which they could earn twopence a day. The Committee of the Church Missionary Society authorized an appeal for funds in order that food might be supplied to the starving. In March, 1899, help was being given at Frere Town to over 500 persons at a cost of about 5*l.* on the average every day, and on one occasion no less than 698 people applied for relief. Rain fell in some districts in January, but soon afterwards swarms of locusts appeared and destroyed such crops as were growing. Mr. J. A. Wray, of the Taita country, wrote in February :—

Ravages by locusts.

> The sufferings of our famine-stricken people have been further aggravated by a cloud of locusts which passed over us, devouring almost every bit of food in the country. Our harvest, which we were so near reaping, has been destroyed. The locusts covered an area of about 20,000 square miles. Can you imagine it? They were sixteen days passing over parts of our corn-fields, travelling at the rate of four miles an hour. They have enriched us with a legacy of millions of eggs and young locusts. Now will come a struggle for life. Many of the people have absolutely nothing to eat except grasses and ground orchids.

And in a letter dated March 22nd, he said :—

> The Committee at Frere Town have voted me 10*l.* for famine purposes here. This I am using as sparingly as possible. I do not pretend to give the people a whole day's food, but only a little to mix with the grasses and leaves they are eating. The young locusts are now hatched, and until they get their wings they will continue to devour everything that is put into the ground.

Further reference to the famine is made under the headings of some of the stations.

Death of Mrs. Burness.

Mrs. Burness, the wife of Mr. J. Burness, who is stationed at Changombe, near Rabai, was called to her rest in November. She first went out with her husband to East Africa in 1888.

Reinforcements.

The Mission was reinforced by Mr. George Burns, of the New South Wales C.M. Association, who sailed in February, 1899. Miss Alicia Higginbotham, who has been working in local connexion since 1894, has been accepted as a missionary in home connexion. On the other hand, Miss M. R. Gedge has been obliged, to the Committee's great regret, to resign on medical grounds; Miss M. I. Culverwell and Miss J. B. Tobin have retired from the work. The Rev. T. S. England was married on August 23rd to Miss C. Emmeline Bridgwater.

I. COAST DISTRICT.

Mrs. Luckock and Miss A. Higginbotham came home in May, 1898; Mrs. D. A. L. Hooper in August; Miss M. A. Ackerman in October; Miss M. I. Culverwell in December; Mr. J. Heselwood (on sick leave) in January, 1899; and Miss J. B. Tobin in February.

The following returned to the Mission: Miss F. I. Deed and Miss A. I. Grieve, sailed in June, 1898; Miss M. L. Holmes, Miss E. C. Wilde, and Miss A. Higginbotham in September; Mrs. D. A. L. Hooper in November; the Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Hamshere in December. The Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Taylor left England in December for Cairo, where they are residing, while Mr. Taylor is engaged in translational work for the Eastern Equatorial Africa Mission.

The Rev. H. K. Binns is Secretary of the Coast District of the Mission.

FRERE TOWN.

Frere Town.

The work at FRERE TOWN was materially affected during the year under review, as in those immediately preceding, by the Uganda railway and other causes. The high rate of wages prevailing at Mombasa attracted many of the men and boys to that town from the surrounding country, with the result that many were drawn away from spiritual work by the desire to accumulate worldly possessions. The result of this was shown in several ways. There was no anxiety on the part of the Christian men in the Coast districts to become teachers, and the Divinity Class, which was under the Rev. T. S. England, came to a standstill in June, although there was still one lad being instructed in the afternoons, whose mornings were spent in teaching in a school at Mombasa. Of the three students who composed the class in January, 1898, two, having finished their time, returned to Taveta in the spring, and the third, whose first year had expired, followed in June, together with another youth who had attended for a few weeks. The numbers at the men's Bible-class varied considerably, for some were employed on the railway works, while others joined caravans to Uganda; in both cases prolonged periods of absence from the coast were involved. The attractive power of Mombasa was felt also at the Boys' School, for the average attendance diminished, and the dormitory lads only numbered three. Mr. E. Luckock was deeply grieved by the fall of one boy of whom he hoped better things, who broke away from all restraint, and left the Mission to become the companion of the idle and vicious. Mr. Luckock also continued to meet with much difficulty in finding teachers: there were only three to do the work of five, and of the three one was absent for a long time through ill-health. But the work presented some bright features. The son of the native doctor made a willing and efficient pupil-teacher. Most of the lads in the school manifested an evident desire to learn; and a few were responsive to personal dealing on spiritual matters.

Worldly inducements.

The Work among Women was carried on by Miss M. C. Brewer, Miss E. Lockett, and Miss M. L. Mason. The laundry had to be given up owing to the impossibility of finding a woman who understood the work, but the girls' school and the various Bible-classes were continued as before. Those who attended were instructed about other parts of the Mission-field besides their own, and the sum collected in the missionary box was greater than in the previous year. The Indian diagrams, borrowed from the Loan Department at the Church Missionary House, proved very useful and were in great request, not only at Frere Town, but also at Mombasa, Mzizima, and Rabai.

Work among famine refugees.

The advent to Frere Town in September and the following months of a considerable number of Wanyika, driven by hunger to the coast, afforded a splendid opportunity for direct evangelistic effort among them. Before relief work was given them in the mornings they were instructed in the truths of Christianity, while, in addition, daily classes were held at 7 a.m., Mr. Binns and Mr. England conducting those for the men and boys, who learnt to repeat the Lord's Prayer correctly. They were fond of singing hymns, but their ideas of harmony were primitive, and Mr. England says that it was no easy matter to maintain a serious expression when in a class of sixty or seventy each one was singing a tune peculiarly his own! The women and children were taught by the lady missionaries, assisted by Mrs. Bailey, wife of the Mission Accountant, who, as Miss Harvey, went out to Eastern Equatorial Africa under the C.M.S. in 1885. Miss Brewer managed to learn some Kinyika so as to be able to speak to the people in their own tongue. Before the Wanyika came in large numbers, she met some of them at the house of a Christian man of their own tribe, an invalid named Andreas, to whom she went to read on Sunday afternoons. Concerning these meetings she writes:—

An earnest teacher.

> We have had some very encouraging gatherings. Some of the people understand Swahili, but not many. Sometimes I only read a passage in Kinyika and Andreas does all the teaching; he preaches so earnestly and delights in it. One day he was suffering greatly, and I feared he would not be able to speak to the people, but he did, and that so brightly and earnestly. When I said afterwards, "God did help you, Andreas," he answered, "Yes, Bibi; all the pain went away when I began to speak." You may perhaps say, Why not leave this work to him? He tells me they will not come in any numbers when he is alone, but when I go, he sends a child round to all living near to tell them they are called, Bibi has come to teach them, and they come; but though I am there, it is Andreas who does nearly all the work.

It was not only at the regular classes that the Wanyika heard the Good News, for many of them were received by the Native Christians in their houses, and there were told something of the way of salvation. Rain fell in the Giriama country in November, and many of the men then returned to their own homes to plant, leaving their wives and children at the Coast until the crops were grown.

MOMBASA.

Mombasa.

The many changes in the staff at MOMBASA interfered with the sequence of the work, but on the whole the interruptions did not prove very serious. The Rev. F. Burt was thankful for the assistance which the Rev. K. St. A. Rogers was able to render with the various evangelistic meetings and with the English services. These latter were conducted in the new church, although, owing to the absence of the Bishop, it had not been dedicated. Mr. Burt gives the following record of his work in August—an average month he terms it—from which the diversity of operations in Mombasa will easily be gathered. He writes:—

Services and classes.

There were thirty open-air meetings (most of the lady workers attending), where I addressed more than 3,000 people. In visiting I reached and spoke of Christ to 350. The fort was visited and prisoners addressed eight times. Ten visits were made to Kilindini, two miles away. The school there and fifty-one houses were visited; five classes for youths held, at which the attendances were 7, 6, 12, 5, 8; five classes held for men, attendances 8, 5, 8, 5, 4. Four meetings in gardens were held, attendances being 18, 9, 6, 8. Ten visits were made to Mzizima Hospital. Gave twenty-five reading-lessons at home. Sixteen services and meetings were held in the Mission-hall, attendances varying from 4 to 200. A weekly prayer-meeting is held at Kilindini every Saturday evening, about 24 being present. My friends from Kauma and Giriama are constantly here, sometimes as many as 20 sleeping in the basement of the house. I usually give them a reading-lesson of an evening, when 10 or so attend. Levi, the catechist, usually spends Friday evenings with me. I take Johanna, the teacher at Kilindini, for reading, &c., about 1½ hour daily.

Boys' School.

Mr. W. E. Parker continued to manage the Boys' School. Arrangements were made, not without some misgiving as to the consequences, that all the fees should be paid in advance, and the experiment was completely successful, for the money received increased from Rs. 56 in 1897 to Rs. 97 in 1898. The new plan led to the boys remaining longer in the school, and when Mr. Parker wrote his Annual Letter nearly all the lads who were reading had been with him for twelve months. The great event of the year in the school, and indeed in Mombasa, was the baptism of a lad, the first Mohammedan convert in that town. Mr. Parker gives the following account of him:—

A boy convert from Islam.

In 1897 a young Mohammedan lad of sixteen or seventeen years old joined the school, who had come to Mombasa from the island of Pemba earlier in the same year in search of work. Hearing of the English school and being of an ambitious, studious nature, he joined, and applied himself to his work with great assiduity, and made fair progress. From the first he seemed struck with the Christian instruction given, and paid great attention, yet questioned the truth of the teaching in a very bigoted way, arguing with Mission boys, &c. However, on January 30th, 1898, he came to me and said, in a very hesitating way—in fact, getting another boy to speak for him—that he wished to become a Christian, because he saw our faith was holier, and our religion more spiritual than his own, and the lives of the teachers of our Christian faith so different. I took him to the Rev. F. Burt to be sounded; he seemed satisfied with his reality. I have anxiously watched him for over a year; knowing the persecutions he was daily enduring from the schoolboys and those outside, I feared much for him. I had determined to try him a year before presenting him for baptism, and so he has lived with me. I am convinced he is a Christian at heart; he has left all his old customs, the Ramadhan Fast, &c., and with the exception of being inclined to display a bit of temper if taunted over much, he has lived a consistent life, and this is the testimony of other missionaries, &c., who have seen him almost daily. His Sunday-school teacher (Miss Bazett) told me about two months ago that in a small prayer-meeting she holds for the boys, after the class he prayed "that God would enable him to live a holy life and make him bold to witness before the people of Jesus." He was baptized February 12th, 1899, by the Rev. T. S. England, with the name of "Paul."

Boys walk two miles to attend a Bible-class.

The Bible-class for boys, originally started by Miss Grieve, had an average attendance of fourteen, some of whom walked two miles in the hottest part of the day in order that they might be present. It was difficult for the lads to attend regularly, since many of them were constantly moving about with their masters; altogether there were as many as sixty names on the register. A good number of them were in the service of godless masters, and were confronted by great temptations, but in not a few cases they were enabled to stand fast, and walk worthy of their vocation. Miss Bazett, who conducted the class, gives a striking instance of consistency on the part of one of the lads. She says:—

"It is God's Day"

I had a beautiful testimony given me the other day to the consistent Christian life of one of our Mission boys while journeying up country. It was given by an Englishwoman who with her husband travels up and down country doing transport business. This boy is her personal servant, and she said that if she happened to forget when Sunday came round, this boy would invariably come and remind her and say, "Mistress, we must not travel to-day, it is God's day"; and she said that in camp, if ever this lad had a few minutes to spare, he would be seen with his New Testament in his hand reading.

Work among Women.

The Work among Women was carried on by Miss S. Bazett Miss E. C. Wilde, Miss A. Higginbotham, Miss M. I. Culverwell (until November), and Miss M. Watermeyer (from the beginning of that month), all of whom resided in the ladies' house, of which Mrs. K. Pickthall was in charge. Miss Bazett's efforts were chiefly directed to reaching the Beluchis by means of visiting them in their own houses. Now and again she found a bright spot where God's Word appeared to be loved, but in the majority of the houses to which she went she could not help feeling that the least distraction was welcomed as an excuse for not listening to the Gospel, nor allowing the Bible to be read. She describes a couple of individual cases with which she met in the following terms:—

Visiting Beluchis.

One girl of whom I was very hopeful, and who had even gone so far as to kneel in prayer with me, seems now to have given up all interest in the things of God. She had a serious illness a short time ago which her relations and friends persuaded her was devil-possession as a judgment on her for reading the Gospel. At first she would not believe it, but they worked on her feelings so much that she has given up reading, and has grown hard and careless, and will not listen to the Gospel. This is but one case amongst many where intimidation and the fear of man are holding women back. Then, again, there is another dear woman named —— who is very near the kingdom of God, if not already within it. By her own confession she believes Jesus to be the Son of God and only Saviour, but does not see the need of confession of her belief in baptism. Her perception of spiritual things is very keen, and her desire for Christ's second coming very real. She has had many trials, and not least a very cruel husband, who has knocked her about and threatened to kill her many times; but she bears with him in a really Christian spirit. Please pray for her that she may be led to come out in baptism, and that others may take courage to follow her example.

A Mohammedan inquirer.

One interesting inquirer is mentioned, who hailed from Lamu, and had come to Mombasa to do some carving for the new house of the Arab Governor. Miss Higginbotham read the Bible to him while he was working, and found that he often ceased from his occupation in order that he might listen more attentively. He read diligently the Bible which was lent to him, and before leaving for Lamu brought a beautiful painting, with "Jesus, my Saviour," on it, as a present, saying that he would come back so as to resume his reading.

Services in the house of an Arab lady.

A new and most encouraging feature of the work in Mombasa was the establishing of a Christian service held on Sunday mornings in the house of an Arab lady, named Fatuma, who originally came to the missionaries for protection from cruelty. Although unbaptized she professed herself a Christian, and was spoken of as such by her neighbours; all traces of Mohammedanism disappeared from her house; the Koran, which used to be in a niche in the wall, was removed; and she did not observe the fast of Ramadhan, as she had been accustomed to do in previous years. The lady showed much zeal in gathering her friends and her own household for the services, of which Miss Culverwell writes:—

> The idea of meeting together to worship God was something quite new to these women, as the women do not go to the mosque as the men do, so being quite "raw material," one had to teach them that laughing and chatting, counting their pice, or doing their plaiting, must be put on one side, and that we had met for the one purpose of speaking to God in hymns and prayer, and hearing Him speak to us through His Word. In my week-day visits I had taught them such parts of the Church service as I thought suitable for them, and these—the Confession, Lord's Prayer, and Ten Commandments—formed part of our service. Those who had confessed themselves Christians I permitted to stand with me and say the Creed, showing them what a solemn confession they were making, and that if they confessed with their lips, they must also by their lives show themselves followers of Jesus, Son of God.

There were various other methods which cannot be described in detail, by which it was sought to bring the Mohammedan women and children to the knowledge of Christ. Mrs. Pickthall conducted a class for those Natives who understood English, and Miss Watermeyer took charge of a little school, which was attended by some children of Christian parents, and also by a few Hindus and some Wanyika. The simple medical treatment given to the people in their homes by Miss Culverwell served to relieve much suffering, and proved most efficacious in opening hearts to the Gospel message; indeed, this work was only limited by her power of endurance. She mentions that the Mohammedan Hindi-speaking lady, who was spoken of in last year's Report, continued to listen eagerly to the tidings of salvation, but was in some doubt as to how she ought to regard Mohammad, whom all her life she had been taught to reverence. Several of the ladies visited the Hospital, which is situated at Mzizima, on the island of Mombasa, but is only separated from Frere Town by about 300 yards of water. Dr. C. S. Edwards, who was at the head of the medical work, continued to meet with great indifference to spiritual matters on the part of the patients, although there were good congregations at the services on Sundays and week-day evenings, the attendance being entirely voluntary. The total number of in-patients was 406, and 16,537 attendances of out-patients were registered. There were usually four or five lepers at the hospital, of whom Dr. Edwards says that they were as bright as any of the other patients. He points out that mercifully pain is not usually a feature of leprosy, the great trouble being the loss of sensation, which leads to sores from knocks, burns, &c. Regular visits were paid to the shambas on the other side of the island from Mzizima, but in spite of the liking which the people seemed to have for the visits and the teaching they received, there was no apparent movement towards Christianity. Several boys were under instruction for baptism, but it was difficult to ascertain how far they were genuine converts. The famine caused a certain immigration into Mombasa of people from the interior, and, as at other stations, it was deemed desirable to put them in the way of earning some money in order that they might purchase food. The "wild people," as Dr. Edwards calls them, were very orderly, and no cases of theft or wrong-doing occurred; they came to the services with regularity, and there can be little doubt that the missionaries are assured of a warm welcome whenever they may be able to visit these people at their inland homes.

Mrs. Burt was busily engaged throughout the year in visiting the Hindu women and conducting a large women's class at Kilindini, which is situated at the opposite side of the island of Mombasa from the town itself.

RABAI.

Rabai.

The Rev. A. G. Smith resumed charge of the work at RABAI on his return from furlough, and was impressed with the great change which had taken place during his absence. Many of the old inhabitants had left for work on the Uganda railway, while others had taken up their residence in Mombasa, in order to pursue the pleasures of the world; and their places had been in large measure filled by the incursion of numbers of the Wakamba and Wagiriama, who were driven from their own countries by stress of famine. It is not surprising under the circumstances that the attendance at the Church Services showed a great falling off; the advent of Europeans, the advance of so-called civilization, and the consequent demand for native porters and labourers, have produced a modification in the condition of the country which is not altogether favourable to missionary effort. Bishop Tucker confirmed 175 candidates in January, 1898; but Mr. Smith fears that to many of the people confirmation is the object and end of their Church career, and that they have not yet learnt that they "cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of devils." Some of the Native Christians, however, lead bright and consistent lives, and Miss Ackerman mentions a few who endeavoured to set a good example, and to witness for their Master as opportunity was afforded. The lad who helped her in the Dispensary, which was visited each month by about 700 patients, is a case in point, for he is spoken of as having manifestly grown in grace. Open-air work was carried on in the market-place by the Rev. J. Deimler, the native deacon, and his helpers, and was effective in reaching large numbers, including many who had come to Rabai from up-country districts. Services were also held in the old court-house for those who were employed on the famine relief works, since they expressed a strong dislike to entering the church. Three Bible-women were at work during the year, who were taught by Mrs. E. Gardener until the autumn; they visited sixteen villages every week. The Schools for boys and girls, under the charge of the Rev. J. Deimler and Miss J. B. Tobin, had average attendances of 108 and 80 respectively; the pupils improved greatly, and the girls in particular answered much more readily and correctly than in previous years. The Sunday-school, in which, besides others, Miss A. J. Madeley and Miss M. Watermeyer were at work, was held as formerly, and continued its useful but uneventful career.

The out-station of Ganga suffered from the absence of a resident catechist, but daily service was taken by a worker who went over from Rabai. Miss Madeley commenced in September to visit the women there once a week, and to conduct a Bible-class for their benefit. There was an average attendance of eleven, some of the women giving up their work in order to be present.

Deaths of missionary helpers at Changombe,

The staff at CHANGOMBE consisted at the beginning of 1898 of Mr. and Mrs. J. Burness, who were joined later in the year by Mr. J. Heselwood and the Misses M. L. Holmes and F. I. Deed. Miss Holmes was accompanied by a friend, Miss Coxen, who was not a missionary of the Society, but went out with the Committee's knowledge and approval. Her term of service, however, was but short, for she died from fever on December 11th. The death of Mrs. Burness has been mentioned in the notes at the head of this section of the report. Mr. Smith went over from Rabai every month to administer Holy Communion to the little body of communicants living in the district.

and at Jilore.

The Rev. D. A. L. Hooper, of Jilore, was called upon to bear a heavy trial through the death, from hæmaturic fever, on July 14th, of Mr. L. Roberts, the last surviving member of Mr. Hooper's independent band of workers. The work itself afforded a good deal of encouragement; the services were well attended; the average number of communicants, which was eleven in 1892, rose during the last four months of 1898 to thirty-one; ten young men ministered to congregations at seven different out-posts; eleven adults were baptized; several of the medicine-men gave up the paraphernalia by which they practised witchcraft; and the New Year opened with a baptism class of nineteen. Not the least important form of work which has occupied Mr. Hooper of recent years has been that of translating the Scriptures. He mentions that a third of the Bible has now been translated.

II. TAITA AND TAVETA.

BOTH Mrs. Wray and Mrs. Vale were obliged by ill-health to come home, the former arriving in August and the latter in October. The Rev. A. R. Steggall and Mr. V. V. Verbi came to England in December, 1898, and the Rev. and Mrs. F. Burt in February, 1899. Mr. A. W. McGregor sailed for the Mission in June, 1898, and Mrs. Wray in March, 1899.

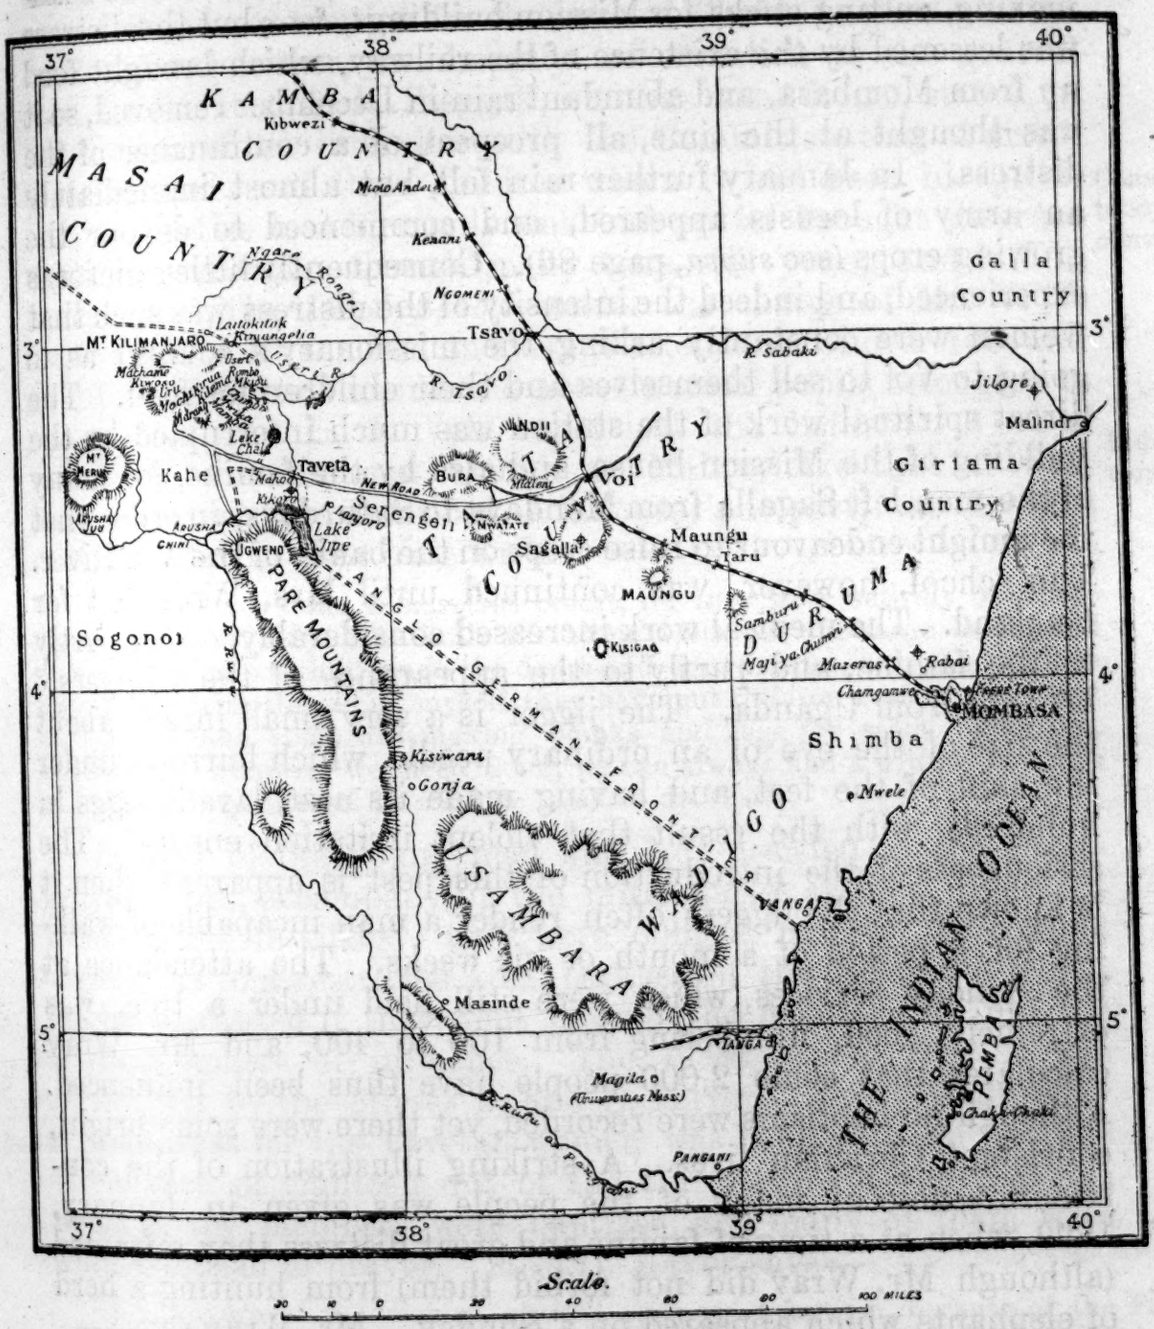
TAITA.

Mr. J. A. Wray, who returned with Mrs. Wray to SAGALLA, the C.M.S. station in the Taita country, at the close of 1897, Sagalla.



found his journey much facilitated by the new railway, for he was able to accomplish in eight hours the distance to Voi, which formerly occupied as many days. He wrote beforehand asking that a road connecting the Mission station with the railway station at Voi might be constructed, but at the same time telling the people that they would not be paid for their labour, and on his arrival was met by Mr. R. A. Maynard and some fifty or sixty Sagallas, who had just completed the task. The new line will be a great boon, not only to those missionaries who live up-country, but also to those residing near the coast, since it renders the higher altitudes of the inland districts much more accessible than heretofore. Famine prevailed at Sagalla for some months, and it became necessary to set on foot relief works, such as road-making, cutting sticks for Mission buildings, &c.; but the distress was lessened by the existence of the railway, which brought food up from Mombasa, and abundant rain in December removed, so it was thought at the time, all prospect of a continuance of the distress. In January further rain fell, but almost immediately an army of locusts appeared, and commenced to devour the growing crops (see supra, page 86). Consequently little relief was experienced, and indeed the intensity of the distress was such that women were constantly asking the missionary's counsel as to going to Voi to sell themselves and their children for food. The direct spiritual work of the station was much interrupted by the building of the Mission-house, and also by the famine, for many of the men left Sagalla from Mondays to Saturdays, in order that they might endeavour to raise crops on the banks of the Voi River. The school, however, was continued until Mrs. Wray left for England. The medical work increased considerably, owing partly to the famine, and partly to the appearance of the "jiggers," brought from Uganda. The jigger is a very small insect, about the size of the eye of an ordinary needle, which burrows under the skin of the feet, and having made its nest, lays its eggs in hundreds, with the result that violent irritation ensues. The seriousness of the introduction of this pest is apparent when it is known that the jiggers often render a man incapable of walking for a period of a month or six weeks. The attendance at the Sunday services, which were still held under a tree, was extremely good, numbering from 100 to 400, and Mr. Wray calculates that some 2,000 people have thus been influenced. Although no baptisms were recorded, yet there were some bright, consistent Christian lives. A striking illustration of the conscientiousness of many of the people was given in January, 1899, when at a time of famine and great distress they refrained (although Mr. Wray did not forbid them) from hunting a herd of elephants which appeared on a Sunday. Mr. Wray says:—

Famine relief work.

A new pest.

Scrupulous observance of the Sabbath.

> Here was a chance of once in a life-time, the ivory of seven elephants under their very eyes, untold riches to them, and they had only that morning been robbed of their corn by locusts. . . . Sooner than break the Sabbath they let the chance go.

TAVETA.

The chief event of the year at the Mission station of Mahoo, in the little Republic of TAVETA, was the opening of the new church on October 22nd. It is a fairly substantial building of stone, with a corrugated iron roof, and can be made to seat 300 or 400 people. About 150 were present at the opening ceremony, including the Resident, Captain Temple Maxted, whose helpfulness to the work Mr. A. W. McGregor gratefully acknowledges. Fifteen baptisms took place on the occasion of the opening of the church. Some of the older Christians were not altogether satisfactory, and one who ran well for years, and even suffered persecution for the sake of Christ, became a noted thief. He, however, was happily an exception to the general rule, for the Rev. A. R. Steggall, who has come home, stated, in the course of an interview with the Committee, that of sixty-three converts and their children whom it had been his privilege to baptize in Africa only one had so far brought disgrace upon his profession, though many were still young and had to be tested. The Boys' School, under the charge of Mr. V. V. Verbi (now at home), had an average attendance of over 100, and six of the baptisms mentioned above were of pupils belonging to the school. Mr. L. J. Vale supervised the Industrial Work of the boys, and the new church at Mahoo, like that at Sela Ndongo, which was described in last year's Report, was the fruit of their efforts. Mr. Vale writes :—

New Church opened—Resident present.

Consistency of converts.

Industrial work.

> Our lads have done themselves credit, for they have entirely built the church—that is, they have built the stone walls, cut the large beams and placed them in position, made the doors and door-frames, also the window-frames, and with the aid of myself they have put the iron roof on, and now in the finishing some are making planks and legs for seats. Painting, tarring, and whatever we need done, we can always find a willing boy who will take a deep interest in what he is set to do.

Several of the young men and lads assisted in the Evangelistic Work, accompanying the missionaries as they itinerated from village to village; they were obliged, however, to confine themselves to a restricted area, because of the difficulties which might be caused if they went beyond the frontier line into the German sphere of influence. The Work among Women was carried on by the Misses D. and E. Mayor. Every Wednesday a Bible-class for the Tavetan women was held, with an average attendance of eighteen out of the thirty-two on the register. Some of the members were baptized, and many of them were willing to lead in prayer. Miss D. Mayor says :—

> The prayers of the women at this class are beautiful, because of the simple faith which many of them have in God. One prayed that God would give her strength to withstand Satan ; that she trembled at his power, like boiling water in a cooking pot. Another prayed that like as the wind passed over Taveta, so might the Blood of Christ reach the hearts of all the Taveta women and purify them.

Fervent prayers.

An interesting feature of the year was the commencement in the summer of a class for Masai women. They are extremely superstitious, and it was found that they would not mix with the Tavetan women lest these should bewitch them or their children and they should die. It consequently became necessary to make separate arrangements for teaching them, and Miss D. Mayor accordingly instituted the class, which she conducted with the aid of a Masai boy named Eliya, who is a consistent Christian. There were twenty names on the register, and an average attendance of fourteen. Miss E. Mayor taught in the Girls' School at Mahoo, and also in that at Sela Ndongo. About twenty were usually present in each school, but those at Mahoo behaved much better than those at the out-station. The women in the villages were cared for as far as was possible, but the scarcity of food made them exceptionally busy with their planting, and rendered it difficult to gather them for teaching. In one case a woman requested Miss Mayor to sit by her, since she was not able to leave her plantation, and then asked a number of eager questions concerning the life beyond the grave.

Drought followed by flood.

The prolonged drought at Taveta caused much suffering, but early in November rain fell in such quantities that the little river became a torrent and flooded the settlement. The missionaries were for a time in some danger, and the maize crop, which was nearly ready to be gathered, was partially destroyed.

Merciful recovery after snake poisoning.

Mr. Vale had a narrow escape in the summer. One day he heard his fowls making a great noise, and went into the building to investigate, peeping into the dark corner where the nest was. He had hardly done so when a quantity of liquid was thrown into his face, and in a few minutes a burning pain in his eyes told him that a snake had thrown its poison at him. It was thirty hours before he could see anything, and several days elapsed before his sight was completely restored.

III. USAGARA.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Beverley, who left Africa in May, 1898, reached England, after a detention at Marseilles, in June; the Rev. H. Cole came home in August, 1898, Miss R. Colsey in March, 1899. Mr. D. Deekes and Mr. J. H. Briggs sailed for the Mission in November, 1898.

MAMBOIA.

Mamboia.

The Rev. and Mrs. D. J. Rees, and Miss E. R. Spriggs were mainly engaged in language study, and the brunt of the work at Mamboia fell on Miss R. Colsey, who, with Miss Spriggs, lived in the Valley, distant a journey of one hour and a quarter from the Hill where Mr. and Mrs. Rees resided. A Scripture Reading Union, with twenty members, was formed in connexion with the school, which was attended by scholars of both sexes and all ages. The inquirers' class was well attended throughout the year. There were thirty-nine on the register, two of whom were to be received as catechumens at the end of 1898. Miss Colsey gives some interesting particulars concerning one of these, a woman named Laoni; she says:—

A slow learner but a sincere Christian.

She has had the usual life of a slave, depraved, despised, down-trodden, frequently flying to drink to drown her woes. I myself have seen her quite stupid and silly with pombe. Slowly has the light dawned, very gradual has been the change. Dull she certainly is, and I shall not be accused of exaggeration in saying this if I mention she has been a fairly regular scholar for four years, and is only now learning to distinguish the syllables in a large printed reading-book. On the other hand, it will readily be admitted that she has perseverance, or she would have got weary of the drudgery ere this. Her life is so quiet, so orderly; and she has had to suffer for Christ's sake, as her master tried to prevent her attending service, both scolding and beating her; but, as she says, she "just keeps on coming," and so has gained the victory, and is allowed to come. That she has considerable courage, and is not ashamed of her confession, is proved by the fact that a little while ago, while out buying food with some other women, she absolutely refused to journey home on Sunday, but rested that day, and came in by herself on the Monday.

The members of the catechumen's class numbered three. One of them, the secretary of the Scripture Reading Union, Ferekini by name, gave some good advice to the inquirers at a special meeting which was held; he said, "My brothers, if you really want to know more, pray more. Knowledge of the Lord Jesus comes with prayer." Two women were baptized by Mr. Rees, the first fruits of the work in the Valley, which was commenced in 1894; they received the names of Persis and Lois. Mr. E. W. Doulton, who was at Mamboia until the end of March, 1898, describes the former as one of the brightest Christians he has met in East Africa, and Miss Colsey speaks of her as "beloved by everybody and a great voluntary helper, always delighted to labour for her Lord and Saviour." The two native teachers, Asani Mugimbwa, who was mentioned in last year's Report, (pp. 101 and 110), and Yeremiya Senyagwa, gave much encouragement by their steady faithfulness. The former assisted Mr. Rees with the classes for Christians and others, which were held at the Hill Station, and Yeremiya worked in the Valley with Miss Colsey, who writes concerning him:—

"If you want to know more, pray more."

"Beloved by everybody."

He has made wonderful progress both with his own studies, but even more in his spiritual life. His is a wonderful character, naturally obstinate, hasty, and even lazy; he is just a living witness of God's grace and power.

"A living witness of God's grace."

Shadow and sunshine, however, were intermingled, for two other native teachers, while at Frere Town, made use of charms, &c., against witchcraft, and on their return to Mamboia absolutely denied having done so. When at length their guilt was conclusively proved, they confessed, but remained altogether impenitent. Some new enterprises were commenced during the year. In one village, four miles from Mamboia, a school was opened which had an average attendance of twenty-five; and in another, some five miles further off, the people began to build a little church at their own cost. Miss Colsey concludes her review of the year by saying:—

> Without doubt the past year has been one of growth and extension, and there are many causes for thanksgiving. I do not want to give the impression that there have been rapid strides in any one particular branch of the work, nor would I hide the fact that there has been much to grieve and disappoint; nevertheless there has, we trust, been the steady yet slow progress which will eventually result in ripened harvest.

MPWAPWA AND KISOKWE.

Mpwapwa. At MPWAPWA, Mr. E. W. Doulton was alone from April 12th, 1898, the date of the departure of the Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Beverley for England, until the end of the year, when Mr. Briggs returned to the station. As at Mamboia, the prospects of the Mission were brighter than for some years past, and Mr. Doulton expresses his conviction that the work was more promising than ever before. The Rev. E. H. Fincher, of Kisokwe, visited Mpwapwa every three weeks after Mr. Beverley left, in order to administer Holy Communion. The Native Christians, especially those of some years standing, were not altogether satisfactory; they seemed to have "got into a groove," and all efforts to arouse them were in vain. There was, however, one exception. A man who was baptized by the Rev. J. C. Price was led astray some three years ago by his heathen relatives, went back to Heathenism again, and appeared to have entirely abandoned Christianity. Last year he had a serious illness, and then told Mr. Doulton that God had spoken to him. He afterwards made a public confession in church, and gave evidence which justified the hope that his repentance was truly the work of the Holy Spirit in his heart. The class for catechumens was continued; some of the men were fairly intelligent, and very attentive and anxious to learn, but the women were not equally zealous. There were fifty adults and thirty young people in the inquirers' class, many of whom by their changed lives gave cause for the belief that they were in earnest. The Rev. J. E. Beverley baptized three men on April 3rd, 1898. They had been under instruction for eighteen months, and it was hoped that one at least would prove a valuable helper.

"Got into a groove."

Kisokwe. The report of the Rev. E. H. Fincher from KISOKWE does not speak of the progress which was manifested in 1897 as having been maintained. The number of children in the five schools increased, it is true, from 212 to over 300, but the congregations at the early morning week-day services were small. This was partially accounted for by the absence from their villages of the men who were employed by the Germans in road-making, and by their eagerness to cultivate their fields as soon as the road work was finished. Two of the Christians, one of them an earnest worker, fell into sin; the former zeal for souls seemed to have died away, and the Christians themselves acknowledged with grief that they did not experience that joy in the service of Christ which they had previously felt. Thirty-seven catechumens and ninety-five inquirers were under instruction. The total number of adult baptisms was fifteen. Dr. E. J. Baxter speaks of the erection of the Hospital, but Hospital.

although it was not quite finished when he wrote, a number of women and children had already been placed there after vaccination until the results were apparent. During the twelve months, 6,816 attendances were entered at the dispensary. The large majority of the patients heard the Gospel at the early morning services; but since some who lived at a distance were unable to be present at the services, one of the brightest Native Christian workers adopted the custom of speaking about the Great Physician to the men and women as they were waiting their turn for treatment. The medical work induced a few Masai to settle at Kisokwe, and their children attended the school daily.

* European and Native.

UGANDA MISSION.

The first impetus to the exploration of Africa from the East Coast was given by the Society's missionaries, Krapf and Rebmann. In November, 1875, in consequence of information sent home by the traveller Stanley of the readiness of Mtesa, King of Uganda, to receive Christian teachers, and of two anonymous donations of £5,000 each being offered to send a missionary expedition to his dominions, the Society resolved, in dependence upon God, to organize a Mission in Uganda, and a well-equipped party proceeded accordingly to East Africa in the spring of 1876. The first leader, Lieut. G. Shergold Smith, R.N., and Mr. T. O'Neill, were killed, and several others, including Bishop Parker, died before reaching the country; but the Mission, in the face of tremendous difficulties, maintained its position in Uganda from July, 1877. A French Roman Catholic Mission arrived in 1879. King Mtesa died in 1884, and Mwanga succeeded to the throne. The new king, in 1885, was led to regard the missionaries with suspicion. He caused Bishop Hannington to be murdered on October 31st of that year, and the Mission was in danger. The storm reached its climax in the arrest of many Native Christians, several of whom were tortured and burnt to death. In August, 1888, King Mwanga was driven from the throne. In October, through the hostility of the Mohammedan Arabs, the English and French missionaries were expelled from the country. A period of revolution and bloodshed ensued. In October, 1889, exactly a year from the missionaries' expulsion, Mwanga re-entered Uganda, regained his throne, and the missionaries returned with him. King Mwanga accepted a British flag from the representatives of the Imperial British East Africa Company in 1889. The country of Busoga first had a resident missionary in 1891. Sir Gerald Portal reached Uganda, as Queen's Commissioner, in March, 1893, and in April, 1894, the British Government declared Uganda a British Protectorate. Koki was occupied in 1895, and Toro in the following year. Mwanga fled from the capital and raised a rebellion in the summer of 1897, and his infant son Chwa, baptized by the name of David, was proclaimed king. A serious mutiny of the Soudanese troops broke out in September of the same year. Several European officers were seized and murdered; Mr. G. L. Pilkington, who in response to the appeal of the authorities was accompanying the Government forces as interpreter, lost his life; and for a time the situation was critical in the extreme. The mutiny was quelled in 1898.

In 1897, the Diocese of Eastern Equatorial Africa was subdivided, the Uganda Protectorate being formed into the Diocese of Uganda, which Bishop Tucker elected to retain, relinquishing the remainder to form the Diocese of Mombasa.

Two kings in revolt.

THE account in last year's Report of the troubles in Uganda indicated the existence of two main centres of disturbance, the one Mwanga, with a band of discontented Baganda, and the other the surviving Soudanese mutineers. The deposed king was so closely pursued by the Government troops under the command of Major Price, that he and his followers were driven to escape across the Nile, and the operations of the same column against Kabarega, the ex-king of Bunyoro, compelled him too to seek safety by flight. By the end of July, 1898, all opposition had been quelled in Bunyoro, but the Soudanese mutineers, who were not entirely disposed of in the engagement at Kabagambi, had by that time intrenched themselves in a strong position some twelve miles from Mruli, on the east bank of the river. Further reinforcements having arrived from Mengo, this position was successfully stormed on August 4th, two loyal companies of Soudanese taking part in the action.

The Soudanese mutineers.

Meanwhile, the country continued in an unsettled state. At several stations the houses of the missionaries were destroyed, and Bishop Tucker wrote on September 18th: "There seems, I am sorry to say, no perceptible change for the better. In fact, in Budu things are much worse, and raiding parties of twenty or thirty men are burning and destroying wherever they can find an opportunity. Mr. Clayton's house has been burnt, and all his goods consumed. Our congregations at Kinakulya and Kijunguti, and indeed in many other places, are still scattered, and it is impossible at present to attempt to rebuild the churches. Dr. Cook and I, both on our journey out to Toro and on the way back, crossed and recrossed the road of the rebels, but saw nothing of them. Mwanga has written to one of the chiefs a sort of answer to a message to the effect that he should give himself up. He declares that he has not the very least intention of doing so—in fact, 'he does not want to see the Europeans one little bit.' The mutineers are still at large, and defy all the efforts of the forces here to capture, or successfully do battle with them. There are probably 150 to 200 left. Bunyoro is in a terrible condition. Cultivation is at a standstill, and famine is staring the people in the face." Country unsettled.

Several months later the Soudanese rebels crossed the Nile into Bunyoro, and cut up a detachment of Indian troops under Lieut. Hannyngton. At one time it appeared as though there would be further complications owing to the outbreak of a mutiny among the Swahili Rifles, but that, happily, was promptly quelled. Mwanga and Kabarega, ex-kings of Uganda and Bunyoro, were made prisoners by Lieut.-Colonel Evatt in March, 1899.

The death of the Rev. E. H. Hubbard, which was mentioned in a footnote in last year's Report, took place on March 9th in Mengo. Mr. Hubbard, after training in the Society's institutions, was appointed to East Africa in 1891, and in his first term of service did valuable work at Nassa, both in the general management of the Mission and in translation. He came home on furlough in July, 1896, and was on his way back to his station, when the accidental discharge of a rifle near the Eldoma Ravine caused the wound which eventually proved fatal. Archdeacon Walker sends the following account of his death:— Death of Rev. E. H. Hubbard.

> For some days Hubbard knew that his life was in danger, but he hoped that in the end he might get well. A few nights before he died, when I was sitting up with him, he said, "I fear I am not out of the lane yet." But he added, "It is perfect peace." He was so resigned and ready to submit to whatever God should appoint for him that it was a pleasure to sit with him. On the morning of the 9th, when Dr. Cook went with me to tell Hubbard that he had not more than two hours to live, he was quite calm and happy. Dr. Cook said to him, "Hubbard, old man, unless the Lord thinks fit to stretch out His hand to save you, you have only two hours more to live." To this he replied, "Two hours? All right!" Then "All right!"

he dictated a few letters and took his leave of his boys and some of the Nassa teachers. He asked us to pray with him, and he repeated the hymn, "Just as I am."

At about eleven o'clock (March 9th) the pain in the wound became worse and made Hubbard feel very restless. Miss Timpson and Dr. Cook did what they could to relieve the pain and to comfort Hubbard in every way. They both treated him with such skill and such affectionate care that they did much to lessen the pain, both mental and physical.

The funeral had to take place the same afternoon, and as a grave had been already dug for Mr. Pilkington's remains that were being brought from Usoga, where he was killed, we buried Hubbard's body in the ready-dug grave. Many of the Christian Waganda were present and showed their sympathy with us in our loss.

Reinforcements.

The Mission was reinforced during the year by one recruit, viz., the Rev. Sydney Robert Skeens, of Islington College, who was ordained by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, June 5th, 1898. Two others, however, may rightly be numbered as recruits, for the Rev. E. C. Gordon was married on August 12th to Miss Ellen Bazett, sister of the Misses M. and S. Bazett, of the Eastern Equatorial Africa Mission, and Mr. R. H. Leakey was married to Miss Mabel Gertrude Bazett, a cousin of the aforementioned, on March 21st, 1899. Mr. and Mrs. Leakey remained in England until June, 1889, but Mr. and Mrs. Gordon, together with Mr. A. B. Fisher and the Rev. S. R. Skeens, sailed for Africa in September, 1898, and reached Mengo in December. A part of the journey was made on the new railway, and Mr. Gordon wrote:—

It was really delightful to rush along in the train and get over 227 miles in two days and a half. The country through which we passed was the driest and most trying of the whole road. It was dirty and dusty enough in the train, but to be saved the weary marching on foot and discomfort of old dirty camps of the first 200 miles was worth more than words can tell.

On the other hand, the following came home:—the Rev. H. R. Sugden in November, the Rev. B. E. Wigram and Mr. A. B. Lloyd in December, and Mr. J. B. Purvis in March; and two of these, Mr. Sugden and Mr. Wigram, and also a third—the Rev. A. J. Pike, who came home in May, 1898—have retired from the Mission.

Journey through the Great Forest.

Mr. Lloyd did not follow the usual route on his journey home, but travelled to the West Coast of Africa, through the Great Forest, so graphically described by Stanley, and down the Aruwimi River and the Congo, a total distance to the Congo mouth of at least 2,000 miles. In the forest he encountered some of the Bambuti, or dwarfs, whose home is in the Forest, while by the banks of the Aruwimi he encamped on several occasions in the villages of the notorious cannibal tribe, the Bangwa. At Matadi and Boma, where the Baptist Missionary Society is at work, he found companies of "old boys" from C.M.S. Sierra Leone Institutions engaged in trade: they showed the most grateful appreciation of the privilege of Christian intercourse with a C.M.S. missionary.

Bishop Tucker's arrival in Uganda.

Bishop Tucker received a hearty welcome on his arrival in Uganda in May, 1898, and was soon busy inquiring into the state of the work, and holding confirmations. In a letter dated May 30th, he gave his impressions on the occasion of this his fourth visit to the country. After dealing with the political condition of the Protectorate, he said:—

His views on the spiritual state of the Church.

Of necessity this changed condition of things must affect the spiritual life of the people and the work of the Church; but how and to what extent it is difficult at first to say. With regard to the spiritual life of the people, the situation, one cannot help feeling, is full of peril, but at the same time of bright promise. It is somewhat the fashion just at present to take a despondent view of things, and to think because new temptations are crowding in upon the people, that therefore of necessity there must follow spiritual degradation and deadness, if not actual ruin. I cannot and do not take this view of things. To do so would be to limit the power and to doubt the love of the Holy Ghost. The danger, no doubt, is a very real one; but the fact that we are alive to its existence and know something of its subtle character is to my mind an assurance of victory.

The reading of the Scriptures is as great a feature as ever in the life of the people. The sale of the New Testament at the present moment is a phenomenon, even in this phenomenal period in the life of the Church of Uganda. The attendance at public worship is as large as ever; I am not sure that it has not to some extent improved. Although I have only been in the country a little more than three weeks I have confirmed 772 candidates. These are all signs, significant as it seems to me, of an inner work going on in the hearts of the people.

At the same time it is equally clear that there are indications which might possibly at first sight be taken as signs of spiritual declension. The most striking of these is the decrease in the number of young men who are offering themselves for work as teachers. This, no doubt, is a serious matter if we look at it in connexion with the prospects of the work. But to say that it is a sign of spiritual declension is to go beyond what I think we are warranted in saying in view of the facts of the case. The crisis through which the country is passing has necessitated not only the employment of European Christian missionaries in the defence of the State, but it has also led to what is practically a demand for the services of something like 3,000 young men, who at the present moment are engaged in facilitating the movement of troops by doing transport work. This one circumstance will, I think, account for whatever diminution there may be in the number of those offering themselves for the work of the Church. Then, again, it is quite true that from time to time we are saddened by hearing of this or that one who did run well being hindered, of one and another falling into sin. In considering cases of this kind we must not be forgetful of the fact that we are no longer dealing with hundreds of Christians, as was the case only three or four years ago, but with thousands. I do not know that the actual percentage of backsliders is larger now than it was in the old days, if we may speak of such in the case of a church as yet only in its infancy. But I am thankful that the alarm has been sounded. It will, I am sure, lead to increased vigilance, more earnest labour, and more fervent prayer. . . .

Demand for books.

I have already mentioned the eager buying up of the last consignment of New Testaments. Let me add to that statement the fact that the demand for the Mateka (the first reading-book) shows no sign of abatement, and we are in possession at once of two facts full of promise for the future: first, the reading of the Scriptures by our Christian people; and secondly, the study of the first elements of reading by the Heathen. From the one we look for greater earnestness and robustness in the spiritual life, and from the other for candidates for the sacrament of baptism. Looking at the situation all round, I am convinced that we shall yet see greater things than any that in the days gone by have so cheered our hearts.

On January 29th, 1899, at Mengo, Bishop Tucker admitted the Revs. Bartolomayo Musoke, Nua Kikwabanga, Henry Mukasa, and Natanieli Mudeka to priests' orders, and Mr. A. B. Fisher, Samwili Kamwakabi, Eriya Mukasa, Seduraka Kibuka, Ediwedi Bakayana, and Asa Nkangali to deacons' orders.

The following is a list of the books sold in Uganda during the six months ending December 31st, 1897:—

All Epistles	1,066	Collects	89	Mateka	2,847
Epistles	57	Bible Stories	26	Canticles	485
Genesis	217	Hymns	67

Large sum paid for books.

During the next six months no less than £673 was taken in exchange for 2,382 New Testaments, 5,091 portions of the Scriptures, 4,725 Mateka, and other publications, besides stationery and writing materials, of which the Natives buy a large quantity. These sales were to a great extent rendered possible by the influx of wealth consequent on the presence of the Indian troops, for labour and food, for which not long before there was no market, became in great demand, and almost every one who wished to buy a book was able to do so. The desire of the people to read is illustrated by the case which Mr. Hattersley quotes of a man who carried a box weighing sixty-five pounds on his head for thirty-four miles, then walked twelve miles to fetch another load of thirty-five pounds, which he carried on the return journey, and as soon as he received his cowrie shells as wages walked off to buy a New Testament. He adds:—

Hard-earned wages given for a New Testament.

> It is quite the correct thing amongst a large class of people to carry a book bag about, and gives a certain air of respectability to the individual; so much so that it may become a snare. For instance, one man, being asked what books he had in his bag, rather hesitated to reply, and on being pressed to show them, took out a bundle wrapped in several bandage-like folds of calico, and finally exposed a Mateka, the first reading-sheet, value one halfpenny.

J. Roscoe and E. Millar, Dr. A. R. Cook, Mr. C. W. Hattersley, and Misses E. M. Furley, J. E. Chadwick, and K. Timpson.

The Pastoral Work is mainly under the charge of the Revs. H. W. Duta and Z. Kizito. The following account by one of the missionaries of a sermon preached during the year by the former shows how the religious state of the country appears to a Native:—

Sermon by a native pastor.

His text was Rev. ii., 1-5. After giving a good account of the state of Ephesus, the worship of Artemis, and the cheering commencement of the Christian Church there under St. Paul, and afterwards under St. John, he described their downfall and the consequent warning of Rev. ii., 5, and how that subsequently their lamp was removed altogether. He compared them to the ancient Egyptians, the wise men of old, who have now become such a weak nation; to the Israelites, chosen of God, but cast off through unbelief; to the Romans, the ruling power of the whole world, but conquered and fallen; all these nations were disinherited because they did not fear God.

Then he applied it to the Baganda. He compared the days when the Mission was at Natete, when every one was so keen, and was willing to give up everything for the sake of Christ, and no one sought honour or wealth, with the condition of the Church now, when people, though they were keen on acquiring knowledge, did not seem so keen on doing God's work; when a man was not content till he had got a lot of fine clothes, and, if possible, a chieftainship.

He then compared the state of the Church now with what it was when the Bishop was last here in 1895. Then there were crowds coming for baptism and confirmation, now but few, in comparison; especially what a small percentage of the baptized went on to prepare for confirmation! What would the Bishop think when he arrived and saw this? In England people thought a great deal of the Baganda Christians; they believed there was no other place where there were such zealous Christians; but when new missionaries arrive up here, how surprised they were to hear of the drunkenness in the Church, the adultery, and the lukewarmness! (Every week most of the time of the Church Council is taken up in deciding cases concerning Christians and their wives.) He said that when he thought of the men who kept together at Natete, and persevered amid persecution, he could now hardly find a man of a like spirit to them. Had they forgotten their first love? Then let them truly repent in their hearts, or God would not fail to come and punish them, and, perhaps, take them out of their fruitful country, and place them in a barren land. It was the work of Satan, who saw how the Church of Uganda was prospering; therefore he sent a messenger to Uganda. Yes, a messenger of Satan and his wife; the messenger's name is "Lust of the Flesh," and his wife was the lioness that "walketh about seeking whom she may devour" (1 Pet. v., 8) (!) Then let them be on their guard, and fight against him, and repent, and do the first works, or God would not spare them, but would remove their "lamp" from its place.

The missionary who sent the above proceeded to point out that the decentralization of the work seemed hardly to be realized by the preacher, and that what was the case in the capital a few years ago is now the case in the provinces, where there are far more baptisms than in former times.

Divinity Class.

Archdeacon Walker's special work was conducting a Divinity Class. The ten men who had been reading with him in 1897 were sent out into the country at the end of that year, because of the compulsory withdrawal to the capital of so many of the European missionaries, but at the same time the local authorities were written to, and asked to nominate some ten or twelve men whom they considered suitable for ordination. A new class was thus formed, many of the members being of lower social standing than those previously chosen, but all good men, and likely to make valuable teachers. The Archdeacon says of them:—

Earnest and humble Bible students.

These are men from whom one may learn a great deal. They read the Bible, determined, if possible, to wrest the meaning out of it. They are very ready to be taught and to admit their ignorance and stupidity. Gradually their ideas get into shape, and they get some idea of the relative position of places mentioned in the Bible, and of the relative dates at which events happened. For some time it is difficult to get them clearly to understand that the events recorded in the Bible happened long ago, and that England and Palestine are not the same places. As an illustration of this confusion of ideas I will mention a question that Zakayo Buligwanga asked me in reading Exodus. He read that Pharaoh went into the Red Sea on a "gari;" he asked me if it was one like mine. Mine is a Bantam bicycle! I can say, however, that the general intelligence of the men is wonderfully advanced. I always ask the men questions, and so teach them. And if they ask me a question I make a point of not answering it myself. I pick out one of the class and get him to answer for me. This not only gives me the opportunity of testing the knowledge of the men in the class, and of seeing how they can explain to each other; but also it establishes their credit with one another and helps them to see that wisdom will not die with the European teacher. At first, when I began this plan they came to me in a body and said this kind of teaching was all fair enough in the matter of the Gospels, which they had often read before, but that it was unreasonable in the matter of the Old Testament, which was quite new to them. One man took up his parable and said he was going to Toro with his boy, who had never been on that road before, and he asked the boy the names of the hills they saw in the distance. This man, Nua Nakiwafu, asked me if I thought it was fair to ask the boy such questions. I managed to get out of the difficulty, and as I passed the window of the room on my way home I heard the men discussing whether I had seen the point of the parable or not.

"Not quite fair!"

At the conclusion of the class, which lasts for four hours each day, two of the men conduct Bible-classes at the houses of some of the chiefs.

Literary work.

The Literary Work has been entrusted to the Rev. W. A. Crabtree, who arrived at Mengo in August, and at once devoted himself to the preparation of an exercise-book, a dictionary, and a grammar, in addition to the revision of existing translations. He writes concerning some of the problems by which he is confronted:—

Influence of the Bible on the language.

There is no native literature, and the average person is content with one word to denote vaguely several different ideas or objects. One has to resist this tendency to vagueness and to reducing the vocabulary to the two or three thousand words such as would in England be used by children under ten years of age, and also another tendency, viz., to represent English words and ideas by the same words and ideas in Luganda, instead of by transforming them into the native idiom. This tendency is especially strong amongst the Protestant Christians; they try to conform their speech to the language of the books the Europeans have translated for them, or to the speech of the particular European who happens to be in charge of their district as a missionary. Consequently, outsiders who are not brought in contact with the European or his books cannot fully understand them in church, much less in open-air preaching, which is not often attempted.

Mr. Crabtree is the editor of a monthly type-written paper which is now circulated in Uganda.

Hospital. An addition to the Mission Hospital, which, as mentioned in last year's Report, was opened in June, 1897, was made in the following November, when a new ward containing twenty beds, which was built by the Native Government, was opened. Among the 282 in-patients were several Soudanese women, who had been accidentally hit when the fort at Kabagambi was stormed. One of them was said by the Government doctor to be a regular virago, but she did not give any trouble, and appeared to be most grateful for the kindness with which she was treated.

Vitality of patients. Dr. Cook was struck with the vitality of the Natives. One man was brought with his collar-bone smashed by a bullet, which had also perforated his lung and chipped off part of his vertebral column, but he made an excellent recovery; while another, who had been hit by three bullets, and underwent five operations while he was in the hospital, eventually left able to walk, though with a stiff leg as his left knee-joint had been shattered. The spiritual work among the patients was lovingly and patiently carried on: every day there was morning prayer in the wards, with a short exposition, generally of some passage from the Gospels, and evening prayer, with or without an address. Dr. Cook took the services in the men's ward, and Miss Timpson those in the ward for women. There were but few baptisms in the hospital, for the rule was only to baptize the dying there, and to send those who recovered and desired to become Christians to their own churches for instruction and baptism. Of one who was baptized, Dr. Cook says:—

Joyful in tribulation. The man's case was very pathetic—a bullet had carried away much of his mouth and the fore-part of his tongue, breaking the lower jaw. For seven days before reaching us he had taken nothing but water, and he arrived in an indescribable condition. Careful nursing fanned the flickering flame of life for a little longer, and he was, at his special request, baptized before he died. One evening shortly before he was taken I bent down and asked him if he was afraid to go. I had to listen attentively to catch the hardly audible answer made by the poor mutilated tongue: "I rejoice very, very much." Truly, "Though He slay me, yet will I trust Him," might have been written over that man's bed.

"Glorious death-bed testimonies." Criticisms have been passed on the superficiality of much of the religion of the Baganda, but I would like to put on record the fact that I have never seen a Christian Muganda express any fear of dying. We have had many glorious death-bed testimonies, and that is a time when the reality of a man's faith comes out.

The number of attendances at the dispensary was 16,659.

A great deal of Mr. C. W. Hattersley's time was occupied with keeping the accounts of the Mission, but he also took part with Miss Chadwick in conducting the classes. The average attendance of young children during the autumn was 125, and earlier in the year it was even higher; but the war and various epidemics affected the numbers. The parents appeared anxious that their children should be educated, and in a few cases took strong measures with would-be truants, but the majority of the children needed no stimulus to induce them to attend beyond their own anxiety to learn. The figures quoted above refer to the numbers who attended from 8 to 9.30 a.m.; at the latter hour the infants left, and their places were then taken by women and youths; at 10.30, again, these were joined by the teachers, who received instruction in writing. Mr. Hattersley says that many of the scholars will probably hold leading positions in the country, since among them are the queen sister, and the children of the Katikiro. He adds:— Classes.

> It is a real pleasure to teach the majority of the children. Their intelligence is far in advance of anything I ever anticipated, and, given the same advantages, they would compare very favourably with English children, and I do not say this without a very considerable knowledge of the capabilities of English children, gained in teaching them at home. Intelligent scholars.
> The adults, too, are in many cases very quick to learn. As an example I may mention one man who commenced to learn to write in June, and by October could write in a good hand a really good letter with capitals in their proper places, and well formed. When he commenced coming to our classes he knew only a few letters of the script characters, and I am glad to say his aptitude is only a sample of the intelligence of very many.

Gayaza is the central station of a district inhabited by about 10,000 people, very few of whom are Protestant Christians. The bad example of the leading chief is doubtless largely responsible for the limited extent to which Christianity has spread. For the first five months of the year 1898 the Rev. H. W. Tegart was in charge of the work in this district; but when he left in June for Mityana, Mr. H. E. Maddox, who had then only been four months in the country, took his place. He found an able helper in Zakayo Buligwanga, the principal native teacher, an earnest, steady, and clever man, whose patient efforts to induce the people to listen to the "words of salvation," and his self-control when provoked, were alike admirable. The little temporary church made of grass and reeds collapsed in the autumn, and considerable difficulty was experienced in inducing the Christians to build another in its place; but eventually the exhortations at the services proved successful, and a strong though plain little edifice was erected entirely by the voluntary efforts of the Natives. Even the women took their part, levelling the floor, and bringing the grass for thatching. There were sometimes as many as 200 persons at the Sunday services in Gayaza itself, and many Gayaza. An earnest, steady, and clever native helper.

others attended the forty churches scattered about the district. These are grouped together for convenience in organizing, Gayaza, Kitanda, Kitukutwe, Kitegombwa, and Kitemanyangamba being the centres. At each of these places a teacher trained in Mengo is stationed, who prepares the candidates for examination with a view to baptism. Miss M. S. Thomsett and Miss B. Taylor were permitted to return to their work among the women and children in May, but the former writes:—

> I found the place greatly changed, many of the old faces gone, and the new ones did not want to know one. We had no welcome, and we have been trying ever since to try and win the people round; but it is hard work, and we meet with very varying success. We find this too a very changing population; the people go into the various houses for a little, and then you go again to find the house shut up and the people gone.

Among the classes conducted was one for women teachers, which was not very satisfactory; it began with six members, one of whom was soon suspended for gross misconduct, and two others left Gayaza, and there were none forthcoming to take the places thus left vacant. Twenty-three women who had been carefully prepared were confirmed on the occasion of the Bishop's visit at the end of May, 1898. Communicants' classes were afterwards held for them and the other Christians. The school for children afforded more encouragement than any other branch of the work, the attendance sometimes being as large as sixty. Most of the children came from heathen homes, and were densely ignorant, but a few of the bigger boys made good progress. While educational work thus occupied the mornings, the afternoons were generally devoted to visiting, Miss Thomsett going to the houses near to Gayaza, and Miss Taylor to those at a distance. The latter took a weekly Bible-reading at the "garden" of one of the chiefs, which was attended by from forty to seventy people. Her bicycle was of great use in moving about the country, though she remarks pathetically that the Gayaza paths leave much to be desired!

PROVINCES OF BULEMEZI AND BURULE.

The year proved a chequered one for the work in the Province of Bulemezi, owing to political events. Five times at least were there wars, or rumours of wars, and for a few weeks it was necessary to abandon the work; but in spite of all these disturbances, and the consequent falling-off in attendance at church, and in the collections, considerable progress was made. The Rev. C. H. T. Ecob, who took up his sojourn at Waluleta, South Bulemezi, in February, 1898, was the only European missionary there, excepting for a few months while the Rev. H. Clayton was introducing him to the work. There were about 100 adults reading daily in the church, who were taught by Mr. Ecob and the Rev. N. Mudeka, the native deacon. The Bishop paid a visit to the station in June, and confirmed eighty-two men and thirty-four women.

The name of the station in the northern part of the Province, where Mr. H. B. Lewin resided, was changed from Kisitala to KIBUBIRA in May, 1898, when the Rev. S. Mukasa, one of the native deacons, who was appointed chief, came to live at that place. Three small Mission churches were built in distant parts of the station in order that all the people might be reached and the pressure on the accommodation of the central church removed. This central church suffered at one time from the incursion of swarms of young locusts, which entered it in thousands, and destroyed part of the roof. Their advent necessitated a shortening of the services, for it was by no means easy to read or preach with locusts creeping about, and constantly dropping from above on to the books! Mr. Lewin visited the churches, in the north and north-west of the Province, the number of which was increased during the year by two, and found that the work was progressing well, especially at Kujunga, a border village, and a perilous place in troublous times, where the men were accustomed to go to church with their guns, leaving them outside during the service. New out-stations were opened at Kitanda and Luwube.

Locusts in a church.

A frontier congregation.

At the commencement of 1898 the Province of Buruli, in Bunyoro, was separated from that country and made part of Uganda, the whole of it being portioned out among Baganda chiefs, Anderiya Kimbugwe, the head of them, having his capital at Kisolezi. In the course of a fortnight's itineration in August, Mr. Lewin visited seven of the great chiefs, and came in contact with at least 300 Baganda Christians and readers, about fifty of whom were communicants. Seven churches had been built, or were in process of construction, but very few of the original inhabitants, the Banyoro, were reading. It was hoped, however, that the Christian Baganda would endeavour to tell those among whom they lived of the way of salvation, and three native teachers were sent to assist in the work.

Work in a new province.

PROVINCES OF SINGO AND KITUNZI.

During the rebellion, and the consequent absence of the missionaries from the Province of Singo, the Rev. Nua Kikwabanga went to Singo from Luba's, in Busoga, to baptize some candidates. In all, 149 persons were received into the visible Church, and it was found that in spite of the disturbances considerable congregations were assembled.

Bishop Tucker confirmed thirty-three men and twenty women at MITYANA in July, 1898, and at the same time the Baganda teachers in the Provinces of Singo and Kitunzi were gathered together for encouragement and exhortation. The new Mukwenda, Paulo, whose appointment was mentioned in last year's Report (page 134), is a great help in the work, and both he and his wife teach daily in the church, and do their utmost for the extension of Christ's Kingdom.

Mr. T. B. Fletcher is still stationed at KASAKA, in the Province of Kitunzi.

PROVINCE OF KYAGWE.

Ngogwe.

The Rev. G. K. Baskerville of NGOGWE, was able to remain at his station throughout the year, but the Soudanese revolt made it desirable for the ladies, Miss E. L. Pilgrim and Miss G. E. Bird, to take refuge in the capital, where they could be more effectually protected in case of need. Many parts of the district were in a very disturbed state, and for a long time watch had to be kept all night. The numbers who attended church and the classes, however, did not suffer, but on the contrary rather increased, since many were anxious to be identified with the Europeans. The pastoral work was cared for by the Rev. Y Kaidzi, who examined all the candidates for baptism, presided at the meetings of the Church Council, and as far as possible inquired into cases brought up for decision and pronounced judgment. Unhappily the exercise of discipline was necessary, for the head teacher had to be removed, and two other leading teachers were convicted of gross sin and dismissed from office. All the candididates for confirmation were interviewed by Mr. Baskerville, and 124 of them, sixty-one men and sixty-three women, were presented to the Bishop on the occasion of his visit in May, 1898; after the confirmation, 270 communicants gathered round the Table of the Lord. Many of these candidates for confirmation were prepared by Miss Pilgrim and Miss Bird, who were allowed to return to Ngogwe in April, 1898. The ladies conducted various classes for women and children. Fourteen women were in a normal class for teachers under Miss Bird, several of whom were very promising; and Miss Pilgrim had an average attendance of over 100 in her school for children. The chiefs and others are happily beginning to realize the importance of educating the young, and are ready to send their children to the school. From twenty-five to thirty people visited the dispensary every day, and the simple cases were prescribed for by Miss Pilgrim, while those which were more serious were sent to Dr. Cook at Mengo. Once a week an open-air meeting was held in a distant garden. Some of the Christians accompanied the missionaries, and went round to the different houses asking the people to attend the service. A new house for the ladies was erected, and the frame-work of a permanent two-storied building for Mr. Baskerville put up, under the superintendence of Mr. K. E. Borup, who was at Ngogwe for several months.

Work among women and children.

Evangelistic work in the district was a good deal hindered, for itinerating was out of the question during several months; but in November, Mr. Baskerville and the lady missionaries visited nearly all the country churches, and found that in most places the work was progressing satisfactorily. At Sayi a successful open-air meeting was held, at which about 200 people were present, the majority of whom were not church-goers. Efforts were made to bring about a larger measure of decentralization, and organize a number of circuits, each with a presiding teacher in charge, but difficulty was experienced in finding capable superintendents.

Nakanonyi.

No report has been received from NAKANONYI, where the Rev. G. R. Blackledge is stationed. Miss Thomsett and Miss Taylor, of Gayaza, paid a visit to the station, and being the first English ladies to be seen in Bukoba, attracted great crowds of visitors, as well as good attendances at the special services for women which they conducted. Two of the Mengo women teachers helped in the addresses, and manifested much earnestness in their work.

SESE ISLANDS.

Bukasa.

The Rev. Martin J. Hall was alone at BUKASA for some months of the year, and felt the extreme isolation of his post, which is two and a half days' journey from the residence of his nearest fellow-countryman. In contrast to his experiences in former years, he suffered a good deal from ill-health, and in November, 1897, was disabled from continuous work by a weakening illness, in the course of which he met with much kindness from the Roman Catholic fathers on the big island of Sese. The disturbances in Uganda were not much felt, and in many respects real progress was made in the work among the fifty-six congregations, owing largely to the efforts of the native deacon, the Rev. Henry Mukasa, and other agents. Mr. Hall says:—

A beautiful Christian character.

> I cannot speak too highly of the spirit and work of my dear colleague, the Rev. Henry Mukasa, a man of great wisdom, patience, and untiring zeal, a man of prayer, and a man of action. Though not a brilliant preacher, he is a rare teacher and visitor. His great humility is a marked and beautiful feature in a beautiful Christian character, and I regard him as "a brother beloved."

Salaries of native teachers.

Improvement was manifested in the quality and spirit of the sixty teachers, all but three of whom are islanders, and are supported by local contributions. In spite of the influx of wealth into the country, which is felt even in so remote a part as the Sese Islands, these men are content to work for 1,000 cowries, about Rs. $3\frac{1}{2}$, a year. Special classes for them were held from time to time. In the autumn a band of voluntary workers commenced to visit in the gardens, with the result that a marked increase was observed in the numbers attending the reading classes. The people made a better use than formerly of the Christian ordinances of marriage, burial, and infant baptism.

Demand for books.

Another hopeful feature was the demand for books, which was so great that it was found impossible to supply single Gospels, Reference New Testaments, and hymn-books fast enough to meet the constant requests for them. Regular classes for children were begun in the course of the year, and many of these looked upon Mr. Hall's house as almost their home, and spent much of the day with him, joining him at meals, watching him at work, and, when tired, lying down on the floor to sleep. Heathenism, which still has a large following on the islands, suffered a heavy blow by the death of the oldest and most influential sorceress in the country. She heard the Gospel before her death from one of the native teachers, and though at first she was violently opposed to the message, she gradually softened, and became a quiet and interested listener.

Death of a sorceress.

II. BUSOGA.

BUKALEBA.

Bukaleba.

For the first time since the station at Luba's, in South Busoga, was originally opened, the missionaries in charge of the work are able to speak of distinct encouragement. It was stated in last year's Report that opposition and disappointment had been the experience of 1897. Happily a change has come over the scene, and the outlook at the end of 1898 was very different from that twelve months earlier. An important step, which conduced in some measure to this improvement, was taken during the year by the removal of the Mission station from Kigwisa to Bukaleba, a hill once dedicated to a lubare. Many advantages were gained by this step. The new station is situated on a more healthy site than that previously occupied, and is within easier reach both of Luba's compound and also of the fort. This latter fact means a good deal, for the Government have ordered every Busoga chief to build a "town residence" either on Bukaleba or on the plain in which the fort stands, with the result that the station is now in an excellent centre, and within half an hour's walk of the most distant of the great chiefs. Another noteworthy change was the substitution of Luganda for Lusoga as the medium for instruction. The Rev. H. W. Weatherhead, who was alone in South Busoga from May to November, when the state of his health obliged him to leave, writes:—

> Hitherto the use of Lusoga has been pressed, and a few books have been printed in that tongue by Mr. Rowling. But now it has been settled that Luganda is the better language for the people to be taught in, as the Basoga either know or can learn it very easily, and there are already books printed in Luganda. At the same time it is a great help when Europeans or Baganda teachers can speak Lusoga, for in the "gardens" the peasants seldom talk anything else. Teachers are now ordered to teach in whichever language the people wish, and in every case but one (the island of Bugaya) the people prefer Luganda. In the one exception they at first preferred Luganda, but it was refused them, and they have now got used to the Lusoga. But as there are only two Gospels printed in Lusoga they are bound eventually to read Luganda.

Improved attitude of chiefs and people.

But the most striking change of all was in the attitude of the people towards the message of salvation. Prejudices broke down; reading, formerly looked upon with apprehension, came to be regarded as a thing to be desired; several chiefs, previously bitterly opposed to Christianity, intimated their willingness to receive instruction; and one in particular who on his accession to office drove out the teacher, and burnt a number of books, ceased to hinder his people from learning, and even went so far as to undertake to lodge and keep the teacher. It must not be supposed, however, that the people are anxious for salvation. They are only "taking the first step which the Baganda took some years ago," and many in all probability have mixed motives in wishing to learn to read. At the same time it is a significant fact that in the three months, July to September, more reading-books and Scriptures were sold than in the previous three years. After the removal of the station to its present site, a great improvement was witnessed in the numbers attending the Sunday services, which rarely fell below 200. Another cheering sign consisted in the building of a temporary church by the voluntary efforts of the Native Christians. The work among them was largely in the hands of the Rev. Nua Kikwabanga, who is described as a real missionary, thoroughly wise and reliable, and an excellent preacher.

Luba learning to read.

The chief, Luba, was very friendly throughout the year, and not only put no hindrance in the way of the women being taught, but even encouraged his boys to learn to read. He himself made strenuous efforts in that direction, and exhibited remarkable perseverance and determination. Mr. Weatherhead says that it is pathetic to see the old man seated on his chair with Nua beside him, repeating over and over again the five vowels, and forgetting them as soon as he says them; and no less pathetic must it have been to hear the first exclamations of a dawning moral perception when a picture of the temptation of our Lord in the wilderness appeared on the scene, and Luba pointed to Satan, saying, "Ah, he is a bad man—he smokes bhang!" Smoking hemp is a common vice in Busoga, and had been mentioned as one of the habits which mark the followers of the Evil One in that land. Luba, on his own initiative, built a church in his compound, in order that there might be a place where his people might "read" every day, and evening prayers might be regularly held. Service is conducted there every Sunday afternoon, since the chief, who attends the older church on the hill regularly in the morning, is too old to go up the hill twice in the day. Mr. Weatherhead thus describes the opening of this little place of worship :—

Immediately on my arrival a messenger was sent off to tell a chief named Menya to come to the service and bring his people. Luba is nominally paramount chief in Busoga. Menya obeyed, and duly turned up, and at our first service in the new church seventy people were present, while much the same number attended the church on the hill. I purposely made the service informal, and especially the sermon, which was about the brazen serpent, in which I got them to answer a lot of questions and so secured their interest. All repeated the text aloud three times, and before we closed could explain its chief points. Service over, I asked who would like some hymn-singing. About thirty immediately responded, and sat in a semicircle, and we sang till I had no voice left. Fortunately Wilson arrived and set me free, and we were told dinner was ready, to which Luba had invited us. It was a sort of church-warming dinner, and the old man invited nearly all our teachers.

And he concludes his Annual Letter :—

I have spoken of the bright side because there is a bright side; and I have over-coloured nothing. But while we thank God for what is manifestly His work here, let us remember we are only just beginning. Things will go smoothly for some time yet, but the "offence of the cross" is bound to come, and doubtless many of our readers will fall off when they fully understand that following Christ means parting with much they hold dear. "Pray ye, therefore."

And he adds, referring to his impending removal to Uganda owing to illness :—

This is not the place to say much of my regret at having to leave this happy work, but I must add I have felt leaving Busoga more than leaving an extremely happy curacy in England to come out to Africa.

IGANGA.

Iganga. — It was not until April, 1898, that it was deemed safe for Mr. A. Wilson to return to his work at IGANGA, in North Busoga. He found on his arrival that the attendance at the services showed a falling-off, owing in large measure to the opening of the new station at Bukaleba, which has already been referred to. At the same time, progress was apparent in every direction, chiefly in the numbers reading for baptism, and in the demand for copies of the New Testament. Two of the out-stations had to be abandoned, but, on the other hand, three new ones were opened, two of them in the country of Tabingwa, two of whose sons were reading the Gospel, while one expressed a desire to come forward for baptism. During the year an offer of service was received from a Musoga, a young man who is spoken of as "a keen Bible student, and one who has helped many in their efforts to learn to read." This was the first offer of service from one of the Basoga. After the illness of Mr. Weatherhead in September, and his removal to Uganda, Mr. Wilson was responsible for the work at both the stations in Busoga, and also for the supervision of the twenty out-stations.

III. BUNYORO.

In place of Kabarega, a man notorious for many years past as a slave dealer, &c., the Government appointed his son Kiteyimbwa, a boy of some ten years of age, as king of Bunyoro. Both the king and the Lubuga (king's sister) were captured some years since and taken to Uganda, where they commenced to learn to read. In September, 1898, Mr. H. B. Lewin, of Kibubira, accompanied the king to his capital, Busindi, which consists of the fort, the king's residence, and some 500 huts. The people are described as being a very inferior race to the Baganda; most of them dress in skins, and cover themselves with charms. It is said that the chiefs are not favourably disposed to the king, for they have become accustomed to being ruled entirely by Europeans, and do not like being under the control of any one else. Mr. Lewin writes as follows of his experience and the prospects of the work:—

A country everywhere open.

On the afternoon of the day of my arrival I held a service in the small church, which is built close to the palace, and twenty, including the king and king's sister, came; afterwards every morning and afternoon I took both of these and a few others in St. John's Gospel. As soon as the people heard I had books for sale they came in great numbers to buy, and when I came away I left 150 reading Mateka and ten copies of the Gospels. The daily attendance at church was eighty, and on Sunday 100. And the whole of this work, building a church and implanting a desire in the Bunyoro to read, has been brought about by different Christian Baganda chiefs, who have been sent out to Busindi at different times. Again, at Kawola, a place two marches from Busindi, the chief, Byabaswezi, can read a Gospel, and he had built a church, which was burnt down a little time ago, to which some eighty persons came. I would reckon the present number of Banyoro readers as at least 200, and so far there is no other teaching in the country, and everywhere is open to us. I left Tomasi Senfuma, one of the Baganda licensed lay readers, to teach the king, but the work of a whole country is too large for him, and I trust soon a European may be forthcoming to take charge of the work. Four chiefs besides the king are already reading, and it looks as if the Gospel of Christ was about to achieve the same triumph in North Bunyoro as it has already met with in Buganda and Toro.

Appeal from King of Bunyoro

Bishop Tucker received from Kiteyimbwa, the young king, an urgent appeal for teachers. The king wrote:—"Why remain in Uganda only? When I went there I saw Uganda—that the light had spread. But what about me? Do you not think of my country? Do you not know that it is a dark one? I want both the Bible and the Prayer-Book very much. . . My friend the Bishop, I beg you to send a European to teach me." The following February, on the 26th, the Bishop baptized both the king and the queen sister. The Rev. H. B. Fisher has been stationed at Kawola.

IV. TORO.

Bishop Tucker visited Toro in July, 1898. He discerned development in every branch of the work, which he described in the following terms:—

The number of our adherents has recently increased. In 1896 the King and the Namasole were the only chiefs to cast in their lot with us.

Now, however, it is far otherwise. The Katikiro is a candidate for baptism. So also is the Pokino, and Nyama, the young chief of Chuka. Nasaneri, the Sekibobo, has already been baptized, and is living a converted Christian life. Several chiefs, who for some time have been nominal Roman Catholics, have given up their empty profession, and, with numbers of their followers, have cast in their lot with us.

Spread of the Gospel in Toro.

Nor is the change in the outward aspect of things less remarkable than the spiritual progress that has been made. On the occasion of my former visit there was not even the semblance of a Mission station. I lived with Mr. Fisher in a beehive-shaped native hut. Now, however, I find two excellent houses—one occupied by Mr. Buckley, who is in charge of the work, and the other by Mr. Lloyd, and a church which will accommodate, at a pinch, 1,000 worshippers. Nor is this all. The work, which then was practically confined to Butiti and Beterikema, the capital, is now being carried on at no less than twenty out-stations. At these stations there are actively engaged in the work twenty Baganda teachers, sent out by the Mengo Church Council, but maintained entirely by the Church in Toro. Besides these there are no fewer than forty-five local teachers, Toro Christians who have given themselves to the work of the Church, and who are maintained locally.

Beterikema.

The Rev. T. R. Buckley, who was at BETERIKEMA during the year with Mr. A. B. Lloyd (now at home), mentions in his Annual Letter that the Native Church was something more than self-supporting, for the Christians collected among themselves a sum equivalent to £25 or £30, which they sent to Uganda so as to express in a practical manner their sympathy with their brethren there in their heavy trials. It is also worthy of note that out of 100 communicants, no less than forty-five, nearly one-half, are teachers. All who are baptized are by their own voluntary act pledged teetotalers, drinking intoxicants being very general and associated with heathen worship.

Forty-five per cent. of communicants teachers.

On the Sunday after the Bishop's arrival forty-seven communicants gathered round the Table of the Lord, and when on the following day, Dr. Cook, who accompanied the Bishop, commenced his medical work, he was soon surrounded by a number of eager applicants for treatment.

After spending a few days in the capital, the Bishop proceeded to visit some of the outlying posts. First he went to the country of Nkodjo, the brother of the king, of whom he says:—

A chief's conversion.

The story of his conversion is a very interesting one. Until he had heard the Gospel his life was very wild and unrestrained—drunkenness and debauchery were its main features. But Christ found him, and he was arrested in his wild and mad career almost with the suddenness of a Saul of Tarsus. It has not been merely a change in the outward life. It has been that—a complete abandonment of the old sins—but it has also been a great inward and spiritual change. A love of God's Word and work, a love for God's people and a zeal in His service, are the distinguishing marks of the new life. He has learnt to read, and is very earnest in getting others taught. He has built a church and maintains a teacher.

The missionaries received a warm greeting from both the chief and the people, some of the latter even plunging into a swamp so as to be the first to express their welcome. The next place visited was Butanika, the country place of the Katikiro of Toro, a man who at first used to go to church for the purpose of scoffing and jeering, but who afterwards embraced Christianity, and now does all he can to help it forward. The regular services were held on the Sunday in the church, which will accommodate 120 people, and a large number of sick people crowded to consult the doctor during the two days that he remained there. A day or two afterwards an interesting expedition was made to Katwe, which is on the shores of the Albert Edward Nyanza, and from there to one of the islands of that lake, on which was found a fishing village with a population of about 1,000 souls. There were no readers on the island, but the chief said that many would put themselves under instruction if the doctor was able to remove the cataract which had caused his aged father to lose his eye-sight. The old man promised to cross to the mainland in order that the necessary operation might be performed, but he must have been influenced by the medicine men or in some other way prejudiced against the Europeans, for he failed to put in an appearance. On August 7th the Bishop passed on to a village on the slopes of Mount Ruwenzori, where he found two teachers doing a valuable and successful work. He describes his journey, and his delight at what he found, in the following graphic words :—

Once a scoffer now a helper.

Leaving Katwe on August 6th, we started on the following morning for a village on the slopes of Ruwenzori, where we have two teachers at work. The journey was a very trying one for our porters, as a great deal of mountain climbing had to be done. After leaving the plain where we had been encamped, we struck up one of the great spurs of the mountain, and for two hours our journey was one continual climb. As we rested from time to time we were entranced with the views which on every side met our gaze. The Albert Edward Nyanza was the principal feature in the landscape. We could trace its outline far away into the distance, until it was lost in the haze beyond. On either hand were deep ravines, whose rugged sides were varied here and there by clumps of wood, or by a mountain torrent. Clouds rolled among the peaks, which reared their heads heavenward. Deep shadows in the cavernous recesses of the hills added mystery and solemnity to a scene weird and striking in the extreme. Occasionally we caught glimpses of cultivated patches which told of human life, and the question rose almost involuntarily to our lips, "Was it possible that to these recesses of Mount Ruwenzori the Gospel had penetrated, and that in these dark valleys the work of Christ was gaining ground?" Yes, thank God, it was possible! Even in these mountain chasms there were men to be found who had left their pleasant homes in Buganda to carry the Gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ to those who had never heard of the love of God, and whose lot was cast in these comparatively wild and lonely glens.

Gospel teachers on Mount Ruwenzori.

Two days later the Bishop started on his return journey to Beterikema. After a few days' rest, preparations were made for a second journey, this time to Mboga, on the confines of the

On the confines of the Great Forest.

Great Forest, which was reached on August 21st. The Bishop thus describes his reception:—

After an interesting walk of some three hours we halted in an open clearing for some refreshment. Whilst preparations were being made for a cup of tea we discussed the question as to how near we were to our destination and whether we were expected by our teacher Apolo and the Christian readers. The question was answered for us. Just where the path emerges from the long grass we heard the sound of many voices. In a moment or two there burst into the open space in which we were seated a crowd of young men and boys. Apolo, our teacher, was at the head of this little band of Christians. They made a rush at us with shouts and cries of warmest welcome. I had three or four attempting to hug me at once. My hat was knocked off, and I seemed in a fair way to be torn in pieces. It was a long while before quiet was restored or these dear lads ceased to thank us for coming to see them. I have had many a warm welcome in Uganda on visiting this or that Mission station, but never have I experienced anything like the warmth of welcome which was extended to me by this little Christian community on the outskirts of Stanley's dark forest. On resuming the march we found that we had yet some distance to go, but the time seemed very short in the company of our warm-hearted friends. Messengers from the chief met us continually with his greetings. At last he himself came into view at the top of the last hill with a number of his followers. On reaching Mboga itself another enthusiastic welcome awaited us. At length, almost overwhelmed with congratulations and thanks, we reached the chief's house and rested for a while. Then came a short service of prayer and praise, and we adjourned to our tents, which had been pitched near the church.

Never so warm a welcome.

The account of the way in which Christianity was carried to this remote station, 300 miles from Mengo, is so deeply interesting that it must be quoted at length:—

The instrument has not been the European missionary, but the native evangelist from Buganda. The Gospel was first of all preached in Toro. In Toro some of the people of Mboga, who happened to be residing there—the chief, among others—heard it. This led to Baganda teachers being sent across the Semliki River and settling amongst them, in whose hearts the seed had been sown. The little community of readers increased rapidly, and the desire for a knowledge of the Word seemed to be spreading, when the followers of the Lubari superstition made a desperate effort to extinguish the light that seemed burning up so brightly. The chief, Tabola, was won back to his old allegiance, and at the instigation of the Lubari priests forbade any one to read the Christian books. Many, however, had found the Word of God suited to their taste, and continued their reading in secret. Several readers were caught, and in some cases cruelly beaten. Still, however, reading went on. The Baganda teachers were in hiding, but were secretly supplied with the necessaries of life by those who would not desert them in their hour of need. Tabola, the chief, consulted one of the diviners of Lubari as to their whereabouts, and was told that they had returned to Toro. Discovering later, however, that this was not so, and that he had been deceived, he flew into a violent passion and declared that the Lubari priests were rogues and liars, and that he would have nothing more to do with them. He stated further that the God whose followers he had been persecuting was a God of truth, and that He should be his God.

Teachers in hiding,

The persecuted believers, with the leader, came out from their hiding-places, and reading went on openly once more. A church was built, and everything seemed prospering, when the Manyuema mutineers broke into the country and swept everything before them. The church was burnt, as well as the chief houses; indeed, the whole country was devastated, and once more the Christians sought refuge in the long grass.

With the passing of the mutineers came a return of prosperity, which received another blow by a most unexpected incident. This was nothing less than the arrest of Apolo, the principal teacher, on a charge of murder. It came about in this way: a spear had been left outside the house of a Christian woman named Mariamu in a most awkward position; an alarm of some sort was raised outside, and the poor woman rushed out, tripped and fell, impaling herself on the spear. The whole thing was a pure accident. Apolo, however, happened to be passing near the spot, and, hearing the groans of the poor woman, went to her assistance. Seeing her desperate condition, he called some men near by to come to his help. On seeing what had happened, they accused him of murdering the woman. He was brought before the chief, who sent the prisoner with his accusers to Toro. Owing to the absence of the officer in charge of the district, he was kept in prison for some time; but on the arrival of Captain Sitwell, he was discharged without even the formality of a trial.

in the slave-gang, and in prison;

It would be impossible for me to speak too highly of both Apolo and Seduraka, our two teachers at Mboga. The former has suffered much for the cause of Christ. He has had false accusations more than once made against him; he has been in the chain gang, as well as in prison; he has been beaten, and suffered the loss of all his property. Actually, while in prison, he taught his fellow-prisoners to read. He has given up the comforts of home, and the comparatively luxurious life in Buganda for the isolation and hard living of a strange land—and all that he may bear his part in the work of evangelizing the Heathen.

Nor is Seduraka one whit behind his brother in evangelistic zeal. When he visited Buganda a short while since, his friends said to him, "Surely you are not going back to such an out-of-the-way place as Mboga?" "Yes, I am," he said; and when he persisted and commenced to make preparations for his journey, they seized him and tied him, declaring that he was a madman. He managed, however, to escape from their clutches, and is now at work at his old station. I would that there were many such madmen in the world as Apolo and Seduraka. It is largely owing to their steadfastness and zeal, to their courage and fidelity to their Master, that the work at Mboga has assumed its present dimensions, and is so bright with hope for the future.

Mr. Buckley gives some further details of the faithfulness of the converts during the time of persecution to which the Bishop refers, and says:—

Persecution.

The Christians when on the road coming to read were met by parties of men and beaten; so bad did the persecution become, that women were beaten and their clothes stripped off them, and in this manner they had to go to their homes. One teacher had to run away, as his life was in danger; the other teacher was arrested on a false charge, and sent to prison to await his trial. The chief's brother and several Christians had to come to Beterikema for protection. On the flight of some of the Christians an order was given that ferries on the Semliki River should be watched, and any Christian attempting to cross over to the other side should be seized and killed. The Christians who remained at Mboga, notwithstanding all this persecution, and though they had no teachers, yet managed to meet daily in the house of a Christian woman, Elizabeti, and there read and pray. They could not do so openly, but on the pretence of going out to gather firewood they used to come one by one to this woman's house. In a short time they were found out doing so, and then they met in the long grass, changing the place of meeting from day to day. At last these daily readings had to be relinquished, as the length of time they were absent from their homes aroused suspicion, and then they could only meet together for prayer, and finally they were watched so closely that they could only meet together very seldom. The majority of these were women; the remainder were a few little boys. Two men who did not get across the Semliki in time had to hide for two days and nights in the long grass, Elizabeti sending them food secretly. Elizabeti then took them into her house, and for weeks they were hidden there.

Baptisms and confirmations.

Soon after the arrival of the missionary party the examination of the candidates for baptism and confirmation commenced. Amongst them was Elizabeti, who had more than once been flogged because she would not give up reading, and also Tabola, the chief and former persecutor. His answers were remarkable for their accuracy, and he gave every sign of being a really changed man. He was baptized by the name of Paulo. In all, thirteen people were baptized and seven confirmed on August 24th, and the day was one of great joy.

Requests for teachers.

From Mboga the message of salvation has spread to a neighbouring village, where there are sixty men and women under instruction. The Bahuku also, and the Bambubina, two of the tribes inhabiting the Great Forest, have asked that teachers may visit them, and some of the former have even learnt to read. The Bamba, another large tribe, have preferred a similar request, and the Bareka, a fierce people among whom it was not safe for a stranger to venture, are coming into contact with some of the teachers.

The Bishop, after returning to Beterikema, where he confirmed seventy candidates, thus summed up his impressions of the possibilities of advance:—

Possibilities of advance in and around Toro.

After looking at the work all round—after having seen something of the spirit of which the people are possessed, after having followed in the footsteps of the preacher and the teacher in these regions for weeks, after having witnessed the reality of the Christianity of those who have been converted, I say, without hesitation, bearing in mind all this, and remembering what God has done in Buganda during the last ten years, and what He has promised to do in answer to believing prayer—that we are within measurable distance of the evangelization of the whole Toro confederacy. Nay, more, I see no reason why Ankole should not shortly be entered (Toro is the door of Ankole), nor why, within a comparatively short time, work may not be commenced among the dwarfs of the Great Forest, nor why all the Western shores of the Albert Nyanza should not be evangelized, nor even why the Central Soudan should not be entered.

Here is a fit enterprise for the commemoration of the Centenary of the Church Missionary Society—an enterprise more glorious than words can describe, an enterprise that might well fire the ambition of the most ambitious, that might well satisfy the craving of those whose longing desire it is to follow in the footsteps of their Divine Lord and Master, and to devote their lives to the winning of those souls whom He has taught them to love, an enterprise which, if undertaken in the spirit of Christ, bestows upon those who engage in it deeper joys and greater blessings than any other service in which man can possibly be engaged. Is it to succeed, or is it to fail? It lies very much with the Church at home to say. The command is clear, the need is urgent, the door is still open.

After the Bishop's return from his visit to Toro, and the departure of Mr. Lloyd for England, the Rev. J. Roscoe joined Mr. Buckley in Toro, and took charge of the work there.

V. KOKI.

The work in Koki suffered greatly through the turbulent condition of the country, and the Rev. H. Clayton twice had his house burnt down by the rebels; once in January, 1898, when Mwanga and his following, after escaping from the Germans, made a raid in the country, and rendered it necessary for Mr. Clayton to leave the station, and the second time in the summer. During his enforced absence from his own station, Mr. Clayton resided with Mr. Ecob at Waluleta, in the Province of Bulemezi, and it was not until June that he was able once more to take up his work in Koki and in the province of Budu, which adjoins it to the north.

But notwithstanding all difficulties, reading went on steadily at Rakai, the capital of Kamswaga, the King of Koki, and forty-five adults were baptized, a larger number than in 1897. The king himself appeared to have given up his drinking habits; he did not, however, come forward for baptism because he still practised polygamy, but the native teacher, Zabuloni Kiride, "a thoroughly sensible and reliable man," was not without hope that he would shortly abandon that custom. The total number of baptized persons, excluding infants, was ninety-six, and there were some 500 readers. Rakai.

In the Province of Budu, Kajuna was the central station, and there was a congregation of about seventy or eighty people, nearly all of the peasant class. Sedulaka Kibuka was the head teacher, but he met with exceptional difficulty in his work, for the French priests had told the country-folk that only a European could teach, and that it was consequently useless to listen to a Muganda. Christian peasants.

VI. USUKUMA.

The missionaries at Nassa, the Rev. F. H. Wright and Mr. A. Whitehouse, were cheered by the arrival of Mr. R. Force-Jones in April, 1898. They were greatly grieved at the tidings of the death of the Rev. E. H. Hubbard, which Archdeacon Walker communicated when he visited Nassa in April, 1898. Five of Nassa.

the Baganda teachers whose terms of service had expired returned to their own country, and their places were filled by eight new men and the wives of four of them. There were twenty baptisms during the year, and the history of one of the converts, named Eliza, illustrates the power of a consistent Christian life. Mr. Whitehouse writes:—

A reviler and persecutor baptized.

Two of our Christian girls (who are orphans) are dependents of Eliza's husband, who is still a heathen. A few years ago Eliza, whose heathen name was Kwimba, used to revile, and in many little ways persecute these two girls, because they came to read, but after a time their patience under trial, and the humble Christian character exhibited by them in their heathen home, began to tell, persecution ceased, Kwimba herself became an inquirer, learned to read, was baptized, and is now one of our brightest Christians.

Mr. Whitehouse conducted a class for elder boys, which was attended by two of the sons of the king, but they did not manifest any desire for baptism. Twenty-six candidates were presented to Bishop Tucker for confirmation on the occasion of his visit in November. He crossed the lake in the steam-launch Ruwenzori, which took thirteen days to reach Nassa, and her boiler broke down every few hours. The return journey was made in canoes, and occupied two days less than the voyage in the launch! There are five out-stations occupied by Baganda teachers, at which the children came in fair numbers to be taught, but they appeared to be under the impression that they would be paid for their attendance. Several preaching tours were made among the Bajita, who live on the north side of Speke Gulf, and other tribes, and also in the districts lying to the east and south-east of Nassa.

EGYPT MISSION.

The original object of the Missions formerly grouped under the heading of the "Mediterranean Mission," which were begun at Malta in 1815, at the close of the great war, and were afterwards extended to Egypt, Abyssinia, Greece, Turkey, Asia Minor, and Palestine, was twofold: firstly, to revive the Eastern Churches; and, secondly, through them to evangelize the Mohammedans. Some very able and devoted Missionaries were employed in this work—Jowett, Gobat, Krapf, Pfander, Koelle, &c. But the hopes of the first founders of the Society were not fulfilled. Oriental Christendom manifested no readiness to be quickened into life by emissaries from the West; and Moslem fanaticism, which barely tolerated Greek and Armenian Christianity, utterly repudiated the Gospel when presented in a pure form. Despite treaties and concessions on paper, missionary effort among the Moslem population of the Turkish Empire is carried on under the most vexatious restrictions, and a Mussulman can only become a Christian at the imminent risk of liberty and life.

As above stated, the Society had formerly a Mission in Egypt, as part of its scheme for the revival of the Eastern Churches. Many of the Coptic clergy, and one Bishop, were trained in the C.M.S. Seminary at Cairo; but the visible results were small. In 1882, in response to the appeals of the late Miss Whately, and in consequence of the British occupation of Egypt, the Rev. F. A. Klein, formerly of Jerusalem, was sent to Cairo to begin a new Mission among the Mohammedans. A Medical Mission was opened in 1889, and ladies were added to the staff in the following year.

Egyptian Soudan.

THROUGH the signal victory over the Khalifa's army which was given in the providence of God to the combined British and Egyptian forces under Lord Kitchener, a large portion of the Soudan was reclaimed from what was practically barbaric rule. The region thus thrown open to the resources of civilization comprises a little more than a third of the whole area of the Soudan proper, and contains, roughly speaking, 1,200,000 square miles. It is divided into two tolerably clearly marked portions: the northern extending from Assouan to the Sobat, and the southern from the Sobat and Bahr-el-Ghazal to Uganda. The physical features of these two regions differ widely, and the inhabitants are as diverse as the countries in which they live. In the northern portion there are many so-called Arab tribes, who are not unacquainted with the arts of reading and writing, and possess a certain measure of civilization; but in the south there are no large towns, the villages often are mere collections of huts, the Natives wear little or no clothing, and the people of at least one tribe are cannibals.

Gordon Memorial Mission.

Directly the Khalifa's forces were overthrown, and even before, when their defeat, though not yet an accomplished fact, appeared to be imminent, the thoughts of the Committee of the Society were turned to the possibility of soon realizing the long-cherished hope of having a Gordon Memorial Mission to the inhabitants of the Soudan. Gordon, as is well known, strongly sympathized with all endeavours to spread abroad the knowledge of the Saviour, and the present Archbishop of Canterbury has stated that just before he went out the last time to the Soudan (in 1884), he called upon him, Dr. Temple, who was then Bishop of Exeter, and told him that he wished to make the Gospel known to the people who would come under his care, and that he desired to have the Bishop's authorization to baptize any of them who should be willing to confess the faith of Christ. During the early days of the Uganda Mission, General, then Colonel, Gordon was in close correspondence with the Society, and while at Khartoum he rendered most kind and generous help to a party of C.M.S. missionaries who were on their way to Uganda, viâ the Nile. It was therefore fitting that upon his death, in 1885, a memorial fund should be raised by the Society in order that a Mission to the Soudan might be established, with Khartoum, if possible, as the headquarters. A tentative effort was soon made at Suakim by Dr. Harpur, of the Egypt Mission, but it was found that that place was not suitable as a base for a Mission to the Soudanese, and it became necessary quietly to await the evolution of events. Soon after the victory of Omdurman, arrangements were made for some missionaries to hold themselves in readiness to advance; the Government officials in Egypt were approached; and when Lord Kitchener arrived in England he was asked, and kindly consented, to meet a deputation from the Society. The reason for this step was that while the Soudan is in a disturbed condition it is under military rule, and missionaries, in common with other would-be travellers or foreign residents, can only enter the country with the consent of the authorities. The deputation, while meeting with all kind consideration, were informed that the authorities were not at that time in a position to allow of the opening of a Christian Mission among the fanatical Moslems in the Soudan. On the other hand, they were told that no obstacle beyond the physical conditions of the regions concerned, and the difficulties of transport, need stand in the way of beginning work among the Pagan tribes further south.

Deputation to Lord Kitchener.

Upon receiving the report of the deputation to this effect on December 13th, the Committee resolved as follows:—

The Committee's Minute.

That this Committee, having long intended to send a Mission to the Eastern Soudan, and especially to Khartoum, in memory of the late General Gordon, regret to find that, through circumstances beyond their control, it is not possible for them to open at present a Medical Mission at Khartoum. As, however, they have received permission and encouragement to go to Fashoda and the district south thereof, they believe that God has opened to them a door to preach the Gospel among the Pagan tribes of the Soudan, in whom General Gordon felt special interest, and they direct that steps be taken towards the occupation of that district. To this end offers of service and further funds are earnestly invited.

They believe, however, that the religious feeling of this country justly demands that an effort to perpetuate Gordon's memory shall include the direct proclamation of the Gospel of Jesus Christ to all the races inhabiting the Upper Basin of the Nile, which has recently been brought under the control of England. They will, therefore, continue to strengthen their base in Egypt, with the intention of extending their Mission to Khartoum and the surrounding districts as soon as it may be possible, in the providence of God, to go there also.

The beneficent effects of British rule in Egypt are more manifest each succeeding year. The Judicial Adviser to the Egyptian Government reports great improvement in the native tribunals. The statistical tables which have been published reveal the fact that crimes, especially those of grave character, have sensibly diminished, their annual number having fallen in six years from 2,625 to 1,424. But the increasing prosperity of the country is manifested in other ways as well. The revenue in 1898 of the provinces first restored to Egyptian rule, though small compared with the expenditure, considerably exceeded the estimate; and in the departments of finance and public works substantial progress is evident. Education too is making rapid strides, for while in 1881 the receipts from school fees only amounted to £E.2,323, in 1898 they amounted to £E.34,534. Facts such as these prove conclusively that the political regeneration of Egypt is steadily and even rapidly being accomplished, and serve as a challenge to the Church of Christ to display no less zeal and energy over the moral and spiritual regeneration of the people of a land where the infant Saviour found an asylum in the hour of need.

Increasing prosperity of the country.

The following new workers joined the Egypt Mission:—Dr. Frederick Oakley Lasbrey, M.B., B.Ch., Edinburgh, of Bedford; Mr. Douglas Montagu Thornton, B.A., Trinity College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, son of the Rev. C. C. Thornton, Rector of Northwold, and formerly Educational Secretary of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union, who was ordained deacon by the Bishop of London at St. Paul's Cathedral on October 2nd; the Rev. J. L. Macintyre, transferred from the Niger Mission; Miss Eliza Susan Shields, of "The Willows"; and Miss Emily Kate Browne, of "The Olives," a trained nurse. Dr. Lasbrey left England in October, 1898, Mr. Thornton in November, Mr. Macintyre in January, 1899, Miss Shields in March, and Miss Browne in April. There also returned to the Mission: Mrs. F. J. Harpur in September, 1898 (after two months at home); the Rev. and Mrs. F. F. Adeney in October; and Miss M. Cay (who came to England in June) in November. On the other hand, Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Harpur came home in March, 1899. The Rev. W. and Mrs. Morris have retired.

believes there are signs of coming great blessing upon the Mohammedan work in general, and he speaks with thankfulness, as do several of the other missionaries, of a convention which was held at Aboukir in the summer, and proved most helpful to many of the workers. The attendance at the Sunday Services was well maintained, while the number of communicants increased by one-third. At the close of the year there were 113 names on the register of the Boys' School, sixty-one of the lads being Mohammedans, and fifty-one Christians. Miss J. E. B. Bywater and Miss M. J. Greer were colleagues in the work of the Girls' Boarding School, and were gladdened by the baptism in November of one of the older pupils, the first from the school openly to renounce Islam. This girl's mother, who had heard the Gospel in one of the American Mission Schools, when dying charged her daughter, saying, "Stay with the ladies till you have learnt about Jesus." The girl was baptized by the name of Lydia, and Miss Bywater writes of her :—

Schools.

A school-girl renounces Islam.

> Her influence among the other children has, since her conversion, always been helpful and good, and we are glad to have her in the school. When she first came to us she was not at all a sweet-tempered child, and had many faults, such as laziness over her lessons and want of straightforwardness. Thank God, these faults have, I believe I may say, entirely disappeared. Her very expression has changed. The Lord is working wondrously in her heart, and her life shows forth His praise.

Several visits to Lydia's grandmother were paid at the girl's request by Miss E. F. Waller, who states that the old woman listened eagerly to the Gospel, and often asked to hear more of the Book. She displayed unbounded delight when the words, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," were read to her, and clapped her hands, saying, "It is for everybody, the Moslem women as well as the Christians. Praise be to God!"

Delight at the universality of the Gospel offer.

House-to-house visiting.

Miss H. Adeney was the only C.M.S. lady missionary who devoted herself entirely to House-to-house Visiting, although some of her colleagues called upon the parents of the children in the schools. She found that many of the people listened attentively to what she had to say, and were ready to admit in a general vague way that they were sinners, but their consciences were always lulled to sleep by the phrase taken from the Koran, "God is forgiving and merciful." Evangelistic Work was carried on by means of services on Sundays and Thursdays, and at one time much opposition and interruption were experienced, in which two skeikhs from the great Mohammedan University in Cairo were the ringleaders. They sent a number of rough characters, armed with sticks, in order to make a disturbance, and time after time the evangelist was unable to gain a hearing, although the services were held in the boys' school. At length matters reached such a pitch that it became necessary to seek the intervention of the authorities, who gave the sheikhs and others to understand that they must not disturb order or intrude unbidden on the Mission premises. In the early months of 1899 the meetings were very encouraging. The hall in which they were held was often overcrowded, and though it frequently happened that the entire Mohammedan audience rose and trooped out into the street, called thereto by some one who urged all who loved Mohammed to show their devotion by leaving the meeting, it was not long before the hall filled up again. A goodly number of people remained to the after-meetings, and asked questions concerning Christianity. During the year work was commenced at a Moslem village called Matarieh, which is half an hour's railway journey from Cairo. At first there was some uproar, sticks were brandished, and stones thrown about, but eventually a little shop was rented at which every week for some time the message of salvation was quietly proclaimed. The young student at the Al Azhar University, mentioned in the Report for 1896–97, has left the Azhar, and become a teacher to a band of young missionaries.*

The Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Taylor, of the Eastern Equatorial Africa Mission, are residing at Cairo, where the former is engaged in translational work in the Suaheli language.

OLD CAIRO.

The staff at OLD CAIRO during 1898 was the same as in the preceding year, and consisted of Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Harpur (now at home), Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Hall, and the Misses M. Cay (for the first six months of the year), F. M. Sells, L. Crowther, and E. A. Lawford, who were afterwards joined by Miss E. F. Waller. The work at the Hospital and Dispensary went on as usual. Some 17,000 visits were paid to the latter, and nearly 500 surgical and medical cases were registered at the Hospital, which was almost always full. Regular addresses were given by the doctors and others to the out-patients while waiting for treatment at the dispensary, and meetings were held in the evenings, at which some former patients were often present. There were several interesting individual cases, but there is only space for an account of one which is given by Dr. Hall:— Old Cairo. Medical Mission.

When Sheikh —— came first to the hospital he was much opposed to hearing the Gospel read or spoken in the ward, and he used to tell the ladies who spoke to him of Christ that if they had happened to be in his village and had dared to speak of the Son of God, the people, and he himself, would have killed them with a sword. By degrees the Word of God seemed to be softening his heart, and instead of refusing to listen to the teaching of Christ, he became an eager hearer, and at last was hardly ever seen without a Gospel in his hand. Those who were with him constantly had many interesting conversations with him, and it was a great delight to them to teach so earnest a listener.

* It is stated above (see "General Review of the Year," supra, page 10) that this young man was baptized during the year. It has been pointed out, but too late to make the correction in the earlier page, that this is incorrect.

"How can I but believe now that I have read the Book?"

Miss Sells told him one day that the hospital was opened to extend the knowledge of Christ even more than for the healing of bodily diseases, as we considered the preaching of the Gospel was the most important thing in the world. To this he replied, "But what about those outside? How can they hear?" By the time Sheikh —— asked the question I have quoted, he seemed to be a true believer in Christ as the Son of God, and confessed so to Miss Sells on the last Sunday that he was in the hospital, saying, "How can I but believe now that I have read the Book." "But you didn't believe when you first came here; you were like the Mohammedans outside who refuse to believe in Jesus." To this he answered, "Ah, but then I hadn't seen your Book; they would believe too if they had read that." When he left us he carried his Book with him, that he might continue reading it in his village, which was far away from the hospital.

Since he left us, three men from the same place have come to be healed of bodily disease, and each one has asked for a Book "like Sheikh —— had." A fourth man came solely and simply for the Book's sake, and not for bodily treatment. He was given the Sermon on the Mount, which is published as a separate little book, and at once began to read it.

One result of a medical mission is almost invariably to open doors for work in places from which patients have been received, and this has been the case in a marked degree in Egypt. The bulk of the population of Egypt reside in villages. Dr. Harpur ascertained from the figures of the 1897 census that 1,150,000 people live in ten of the most important centres, and the remaining 8,000,000 are found in small towns and villages. During the first six months of 1898, no less than 300 patients from a distance stayed at Old Cairo for periods varying from seven days to a month, in order that they might have the benefit of treatment in the Mission dispensary. The exceptional opportunities which village work consequently presents are illustrated in some degree by the following extract from Dr. Harpur's Annual Letter:—

Village work.

There was a Moslem feast during the last week in February, and at such a time there is no use in keeping the dispensary open, so as I had an invitation from friends in Beni S——, I started off for that place on February 26th, accompanied by Salamah, our dresser. In the train we gave away a number of copies of the Sermon on the Mount in Arabic. We always find the third-class passengers ready to accept them. Our friends gave us a hearty welcome. We had brought a magic-lantern with us, and that evening showed a few slides on the Life of Christ and tried to preach the Gospel from them. Next morning I saw a number of patients; and as one object of my visit was to make the acquaintance of a Native Christian who lived in a neighbouring village, and who had promised to try and help my Moslem friends, I was just sending a message to him, when a request came from that very village for me to go and see a Copt who was very ill. I gladly went, and that day prescribed for eighty-six patients. I was able to introduce Gurgius, the blind preacher, to my friends, and he at once made an arrangement to visit them frequently. That evening, after returning to

B—— S——, I was asked to show the magic-lantern in a Copt's house. The "Pilgrim's Progress" was the subject of the slides. I was surprised to find that my friends had arranged the sheet high up on a blank wall, but afterwards found out that the women had collected on the flat roof, from which they could see the pictures and hear what was said and yet not be seen by the men downstairs. The next day I saw ninety-six patients, and was brought in the afternoon to the tent of a great Arab sheikh who was suffering from sciatica. I took supper that night at the Umda's (chief sheikh of a village) house, and afterwards showed a set of Old Testament slides, finishing with one on the brazen serpent.

Lantern slides in a Copt's house.

Shortly after the visit referred to in the above extract, Dr. Harpur paid a visit to another village where a man resided who had appeared while in the hospital to be an earnest inquirer and, on leaving for his home, had taken with him a copy of the New Testament. On this, as on the previous tour, there were abundant opportunities both for medical and evangelistic work, but it was found that the inquirer had in large measure fallen back and lost that earnestness in seeking after the truth which formerly characterized him.

Preaching to boatmen.

An interesting work was carried on among the boatmen in the autumn, at which season hundreds of boats come from Upper Egypt to Old Cairo, the port of Cairo, laden with corn and beans. For a time meetings were held three times a week in a room lent by a Mohammedan corn-merchant, who suffered a good deal from his friends in consequence. When their remonstrances became too much for him he adopted an amusing method of giving the workers a hint that they were no longer welcome, for Dr. Harpur writes:—

After more than a month we found one night a flock of geese fastened up there, so we held the meeting in a kind of verandah outside. The next night the geese were still in possession; and after waiting for a few days, we concluded that they did not want us to use the room any longer; but Athanasius, who himself comes from Upper Egypt, has always since been able to find a boat owned by Christians who gladly allow us to hang our big lantern in the rigging and have our meeting in their boat, and the men from the surrounding boats come to listen. Sometimes we can count twenty and even thirty attentive listeners.

Miss Waller was transferred from Cairo in March to take charge of the Old Cairo Girl's Day-school. She experienced a good deal of difficulty through the lack of qualified teachers, but at the same time met with some encouragement, especially in the case of one old woman, the grandmother of a child in the school.

PALESTINE MISSION.

The Society commenced work in Palestine in 1851, in response to an invitation given by Bishop Gobat. The following places are occupied by European labourers: Jerusalem, 1851; Nazareth, 1852; Salt, 1873; Jaffa, 1876; Nablous, 1876; Ramallah, 1877; Gaza, 1878; Haifa, 1884; Acca, 1890; Kefr Yasif, 1892; Bir Zeit, 1892; Ramleh, 1894; and Kerak, 1894. In 1887 the Society commenced to send unmarried ladies to this Mission, and their work among Mohammedan women has been greatly blessed. Medical Missions also have done much to diminish prejudice. The first Mission hospital was opened at Gaza in 1891. Since then Nablous, Acca, Salt, and Kerak have been made centres of Medical Missionary work. (See also Headnotes to "Egypt," p. 127.)

Emperor of Germany in Palestine

THE visit of the Emperor of Germany was the event of the year in the Holy Land, and served to attract a considerable amount of public attention to that country. Several members of the staff of the Society were present by invitation on October 31st, when the Emperor and Empress opened the new German Church. In the course of a deeply impressive service Luther's hymn, "Ein feste Burg ist unser Gott," was sung to Luther's tune by the whole congregation, accompanied by the fine organ and by the full band of the imperial yacht Hohenzollern. At the conclusion of the service the Emperor spoke for a few minutes, and said that it had been his great desire to be present in order to proclaim to the whole world from Jerusalem on that great Protestant Anniversary (the day when Luther affixed his celebrated "Theses" to the door of the church of the Castle of Wittemberg) that the faith on which he took his stand, and in which his son was being trained, was the faith of his forefathers, based on the principles of the Reformation. He finished by quoting a verse of the above-mentioned chorale, the sense of which was: "In our own strength we can accomplish nothing, but are soon lost. May the right Man fight for us; He whom God Himself has chosen. Do you ask His Name? It is Jesus Christ, the Lord of Hosts; there is no other God; the victory must be His." On his way to Palestine the Emperor visited the Sultan at Constantinople, and was presented by him with a piece of holy ground, known as La Dormition de la Vierge (the place where the Virgin slept her last sleep, for tradition says she did not die), which he in turn handed over to his Roman Catholic subjects in Germany.

The Bishop of Salisbury, who was present in Jerusalem at the same time as the Emperor, took part in the consecration, on October 18th, of the new church which Bishop Blyth has been instrumental in erecting in that city. During his stay in the country he showed that courtesy and friendliness to the missionaries of the Society which the habitual kindliness of his references to the C.M.S. caused to be anticipated, and after his return to England he referred to their work at a conference of the clergy of his diocese. The Salisbury and Wiltshire Journal reports him to have said:—

The Bishop of Salisbury on the Society's work.

Their brethren of the Church Missionary Society were doing a great deal for the country as centres of civilization; their schools and hospitals particularly were admirable, and the example which they set of straightforwardness, manliness, and self-devotion had a great influence; but he thought they might do more good than they did if they set themselves definitely to help the Greek clergy. The Greek clergy of the country places, he knew, were quite capable of being despised; so many of them were illiterate, and had had very little training. They were very poor, being kept by small offerings; but, at the same time, they had a position which nobody could take away, a position which native clergymen naturally had. He did not think that they could wisely withdraw the Church Missionary Society, or, at any rate, such oversight as was given by that Society—though his own impression was that such oversight might better be given by some other body—but he thought it might be turned into an instrument for helping the clergy of the Greek Church, and giving them confidence in them as friends and neighbours, and particularly setting such an example of pastoral oversight and high congregational development as would be set by any strong and yet wise Evangelical in England, who knew what the proper management of a parish was.

The Bishop, after his return to England, had an interview, at the Church Missionary House, with the Committee which administers the Palestine Mission, and the Committee subsequently adopted the following resolution:—

That while expressing their gratitude to the Bishop of Salisbury for his kindness in bringing to the notice of the Committee his view regarding the difficulties and prospects of the Palestine Mission, the Committee feel that in view of the importance and hopefulness which in their mind attach to the directly Mohammedan work of the Mission, they do not see their way to raise the question of any fundamental change in the scheme of their work in Palestine, such as, for instance, the origination of a different Society which might in the Bishop of Salisbury's opinion take over the work of the Church Missionary Society with advantage.

Death of Miss H. Attlee.

The Palestine Mission suffered a severe loss by the death, on December 22nd, of Miss Helen Attlee, a daughter of the Rev. S. Attlee, who for a short time was a C.M.S. missionary at Lucknow. Miss Attlee was accepted as an honorary missionary in 1890, and in the December of that year went out to the Mount of Olives, accompanied by her parents. In 1895 a serious illness compelled a long sojourn in England, but after three years she returned to her station, accompanied by Miss Jacombs. Her patient love and ever-ready sympathy and kindness won her an influence of a quite remarkable kind over the Moslem villagers around her. This was very touchingly manifested at her funeral on December 23rd, the day after her death, when numbers followed the remains from the Mount of Olives to Jerusalem. Before starting the leading sheikh, a Moslem, asked permission to be allowed to say "good-bye" to his friend, and stooping down he reverently kissed the cold forehead, saying in a low tone, "The peace of God rest upon thee. Be assured that without doubt I will meet thee in heaven"; and he made an earnest request that another lady worker should be sent to Et Tur, the village where she had lived.

Reinforcements.

The Mission received the following reinforcements:—the Rev. Sydney Gibbon, of Islington College, who was ordained by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, June 5th, 1898; Miss Rose Elmira Alexandrina Leishman, of Croydon, who was trained at "The Willows"; Miss Martha Tiffin, of the Highbury Training Home; Miss Minnie Brown, of "The Willows"; and Miss Gertrude Harrison, of the New South Wales Association. Miss Mary M. Jacombs, mentioned above as having accompanied the late Miss Attlee to Palestine, has been accepted as a missionary in local connexion. Miss Leishman and Miss Tiffin sailed in October, 1898, Mr. Gibbon in November, Miss Harrison in January, 1899, and Miss Brown in March. The following also returned to the Mission:—the Rev. J. Zeller, who left Genoa at the end of May; Dr. J. Cropper, Miss E. G. Reeve, the Rev. Dr. R. Sterling, Dr. and Mrs. Gaskoin Wright, all of whom left in the autumn; and Misses E. E. Brodie and G. F. Tindall, who sailed in May. The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. R. Sterling (on short special leave) and Miss E. E. Newton came home in August, 1898; the Rev. and Mrs. C. T. Wilson in October; Miss K. Dickinson (on sick leave) in December; Miss A. M. Elverson in April, 1899; and the Rev. and Mrs. T. F. Wolters in May. Dr. F. Johnson was married at Christ Church, Jerusalem, on September 6th, to Miss Jessie Patricia Paterson, of the Palestine Mission of the London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews. Miss H. Campbell has retired on the ground of health, and Miss E. E. Newton has resigned her connexion with the Society in order to work with her sister in the hospital which, unconnected with any Society, she conducts at Jaffa.

Ordination.

The Rev. Nicola abu Hattum was admitted to priest's orders by Bishop Blyth, at Jerusalem, on Trinity Sunday, June 5th, 1898.

Hostility of Turkish authorities.

An interesting comparison of the condition of the Mission at the present time, and when he first joined it at the begining of 1884, is made by the Rev. C. T. Wilson in his Annual Letter. He points out that the hostility of the Turkish authorities to missionary effort increases rather than diminishes; that they will not allow any Christian work, not even a school, to be commenced in a purely Mohammedan village; and that consequently all attempts to reach Mohammedans now, as in Bishop Gobat's time before he invited the Society to Palestine, have to be made from those towns and villages where at least a portion of the inhabitants are Protestant Christians. Dealing with the various missionary agencies in detail, he states that formerly there were more Mohammedan children in the schools than at present, because of increased interference on the part of the Turkish Government; but that, on the other hand, the people generally value education far more highly than they did, and are willing to pay for their children in boarding-schools. It is in medical work and women's work that the greatest advance has been made. The residence of lady missionaries at out-stations, and their systematic visiting in the surrounding villages, have served not only to evangelize in large measure the non-Christian population, but also to stimulate and help the Native Christians. Mr. Wilson says, however, that it is important to remember that woman's mission in Mohammedan lands is to women, and that the medical man must be a missionary, and not merely a decoy; and adds:—

Need of more prayer.

What we need now is more believing prayer for Palestine, and then we shall see fruit in abundance. There are many associations for prayer and intercession now among Christians, and there is, perhaps, a danger in multiplying them; but I would earnestly beg all who read this letter to remember Moslem Missions before the throne of grace every Friday (the Mohammedan sacred day) in public, family, and private prayer. If this were widely done we should see grand results.

In consequence of the persecution to which those Mohammedans who manifest a desire to embrace Christianity are subjected in the Turkish Empire, it is not thought desirable to give accounts of encouraging and hopeful individual cases under the stations where they occurred, since such a course might result in added danger to the prospective converts. But since it is only right that instances should be mentioned which serve to show that God is blessing the work, and which are likely to act as provocative of intercessory prayer, they are mentioned here without any indication of locality.

One missionary states that several girls were accustomed to come in to family prayers in the evenings, saying that if they felt angry or ruffled about anything it always seemed to soothe them and to "drive the devil away." Another writes:—

Reading the Bible to sheikhs.

My other regular work in this village has been reading the Bible with four young sheikhs, each one separately as a rule, as they are afraid of being seen by one another. One of them read through St. Matthew and the Acts of the Apostles, as well as several other passages, before he went away from here to take up work as teacher in one of the Moslem village schools, and he has since brought the head sheikh of his village to prayers with us, and on another occasion he brought an older sheikh, who listened most attentively to the Bible, and then exclaimed, "Then there is an atonement for sin! These words are sweeter than honey." Another young man said he wished to read through the whole of the New Testament with me. We have read through the whole of St. Matthew, St. John, the Acts, and Romans, and he has begun, I know, to feel very uncomfortable and anxious as to what is really the truth, for his Moslem books supply him with numberless arguments, and he cannot easily let go his Moslem faith. Please pray very specially that God's Spirit Himself may work in his heart, convincing of sin and of the reality of redemption through Christ alone.

A missionary, who is partly engaged in educational work, writes :—

A child's retreat for for prayer.

One little boy, who attends our schools regularly, and is a most diligent, faithful little scholar, lives in a poor home with just one small room for the whole family. His father is a carpenter, and, from what I have heard, must be a harsh, unkind man. The mother (who told the story to a friend of ours) noticed that every night, even in the cold and rain, the little lad went out of the house before lying down to sleep, and remained away for some time. One night she remarked on it to him, and asked him where he went; he told her that he liked to go, and she could get little more out of him, so she determined to follow him and find out where he went. On reaching the door of the room, to her surprise she saw him not far off under a tree with hands folded and eyes closed, praying! Had he dared to pray in the house, she said that his father would probably have flung one of his tools at him to make him stop.

The same missionary also narrates the following incident which occurred when she was visiting an old Mohammedan woman, who attended the weekly working party :—

"The Christians' doctrine is good."

We found she had three friends from Jerusalem staying with her, and after exchanging compliments and drinking a cup of coffee we were about to leave, thinking that, as she had guests to entertain, she would not be free to listen to our reading. However, she looked quite astonished when we rose, and asked, "Aren't you going to read?" Of course we gladly sat down again, and I spoke to them on Matt. vii. 13, 14, and told them of Christ, "the Way." To my utter surprise, my old friend, when she thought I had not expressed myself clearly, took up the thought and explained more fully, and when I had finished looked round on her friends in triumph, and said, "Didn't I tell you that the Christians' doctrine is good, and their lives are better than ours?" She is still professedly a Moslem, but we are praying much for her.

Missionary Conference.

In connexion with the Palestine Mission Conference which took place at Nablous, services were held on Sunday, November 20th, at which sermons were preached by the Revs. C. Fallscheer, H. Sykes, and C. A. Manley. The Holy Communion was administered at the close of the morning Arabic service. On the following day the Holy Communion was administered in English, and afterwards a devotional meeting was held in the Mission-house, at which an address was given by Mr. H. G. Harding. The Conference met the same afternoon, and papers on practical subjects were read and discussed. Subsequent meetings were devoted to business, and on the closing day (the 25th) a discussion on "Life after Death" was opened by the Rev. H. Sykes.

JERUSALEM.

Jerusalem.

At JERUSALEM the Rev. J. Zeller took over the charge of the Preparandi Institution and of the Bishop Gobat School from the Rev. J. H. Sedgwick on his return to the Mission in June. Among the students at the Institution was Salim, the former teacher at Kerak, who was imprisoned in December, 1897

(see last year's Report, page 156), and recently made a good confession of his faith before the Greek Patriarch, who tried to attract him back to his Church by offering to make him a priest. In September and October the applications for admission to the school poured in, and while thirty boys were received, eighteen had to be refused because of lack of accommodation. Arrangements were therefore made, and carried into effect in December, for the removal of the Preparandi Institution to other premises, the School still remaining on Mount Zion. The Girls' School was managed by Miss J. Wenham until the return of Miss Welch from furlough. There were about 200 names on the register, fifty of whom were Mohammedan children. Many of the boarders take great interest in answering the questions in the Children's World, a fact which is patent to those who read that magazine, since the names of the children are often seen in the list of prize-winners. The attendance at the Sunday-school was small, but this is partly accounted for by the fact that the Greeks make Sunday a sort of festival day, and in fine weather whole families go out for a picnic under the trees. Miss A. M. Elverson only remained in Jerusalem for the first four months of 1898, but during that time she visited among the Mohammedan women of some sixty families. She found the work very up-hill, for there were only a few desirous of being taught. Work in the Moslem villages was more encouraging. Miss Elverson says:—

Work among Moslem village women.

If I had the strength for it I would spend a larger proportion of time in the Moslem villages, where there is always more easy access for the teaching and less bigotry, even if there is, on the other hand, more stupidity. No visit to them appears quite futile, for there always are listeners and often grateful ones. In their hard circumstances, with little or nothing to break the monotony of the daily round, the missionary's appearance is a welcome sight, and as they hear of the world beyond with its peace and rest, they naturally long for it, and are open to be taught the way. The fact that nothing unclean can enter there comes home to them, and the question asked, "How can I keep this tongue?' leads on to practical Christianity through the only Saviour. Many are the prayers sent up from earnest hearts for forgiveness and salvation to God in these Moslem villages, in the name of the Lord Jesus. I believe, from what the women tell me, that such simple petitions have become a morning and evening custom among some of them.

Itinerating Work was carried on by the Rev. C. T. Wilson (now at home), who went from village to village, staying a night at each place, and receiving all who came to him. By taking his tent and all necessaries he was more free and unfettered in his movements than he would have been had he been entertained at the guest-house. He writes of this work:—

There is rarely any difficulty in gathering an audience, and in the vast majority of cases one is listened to with respectful attention. The arrival of a European is generally the signal for all the men and boys in the village to congregate. They mostly lend a willing hand to pitch the tent, then a hearty invitation to be seated and a cup of coffee all round puts us on good terms with them, and we are soon in friendly converse on spiritual topics. It is very remarkable that our Lord's second coming is a subject which I invariably find interests and solemnizes the Moslems, especially the more serious and thoughtful ones. As is well known, they expect His return to slay the Dejjal or anti-Christ, which event the Palestine Mohammedans say is to take place near Lydd ; and to find that we, too, are expecting Him, and that soon, makes a deep impression on them.

Several things strike one as one goes about among the people. One is that the Oriental Christians generally seem to have no idea whatever of their duty to their non-Christian neighbours. I have more than once been publicly taken to task by them in Moslem villages for speaking to the people of our holy religion. This indifference on the part of almost the only Christians the Mohammedan peasantry know is a serious hindrance to the spread of the Gospel. A second noteworthy fact is the increase of education among the Fellaheen, enabling them to read the Bible in their own tongue, enlarging their minds, and making it easier for them to take in new ideas. The third is the immense power and value a Medical Mission to the villages would have where properly worked, i.e. where the healing of the body is made subordinate to the spiritual object in view.

Mount of Olives.

The late Miss H. Attlee, whose death in December has been noticed above, was much encouraged when she reached her station on the Mount of Olives to find that real progress had been made in the work during her prolonged absence. Several of the girls had learned to read the Gospels, and appeared to have a genuine faith in Christ as their personal Saviour. As soon as she returned a number of girls commenced to attend the school regularly, and some of these manifested, by the change which was apparent in their lives, that they had received the Truth into their hearts. It was found also that the children, as is so often the case, passed on to others the lessons which they themselves received. The following extract, taken from Miss Attlee's Annual Letter, describes a little of the encouragement that was met with, and of the work that remains to be done:—

One hears of the village men and women sometimes sitting up talking about religion until midnight, and a woman told me she had overheard a man on one of these occasions say that "nothing made him so glad" as to hear me tell "about the atoning death of Christ." He was a man who has been up only once or twice to our house, so that the effect produced upon him proves again the power of the simple Gospel truth. Once a week I visit some of the distant villages, and always have a hearty welcome, and the people come afterwards sometimes to our house for medicines, which gives opportunity for further talk with them about Christ. It was cheering to find that some of the poor women had even remembered the texts, &c., which I had taught them three years or more ago ; but one constantly feels how terribly little one is able to do amongst these ignorant people, whom one can only spend a few hours amongst once in four or five weeks. Each village could well supply work for at least one missionary lady if the people were to be taught as they ought to be, and yet I suppose there are more than one hundred villages now in this part of Palestine where the Gospel can only be heard very, very seldom. On every hand I notice a marked spirit of inquiry into Christianity amongst the Moslems, far more than there used to be, and I believe it is chiefly due to the general expectation amongst them that the Lord Jesus, whom of course they all look upon as a great Prophet, is Texts remembered.

"coming again" soon to "judge the world for forty years." I heard that one of the chief Moslem teachers in Jerusalem had said, in a public address lately, "We have been mistaken in thinking that the end is to be for Mohammed; we know now it will be for Sayyidna Isa (our Lord Jesus)." Several men have said the same to me, viz., that the day of Mohammedanism is nearly over, and that as it was "established by the sword," so they expect it to be put an end to in the same way.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. G. Nyland, who have been at RAMALLAH for many years, Mrs. A. Liggins and Miss E. Molineux were temporarily stationed there, the last-named being engaged chiefly in the study of the language. The school continued to prosper, and the teacher was much helped by some addresses which he heard while in Jaffa for his holiday. He confessed that previously he had worked simply as a hireling, and Mr. Nyland says that his conduct shows that a great change has taken place in him. Less difficulty than usual was experienced in getting into conversation with the Mohammedans. This is attributed not to any laying aside of hostility by the Government, but to increased study of the Bible by the people, and a conviction on their part that they should fear God rather than man. From Tayibeh, where there was a congregation of forty-six souls under the care of the Rev. Hanna Musa, the neighbouring Bedouin camps and Moslem villages were visited. The Bedouins are lax Mohammedans, for they can rarely read the Koran, they do not observe ceremonies, and they fail to fast in the month Ramadhan. At the out-stations of Jiffna and Bir Zeit there are good schools and fair congregations. But the work at Abood gave little encouragement. A false charge of murder was brought against the Christian teacher, but happily the Government speedily found out the truth, and the teacher was released.

JAFFA.

The staff at JAFFA consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. T. F. Wolters (now in England), Misses F. Brownlow and F. E. Newton, and the Rev. A. Mansur, the native pastor. Mr. Wolters commenced his Annual Letter by recalling the celebration of the first Jubilee of the Society at Boujah, near Smyrna, where his father, the late Rev. J. T. Wolters, who for thirty-nine years was a missionary of the Society, was stationed. Two members of the Congregation were removed by death, one of whom worked for ten years as a colporteur, and was twice imprisoned at Damascus, but each time resumed his labours directly he was released. An informal Arabic class was held for ladies of the congregation, at which a course of lessons was given on the New Testament, taking each book as a whole, followed by one on the Prayer Book. Visiting was carried on by Miss Brownlow with the Bible-woman once a week until the summer; she was generally warmly received, and accorded an attentive hearing even by the Mohammedans. She and Miss Newton took part in giving instruction in the Schools, which, with the exception of that for infants, contained boys only. The Bible-classes had an average attendance of 200 lads, but the Sunday-school numbers fell off a little, owing to the wish of many of the parents that their children should attend the services with them. Monthly addresses were given on missionary subjects, and the missionary-box, which used to be produced only once a month, was, at the request of the children, held at the door every Sunday. During the ten months from October, 1897, to July, 1898, the boys thus collected £3 3*s.* 4*d.*, which sum was doubled according to promise, so that a village day-school in China might be supported.

The Sunday congregations at Ramleh, where Miss E. A. Cooke and Miss F. L. A. Roberts were stationed, increased slightly, though they continued to be small. There were forty-seven girls in the day-school, and a few of them attended on Sunday afternoons to read and study the Bible. The attendance at the little dispensary was less than it had been owing to the opening at Lydd of a branch of Miss Newton's Medical Mission at Jaffa, but every Monday and Wednesday morning about thirty people came to the ladies, and were thus brought within reach of the Gospel message. Miss Cooke writes:—

"You give medicine for the love of God."

We have pictures and large Arabic texts round the rooms in which we receive them, and opposite the door are the words, "God is love." The other day a poor woman came in from a distant village. I saw she was looking at the text, and talking earnestly to her friend, and when I spoke to her, she said, "Oh! is that it? My husband came here and you gave him medicine, and he told me that it was written on the wall that you gave all the medicine for the love of God." I told her it was true, though the words did not mean quite that, and it led on to a conversation about God Who is love, and has given His Son for us all.

The work at Lydd, under the Rev. H. Dimishky, the native pastor, made some progress; the schools were full and in good order, the Sunday services were better attended, and one or two converts who had fallen away were reclaimed. Some of the people spent much of their time in the coffee-shops, where gambling is customary, and Mr. Dimishky felt the need of some counter-attraction in the form of a book depôt.

GAZA.

Gaza.

The work at GAZA suffered through the absence of the Rev. Dr. R. Sterling on special leave during the autumn. Miss E. E. Watney and Miss E. Molineux assisted at the Hospital, as did Miss E. M. Elverson after her transference from Jerusalem to Gaza at the beginning of May, 1898. The latter says that in the out-patient hall and in the female wards it is a rare thing to meet with opposition to Christian teaching, and that the people manifest much gratitude for the kindness with which they are treated. She adds:—

Religious ignorance is profound among the women, and many of them feel it, and wish to be taught by the only people who try to teach them.

The ward work is the most hopeful, because the women are under control, and hear day by day, getting accustomed to the teacher's phraseology and accent. It is good, indeed, to see signs of real conviction of sin and repentance, with personal acceptance of the Lord Jesus as Saviour, among the poor women and girls. Many texts have been learnt by heart and so taken to the distant homes. One little girl asked to have her texts written out, the skeikh might teach them to her fellow-Bedaween !

Five candidates were confirmed at Gaza in March, 1898, by Bishop Blyth, who showed much interest in the work, and attended three of the hospital services, besides examining the schools. On leaving he promised a donation of £10 towards enlarging the hospital.

NABLOUS (DENIS CROFTON MISSION).

Nablous. The Rev. C. Fallscheer, the senior missionary at NABLOUS, speaks of the past year as having been one of great anxiety and trouble. The people of the country were grievously oppressed by the Government. Instead of paying a tenth of their income, the farmers were compelled to give a fifth, in addition to other taxes, and bribes for the officials. They were obliged also to contribute towards the maintenance of the soldiers and their horses, and for the benefit of sick and wounded soldiers, knowing all the time that the money forced from them, ostensibly for these objects, really went into the pockets of the officials, who only receive one month's salary in six months, and are therefore compelled to supply their own needs as best they can. The different services and meetings for the Congregation were held as in past years, and some of them were fairly well attended. Eleven girls were confirmed by the Bishop of Salisbury (acting for the Bishop of Jerusalem), who expressed himself as greatly pleased with their knowledge of the Bible. In the Schools in the district the education was almost limited to religious subjects, for it was felt to be specially important to influence the children as much as possible while the opportunity lasted, since at any time it might come to an end. Often some hostile message from the Government has scattered the Mohammedan girls like a flock of frightened sheep, only, as Miss A. N. Jarvis remarks, the comparison fails, because in the past it has not proved possible to collect the children together again. Miss E. G. Reeve, who returned to her work in November, goes round to the village schools to see the children and superintend the teachers. During the absence of Dr. Gaskoin Wright, the work of the Hospital was superintended by the Rev. Dr. Gould, of the Canada C.M. Association, who received valuable help from the two trained nurses, Miss A. A. M. Bedells and Miss M. C. S. Adamson. The hopes of obtaining a Firman for a new hospital were still unrealized, and the changes in the staff, especially the absence of Dr. Wright, prejudiced the work. It was found that the patients in the men's ward did not pay such good attention when Abu Miriam, the Bible-man, took prayers, as they were accustomed to give to the European doctor, but some of the boys were ready to learn texts, and the patients appeared pleased when they were prayed for individually in the hospital. Miss Adamson says that the Mohammedans believe in a superstitious way that the prayers and the Book of the Christians benefit them, and recognize that there is a real and intimate connexion between Christianity and the kind treatment which they receive at the hands of the missionaries. Some of the chief opponents of the Mission were dismissed from Nablous during the year, and the people generally were friendly to the hospital work. Visiting among the Women was persevered in. Miss Bedells, who after September went exclusively to those who had been influenced by the medical work, invariably received a hearty welcome, but the other ladies found most of the people utterly ignorant and indifferent, and a few of them bitterly hostile.

NAZARETH, ACCA, KEFR YASIF, AND HAIFA.

No Annual Letter from NAZARETH has been received.

Acca.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Manley and Miss M. I. Kitchin, a trained nurse, were the missionaries at ACCA. Dr. Cropper, who returned to the station in September, has sent home an account of three years' work at the Acca Medical Mission, in which he describes the official opposition with which he had to contend, and the suspicion with which the people at first regarded him. One woman, before taking any of the medicine which the doctor gave her, presented some to a dog so as to see whether it was poisonous, and the first patient on whom he performed an operation for her eyes, being a Moslem, solemnly cursed the Cross before giving her consent! Gradually, however, the attitude of the people has changed, although the Governor of the town recently declared, when he heard that the patients were told of Christ, "This is very bad, and soldiers must be put to stop it." At one time there were 4,000 visits in six months from 1,600 patients, and many people of good position in the town were treated, including the Mufti, or head priest, the Kadi, or judge, and the children of a superior officer who was away on active service. These last proved very troublesome patients, but in the end the gratitude of the father on his return from the campaign made ample amends. From the exaggerated reports he had received he fully expected to find that his children, if not dead, had at least lost their sight. During the absence of Dr. J. Cropper, Miss Kitchin went regularly to the dispensary and dressed any wounds, but did not prescribe for the people, since there were native doctors in the own.

Opposition and suspicions.

Miss L. W. Lewis was the only missionary of the Society in residence at KEFR YASIF during the year, excepting for two months, when Miss H. Campbell was with her; for part of the time, however, she received valued help from Miss Thompson, an independent worker. The number of children attending the schools increased, and the boys in particular, among whom were included Mohammedans and Druses as well as members of the Christian communities, made good progress. The Sowers' Band, which was formed in 1897, had twelve members, who also belonged to the Scripture Union; they met once a fortnight, and worked for a little sale while missionary stories were told to them. At the dispensary, which was only opened twice a week, in consequence of the depletion of the staff, there was an average attendance of sixteen people, who seemed to appreciate the simple Gospel addresses given by the catechist. Visits to the surrounding villages were continued as far as possible, and the people listened readily to the teaching which was given. Kefr Yasif.

No Annual Letter has been received from HAIFA.

SALT AND KERAK.

The deep valley of the Jordan, which separates the land of Gilead from the more civilized districts of Western Palestine, serves to make SALT a more isolated place than its position on the map would appear to indicate, and the work at that station, under the charge of the Rev. D. M. Wilson, was entirely unaffected by the visit of the German Emperor, which caused such a stir in other parts of the Holy Land. The contributions of the Christians for their new church and to the Centenary Fund of the Society, though not apparently very great, yet represented a large sum for the poor congregation, and afforded encouragement to Mr. Wilson, since the people had previously expected everything to be done for them. The number of pupils in the various boys' schools was about the same as in 1897, but the attendance of the girls fell off, owing in part to the opening of schools for them by the Greeks. A special effort was made to stimulate the work among women and girls by instituting classes for them, which were conducted on Sunday afternoons by members of the congregation, but it was found difficult to arouse the women from the state of apathy and indifference into which they had fallen in consequence of their long neglect. Mr. Wilson visited the Dispensary from time to time, and towards the close of the year engaged an earnest Christian man to give addresses and talk to the patients while they were waiting to see the doctor. The increase of the population and the exceptional amount of sickness which prevailed led to even larger attendances than usual. During the summer, Salt. Dispensary.

services were held at Amman, where a few members of the Salt congregation and other Christians were living; but the opposition of the Circassians, who form the bulk of the population, and are bigoted Mohammedans, was aroused, and it was deemed wise to discontinue the services for a time. A new out-station was opened at a village named Kefrenji, in the district of Ajlun, which is inhabited by about 1,000 people, nearly all of whom are Mohammedans. The catechist who was placed there met with a favourable reception, and large numbers of men, women, and children came to his house for instruction. Mr. Wilson appeals for renewed efforts to reach the Mohammedans, and says :—

Circassian opponents.

Ignorance of Bedaween.

> Many, both of the Bedaween and of the Fellaheen, are supremely ignorant of their own creed, and therefore there is but little to displace in order that the simple truths of the Gospel may find a lodgment. A Bedawy, on being asked recently what he knew of Mohammed, replied that he had heard from his grandfather that Mohammed's face might be seen in the moon when she was full; and this was all he knew about him. He had heard of Ramadhan (the Mohammedan month of fasting), and thought it was the name of a man. Many others are just as ignorant as this Arab, and, indeed, no better than pagans. I do trust that, as some practical result of the forward movement of which we read so much, we may see a great strengthening of our forces in these Mohammedan lands, where indeed "there remaineth yet very much land to be possessed."

Kerak.

Dr. F. Johnson (whose marriage in September has already been mentioned), and Mr. H. G. Harding, experienced at KERAK a continuance of the opposition on the part of the Turkish Government officials which was referred to in last year's Report. For a time the attendance at the Dispensary was satisfactory, forty or fifty patients being present at the opening service each day; but at the end of September the Governor endeavoured to persuade the missionaries to exclude Mohammedans from the service, and on their refusing to do so, sent down a soldier to prevent those who professed Islam from entering. For the next two months, although Mohammedans were absent, the Christians of the Greek Church continued to attend, but in November they in their turn were forbidden to come under penalty of one month's imprisonment and a fine, the prohibition not proceeding ostensibly from the Government, but from their own authorities. Many of them, however, persisted in their attendance, although it was soon manifested that the threats which had been made were not idle. Amongst the number was a prominent sheikh, who eventually declared himself and his people to be Protestants, and begged to be received into the Protestant Church, using the words, "My people are going in darkness to destruction, and I hang the burden of them round your neck." There are some 400 or 500 members of this Halisa tribe, and at the close of the year they were coming in considerable numbers to the meetings and services.

A leading sheikh declares himself a Protestant.

Dr. Johnson partially attributes the bitterness of the Government opposition to the proximity of Kerak to Egypt, and the suspicion of political motive as underlying the presence of the English missionaries. But no reason can be given for the antagonism of the authorities of the Greek Church, which is of such a nature as to make it practically impossible to help any of its members while they remain in their own Church, since any man who even accepts religious instruction in private is liable to imprisonment unless he shelters himself under the law of religious liberty by declaring himself a Protestant. Yet these Christians greatly need help, as is manifested by the following description of their religious condition which is given by Mr. Harding:—

"Know more about St. George than about Christ."

In Kerak we find among the Christians the ignorance and superstition of absolute Heathen. The mass of the people know nothing of their religion; they regard our Lord much as they regard St. George, of dragon fame, who is their favourite saint, and indeed most of them know more about St. George than they do about Christ, and certainly pray to him far oftener than to God. Not only do they visit the tombs of their departed friends and make offerings to their spirits, but they regularly offer sacrifices to local genii and evil spirits, invoking them as their ancestors did in pre-Christian days. There is practically no difference between Christians and Mohammedans. They, equally with Mohammedans, make pilgrimages to the shrine of Mohammed's cousin, who is supposed to be buried near Kerak, and some regard Mohammed as a prophet little, if at all, inferior to Christ. Of course the educated Christians know better, but they are a minority.

It was found impossible to obtain leave for the re-opening of the little school which was mentioned in the Report for 1897–98, although the British Consul kindly rendered such assistance as it was in his power to give, but Dr. Johnson found some opportunities of presenting the Gospel to members of the Effendi class, who gave him an attentive hearing.

PERSIA MISSION.

Persia, though one of the youngest of the Society's Missions, was one of the first countries thought of by the Committee, and was mentioned in each of the first two Annual Reports. Henry Martyn stayed ten months in the country in 1811. Since 1834 an American Mission has laboured with much blessing among the Nestorian Christians. In 1869 the Rev. R. Bruce, of the C.M.S., visited Persia on his way back to India, and finding the Moslems of Ispahan and its neighbourhood not unwilling to discuss religious subjects, he took up his abode there, and gathered round him some few of these, and a considerable number of Armenian Christians who were dissatisfied with their corrupt form of worship. He also opened schools, &c. In 1875 the Society formally adopted his work as one of its Missions. Ladies were added to the staff in 1891. Kirman was occupied in 1897, and Yezd in 1898.

Death of Rev. H. Carless.

THE Persia Mission lost its senior missionary by the death of the Rev. H. Carless from typhoid fever on May 25th, 1898. Mr. Carless was a Cambridge man, ordained in 1885, who offered himself twice to the C.M.S., in 1886 and 1888, and was accepted on the second occasion. He was sent out to Persia, and laboured at Julfa, except during his furlough at home, until his removal to Kirman in March, 1897. The distance between these stations, and the practical difficulty attending missionary work in them, are shown by the fact that after the news of Mr. Carless' illness was received at Julfa it took Dr. Carr a whole week to reach Kirman in order to minister to his colleague. The life and work of Mr. Carless in that town during a little more than a year distinctly made their mark. He won the love and confidence of the Persian boys, who regularly attended school, and the respect with which he was regarded by the people was evidenced by the fact that more than one hundred of them gathered at the graveside to show their love and sympathy.

Respect entertained for him.

The following extracts from letters from his fellow-missionaries and others prove how highly Mr. Carless was esteemed by those who knew him. The Rev. C. H. Stileman, the Secretary of the Mission, wrote:—

> Of his first three years' work in Persia I am unable to speak, as I did not meet him till I removed from Baghdad to Julfa in 1891, and dear Carless had been working here from the end of 1888. But I know that his presence and fellowship in the work were a very great comfort and help to Dr. Bruce during those three years.
>
> Never shall I forget the hearty and loving welcome accorded to me by dear Carless on my arrival here with my wife and child. I was ill at the time and for some weeks afterwards, but he used to visit me frequently, and we had sweet communion together, his prayers being always most fervent and spiritual, and his kindness and sympathy most marked.
> We saw a good deal of each other during the two months that he spent here before going on to open up Kirman as a C.M.S. station, and I little thought when I rode out part of the first stage with him, and waved last farewells on March 4th—fifteen months ago—that it was indeed the last time that I should see his bright, kindly smile and hear his cheerful voice in this world. He went forward full of hope and confidence in the Lord of Hosts to hold the fort for Christ in distant Kirman, and we know that our dear brother's labour has not been in vain in the Lord. His kindly sympathy and buoyant cheerfulness won many hearts wherever he went, and outside the Mission circle there were many who truly loved him and deeply mourn his loss.

The Rev. A. R. Blackett, who reached Kirman before Mr. Carless died, says:—

Parsis hold service of intercession for his recovery.

Mr. Carless spoke of the kind sympathy shown for him by the Parsi community, who had held a special service of intercession on his behalf, some of their leading men having been to his house to get burning charcoal from his hearth to use during their worship. Their interest in his welfare greatly touched him, but he never knew how much all classes of people, whether Mohammedans, Hindus, Parsis, or Jews, respected and loved him. Long before we reached Kirman we had met people on the road who knew him. The life and character of the Feranghi missionary had told.

A Roman Catholic gentleman who knew him well wrote to Mr. Stileman:—"I think him one of the best men I have ever known. Firm in his own opinions, he always respected those who were firm in theirs."

The British Consul (Mr. Preece) wrote:—

I cannot tell you how very much I am distressed at the news of dear Carless' death. I am now less a very dear, loving friend, who was always so good, kind, and sympathetic. One feels it very, very much. A more amiable, kind, loving disposition I have seldom met; always happy and cheery, and looking forward in a true Christian spirit to that Home to which he has now gone. His going is his gain, but our loss. We should bow meekly to the decree, but it certainly does seem wonderfully strange that such a man should be taken when he was doing so well the Lord's work, and in the full possession of his strength and power to work.

And Bishop Stuart adds:—

The pleading of two solitary graves.

Henry Martyn's solitary grave at Tokat on the North-west, and now Henry Carless's lonely grave at Kirman on the South-east, seem between them to claim all Persia for Christ. May they both plead specially with the University of Cambridge for men "to follow in their train!"

The Governor of the Province has presented to the representatives of the Society the title deed to the piece of land in which the grave of Mr. Carless is situated.

Reinforcements.

The following missionaries went out to Persia for the first time, leaving England early in October, 1898, and arriving at Julfa towards the end of the following month:—the Rev. Napier Malcolm, M.A., New College, Oxford, curate of St. John the Evangelist, Higher Broughton, Manchester; Miss Lily Buncher, trained at "The Willows"; Miss Urania Latham, M.B., London, of Blackheath; and Miss Mina Gertrude Ethel Stuart, a fully trained nurse, sister of Miss E. M. Stuart, M.B., and niece of Bishop Stuart, both of this Mission. Miss M. R. S. Bird left England to return to Persia in February, 1899. Miss A. Stirling arrived home on furlough on November 1st.

Bishop Stuart, besides assisting in the work at Julfa, made a couple of interesting tours in the course of the year. In the early part of the summer of 1898, he and his daughter, Miss Stuart, went to Kashan, 115 miles to the north of Julfa, which was formerly an important city and emporium of trade, and is still a considerable town, and were soon able to procure a suitable lodging, where they received a large number of visitors. Many of these were the followers of the Bab, and his successor, Beha, but others came as well, including orthodox Mohammedans, Jews, and even a few Parsis. Among the more frequent visitors was the sister of a Babi missionary lady, who on one occasion brought some thirty or forty of her female friends with her, with whom Miss Stuart read, and sang, and conversed for several hours. The Bishop had many interesting experiences during his calls at the houses of the people, some of which he describes as follows:—

Conversations with a Governor.

One of my visits to Mohammedans was a visit of ceremony to the lately-appointed Governor who had come from Teheran. He is a frank, soldierly man, and received me very courteously at the ancient and somewhat ruinous Government House, once, no doubt, a palace. After some general conversation, I presented him with a copy of the Persian New Testament, which he handed to his secretary, and desired him to read aloud the chapter I had pointed out—the second of Matthew—the story of the wise men, the Magi, not improbably from Persia itself, the first to acknowledge Jesus as King. This gave me the opportunity to speak of the Kingdom that is not of this world, and of its universal claim. I had another interview with the Governor when he returned my visit, accompanied by several of his retinue.

Visits to well-to-do families.

Another family of distinction lived not far from us in a house with a beautiful garden, where we were invited and entertained. The ladies were frequently visited by my daughter—being related to friends of hers in Ispahan, from whom they had heard of her visits to them there. One of the ladies was well educated, and became deeply interested in reading the New Testament with my daughter, with whom she continues to correspond.

Another family with whom we frequently exchanged visits had a fine old house in the city with quite a gallery of old Persian paintings, portraits of some of the Shahs and Princes of former days. There are several brothers, middle-aged men, living together with their respective families, reminding me of the Hindu joint-family mode of life. One of the brothers is a deaf mute, but wonderfully intelligent, and able to converse by signs with great animation. He is an artist, mostly self-taught, and some of his landscapes and portraits were very creditable. His chef d'œuvre, a painting in oils, framed and veiled with gauze, was a rather striking portrait, life-size, of 'Ali, which he uncovered with great solemnity to show us. I read to the assembled party the ninth of St. John, the narrative of the opening the eyes of the man born blind, and it was most interesting to watch the face of the deaf man as his brother, by signs and a sort of finger alphabet, interpreted the story to him. He had an album given to him by some European friends, in which were a few scripture prints, which he seemed quite to understand, making signs of reverence, and looking up to Heaven when he turned to the picture of Christ. I have lately had the opportunity of sending to him the beautifully illustrated sheet almanack for 1899 of Home Words, which I have no doubt he will appreciate.

After spending a month at Kashan, Bishop and Miss Stuart went to Qamsav, a large village, situated on the hills, one day's march to the south, to which the people have recourse when the intense heat of summer sets in. The township, which has several thousand inhabitants, is built in a long fertile valley, watered by a copious and swift mountain stream, the banks of which are richly wooded, while on the open slopes towards the surrounding hills are spread rose gardens of many acres in extent. As at Kashan, visitors were numerous, ranging from a prince to the humblest ryot, and consisting of members of both sexes, the women, as usual, largely predominating. From Qamsav a number of other villages were reached, some of which had never been visited by any messenger of the Gospel. Of one the Bishop writes:—

A Babi village.

This village has a special interest from the fact that all the inhabitants were Babis. They were most cordial in their reception of us on the two occasions that we spent a day with them, and listened with much apparent interest. We had the whole population gathered round us on the house-top, where an upper room opening on the roof was our shelter from the noon-day heat, while a spreading tree shaded the overflow meeting on the roof itself in front of us. Several of the men could read, and so were glad to receive some other portions of the Scriptures and a New Testament. The elder people related their sufferings when they were driven from their homes in the great Babi persecution, and were hunted on the mountains till they found a refuge in this secluded valley. As one looked around on the group of men, women, and children dwelling thus apart, and at unity amongst themselves, though not without occasional alarms and threats of interference from the Mohammedans of other villages, one ventured to indulge the thought that some day such a settlement of Christians might be gathered as an oasis in the desert.

In the autumn the Bishop went from Julfa to the large and populous village of Asfarjan, situated in the hilly country that forms the boundary of the province on the south, about eighty miles on the road to Shiraz. The population was found to be exclusively Mohammedan, but none of the bigotry so prevalent in Ispahan was met with, and there were daily gatherings at morning prayers, and continual requests for books by many intelligent and educated readers. The impression left on the mind of the Bishop by these two tours was that there is a grand opportunity in Persia at the present time for carrying the Gospel Message to the homes of the people.

Moslems, but free from bigotry.

The Rev. C. H. Stileman is the Secretary of the Mission.

JULFA AND ISPAHAN.

The work of the Mission was carried on during the year under review without any hostile interference such as that which has so frequently been experienced in the past, and the Rev. C. H. Stileman says "There seems to be much more religious liberty here now than was the case a short time ago; as a Persian expressed it to me the other day, 'The horns of the Mullahs have been broken,' and they no longer have the same power to persecute converts and inquirers." He recognizes, however, that this increased liberty may prove to be only of short duration, since "the enemies of the Gospel are still both numerous and powerful." Of the convert, Paulus, whose steadfastness under persecution was described in last year's Report (page 159), Mr. Stileman writes :—

More religious liberty than formerly.

A convert's written testimony taken to Herat.

He has at last been finally driven out of his village and his home, and has been obliged to flee with his family "to another city," where he is in comparative safety. I was much interested to hear from him the other day that an Afghan friend of his from Herat had become so much impressed by reading a copy of Paulus's own book, entitled The Means of Salvation, that he had asked and received permission to take the book home with him and bring it to the notice of his friends in Herat.

Benjamin Badal, the faithful colporteur of the British and Foreign Bible Society, whose arrest and subsequent liberation were also referred to in last year's Report, was permitted to return to Julfa, and was also able to spend some months in Shiraz and the surrounding districts. It is an interesting fact that in Shiraz, the scene of Henry Martyn's labours, and in the province of which it is the capital, the agents of the Bible Society find a readier sale for the Scriptures than in any other part of Persia, the reason being partly that the literary class is there very numerous.

Persian services.

The number of Mohammedans attending the Persian Services was well sustained, and the gallery which was reserved for their use was generally filled and frequently overcrowded. They behaved well and listened attentively. Special courses of addresses were delivered in Armenian during Lent and Advent, and a Total Abstinence League was organized, with Bishop Stuart as President, in order to check the sale of intoxicants by the Armenians to the Mohammedans.

Inquirers.

There were a few apparently earnest inquirers. One man, a Seyyid of good position, visited Mr. Stileman regularly for some time, and, before leaving for Baghdad, asked for a letter of introduction to the missionaries in that city, and for a Persian New Testament; and another is described as "seeming to drink in the truth of the Gospel with great eagerness." Two Mirzas also confessed their faith in Christ before other Persians, and put themselves under instruction.

Converts.

The workers were encouraged by one or two baptisms. On the morning of November 30th, a young Persian, aged about nineteen, a Behai by birth and early training, was baptized by Bishop Stuart; and on April 3rd, 1898, a middle-aged woman, the mother of several daughters and one son, was received into the visible church. Miss Stuart gives the subjoined account of this convert :—

An eager learner.

It is now more than two years since I first knew Ganhar. The name means "a jewel." God grant that she may be one when He maketh up His jewels! She had been staying at the hospital with one of her little girls who had got a needle into her knee and was there for treatment, Ganhar used to come constantly to see me, and very soon began to ask for teaching. She was at that time an extremely ignorant woman, but seemed to have grasped the idea of the need of a Saviour, and her thirst for teaching was almost insatiable. She continued to come to Julfa at intervals to be taught, and on our frequent visits to her village for a week at a time she would spend all her time with me. Her boy she committed to us for schooling, as her great desire was that he should have a Christian education, and be able to read the Gospel always to her; so we boarded him with an Armenian, and he attended the Persian school daily and made good progress for a year, when the school was for a time broken up by Mohammedan fanaticism; but I am thankful to say that the school has been re-opened within the last six months, and the boy is living with us under my immediate care, along with another little boy from a village who also attends school. Ganhar, being largely dependent on her own exertions for support (she weaves canvas and cloth for the women's chaddars), has not been able to spend more than a month at a time in Julfa for instruction; but she has managed to learn a great many verses by heart, and also to read a little from the New Testament, and has improved so wonderfully in intelligence that she herself says that she considers that is God's miracle for her, that He has given her the power to understand. She has even been able so far to instruct her husband that he too is now desiring baptism. She has had to suffer a great deal of persecution of late, having been turned out of one house, and again nearly turned out of another by the animosity of the neighbours. If her little girl goes to drink water from the well they say she is defiling it. However, none of these things have shaken her determination to profess Christ and be received into His outward and visible Church.

Besides the adults who have been mentioned, eighteen children were baptized during the year, including the infant daughter of Sakineh, to whom frequent reference has been made in recent Annual Reports.

Literary Work.

The Rev. W. St. C. Tisdall continued his Literary Work, and completed the manuscript of two new books. One of these, entitled Religious Correspondence, consisted of five letters, written to a Behai inquirer, in which the main truths of the Gospel were stated and many objections urged by the Behais were answered; and the other, Sources of Islam, dealt with the question whether Islam is (as it claims to be) from Heaven, or whether its leading doctrines and practices, including its gross errors, cannot be traced to one or another of certain previously existing systems of religion. A Babi, who was employed to write out the latter book for the press, expressed the opinion that it laid the axe at the root of the tree, not only of Islam, but of Babiism also. Two important works were reproduced in Persian, viz., The Testimony of the Koran to the Holy Scriptures, by Sir William Muir, and Sweet Firstfruits. The latter is read with much interest in Persia, since it is the story of the conversion of a Moslem in Syria, who sealed his testimony with his blood.

Henry Martyn Memorial Press.

The Henry Martyn Memorial Press, under the supervision of Mr. Tisdall, was busy throughout the year, and issued a number of books and tracts. It was assisted by a donation of £10, sent by Bishop Gell, of Madras, as a token of his affection for the memory of Bishop French.

Armenian Girls' School.

The Armenian Girls' School was under Miss L. Stubbs, who received great assistance from Mrs. Stileman. There were over 300 pupils on the roll, and there was one specially interesting class, composed of eight Persian children. A quantity of needlework was done by the girls, and the little sale which was held realized no less than £25. The Sunday-school was attended by a larger number of children than in 1897.

Dispensaries.

The Medical Work suffered through the frequent absences of Dr. D. W. Carr, and the removal of Dr. H. White to Yezd in the middle of April. The Julfa dispensary was open twice a week—on Tuesdays and Fridays—and the women's dispensary, conducted by Dr. Emmeline M. Stuart, was held on the same days, the numbers present varying from 100 to 150. The dispensary was removed to new premises in February. Every Wednesday and Saturday the dispensary in Jubbara, the Jewish quarter of Ispahan, was open. Gospel addresses were regularly delivered, and systematic evangelistic work, in which Bishop Stuart gave valued help, was done among the in-patients. Miss A. Stirling, Miss H. L. Conner, and Miss P. Braine-Hartnell all took part in the work among the patients, instructing them in the wards and visiting them in their homes. Miss Stirling gives the following account of one of the patients :—

A shy patient's interest in the Gospel.

She came to us about eighteen months ago from one of the villages on the Yezd road. At first she was terribly shy, and it was difficult to get at her at all, but bit by bit we saw how interested she was becoming in the daily hospital readings and talks. She returned to her home for a time, as her eyes were much better ; but ere long she was among us again. She seems really a believer, but is afraid to come out boldly because of her husband, who we fear is not very kind to her. She is always very eager to hear as much of the Gospel as possible, often following us from ward to ward so that she might miss nothing in our reading. I generally used to go the round of the women's wards last thing before the patients retired for the night, to see that all was right and to have a short prayer with them. One night I did not go over to the second ward, as it was late, and I thought they would all be asleep. Next morning this girl said to me, "You did not come for prayers last night to that ward, so I went over and had prayer with them instead." Considering how shy the girl is, this meant a great deal for her.

Miss Braine-Hartnell writes of Hamêdeh, whose baptism was mentioned in last year's Report (page 161) :—

Keen to bring others to hear of Christ.

She shows the truest signs of real life ; she is so keen to bring others to hear about Christ, and has several times brought her own friends, whom she has first interested, to have a talk with me. It was a pleasure to see her a few weeks ago in the dispensary ; she had brought a cousin who hitherto had not ventured near us. This woman was listening intently to what was said, and Hamêdeh sat and looked so beaming that her friend, too, should hear of the love of Jesus. Poor girl ! she is frequently threatened with being married to a Mohammedan, and only three days ago was weeping her eyes out at the prospect ; but that misery has once more been spared her, but I fear it must come some day, unless a Christian is found for her. Persians think it a sin for a girl to be unmarried.

The power of the medical work in winning the hearts of the people was realized by the missionaries as they travelled about the country, for Miss Conner says that when itinerating she did not pass through any considerable village in which she could not have found a friend, and even a house in which to spend the night, as a result of the medical mission in Julfa. Medical missionaries meet friends everywhere.

But while work was thus energetically carried on in Julfa itself, efforts were not spared to reach other parts of the country by means of Itinerating Tours. Early in 1898 the Rev. W. A. Rice, now at home, paid a visit to Bushire, where he made the acquaintance of a small number of Persians, and called on the Persian Governor and one or two of the leading mullahs. Bushire is the entrepôt of British commerce in the Persian Gulf, the residence of the English Consul-General with his staff, and also a naval station and head office of the Indo-European Telegraph, and appeared to Mr. Rice to be an important centre for missionary work. In October, Dr. Carr received a letter from Sardar (Isfandiar Khan) the factotum of the Bakhtiari chief, asking him to come and see him because he was ill. The doctor responded to the call, and after prescribing, remained with him for a short time. He was hoping soon to be able to return to his station, when he received an urgent summons to Khan Baba, a chief living in a small village two miles distant, who had been shot by his servant. The following extracts from Dr. Carr's Annual Letter describe what happened:— Visit to Bushire. Called to a Bakhtiari chief.

Hastily collecting a few necessaries while they saddled two horses for Hampartyoom and myself, we started. It was the queerest experience. On a very dark night we sallied forth, accompanied by six or seven wild, rough-looking men, one of whom had a sort of Chinese lantern, always used by Persians, and another had a candle with a glass shade. They were all excited and shouting at the top of their voices, discussing how the servant could have done such a thing as to shoot his master. At last up in the hills we reached the little village of Karch. Here we found Khan Baba, a brave, plucky man, sitting up, propped up by pillows, chatting away quietly as if nothing had happened. He had a flesh wound of no consequence in the left forearm, and the bullet had then passed through his right thigh, shattering the bone to atoms, rather above the middle, and passing out the other side. Khan Baba and his servant were both retainers of one of the big chiefs, Sam-Sam-us-Saltanih, and the servant, who was being dismissed, accused Khan Baba of being the cause of his losing his place and proceeded to shoot him. He did not long survive it, for in a few minutes he was lying dead with a bullet through his head. It was summary justice, but there are no law courts in these parts. After temporarily binding up his wounds, the question arose what were we to do. I could not possibly stay there, and the case, if the man lived, would be a long one and need a good deal of looking after. I said I must take him to Ispahan. They said it was impossible. How could a man in his condition do a journey of ninety miles, the road going over two high, rocky mountain passes? Well, we could ask Sardar, and they agreed that if he said he was to go with me, they would make no further objection. Sardar at once said he should go, and produced money to pay for twenty men to carry him down. The next afternoon Hampartyoom and I returned to Karch to make a litter on which to carry him.

Arrived there, the poles they had brought were found to be too light, and there was so much delay that before we had half finished night came on. They asked us to stay the night. We had nothing with us but what we stood up in, but we agreed, being very anxious to get forward with our preparations. When we had finished our preparations we went inside and dinner was produced. We sat down sixteen to dinner. The room was not large, and almost every available inch of floor room was occupied. The walls were of mud, and the ceiling composed of cross-beams with dried grass and twigs laid across. In the centre of the room was the sick man, with a faithful attendant sitting supporting his head. Three trays were brought in with the food, and bundles of bread, which they make here in circular sheets about 18 in. in diameter and of the thickness of brown paper. After dinner we proposed prayer, which they readily agreed to. All remained, and several more came in who had been outside. Altogether we were from twenty to twenty-five. Dead silence reigned, only broken by general exclamations of approval all round as we prayed for our sick brother that the Great Physician would bless him in body and soul, and strengthen him and us for the long and difficult journey before us, and bring him safely to Julfa, and, if it were His will, restore him to health and strength again.

A wounded man carried a six days' journey to the hospital.

Six days' journey brought us to Julfa in safety. Khan Baba was carried on men's shoulders on his litter every step of the way. We had twenty men for the whole distance, and they carried him in relays of four at a time. He is now, I am glad to say, doing well. His wounds have healed, and his leg is gradually getting stronger. His brother, who came down with him, and who has since had an operation for radical cure of hernia, seems a very bigoted man, but Khan Baba himself seems to have a much more open mind. He is likely to be with us for a good many weeks yet, and we are praying much that the seed sown while he is here may take deep root in his heart, and spring up and bear fruit unto eternal life.

Ispahar.

ISPAHAN itself, of which Julfa is the Armenian suburb, is a very bigoted Mohammedan city, and it was not until about five or six years ago that the residence of Europeans there was permitted. The work of the Society has hitherto been carried on entirely at Julfa, but it was felt that an abode in Ispahan was desirable in order to reach the Persians more effectually. A house was consequently taken, and early in October Dr. Carr moved into it. Rumours were prevalent that some of the people intended to make a disturbance, but fortunately these rumours were not justified by events, for Dr. Carr writes:—

> We have never heard a hostile word, and, on the contrary, we have constantly been asked by persons of all classes, "Are you not going to open a dispensary now you have come to town?" "When are you going to open your dispensary?" &c. A young Persian doctor living quite near, one of the more enlightened, is very friendly instead of being opposed to us, often coming in the evening to have a chat over some of his cases.

YEZD.

Yezd.

YEZD is situated in a large sandy plain to the south-east of Ispahan, and is shut in on each side by high mountains. In olden days it was a penal settlement under one of the Persian kings, and it presents an imposing appearance from a distance. In accordance with the resolution of the Committee, which was mentioned in last year's Report, Dr. and Mrs. H. White took up their residence there in April, 1898, and in a short time a suitable house was found and taken on lease, and dispensary work was commenced in the garden. From the very beginning attendances were large, and though Dr. White was laid aside for a time by an attack of fever, which necessitated the summoning of Dr. Carr to his assistance, the medical work rapidly extended. From May, 1898, to December, inclusive, about 5,300 patients were seen, Mohammedans, Parsis, and Jews, and nearly 500 visits were paid to patients in their own homes. Forty services were held in addition to the dispensary services, with an attendance of more than 1,000 persons, most of them Mohammedans. On one occasion Dr. White was called to see the wife of the Governor, and he mentions, as signs that the work is appreciated, that a Parsi gentleman has offered a house and caravanserai free in order that a permanent hospital may be established, and that he has been repeatedly asked by leading Mohammedans and Parsis to open a school.

Dispensary work commenced.

KIRMAN.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Blackett were on their way to KIRMAN, when they were greeted with the tidings of the illness of Mr. Carless, which, as already stated, ended fatally. They reached the city before his death, and were cheered not only by the sympathy which was then manifested, but also by the welcome which they received, and by the rapid progress of the work. There was a remarkable increase in the attendance at Divine worship; the number present never used to exceed twenty-five, but by the end of August it had risen to eighty-six, and when Mr. Blackett wrote his Annual Letter in November, he was able to report that the previous Sunday the attendance had been 180 in the morning and 500 in the afternoon. The women came for the first time in June, being separated from the men by curtains. Many different classes were represented at the services—Mohammedans, Babis, Hindus, Government officials, shopkeepers, relations of great Mujteheds, soldiers, dervishes, artisans, and labourers; and the large attendance was the more remarkable because it was not in any way the result of medical work, and the people had no prospect of gaining any material benefit. The Boys' School, which was commenced in 1897, had fifteen pupils. The educated people desire to have their sons taught English and French, and are quite content that Christian teaching should form part of the school routine; but at the same time this liberality of sentiment is not manifested by all, and the friends of the pupils may at any moment be exposed to personal danger. Indeed, a friendly Seyyid remarked to Mr. Blackett, "The fathers of your disciples would be killed by the mullahs were it not that they are men of rank and influence." Mr. Blackett says :—

Services well attended.

Boys' school.

Hopeful pupils.

The senior boys of the school can read the Gospel in English with tolerable fluency and translate it without difficulty. One of the immediate benefits accruing to the work from the school is this, that the Word of God finds its way into each boy's home, leads to inquiry there, and forms a subject of conversation when the missionary pays his visits. Some of the lads are certainly no longer Mussulmans. One of them comes to me for special religious instruction every day, and of him I have the highest hopes. Several of the boys attend church on Sundays, reverently kneel and join in the prayers, thus openly showing their opinions. It is no small thing when a youth thus publicly evidences regard for Christianity in the presence of several hundreds of his countrymen. It is a brave avowal of young faith which may lead to persecution, but will certainly be owned of God.

Mr. Blackett was able to visit a number of the leading people of the city, including the chief Mujteheds, and was in every case courteously received. Of one of the latter he writes :—

A Moslem teacher and "saint" possesses a copy of Henry Martyn's New Testament.

He is a man of renowned sanctity, and gets the credit of working miracles. People kiss his feet, and the dust he treads upon is supposed to have healing properties. He has written 200 books, and if he orders the death of an "infidel," it is a work of merit to execute it. On my visiting him, he produced a copy of Henry Martyn's New Testament, and turning to the account of the transfiguration, asked, "Who the Elias could be that was to come before Christ's return?" the contention beneath his inquiry being, of course, that Christ here foretold the coming of Mohammed. It only needed the reading of the whole passage to show the misapprehension under which our host was labouring. On leaving I told him that a fresh version of the Bible in Persian had recently been issued, and that I should be glad if he would consent to receive a copy. This he agreed to at once, and shortly afterwards he became the owner of Dr. Bruce's version, published by the Bible Society.

Another influential mullah was met with who possessed a copy of the Word of God, and constant visits were received from a Seyyid of the literary class, who is said to be intellectually convinced of the truth of Christianity, but to be lacking in courage to make an open confession of his faith. Dr. Carr was at Kirman from December, 1897, to February, 1898, and in that time had over 2,000 visits at the dispensary. Women, mostly of the poorer classes, came in considerable numbers, and he had a fair number of patients from the higher ranks as well. He was even asked to see the wife of a mullah, but was only allowed to feel her pulse behind a curtain!

Diagnosis under difficulties.

TURKISH ARABIA MISSION.

Baghdad, which is in the Turkish Empire, is in the immediate neighbourhood of the sacred places of the Shiah Mohammedans. Thousands of pilgrims flock to it from all parts of Persia, and in order to reach them the city was first occupied by C.M.S. missionaries in 1882. A hospital was opened in 1897. In 1898 the work, previously carried on in connexion with that in Persia, was constituted an independent Mission.

Proposal to occupy Mosul.

At the meeting of the C.M.S. Committee, held in June, 1898, it was determined to separate the work in Baghdad from the Persia Mission. At the same time it was resolved to occupy Mosul as soon as men and means should be available, but it has not proved possible to give practical effect to the latter resolution during the year under review. Mosul lies 220 miles to the north-west of Baghdad, and has a population of some 60,000. For about fifty years work was carried on there by the American Congregational Board of Missions. When they abandoned the station in 1892 it was occupied by the American Presbyterian Board of Missions, who endeavoured to reach the Mohammedans through the Oriental Christians, but owing to the necessity of retrenchment they retired in the year 1898.

Death of Mrs. J. T. Parfit.

The staff of the Mission was reduced by the death in August of Mrs. Parfit. The summer in Baghdad was a very hot one, the temperature being maintained day after day at 117 and 119 degrees on the verandah of the Mission-house. The nights also were hot and stifling, so that all the missionaries began to feel weak and exhausted, but Mrs. Parfit appeared to stand the heat as well as any one. On July 27th she had an attack of influenza; the doctor treated her at once, and in three days she began to mend, so that at mid-day on July 30th her temperature was almost normal. Towards evening her husband was helping her across the verandah when a very hot wind (a simoon) seemed to stagger her, and from that evening her temperature rose, and all the efforts of her medical man and the Residency surgeon were unavailing to keep it down. On August 4th, Mrs. Parfit was prematurely confined, but during the terribly hot night which followed the little one died, and from that time Mrs. Parfit gradually sank, until the 10th, when her spirit was called home. She was buried on the following day, near the graves of Miss Valpy and the two little sons of Dr. and Mrs. Sutton.

The Rev. J. T. Parfit came home in October, 1898, and Miss A. Phillips left for Australia on sick leave in January, 1899.

BAGHDAD.

Baghdad

Baghdad has a population of 120,000 souls: of these, nearly one-third are Jews; 5,000 belong to the various Oriental churches; and the remainder are Mohammedans, about equally divided between Sunnis and Shiahs. To work amongst this multitude the Society had at the commencement of the year one ordained man and his wife, one doctor, and two single ladies; but the death of Mrs. Parfit and the return home of her husband, and a little later the compulsory departure on account of health of Miss Phillips, so diminished the force that by February, 1899, only two of the regular staff of the Mission were left. The difficulties always experienced in work in Mohammedan lands are supplemented in Baghdad by one which is almost peculiar to that city, for, attracting as it does pilgrims from all parts of the Mohammedan world to the shrines of some of the eminent saints of Islam which it contains, and occupying also an important commercial position, it has become one of the most polyglot towns in existence. Dr. H. M. Sutton, who is at home on furlough, writes:—

A polyglot city.

> Arabic is the language of the place, but many of the resident Turkish officials never acquire it; the Persian and Indian pilgrims make no long stay in Baghdad, and the large community of Kurdish coolies seldom use any language but their own. Many of the Armenians habitually use three languages, speaking Arabic and Turkish in addition to their mother tongue. I have been at the bedside of a patient where, in a company of half a dozen people, we had to use five languages, and on another occasion we were a company of about forty people in a room where no less than fourteen languages were represented. The land of Shinar is thus still the place of the confusion of tongues.

Medical Mission.

The Medical Work was under Dr. P. S. Sturrock, who reports thankfully that he experienced no interference from the Turkish Government. In consequence of the necessity of taking time for the study of the language, he limited the number of out-patients seen each day to thirty, and increased the accommodation of the house used as a dispensary and hospital; in this way he was able to get through a greater amount of work, while from the medical point of view the results were more satisfactory. Of the 6,033 out-patients who were seen at the dispensary during the year, 2,469 were new patients; in addition there were 161 in-patients, 140 of whom were Mohammedans, and 620 visits were paid to patients in their own homes. Some of the people preferred, while in the hospital, to sleep on the ground instead of making use of the wooden beds provided for them; the reason for this was explained by a woman, who said: "I am afraid I would roll off the bed during the night!" It was not uncommon for patients to come to the hospital from places 400 or 500 miles away, and some even made a fifteen days' journey in order to have the advantage of skilled medical treatment. A Mohammedan from India, who visited the dispensary before his return home, handed Dr. Sturrock a donation of a guinea, adding, "May God abundantly bless this good work!"

An Indian Moslem blesses the work.

After the departure of the Rev. J. T. Parfit, the services for the Congregation were conducted by the Native Christian in charge of the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society, the sermons which were preached being translations of suitable addresses by well-known men. The Girls' School was separated from that for the boys in March, another house being rented for it, and Miss E. E. Martin placed in charge; she was obliged to take over the superintendence of the Boys' School as well in September. An epidemic of small-pox in the city affected the numbers, but otherwise the work progressed favourably. A few inquirers were met with, but naturally the "oppressive yoke of Turkish rule," and the fear of the consequences of displaying any tendency to forsake Mohammedanism, prevented there being much manifest result of the seed-sowing. There was, however, one striking exception, of which Miss Phillips writes as follows:—

"He never denied Christ."

A man was converted through reading the Bible at a bookshop of the Arabian Mission. He came to Baghdad on military duty, and was very bold, going frequently to Mr. Parfit's house and coming openly to church. Of course he was soon arrested and imprisoned. His wife came to see us, and it was most touching to hear her tale, how the soldiers surrounded their house, entered, and seized him. "Ah, lady! they loaded him with irons and carried him to prison; the officials tried to frighten him, but he was not afraid. He never denied Christ, he never denied Christ," she kept repeating. "They threatened to crucify him if he dared say in their presence that he believed in Christ, but he answered, 'Crucify me, if you will; but I am a servant of Christ, and will not deny Him.'" We all knelt in prayer together, that he might be strengthened and delivered from his persecutors, for they did persecute him. The remarkable thing is that this woman seems far more in earnest now than before her husband's imprisonment; his boldness seems to have saved his own life and inspired hers.

Visit to Mosul.

Miss Phillips and Miss Martin spent their holidays in a visit to Mosul, which is close to the ruins of ancient Nineveh. While there they went to see the supposed tomb of the prophet Jonah, which is guarded jealously by the Mohammedans, who have built a mosque over it, and they also paid a visit to "Sheikh Matti," an old monastery, one day's journey from Mosul. In the chapel is the tomb of the founder, dated 280 A.D., one of several in good preservation, with their inscriptions in ancient Syriac. It is said that at one time a thousand monks lived there, but the ladies only found a Jacobite Bishop and two monks in possession, at whose hands they received no little kindness.

INDIA.

New Viceroy.

INDIA received both a new Viceroy and a new Metropolitan at the commencement of 1899. On January 6th, Lord Elgin handed over the reins of government to his successor, Lord Curzon, formerly Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, who had shown himself to be a brilliant Parliamentarian, capable in the conduct of affairs, and whose Asiatic travels and study of Asiatic problems will prove of great value in the position he has assumed. Before his retirement the outgoing Viceroy, in a speech at Simla, briefly reviewed some of the chief events of his term of office. The latter portion of it in particular was a troubled period, but Lord Elgin was able to refer to some of the calamities which marked the year 1897 as altogether, and to others as largely, belonging to the past, and certainly the outlook is more hopeful than when last year's Report was written.

Frontier campaign over;

In the first place, the military expeditions which were necessitated by the risings on the North-West Frontier were successful in attaining the objects for which they were sent out, and although from time to time there has been some recrudescence of the trouble, and the Frontier policy must always constitute one of the gravest problems which the Government of India has to face, nevertheless peace has prevailed for some months in the region of disturbance, and there is reason to hope that all outstanding disputes with the Afridis are in a fair way towards a satisfactory settlement.

famine a thing of the past;

The endeavours to cope with the second great trouble which fell upon India, viz., the distress consequent upon the famine, were largely crowned with success. The missionaries took a considerable part in the work of feeding the hungry and relieving those who were in want. Their work was fully described in last year's Report.

but the plague continues.

Unfortunately it is not possible to speak of the third evil, the plague, as a thing of the past. Bombay experienced a renewed visitation in September and October, 1898, and in the spring of 1899 the epidemic was again prevalent. In April, 1898, the mysterious disease wrought great havoc in Karachi, while in Calcutta itself a few cases occurred, and a considerable panic ensued. Every effort was made to ascertain the home of the plague (Professor Koch maintains it to be Uganda), and scientifically to investigate the nature of the disease with a view to more successfully battling with it. The peril which is incurred by doctors in the pursuit of their profession was sadly illustrated by the deaths in Vienna of Dr. Müller, a member of the Austrian Medical Commission dispatched to Bombay in January, 1897, who, with some of his associates, fell a victim to his studies in the so-called plague room of the Pathological Institute in Vienna. It is possible that the steps for coping with the plague which were adopted in India in the spring and summer of 1898 may have permanent and unforeseen consequences. Concerning this point the Right Rev. G. A. Lefroy, the Bishop-Designate of Lahore, the head of the Cambridge Mission at Delhi, writes:—

Hindus and Moslems drawn together.

It is indisputable that regulations which are in themselves, from our point of view, all wise and natural precautions, violate the most deeply-seated family feelings and prejudices of the Natives, Hindu and Mohammedan alike. One result, and that not a little one, in view of the conditions of our tenure of power, has been to draw these two great bodies together in a union far closer than anything I have ever seen before, and this a union based avowedly and openly on resistance to the enforcement of the Government plague regulations.

Quite recently in Delhi, where a serious scare occurred from some mistaken notion that the plague had appeared and the regulations were to be put in force, we had an illustration of this mutual drawing-together of Hindus and Mohammedans which I should not have previously thought possible. Not only did the Hindus distinctly fraternize in some Mohammedan religious observances—a thing not so wonderful in view of the Hindu pantheistic basis of thought—but the Mohammedans also, a few days afterwards, took similar part in a Hindu festival of a grossly idolatrous character, and actually permitted a certain red paint, indicative of that festival, and which has been regarded by the Mohammedans in the past with loathing on this account, to be thrown freely over them. To those who know the depth of Mohammedan religious feeling an incident like this will mean much.

Determined to resist sanitary rules of the Government.

And now every day they speak quite openly of their intention to resist to the death Government rules which involve what they regard as the violation of their homes and the dishonour of their women, in a way to which I have never previously heard any approach. One and all, the Natives say: "Let us die; we do not in the least mind dying; we must die some day or other; far rather would we die now by the hand of God than suffer this dishonour to our homes, our women, and our dead." How far this fatalism would survive the actual and unchecked incoming of the plague, or whether, when they saw all it meant, and realized the fearful desolation it would spread, they would themselves call upon the Government to take some preventive action, is quite another matter.

Now, after the riot and bloodshed that occurred in Bombay, the rules have been most materially modified in the direction of meeting Native wishes, and of making the various plague regulations a matter of earnest exhortation and advice, but no longer of actual compulsion.

New Metropolitan.

But India has changed its ecclesiastical as well as its civil leader, and to the Society the change of Metropolitan is of even greater moment than the change of Viceroy. The C.M.S. has a special interest in the Diocese of Calcutta, since the Society, and the Evangelical men who founded it, took a leading part in the establishment of the See. When the Charter of the East India Company, which excluded missionaries from its territory, and contained inadequate provision for the spiritual needs of the English residents, was to come before Parliament for revision in 1813, Wilberforce, Claudius Buchanan, Josiah Pratt, Charles Grant, Henry Thornton, James Stephen, and Lord Teignmouth were amongst those who exerted themselves to obtain the insertion of clauses in the new Charter which should remove these hindrances to the evangelization of India. With the revision of the Charter in view, these men had been labouring steadily for years. In 1812 they openly commenced the campaign, held meetings, wrote pamphlets, presented petitions to Parliament, used personal influence. The organizing of the 850 petitions which were sent up from the country was done by Josiah Pratt, and at the cost of the C.M.S. The two powerful pamphlets which Buchanan wrote were written at the request of the Society, and printed and circulated at its expense. The influence exerted at East India House was that of Charles Grant and Lord Teignmouth. Wilberforce and the two Grants, father and son, led the attack in the House of Commons. In the debate of June 22nd, 1813, when the two resolutions, the one providing for a bishop and three archdeacons, the other empowering missionaries to settle in the East India Company's territory, were put to the vote, it was Wilberforce whose speech closed the discussion, and, humanly speaking, carried the day.

The part taken by C.M.S. in founding Diocese of Calcutta.

Farewell to Bishop Johnson.

The Right Rev. E. R. Johnson, who resigned the Bishopric in consequence of ill health, was consecrated in 1876. Although, as was natural, the C.M.S. did not invariably see eye to eye with him, yet the Society was always sure of fair treatment at his hands, and its missionaries, as individuals, experienced much kindness from him. He preached a farewell sermon at the Old Church, Calcutta, on April 24th, 1898, and in the following month was the recipient of an address signed by 102 of the clergy of his diocese. The Rev. J. E. C. Welldon, Head Master of Harrow, was appointed to succeed him. Before he left for India the Committee of the C.M.S. had an interview with Dr. Welldon, in the course of which he stated that he had long been a warm supporter and admirer of the Society, and that he looked forward with lively interest to a closer acquaintance with its work; and, speaking at a meeting for men, organized by the Lay Workers' Union for London, which was held in Exeter Hall on November 7th, he said that while the office to which he was called was not strictly a missionary office, yet when he was asked to go to India as a Bishop, he intimated to the Secretary of State that unless he was allowed a free hand to encourage and support Christian Missions he would rather not go. With this clear indication of his motive in accepting the responsible position of Metropolitan of India, and Bishop of a diocese which contains a population of 110,000,000, of whom the great majority are strangers to the knowledge of Christ, may well be linked an extract from a letter written to the editor of the Times immediately before his departure for his new sphere of work, in which Dr. Welldon sketched in general outline the policy he intended to pursue, and the hope by which he was inspired. He wrote:—

Obligations of a Christian Government.

There is indeed one special aspect of Christianity in India where it may be thought that the Church stands necessarily opposed to the State. I need not say that I refer to Christian Missions. The Bishopric of Calcutta is not indeed a missionary bishopric. It would be a departure from the true nature of my office to regard it as an instrument of missionary propagandism. Yet Christian Missions may, I think, justly hope, not indeed for the support, but for the systematic toleration of the Government. It is in a sense true that the great missionary in India is not the Church, but the State; for it is impossible to place a highly-advanced Christian civilization beside a civilization of another type and not to produce a deep effect upon the latter. The theory that England can introduce into India Christian laws and customs, Christian institutions, Christian society, and the spirit and temper of Christianity, without introducing the elements of Christian thought or belief, need only be expressed to be rejected. Non-Christian races, when they are brought into contact with a dominant Christian race, will be led to investigate the credentials of Christianity. It is the State which raises this question; the Church endeavours to answer it. No doubt the Church will be conscious of the limitations imposed upon her as the Church of a small, although governing, minority. She will pursue a large-hearted and broad-minded policy. She will cherish a feeling of respect for the ancient religious systems by which she is surrounded. She will use no harsh word nor entertain any unkind thought about any one of them. She will hold, not that Christianity is wholly true and other religions are wholly false, but that Christianity is the perfect expression of the truth to which other religions approximate. She has no title to enforce her creeds and her practices upon men of other faiths than her own. Nor will she suppose that the Church in India can be or ought to be a mere replica of the Church at home. She will be persuaded that Indian Christianity, if it shall ever become national, must be based upon native habits of thought and life, upon native character, and upon native ministry; but it will be her high privilege, as it is her sacred duty, to meet and welcome, and, so far as she may, to satisfy, the many tendencies of the Indian mind and conscience towards Christ, and she will believe that she can afford no better evidence of her love for India than by offering to the Indian peoples, so far as they are willing to accept it, the religion which has been the principal source of English greatness and happiness.

The Church's Mission in India.

When the new Metropolitan expresses himself in such terms, and the new Viceroy declares, as did Lord Curzon in memorable phrase, that "the spectacle presented by our dominion in India" is that of "British power sustained by a Christian ideal," there is reason to hope that by the good Providence of God brighter days are dawning for that land than it has hitherto known.

India's overwhelming needs.

It is well that it should be so, for the need of India is almost overwhelming, in spite of the onward strides which have been made by Christian Missions during the century now hastening to its close. Many of the stations are undermanned; there are some vast unoccupied fields, especially in the Native States; and the testimony which is received as to the condition of the people lends additional emphasis to the call for more men in order that the task of evangelizing the country may be adequately undertaken. It is stated that the cruel and illegal rite of swinging by a hook passed through the flesh has been recently perpetrated in at least seven places in Bengal, one man having submitted to the torture no less than eighteen times. A sad picture, too, is drawn of the infanticide which is still lamentably prevalent. The babies, it is true, are no longer drowned at birth, but they are often reserved for a much more lingering and painful death by starvation or by disease wilfully caused. And apart from actual murder, there are the wholesale destruction of purity, the practical selling into slavery, the terrible suffering caused by branding for disease, and other forms of barbarous mis-treatment; and, above all, the appalling moral depravation of youthful innocence which no legislation can ever affect. Definite instances of some of these evils were given by one of the Chief Judges in the Chief Court of British India at a meeting held to inaugurate a Society for the Protection of Children. His speech is summarized by the Bombay Guardian as follows :—

Cruelties to children.

Mr. Justice Pratt spoke from an experience of twenty-nine years in India as to a few facts and phases regarding the cruelty and oppression to which children are subjected in this country. These had come under his immediate observation in the exercise of his judicial functions when he was magistrate in the interior. There was one form whereby children were sold at a young age for evil purposes. The law at present could and did mete out punishment to evil-doers in this respect, but the difficulty arose as to what was to be done with the children. In the generality of cases the children were taken over by missionaries, but it often happened that a relative turned up later on and took away the child, with the result that all the time and trouble expended on the child in question were lost. Another phase was that of branding young children. Two cases of this revolting cruelty had come before him. In one case a poor little child-wife, eight or nine years of age, who was insufficiently fed by her husband, took a little rice and sugar to appease her hunger. In the other case another little child-wife, while bathing in a tank, innocently splashed some water on a youth passing by. What was done to these two little unfortunate, innocent children? In both cases the mother-in-law held the child while the husband with a red-hot iron branded her in several places.

Faith in religion undermined.

The religious condition of the country also is one which must cause all thoughtful men the gravest anxiety. A Christian Professor of Indian descent has said :—"Not only the educated classes, but also the masses, and even the pundits are losing faith in a religion to which they usually lend their nominal adherence, and sometimes their enthusiastic support. The efforts made for the revival of Hinduism are spasmodic and hollow, and yet there is no great accession to the ranks of Christianity. Brahmoism has been played out; Theosophy has been exploded; Swami Vivekananda's earnest appeals have fallen on the barren soil of Bengal, and revivalists have actually come to be looked upon with suspicion." The necessarily secular education which is given by the Government has taken away the old faiths without giving anything in their stead, and on all sides the edifice of positive religion is crumbling into dust.

Sad facts such as these give cause for anxiety, but not for despair, for there were indications during the year under review that the work of Missionary Societies is not without effect. Indisputable evidence of a stupendous change which has been wrought in the country was afforded by one of the last of a series of meetings held in the Memorial Hall, Madras, under the auspices of the Tamil Christian Association; for it was arranged by Indian women, addressed by Indian women, and presided over by an Indian lady graduate! Even the non-Christians recognize that an upheaval is taking place. The Arya Patirika, a publication bitterly opposed to Christianity, in a recent article described the treatment meted out by the higher classes to the lower, and added:— Progress of India's women.

Your despotism can no longer last, and your repressive spirit must cease. The Government would never leave oppression of any sort unnoticed. Nor will it curtail the liberties of the people and allow the lower classes to perish in ignorance and misery. It gives them liberal education and holds out brilliant prospects in life. They must some day rise in rank and wealth, and claim superiority over you, all your efforts to belittle them notwithstanding. If, however, they fail to avail themselves of these advantages they have another agency to help them forward, and that is Christian Missions. The Government has nothing to do with religion. It cares not whether one is a Brahman or a barber. Its doors of liberality are open for all, and a Chamar may become a high official, and outstrip those who pride themselves upon the respectability of their descent. But Christianity can do a great deal more. It raises, in the first place, the social status of the lower-class converts, and secondly, improves their mental tone. These men will, when converted to Christianity, find fault with your dharma—the very dharma that you looked up to with respect and honour but a few years before. You may now despise a Jhinwar or a Mazhabi Sikh, call him names and what not, but when he comes to you as a Christian gentleman you dare not utter a word in his derogation. You are bound to respect him, and the man whom you made to stand at a respectable distance when he belonged to your society now comes forward to shake hands with you. Raising of the depressed classes.

The Day of Prayer for the awakening of India and Ceylon, which was observed in 1897 for the first time on December 12th, was observed in 1898 on November 27th.

The Quinquennial Conference of delegates from the various Missions of the Society in India was held at Allahabad from December 4th to December 9th, and was attended by more than forty of the missionaries and native clergy, some of whom had to travel nearly 2,000 miles before they reached even such a central place as that selected for the gatherings. The Rev. E. Sell and the Rev. Robert Clark made the preliminary preparations, and the former presided at the meetings. The Rev. W. G. Peel, now Bishop-Designate of Mombasa, and the Rev. C. H. Gill acted as Secretaries. The Rev. Dr. W. Hooper preached the Conference sermon from Jeremiah xxxiii. 1–3. Chief among the large variety of subjects which were considered was the question of Native Church organization. A circular letter had been sent to a large number of leading missionaries of Quinquennial Conference at Allahabad.

other Societies inquiring regarding their experience on particular vital points, and their replies were before the Conference, a majority of which declared for the method of governing the Native Church by a Council composed mainly or entirely of Natives under a European chairman (which is the C.M.S. plan), rather than by Boards of Government in which the European and Indian elements are, so to speak, amalgamated. Measures for making the High Schools and Colleges more effective as evangelistic agencies were suggested, the opinion that a wide expansion in Medical Missionary work is called for was universally expressed, and the need of an original vernacular literature was emphasized. Another subject which was considered was "The maintenance and deepening of the spiritual life of missionary workers," concerning which one who was present, in an account of the Conference, wrote:—

> What we need is more "tarrying" in order to the receiving of more "power from on high." This feeling was voiced in the Conference, and seemed to find an echo in many hearts. Stress was laid upon the fact that a mere hypothetical acceptance of the doctrine expressed in our Master's dictum, "Apart from Me, ye can do nothing," is of nothing worth. With a view to practical holiness the members of the Conference passed a solemn resolution recognizing the supreme necessity of the continual anointing of the Holy Ghost, derived from an abiding union with our exalted Lord, and pledging themselves to devote more time than heretofore to communion with God and intercession on behalf of others, even though it may involve the curtailing of some of the external activities of what men call "work."

It was decided to ask the Parent Committee to take advantage of the visit to India from time to time of ministers of known spiritual power, in order to arrange gatherings for their missionaries in convenient centres for quiet days, and, to use a new term which exactly conveys the meaning, quiet weeks. The desire was also expressed that similar gatherings should be arranged for Indian clergy and lay workers, to be conducted by missionaries of experience and evangelistic power, whether European or otherwise, rather than by passing visitors from England, and it was suggested that some missionaries should be definitely set apart as missioners to the Native Churches. Much kindness was shown to the delegates by the Bishop of Lucknow and many of the leading clergy and laity of Allahabad, and the Bishop, practically at his own suggestion, met the members of the Conference in informal gatherings, to talk over the important question of Native Church organization. The Conference is said to have been remarkable for the prayerful spirit, the brotherly love, and the unanimity of decision which were generally manifested.

The Rev. P. Ireland Jones visited many of the stations in the Bengal, North-West Provinces, Punjab, and Western India Missions, encouraging the workers, and giving them much valued counsel and assistance.

BENGAL MISSION.

Lutheran missionaries under the S.P.C.K. laboured in India in the last century, and many thousands of converts were baptized; but the Missions, after the deaths of Schwartz and other leaders, languished, and at length only a few Christians remained in the south. For some years prior to the renewal of the East India Company's charter in 1813, no missionaries were allowed to reside within the British Dominions, and Carey, the famous Baptist Missionary, and his companions, had to take refuge in the Danish settlements. Among the Government chaplains, however, there were men like Brown, Buchanan, Henry Martyn, Corrie, and Thomason, who did what they could to prepare the way for future workers. The C.M.S. had an important share in the establishment of the Bishopric of Calcutta in 1814, by its publication of Claudius Buchanan's work on the subject; and it granted the first Bishop, Dr. Middleton, £5,000 towards the cost of Bishop's College. His successors have been: Heber (1822), James (1826), Turner (1829), Daniel Wilson (1832), Cotton (1858), Milman (1867), Johnson (1876), Welldon (1898).

Before India was open to missionaries, a Corresponding Committee of the C.M.S. was formed at Calcutta, of which the above-named chaplains and several influential laymen were members. Two English missionaries were sent to Calcutta in 1816; Burdwan was occupied in 1817; Krishnagar (Nadiya) in 1831; and Bhágalpur in 1850. Great interest was aroused by a remarkable movement in the Nadiya district in 1838, when some 3,000 persons forsook Heathenism, and on one occasion 900 were baptized in the presence of Bishop Daniel Wilson. Work was begun among the Santals, an aboriginal tribe in Bengal, in 1860.

Dr. Welldon, the new Bishop of Calcutta and Metropolitan of India, whose appointment has been mentioned in the notes introductory to the Indian Mission (see supra, page 163), arrived in Calcutta on January 31st, 1899. The enthronement took place in the Cathedral, Calcutta, on the following day. There were seventy clergymen present, twenty of whom were C.M.S. missionaries, and the Cathedral was crowded to its utmost capacity. The Bishop preached. On February 2nd, the Holy Communion was administered in the Cathedral, when, besides the clergy, there were 200 communicants. The Bishop held his first ordination in the Cathedral on February 26th, when Messrs. Solomon Biswas, Kanto Lal Biswas, Santi Bhusan Biswas, and Jebon Chandro Mullick were ordained deacons.

Bishop Welldon's enthronement.

Ordination.

Two clergymen and one layman were sent out during the year to reinforce the Mission:—the Rev. Ernest Cannon, of Islington College, who was ordained by the Bishop of London on June 5th, 1898; the Rev. Henry Masters Moore, B.A., Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, curate of Appledore, North Devon; and Mr. John Harvey Hickinbotham, of Islington College. Mr. Moore sailed in December, and the others in October. On the other hand, the Rev. and Mrs. F. B. Gwinn, the Rev. R. B. Marriott, and Miss E. J. Neele have retired.

Reinforcements.

Mr. Stephen Jacob, a warm friend of the Society, and a member of the Calcutta Corresponding Committee, died on December 11th, 1898. Mr. Jacob was a distinguished member of the Civil Service. In 1879 he was appointed Under-Secretary to the Government of India in the Finance and Commerce Department, and in 1890 he became Comptroller-General, and for several months acted as Financial Secretary to the Government of India. For many years he was a member of the Old Church, Calcutta, congregation, and was generally present at the weekly prayer-meeting. He was president of the Young Men's Christian Association, and of the Bengal Sunday-school Union.

and of Miss E. A. Hunt.

The C.E.Z.M.S. suffered a great loss by the death, on January 3rd, of Miss E. A. Hunt, the lady superintendent of the Normal School. In the afternoon of that day from two to three hundred Hindu and Christian Bengalis, accompanied in many cases by their wives, came to pay the last tribute of respect and love. The Rev. P. T. Biswas, the native pastor of the church in which Miss Hunt had been wont to worship, wrote:—

> She was an angel here among us, a mother in Israel, earnestly working for Christ among a large number of Hindu women, and even men. Many have been led to Christ by her pious endeavour and unceasing, zealous labour. She fought a good fight in many a stronghold of Satan, and the people who sat in darkness saw great light of Christ, their Saviour, by her. It is a loss to us, but surely gain to her, when she has been taken suddenly from our midst.

The following are the members of the Calcutta Corresponding Committee:—the Bishop of Calcutta, Capt. Dobbie, Col. Scott, R.E., Mr. A. F. Cox, Mr. W. H. Dobbie, Mr. R. M. Gurney, Mr. M. C. Turner, Revs. E. T. Butler, A. G. Lockett, G. M. Davies, and the Hon. J. A. Bourdillon.

The Rev. W. H. Ball is the Acting-Secretary of the Mission.

I. CALCUTTA AND BURDWAN.

It should have been stated in last year's Annual Report that the Rev. C. Grant was married on September 28th, 1897, to Miss Jane Rice Richardson, of the C.E.Z.M.S. The Rev. E. T. Sandys was married to Miss Hilare Katharine Esmé Brown, of the C.E.Z.M.S., on January 19th, 1899, and came home with her in March. The Rev. and Mrs. R. J. Kennedy came to England in September, 1898, the latter after a stay of four months in Russia en route; the Rev. H. Kitley came home in March, 1899; and Miss I. F. Young in April. The Rev. and Mrs. I. W. Charlton and the Rev. C. B. Clarke sailed for the Mission in October, 1898.

Old Church.

It is not generally realized how manifold are the agencies employed, and how useful the work done, in connexion with the Old Church, CALCUTTA, which was built by Kiernander in 1771, and handed over to the Society in 1870. The congregation, which is composed of Europeans, Eurasians, and a few educated Bengalis, numbers from 150 to 300 on Sunday mornings, and from 350 to 500 in the evenings. There are four different Sunday-schools, one of them exclusively, and two others partially, for Jewish children; one Day School, with 175 names on the roll, at which fees are paid; and one Free Day School. This last was opened in November, 1891, with sixty pupils, but on the 1st of September, 1898, there were 172 children on the roll, representing 104 poor European and Eurasian families; it is the only Church of England Free Day School in the city. In 1896 a Hebrew Mission Day School was commenced, at which some sixty children received instruction during the year under review. There is also in connexion with the Old Church a Girls' Parochial Home, where thirty of the girls belonging to the Free Day School are fed, clothed, and generally cared for, who would otherwise be obliged to live in the midst of most debasing surroundings. In addition to these organizations, there are Prayer meetings, Mothers' meetings, Temperance meetings (attended sometimes by as many as sixty men), a Band of Hope, a Scripture Union, and a branch of the Gleaners' Union. The Rev. H. Gouldsmith reports that the total receipts from all sources for the work of the church, schools, &c., amounted to £3,131. The spire of the church, which had been seriously damaged by the earthquake of 1897, was not rebuilt, but a new porch was erected during the year at a cost of Rs. 14,000. House-to-house visiting was carried on by the Rev. C. L. Olsen, and Miss I. F. Young (now at home). The latter found Roman Catholicism very prevalent, but had good hope regarding one or two Jewish girls. Mr. Olsen was much interested in the work at the Sailors' Home. The services held there each morning at 7.30 a.m. were well attended, and there was some evidence that they were helpful to the sailors.

Free Day School.

The Rev. A. G. Lockett, the Acting-Principal of the Divinity School, received much assistance in his work from the Rev. W. H. Ball—who gave the students of the College weekly lectures on the Prayer Book—and from Mr. A. C. Kestin and the Rev. P. T. Biswas. Through the co-operation of the two last-named, it was possible to form a Hindi class with five members, the object being in some measure to meet the urgent need both in Calcutta and Behar, of trained Hindi-speaking men. Two of these students left before the end of the college year. One of them, a Brahman convert, a man of considerable promise, broke down in health, and was obliged to return to the North-West Provinces, where he died shortly afterwards, and the other proved to be both intellectually and spiritually unsuited for evangelistic work. Of the six Bengali students in their last year, one was disconnected, and the remainder passed out to fill various appointments. The four senior men who were reading for deacons' orders were ordained by Bishop Welldon, as already mentioned, on February 26th, 1899. Mr. Lockett says of them, "They have all shown marked earnestness and ability, both in evangelistic and pastoral work, and we have every confidence that they will make good and faithful ordained pastors."

Boarding Schools.

The Christian Boys' Boarding School was under the Rev. C. Grant, until the Rev. C. B. Clarke returned to take charge in November. The plague scare for a time reduced the number of boys from 106 to 33, and four of the six school servants ran away. Only one candidate was sent up for the University Entrance Examination, and he passed in the first division, and afterwards went to the S.P.G. College at Cawnpore to read for his F.A. degree. Pupils of the school competed at two public examinations in Bible knowledge, open to all Christian boys: in the one, the first place and a prize of Rs. 5 was gained by a boy belonging to the boarding-school, and in the other all the five boys who entered passed, and three received prizes of books. Miss H. J. Neele, the Principal of the Girls' Boarding School, experienced considerable anxiety in consequence of the plague scare and its attendant evils. The plague itself did not really gain a footing in Calcutta, but the fear of it was so great that many fled from the city, including the mehters or sweepers, whose departure resulted in the refuse remaining for days in the streets, a condition of affairs which involved imminent peril for the inhabitants. Fortunately the mehter employed at the boarding-school had no place to which to flee, and it was therefore possible to have the premises kept clean. No deaths occurred among the girls at the school, but a former pupil was called away. Nominally she was a Brahman, but shortly before her death she nodded her head affirmatively when Miss Neele, who was visiting her, asked whether she was trusting in Jesus as her Saviour. Six of the pupils were married in the course of the year; with them, as with other "old girls," the teachers were kept in touch by means of the branch of the Gleaners' Union, which was under the special care of Miss A. M. Sampson. One of these Gleaners, whose husband is a native missionary among the coolies of Upper Assam, wrote requesting prayer for the work in that portion of the field, and expressing her joy that, notwithstanding the unhealthiness of the climate, she was able to help her husband in working for the extension of the Redeemer's Kingdom. The effort, which was referred to in last year's Report, to dispense with the heathen pundits, and substitute Bengali Christian ladies in their place, was attended with success. The step did not involve any detriment to the efficiency of the teaching, as was manifested by the fact that all the four first-class pupils who were sent up for the Matriculation Examination of the Calcutta University proved successful, one being placed in the first and two in the second division. Two of the girls afterwards commenced to read at the Bethune College for the First Arts degree, but continued their residence at the school, and their attendance at the Scripture classes. On the return of Miss E. J. Neele to England, her place was taken by Miss K. Farler.

Christ Church.

The congregation of Christ Church, consisting of the few families of Christians and of the pupils of the Girls' Boarding School and the C.E.Z.M.S. Normal School, over 300 souls in all, was under the pastoral care of the Rev. P. T. Biswas, and contributed more than Rs. 558 to the funds of the Church Council. On Sunday, March 30th, 1898, Babu Amrita Lal Nath and his wife and little son were baptized in the church. The story of their conversion was thus related in the North India localized C.M. Gleaner :—

For the past ten years Amrita Lal Babu has been seeking to know the truth. He has visited many shrines, and conversed with many Gurus, but could find no peace or satisfaction. Some years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Gouldsmith and Miss Mulvany spent a few days in a rest-house at Diamond Harbour near his village, and Mr. Gouldsmith gave a lecture in the school-room on the parable of the Prodigal Son. Amrita Babu interpreted it to the boys. A great impression was made on his mind at the time, and he looks upon it as one of the steps by which he was led to Christ, but he still visited Hindu shrines and looked elsewhere for peace. On one occasion when visiting Kali Ghat he met with a Hindi-speaking Sadhu, and sitting down by him tried to learn from him. But he was silent, except when at times he cried out, "Now I am God." Amrita Babu begged him to explain what the sensation was that enabled him to say this, and how it was to be obtained, and questioned him very closely on the subject. At last he said, "If you will leave your home and live a life of meditation as I do, you will gain salvation ; or if you cannot leave your family, go home and give alms to the Brahmans and feed the poor ; but if you want to know the reason of things, you had better go and be a Christian." Such advice from a Hindu Sadhu impressed him much, and he went home determined to read the Bible. He did so, and met with Christian friends who helped and taught him; and after going through several phases of thought he has found rest and peace of mind. In his own words, he has found "spiritual religion in the Historical Church," and is satisfied. His wife was greatly distressed at the thought of his becoming a Christian, and did all in her power to prevent it, but God, in His mercy, has led her also to recognize our Lord as her Saviour, and she is now very bright and happy, and will be, we trust, a true helpmeet to him. The boy is a little jewel !

A Sadhu recommends an inquirer to become a Christian.

"Found spiritual religion—and satisfied."

Mr. Biswas says that Amrita tries with his whole heart and strength to bring his own people to the Saviour, not only praying for them, but also taking occasional leave from his office in order to visit and teach and preach, and he gives the following instance in which the convert's efforts were owned of God :—

Amrita first brought one of his near relations, Babu Bamacharan Nath, and introduced him to me. After some days' talk and reasonings, Bamacharan fled away for some weeks, but could not be at rest, and at last came back, being determined to receive baptism. We persuaded him to bring his wife first and then both be taught in the way of truth, which he did ; but when his wife knew that Bamacharan wanted her to become a Christian, she strongly stood against the thought of it, and refused to take any sort of food with her husband. Indeed, for two days she lived without any kind of food or drink. But Amrita and Bamacharan failed not to pray for her. Myself and the ladies also did the same, and our prayer was at last answered. She became mild, saw the good temper and milder behaviour of her husband, felt the inward work of the Spirit, which was until then unknown to her ; and she could not resist the power of God. She joined the little company in its joy and happiness, spoke favourably with her husband, and became an humble servant of Christ. After a few days they both expressed their earnest desire of becoming catechumens. In the meantime, her father, hearing all this, came to see her, being very much enraged with Bamacharan, and tried to use force to take away his daughter. But he was urged to stay with them one day and he consented ; he argued with them, at first very angrily ; but his manner was soon changed when he saw their Bible-readings, prayers, and humble Christian conduct. He further promised to read for himself the Christians' holy Book, and departed, allowing his daughter to embrace the Christian religion. After a due course of reading and teaching they both received holy baptism, and are still very faithful to their profession. These two converts are very willing and zealous for furthering the kingdom of God to their own people. Both of them had to face persecution, and even beating, from their own people, yet they are not discouraged, but continue to labour for them as before.

Trinity Church.

The work in connexion with Trinity Church, which was opened in 1826, fell heavily on the Rev. A. Stark, owing to the transference of his most useful catechist to another station, and the retirement of the Rev. Katwaru Lal. The Bengali congregation consisted, besides others, of members of the Scotch Free Church, Methodist, and American Episcopal Missions, as well as of the C.M.S. and C.E.Z.M.S. The number of communicants steadily increased, and on Easter Day was considerably over 100. The Hindi congregation was not so large. Mr. Stark was assisted in his ministrations among them by Mr. A. C. Kestin, who relieved him of one of the two services. The Leper Asylum, which contained nearly 150 Hindu and Mohammedan lepers, was visited every day ; two Hindus, returned emigrants from the Mauritius and Demerara, who had heard something of the Gospel in the colonies, were baptized, and also one Mohammedan. The Rev. I. W. Charlton, on his return from furlough, took over the work at Trinity Church from Mr. Stark, who was transferred to the Mohammedan Mission, of which no report has been received.

The Band of Associated Evangelists was very small, and consisted only of the Rev. H. Kitley, and Mr. A. C. Kestin, who were assisted by the Rev. M. D. Biswas. Mr. Kestin, who is specially engaged in the Hindi work, says that the preaching of the Word is much more favourably received than formerly by the people of the Bara Bazaar, and particularly by the members of the wealthy merchant class. He wrote in October :—

Preaching in the Bara Bazaar.

In the initial stages of the work the opposition was most pronounced, and often took the form of open violence, such as stone and mud-throwing, hooting, and hustling, while our statements of the truth were constantly challenged and ridiculed. This apparent determination to have none of the Gospel also showed itself in the way the landlords of the small shops we successively occupied were persecuted until we were ejected, and when last writing we had to report that we had no foothold amongst them at all, having just had to leave premises in a most promising quarter. In February last we obtained the use of another shop, the smallest we have yet occupied (6 ft. by about 5 ft.), but on the main road, and in the very heart of the busiest part, and from this we have since continued to preach to crowds standing on the path outside. Our position is, of course, very precarious, but so far the police have not objected, and the people gather well, including a goodly number of the best class. Here, far from opposition, we have most consistently received a good hearing, and this notwithstanding the fact that many of our former opponents attend. Our words are frequently not only favourably commented on, but constantly and openly assented to.

At times the people by the riverside, where daily preachings were held, appeared to be really touched by the simple story of Divine love. On one occasion a man went up to the missionary in tears, saying, "This suits my heart," and another expressed himself warmly in favour of Christianity, but added that the Hindu priests taunted them with wanting to become Christians. Several inquirers were met with, but some of them either proved unworthy or held back, while three, it was found, had already been baptized. Others, however, were more satisfactory. One man, after going home to fetch his wife, received baptism, and another returned to his native place, whence good reports of him were received from the C.M.S. missionary. Early in 1899, too, several converts were received into the visible Church, and on February 19th, a family of four persons (father, mother, and two boys) were baptized by immersion in Trinity Church at the evening Hindi service. The sight of a vice-regal carriage, with men in uniform standing at the door, excited some surprise, it being in attendance for Colonel R. Williams, M.P., the Treasurer of the Society, who witnessed the baptism, and encouraged the Native Christian community by his presence. A good deal of attention was devoted to the most important work of helping the native agents in their own spiritual life, and three of them derived much profit from taking a course in Hindi at the Divinity School. The very existence of the Schools for Chamars was threatened by the plague, and it was necessary to close one of them temporarily, but by the end of the year the attendance was almost as good as before. The Government grants-in-aid were increased, and the general expenditure was at the same time reduced. The Sunday-school had an average attendance of about eighty Hindu and Mohammedan boys.

There was a great diminution in the number of children in the Agarpára Orphanage in consequence of the resolution not to admit any country boarders, since it was found that after being in Calcutta they were discontented with their own homes. Miss E. M. Hall, who resumed charge of the Orphanage on her return in November, 1897, and was assisted by Miss Olliver, a Eurasian lady, says that fever was prevalent during several months; this, combined with the disturbance caused by extensive repairs, was a great hindrance to study, and the examination results suffered accordingly. Two of the girls were going to Jabalpur to be trained as teachers.

Barnagore.

The Rev. W. P. Parker, whose state of health obliged him to take a sea voyage to Australia in December, has charge of the work in and around Barnagore; the population is composed chiefly of Hindi- and Urdu-speaking men who are employed in the gun foundry and jute mills. The audiences at the open-air preachings were usually good, and but little serious opposition was met with, though now and then a few bad characters would do their best to create a disturbance. At the same time, the Hindus cling with tenacity to their old beliefs; they say that they regard all religions as leading in the end to the same goal, and argue that there is no adequate reason for abandoning the faith in which they and their ancestors for ages past have been brought up. Mr. Parker gives an interesting account of his itineration work, from which one or two extracts are taken:—

A religion of despair.

One morning we visited a refined, courteous Hindu gentleman, whose knowledge of English was wide and accurate. He lamented the rapid decay of respect for their elders among the youth of this country, and said it was due to the fact that no religion is taught in the present system of education. Moral teaching without religion was, in his opinion, quite useless. I asked him his idea of his own future. He believed himself to be a part of the deity, and said that in time he would be absorbed into the deity again, like a drop of water is absorbed into the ocean. But how could he get rid of sin? He hoped that as his soul became transmigrated from one body to another, he would gradually lose all his imperfections and become fit for absorption. "But you have sinned in this life," said I; "then what probability is there that you will not sin still more in any other birth?" "None whatever," was the answer. "Then what hope have you?" I asked. He then acknowledged that he had no hope, and that his religion was one of despair. Such striking admissions as these readily paved the way for the comforting and assuring doctrines of Christianity. He complained that ill-informed persons look upon the Hindus as idolaters. They do not worship idols, but the ignorant sometimes identify the idol with the deity. The true Hindu worships God through the image. Simple people cannot attain to a purely spiritual conception of God, but must have something visible to their senses whereby to help their devotions. I pointed out to him that such practices must necessarily involve idolatry pure and simple for at any rate the vast majority of Hindus, and showed him how God had absolutely forbidden the use of images at all.

An interesting case I once came across was that of an old Government pensioner who belonged to the sect of the Brahmos. He said that for years and years he had been seeking after God and the way of peace, but was not satisfied. Then, addressing me personally, he remarked, "You are a religious teacher: can you tell me anything which may put me on the right road?" I at once showed him as plainly as I could the only way of salvation.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has a large staff of workers in Calcutta. Two European ladies and four assistant missionaries are engaged at the Normal School; four assistant missionaries, six Bible-women, and twenty-two native teachers, in Bengali work; while three European ladies, nine assistant missionaries, three Bible-women, and eight native teachers are endeavouring to win the Mohammedans. At Barnagore and Howrah, that Society has five European ladies, the same number of assistant missionaries, and thirty native agents. Four women, who were prepared by them, were baptized by immersion at Trinity Church, Calcutta, on July 2nd, 1898.

BURDWAN.

Burdwan. The Rev. F. W. Bourdillon remained at BURDWAN without any C.M.S. colleague until the arrival of the Rev. E. Cannon, in November. He found the work extremely trying, and was obliged to close the out-station of Katwa, owing to the impossibility of paying the necessary visits; indeed, the only encouraging sign consisted in the increased sales of Gospels.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has three European missionaries, two assistant missionaries, two Bible-women, and twenty native teachers at Burdwan. The Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal visited their schools in February, 1898.

II. NADIYA DISTRICT.

THE Rev. R. B. Marriott came home on furlough in December, 1898, and Mrs. L. A. McC. Newbery, on account of health, in March, 1899.

Krishnagar. The missionaries of the Society stationed at KRISHNAGAR were the Rev. A. Le Feuvre and the Rev. L. A. McC. Newbery. The latter gave most of his time to the study of the language, but was able also to organize in the hot weather a series of English lectures on Christian subjects, which were fairly well attended by native gentlemen of all classes. . . .

Mr. Le Feuvre has furnished no report of the Normal School.

Girls' Boarding School. The Girls' Boarding School was under Miss E. Bristow, of the C.E.Z.M.S., and had from forty-five to fifty names upon its roll. The school was removed during the year to a situation more convenient and more healthy than that which it had previously occupied. Another important change was also made by raising the standard to that of a middle school. Miss Bristow writes of two of the girls:—

A young child's reception of the Gospel story. A dear child, named Kamini, who remained here for some months, has been obliged to return to her mother, who had been in prison for stealing. This child's heart was, I believe, truly changed, and we cannot but believe she may be a blessing amongst her heathen relatives, although for the present it certainly means persecution for her. She entreated her mother to let her return to school, but only got beaten for asking, and no persuasions would induce the mother to consent. Before leaving, Kamini told me she would never do "puja" again, but would always pray to the Lord Jesus Christ. The way that child simply drank in the Gospel was beautiful to see. One little Mohammedan girl, Shunduri, was baptized with her mother a few months ago, and a child widow, who has for some months past been in the school, while her mother was under instruction for baptism, is, together with her mother and little sister, to be baptized at Barnagore in a few days' time.

Three of the pupils were confirmed, and the same number married; and Miss Bristow reports with thankfulness that she heard both directly and indirectly that the young wives were bringing good influences to bear upon their relatives and friends in their new homes.

In addition to Miss Bristow, the C.E.Z.M.S. has four European ladies, three assistant missionaries, six Bible-women, and nineteen native teachers working in Krishnagar.

Chupra Boys' Boarding School.

The Boys' Boarding School at CHUPRA under the Rev. C. H. Bradburn had a successful year, for which he was specially thankful, because the sub-Inspector had intimated that good results of the educational work could not be looked for unless non-Christian teachers were re-introduced. Mr. Bradburn steadfastly set his face against this, and was therefore greatly rejoiced when he found that in the Government Examination out of a possible maximum of thirty passes the school had gained twenty places in the first class, six in the second, and one in the third. The primary schools of the district did even better, for only eight failed out of the 115 who entered for the examination. Unhappily the results of the Scripture Examination were not equally satisfactory, but Mr. Bradburn hopes that the failure in this respect will speedily be redeemed. The erection of the new school buildings was proceeded with amid many difficulties, and the work of the temporary hostel was carried on with success. Many of the Christians in the district are former pupils of the schools, and encouragement may be derived from the testimony of the non-Christian steward of an estate, who when asked how much rent was in arrears for the year 1898, replied "Rs. 1,200," and, when further questioned, acknowledged that no portion of that amount was due from Christians.

Good examination results under Christian teachers.

All the Christians' rent paid up.

Native Pastorates.

The Rev. E. T. Butler, who superintends the Native Pastorates in the district, resides at Bollobhpur. He says that he finds it necessary to write with reserve as to the condition of the Church, because of the difficulty which he experiences, as one in the midst of the fray, of judging concerning its progress. He proceeds to describe the general condition of affairs in the following terms :—

A chequered account.

Church attendance, if anything, improves, and the contributions of the people have this year made a decided advance. The number of Christian men and women who pray are increasing. At the same time, the lack of evangelistic zeal is lamentable; and if the Church were left to itself, there is every likelihood that it would soon sink to a state of callous indifference to the condition of those around. Parents fail to realize their responsibilities towards their own children, and are too ready to transfer to others the duty of training them for God. Debt is in too many cases looked upon as a necessary condition of existence, instead of an evil which must be strenuously fought against by economy and self-denial. Christian life and conduct does not stand out so conspicuously before the Heathen that they are compelled to admit the Christian standard to be higher than theirs.

Perhaps the most encouraging part of the work in the district was that among the young, of which Mr. Butler writes:—

Schools are "real evangelistic agencies.'

> The conviction grows with one's length of service that work amongst the young, which has as its ultimate aim their conversion, is the key to the position. As the result of work in Sunday and day school, let the young heart beat with love to Jesus, then the young lips will speak for Him in the home circle. Moreover, impressions made in childhood deepen with age, and with the freedom of manhood will come the confession by means of baptism. U——, baptized at Shikarpur with his wife and three children, was a boy in the school at Arnjupi; D——, an inquirer at Wonukhali, who has asked for baptism, was a student in the school there; another inquirer whom I met last Sunday was a boy in a C.M.S. school. Instances like this, which can be multiplied, prove that our schools are real evangelistic agencies, and that attention given to them must make for the advancement of the Kingdom.

Considerable improvement was manifested in the village day schools, and nearly all the children presented for the Lower Primary Examination secured passes in the first division. The Sunday-schools received increased attention, and most of the pastors instituted teachers' preparation classes, stimulated thereto in some measure by the addresses of Mr. Burges, the Secretary of the Indian Sunday-school Union. The night schools and cowherds' services (the latter are included among the schools) are of importance, since they afford the only opportunities which the future farmers and farm-labourers have of learning to read or write, or of publicly worshipping God. Mr. Butler says that the majority of the Native Christians must belong to either the one or the other of these two classes.

Night schools for farm labourers.

Pastorates.

The Christians of the Bollobhpur Pastorate, 725 in number, are under the care of the Rev. K. C. Dey; sixty-seven were confirmed, and some of the converts engaged in evangelistic work in the district. The Rev. L. H. C. Dey, of the Kaspadanga Pastorate, reports that the contributions of his people increased by Rs. 76, excluding a special donation of Rs. 47 to the Church Repairs Fund, and that the number of communicants doubled during the year. The widows' class, which is conducted by the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies, continued its good work: three of the members passed out of the class, one of them taking up work under the C.M.S. at Hiranpur, and at the beginning of 1899 there were four seniors and seven juniors in training. No adult baptisms took place in the Solo Pastorate, in which there are nearly 700 baptized Christians, and the Rev. M. Biswas says that the Hindus and Mohammedans around him manifest no anxiety concerning their spiritual welfare. The services held every Sunday for the adults of the Ratnapur Pastorate have an attendance of about 300; and the contributions of the people for religious purposes are stated by the Rev. T. C. Tarafdar to have been much in advance of those of 1897. Mr. Butler narrates the following incident which occurred in the Mohammedan village opposite Ratnapur :—

"God's blessing is on the Christians."

A fire broke out in the very hot weather, and in an incredibly short space of time the flames licked up every house which came in their way. Some sparks then were blown across the river on to the houses of the Hindu part. At once, like an angry tiger, the flames leapt from roof to roof ; the wind, howling like a north-west hurricane, hurried them forward with resistless force until they reached the border of the Christian part. "Nothing can save the Christians" was the message carried from mouth to mouth. Suddenly, however, the wind changed ; the flames retraced their course, and not a single Christian house was destroyed. "God's blessing is on the Christians" was the uttered thought of some and the unuttered thought of others amongst the Hindus and Mohammedans.

The contributions in the Ranabanda Pastorate under the Rev. G. C. Biswas continued to increase, and Hindus and Mohammedans, as well as Christians, were taught in the seven schools. The Rev. D. Biswas of Joginda reports that many educated people adhering to the religions just mentioned are studying Christianity, and that the members of a Mohammedan family were baptized by him at Shikarpur.

Mr. P. H. Shaul carried on Evangelistic Work from Bollobhpur as his headquarters, and found that the medicine chest and the lantern slides were of great service. He enumerates the advantages derived from the use of the latter as follows :—

Merits of lantern slides in evangelistic work.

(i.) Darkness. All eyes fixed on pictures illustrating the life of our Saviour, and no one wondering what the Sahib's hat is made of, or how much he gave for his boots.

(ii.) Teaching by the eye as well as the ear. Again and again, when alluding to the events illustrated, people have remarked, "Oh, yes! the Sahib showed us that," and forthwith have described the scene.

(iii.) Solemn silence, and no attempts at argument or discussion during the recital of the last scenes of our Lord's life, and rapt attention as the need and doctrine of the Atonement is presented.

(iv.) Two or three hours of connected preaching and singing, leaving a knowledge not easily effaced.

(v.) Being able to reach all sorts and conditions of women, from the lowest to the highest castes. Often I have showed the lantern in the houses of the rich and educated, the women folk being kept in purdah the other side of the screen.

(vi.) The people coming to invite you, instead of you with difficulty having to seek them out.

Mr. Shaul met with great encouragement at K——, a large Brahman village situated near the railway line to Calcutta, where, owing to the work of the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies and to the lantern slides, the women and children as well as the men and boys were reached. The son of an influential and wealthy zemindar (landowner) remarked one day, "There is only one subject discussed by us just now; it is uppermost wherever we go. At the bathing ghats, in our zenanas, by the roadside, whenever and wherever two or three of us meet together, the question is, 'Are we right or wrong? If this preaching is right, we are in darkness. Should we not then endeavour to leave it and seek the light?'" On two occasions Mr. Shaul's tent was filled with the chief men of the village, most of them lawyers, doctors, graduates, and other educated men of the Brahman caste, who came to inquire further into the claims of the Lord Jesus to be their Saviour and Lord. One young Brahman asked for baptism, and another, having lost all faith in Ram and Krishna, named his new-born son after the Saviour, of course without consulting the missionary. Mr. Shaul says that the Mohammedans in the district are densely ignorant, and display great laxity in the observance of their religion; numbers of them have lost all faith in Mohammed, and would like an easy opportunity of becoming Christians.

The Associated Evangelists who worked in North Nadiya during the year under review, Mr. S. W. Donne, Mr. E. T. Noakes, Mr. W. V. R. Kamcké, and the Rev. J. W. Knight, were joined at the end of 1898 by Mr. J. H. Hickinbotham. At SANTIRAJPUR, their headquarters, the minds of the people were much exercised by the eclipse of the sun which took place on January 22nd, 1898, and even the Native Christians thought that the end of the world might then come, and requested to be allowed to have special services in church. Efforts were made to help the native workers by means of some meetings for the deepening of the spiritual life. Several were held in April, 1898, primarily for the catechists, when the chief addresses were given by the Rev. E. T. Butler, of Bollobhpur; and in June the Bible-women of the district, to the number of thirty or more, assembled for a series of "quiet days," the Bible-readings and model Bible-lessons being taken for the most part by Miss Dawe. The missionaries were encouraged by the baptism in the summer of a Mohammedan and his wife and two children. The man first heard the truth at a Mission school, and the impression which it made gradually deepened, until he felt that he could hold back no longer. At the end of July steps were taken to baptize a Brahman lad, who had for some time been asking the missionaries to receive him, and stated that his age was between nineteen and twenty. He was warned of the probable consequences of baptism, and was persuaded to confess his faith in Christ at home before taking any overt step. His father, the most influential man in the district, threatened him, and told him to hold no further communication with the Christians, but the lad returned one Sunday morning with the definite intention of being baptized. Mr. Donne describes what happened:—

telling him that he would not be baptized at once, so that there was no hurry. Of course he came at once, and some others with him, and they would have dragged the lad off at once by force, but I prevented this. Then began a long discussion, which lasted from about 8 a.m. till about 3 p.m., during which the lad persistently refused to return with his parents and friends. At three o'clock they all left for a little food. At about 4.30 they returned with a crowd of about 200 people, amongst them a sprinkling of professional ruffians armed with long bamboo sticks, and after a short delay proceeded to attack the house, smashing windows and doors and hitting us. The attack lasted some few minutes, and then they gathered for a fresh attack. I saw I could not retain the lad except at the expense of a free fight, in which we should have had to do some damage and probably spill blood, so I thought it best to give him up to his father. Upon getting possession they took him away and retired from the premises.

I had sent two messengers to the magistrate during the day, one mounted and one on foot, but the magistrate lives eighteen miles away and was not at home. There was a Government inquiry into the riot, and the ringleaders were fined Rs. 25 each. A made-up tale was put forward, and all the Brahmans perjured themselves, and the lad—no doubt under the influence of threats—told a false tale, intimating that we had decoyed him away and forcibly prevented him leaving the house. The magistrate accepted without proof his statement in court that his age was from fifteen to sixteen, so it was impossible for me to proceed any further in the matter.

There were 3,296 new patients at the dispensary, and a total attendance of 7,532. A new rest-house was erected at Tetulberia, and an earnest man appointed to work among the poor and uneducated people who live there. The night school was attended by men and boys, some thirty in all, of all ages, and the day school had the names of fifty boys on the books, so that by means of the educational work, no less than one-fourth of the population of the village was brought under instruction. The school at Murutia maintained its position, and three of the pupils attending it sat for the Government examination. The mela, which is held concurrently with the Hindu festival called the Swan Jatra, was visited as usual in July by the Associated Evangelists, accompanied by seven Bengali fellow-helpers, but it was only thinly attended, and the people generally appeared to take but little interest in the bathing. One of the members of the band gave his impressions in the North India C.M.Gleaner as follows:—

A Hindu mela losing its popularity.

There were evident signs of approaching death to the Jatra. That the impression made upon my mind was not a fanciful one, and that I was not led astray in my thoughts by preconceived notions, was verified by the officiating Brahman himself, who said to me in reply to a question as to what sort of a festival he had had, that "it was a very poor year, very few people coming, and consequently very few obtained Mukti, i.e. Salvation." I inquired whose fault it might be. "My own," he replied, adding, "I have one thing in my heart and another in my mouth." He also remarked that we were drawing all the people, and seemed not a little upset at our being able to attract when he could not. One morning, sitting down in a cloth shop, some Hindus began comparing the state of things now with what they were a few years back. One Brahman said, "A few years ago on no account was a Padre Sahib allowed in our village, in fact we used to turn him out. But the Padre persisted in coming, and by being able to give medicine, gradually won his way into the village, so that now he is as one of ourselves. He can go about the village, enter any compound, and can converse with the women without any one fearing or suspecting him." Catching up the opportunity, one of our number promptly asked the reason of this. "Because he is a Christian," was the reply.

Mr. Noakes, who was able in the camping season of 1897–98 to visit over 100 villages, spent two months of the hot weather at Alla Durga, where he found that the school was doing a good work. During his itinerations he generally met with more favourable receptions in villages where formerly there had been Mission schools, than in other places. He discovered that idolatry was prevalent among the Mohammedans with whom he came in contact, and says:—

Moslem idolaters.

I have never seen them with images, but their kind of idolatry is to my mind as bad, if not worse, than image-worship. It consists of little brick pillars, and often only lumps of mud, set up generally under a tree. These pillars are called Durgas, and may be dedicated to God, or one of Mohammed's daughters, or to some saint. One of our out-stations is called Alla Durga, which means God's Durga. At these places people may be seen bowing down before the pillar or mud, exactly in the same way as Hindus do to their idols.

The one set up to Mohammed's daughter is a special favourite amongst the women. At the time of sickness the women go to one of the Durgas and strike a bargain with her, promising to give fowls, eggs, rice, or milk, if she drives away the disease. At night a light is put before the Durga, just as Hindus put a light before their idols. There is one other idolatrous practice, adopted from the Hindus, which is even more prevalent amongst Mohammedans than Hindus, that of placing a light in front of the golas, i.e., a place where grain is kept. The object of it is to gain the favour of the Hindu goddess Lakshmi, who is the goddess of wealth.

They are also strong believers in evil spirits. An earthenware pot, with a black bottom and some white marks on it, is often to be seen stuck up in gardens to keep off the evil eye from the crops. When cholera is prevalent a goat-skin stuffed with straw is hung up on a very high bamboo to keep back the cholera ghost. Then, again, they wear charms for the healing of disease, especially for rheumatism. When they are reminded of these idolatrous practices, the blame is all thrown upon the women.

The Rev. R. B. Marriott resided at KUSHTIA until his departure for England in November, when his place was taken by Mr. Kamcké. The first baptisms at this station took place in June, when two men, three women, and a girl, belonging to two different families, all of them formerly Mohammedans, were received into the visible Church. One of the men bought a Gospel some years ago; later on he was attracted at a bazaar preaching, and eventually presented himself as an inquirer, in spite of the persecution with which he met at the hands of his relatives. Some time afterwards, a man in distress stayed with his family at the convert's house and heard the truth from him; at first they were antagonistic to Christianity, but ultimately they too were baptized. Some opponents who bought New Testaments in order that they might be able to argue better, became interested readers. On one occasion Mr. Marriott came across a Bible which had been purchased five years before, and found that two brothers were reading it regularly, and were anxious to have their women taught. This happily was possible, owing to the C.E.Z.M.S. having adopted Kushtia as an out-station. At the close of the year there was a regular congregation of fifteen or sixteen souls every Sunday.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has eight European ladies, including one fully qualified doctor, at work in the Nadiya Village Mission.

III. SANTALIA.

The Rev. F. Etheridge was married in England on August 17th, 1898, to Miss Jessie May Newman, and with his wife proceeded to the Mission in November. The Rev. J. Brown returned to India in October, and Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Jessop in the following month. On the other hand, the Rev. and Mrs. D. M. Brown, and the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Jackson came home in March, 1899.

The Santal Pastorates.

The Rev. F. T. Cole is Chairman of the Pastorates connected with the Santal Native Church Council, and in his Annual Letter gives an interesting review of their progress during the ten years which have elapsed since the Council was established. The 2,320 Christians of 1887 have become 3,133, and although the increase is partly due to the inclusion of the Tekewgury Pastorate, yet the advance made is substantial, and gives much cause for thankfulness. Mr. Cole reports improvement on every side, and confesses that he himself never anticipated that the people would accomplish such earnest work as they have actually performed. He sums up his report in the words, "There is solidarity in the movement." The Rev. F. Bourdillon, of Burdwan, conducted a series of special meetings for the pastors, agents, and schoolmasters, which lasted for a week; the leading subject was "The coming of our Lord, and the events connected with it." Five hours a day were devoted to instruction, and each evening the Christians went out in bands, headed by the five pastors, to preach in the neighbouring villages. The contributions of the Native Christians for religious purposes amounted to Rs. 1,679, which sum included a special collection of Rs. 61 for the British and Foreign Bible Society. The harvest festivals resulted in the largest offerings known in the pastorates, and the liberality of the people was specially cheering, because there was a considerable amount of scarcity, almost amounting to a famine. Arrangements were made to establish two new evangelistic centres, the one north of Borio, and the other at Mohanpur, in the Talpahari district. The Rev. B. Murmu is the pastor of the Christian colony at Santalpur, which is some 250 miles distant from any of the other pastorates, and is situated on the borders of Bhutan, at the foot of the Himalayas. Owing to the Santal country being too strait for the Christians, a number of them emigrated to this tract of uncultivated country, which was set apart for them by the Government. The colony, consisting of 848 Christians and about 150 Heathen, is managed by the pastor and the headmen of the villages, assisted by elders chosen by the villagers themselves. The colonists have recently built a new church. They now support their "Own Missionary" to the heathen tribes around them, and the hope is expressed in the report of the pastorate that before long they may see some from the surrounding tribes led to the Saviour through his instrumentality. Santalpur Christian colony.

The Rev. J. Blaich, who has only been home once in thirty years, was absent from the Boys' Boarding School, TALJHARI, for five months while he took a short furlough in the south of India, during which period the Rev. D. M. Brown was in charge of the school. The examination results were most satisfactory: six of the seven boys sent up for the Middle Vernacular, and all the fourteen who sat for the Upper Primary Examination, passed. This success afforded special gratification, because when in preceding years there was comparative failure, one of the subordinate Government educational officials attributed it to the fact that Santali instead of Bengali or Hindi teachers were employed. Mr. Blaich prefers to utilize the services of the people of the country, because the Santals are very clannish, and will rarely open their hearts and minds to any but members of their own tribes. Four of the young men were baptized in November, and there were about thirty lads in the catechumen class. A testimony as to the character of some of the "old boys" was received from a forest officer, who wrote that almost all his subordinates in the Santal Pergunnahs were drawn from the Taljhari school, and that they did their work very satisfactorily. Taljhari Boys' Boarding School. A good testimony to "old boys."

The Rev. and Mrs. F. T. Cole were stationed at BARHAWA. The former devoted most of his leisure to the preparation of books for the Santals, and besides seeing through the press a History of the life of our Lord, translated fifty-two selected lessons from Mr. Eugene Stock's course on that subject. Mrs. Cole also did some translational work, and, with the assistance of Miss Cole, carried on the Girls' Boarding School, which had a membership of over 100. Regular meetings were held for Hindu women and for Santal Christian women. Translation work.

Prior to 1897 the Rev. D. M. Brown endeavoured each cold season to make a rapid tour over the whole of the HIRANPUR district, so as to preach the Gospel in as many of the villages as possible, but in that year he adopted the plan, which he followed Hiranpur.

again in 1898, of concentrating his attention on a smaller area, hoping by this means to encourage some of the Santals to put themselves under definite Christian instruction. He states that the more intimate contact with the people resulting from a longer stay in each place has served to deepen the hopeful impression which the work had made on his mind. He sums up his views as to the attitude of old and young towards the Gospel as follows :—

Improved attitude of the people.

The older men generally are, it seems to me, far from any intention of leaving their traditional heathen customs and superstitious practices. True they realize, and own, too, that their ancient racial notions are being gradually and inevitably done away by the leavening teaching of Christianity and by the spread of elementary education among the rising generation. But they are still held in dread of the power of evil spirits, especially with regard to illness, and consequently the propitiatory offerings to them continue to be made. The younger men give more cause for encouragement; though in that class are to be found the extremes both of sincere acceptance of, and active opposition to, the Gospel.

Bhagaya.

There are two distinct centres in the BHAGAYA district round which the Christians cluster: the one, Bhagaya itself; and the other, Telgama, which is fourteen miles south-west of Bhagaya in a direct line, and distant twenty miles by the road. The congregation at the latter centre, sixty-five in number, undertook the support of a catechist who should work in the surrounding villages. There were eleven village schools in the district, with 198 scholars; the children did well in the Government examinations, and one girl succeeded in gaining a scholarship. Evangelistic work was carried on by the Rev. H. J. Jackson, with the aid of nine catechists and two Bible-women, and several inquirers came forward. One of them was kept back from baptism by the fact that he had two wives. He had married the second time because his first wife had been a widow, and therefore (so he thought) in the other world would have to look after her first husband; so he took her younger spinster sister for a second wife with a view to the future! Mr. Jackson says that this idea is prevalent among the Santals, and instances a case in which the mother of a young man in a rapid decline was very anxious to get him married. On being asked why she was so urgent, seeing that her son could not live very long, she replied, "Who will wait upon him in heaven if he hasn't a wife?" Two adults were baptized, a young man and his wife, of whom Mr. Jackson writes :—

A convert asks to be baptized before his fellow-villagers.

The young man, a Santal, had been a seeker after truth and had bought some of the Hindu sacred books. He read them, but they did not satisfy his cravings. At Bousi mela he bought a Hindi New Testament, which he read diligently. A friend in a neighbouring village had been to Taljhari school and become a Christian. He had talks with him. Gradually light came into his soul, the Word met his need, and he went to the catechist at Haripur and desired admittance into the Christian Church. After nine months' instruction and regular attendance at church I baptized him in his village at his own request. He wished to confess Christ before all his fellow-villagers. A large crowd of Heathen gathered, and we had a good preaching time after. The wife also was convinced of the Truth and desired baptism. She was asked if she would wait and see if any of her relations would join her, but she replied, "Why should I wait for them? They might delay; as for me I am determined to follow my husband upon the holy way." Her husband taught her the rudiments of the Christian religion, and in May I was able to baptize her at Telgama.

The Rev. C. Hughesdon in his Annual Letter describes the prospects at GODDA as brighter than they had been for many years. There were fewer cases requiring the exercise of Church discipline; one old man who had been excommunicated showed signs of true repentance; and the contributions of the Native Christians were slightly in advance of those of the preceding year. One adult was baptized at Godda, and several persons were admitted into the visible Church at Bhawani. The restoration of the church, which was commenced in 1897, was completed by Christmas Day, 1898, when service was once more held in it. At the close of the year Mr. and Mrs. Hughesdon were transferred to Bhagaya. Golda

IV. BEHAR.

BHAGALPUR.

THE Province of Behar, which comprises an area of 44,186 square miles, is the most densely peopled province in India, and has a total population of 24,393,504 souls, which is larger by nearly 4,000,000 than that of the Punjab, and more than twice that of the Central Provinces. In the Purneah district, which is referred to below, there are 1,700,000 people, to work amongst whom no European missionary has yet been designated. The report of the Congregation at BHAGALPUR is not much more satisfactory than it was in the previous year, for the Rev. C. G. Mylrea is obliged to confess that sin appears to be lightly thought of by his Indian brethren, and that a grievous fall is often looked upon as a misfortune, rather than as an offence against God's holiness. The High School was crowded with pupils, but Mr. Morse when he wrote was planning a number of alterations, including the refusal to keep lazy boys as free scholars. The total number of visits to the Dispensary was over 12,000, and the new patients numbered nearly 4,000. Extra rooms were added at the Leper Asylum with the aid of funds sent out by the Mission to Lepers: there were seventy-four inmates in July, and it was hoped to baptize one of them, a man, early in 1899. The difficulty of exercising efficient pastoral supervision from a distance rendered the work at Jamalpur, where there is a Bhagal-pur.

congregation of some seventy souls, somewhat unsatisfactory. The supervision of the work at Forbesganj and Purneah has been undertaken by Mr. Morse, who itinerated both to the east and the west of Bhagalpur, and met with kind receptions and attentive audiences. Mr. Mylrea at the beginning of 1898 made a preaching tour in the Purneah district, which had never before been trodden by the foot of the messenger of the Gospel of peace, and summarizes his experiences as follows :—

Preaching where Christ had not before been named.

(1) I was astonished to find that in this part of the district almost all the villagers were Mohammedan, only three or four Hindu villages being met with. The people all spoke Urdu, though sometimes very much corrupted.

(2) The ignorance was intense, and where there was not stupid bigotry there seemed to be utter indifference.

(3) The women heard gladly when my wife visited them, but their ignorance exceeded that of the men.

(4) Books were bought up readily, considering that a large percentage of the population appears entirely illiterate.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Bhagalpur and Jamalpur has recently been strengthened, and now consists of seven European missionaries, seven Bible-women, and seventeen native teachers. Some inquirers were met with, and at Bhagalpur a young Bengali widow with her little girl came forward for baptism.

NORTH-WEST PROVINCES MISSION.

The Society's first agent in India was stationed in the North-West Provinces. He was a Native, Abdul Masih, Henry Martyn's solitary convert from Mohammedanism, and he was stationed, under Corrie's auspices, at Agra in 1813. Abdul Masih was ordained in 1826 by Bishop Heber, being thus the first Indian clergyman of the Church of England. Meerut was occupied in 1815; Benares, 1817; Gorakhpur, 1823; Azimgarh and Jaunpur, 1831; Jabalpur, 1854; Lucknow, 1858; Allahabad, 1859; Dehra Dun, 1859; Faizabad, 1862; Aligarh, 1863; Muttra, 1878; Mandla, 1879, and Marpha, 1892 (both Gond Mission); and Kherwara (Bheel Mission), 1880. A remarkable work was done by W. Smith and C. B. Leupolt at Benares, which began in 1832. In 1853, St. John's College at Agra was opened by T. V. French (late Bishop of Lahore) and E. C. Stuart (late Bishop of Waiapu, now in Persia). The Sepoy Mutiny of 1857 destroyed much of the Society's property, but the deep interest aroused by it caused a great extension of the work afterwards. Lucknow was occupied immediately on its re-conquest, on the invitation of the Chief Commissioner, Sir R. Montgomery. Allahabad was also occupied, and Christian villages established there and at Gorakhpur. In 1892 a new diocese (Lucknow) was formed for Oudh and the Jhansi Division of the North-West Provinces, the Bishop (Dr. A. Clifford, previously a C.M.S. missionary at Calcutta) having also, by consensual jurisdiction, episcopal supervision over the whole of the North-West Provinces.

Two deaths of workers in the North-West Provinces Mission have to be recorded: that of a retired missionary, who left the staff in 1881, and that of one who was still, after a lengthened service, on the active list. The Rev. E. Champion, who did good service in North India between the years 1858 and 1881, died in Tasmania on June 3rd, 1898. When stationed at Jabalpur, whither he went in 1860, his attention was drawn to the Gonds, who inhabit the hill country near that station. He pressed the claims of this unevangelized race upon the Committee year by year, and meanwhile did what he could by occasionally itinerating among the hills. At length he had the satisfaction of seeing the Rev. H. D. Williamson set apart in 1878 for work among these simple hill-folk. Mr. Williamson says of his old friend, "He understood and loved the Natives of India as very few have done." Miss Christine Zenker, who, with her brother, the Rev. P. M. Zenker, worked zealously in India, most of the time at Muttra, for nearly thirty years, died on June 10th, 1898. She had been ailing for some time, suffering from the heat, which is intense at Muttra, especially in mid-summer. Not until June 9th was a doctor sent for, and even then no special alarm was felt. The night was very sultry, and Mr. Zenker, who did not get much rest, rose a little after 4 a.m. to open the house. In the sitting-room he found his sister dressed as usual for the morning. He spoke to her, but receiving nc answer, at length realized that she had been called home. The funeral took place in the evening of the same day, the body being carried to the grave by men of the 9th Lāncers.

Deaths of Rev. E. Champion, and Miss C. Zenker.

The Mission was reinforced by the following:—the Rev. Frederick Edward Markby, B.A., Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, curate of St. Leonard's, Bootle; the Rev. William Walton, of Islington College, who was ordained deacon by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, June 5th, 1898; Mr. Arthur Carmichael, son of the Rev. T. Carmichael, of this Mission; Miss Anna Brocklesby Davis, who laboured for some years in Benares with her father, the late Rev. B. Davis; Miss Louisa Alice Wilson, of the Victoria C.M. Association; and Miss Caroline Emma Fry, late Secretary of the London Ladies' C.M. Union, in local connexion. Mr. Markby and Miss Wilson sailed in October, 1898; Mr. Walton in November; Miss Davis in December; and Mr. Carmichael in January, 1899. Miss V. H. Latham has retired from the work for family reasons, and returned to Australia.

Ordinations.

Mr. R. Baker and Mr. J. W. Goodwin were admitted to deacons' orders while at home on furlough, by the Bishop of London in St. Paul's Cathedral on October 2nd, 1898; the Rev. A. Outram was ordained priest by the Bishop of Bombay on February 26th, 1899; and on March 12th, Mr. H. Bennett was admitted, at Allahabad, to deacon's orders, and the Revs. J. B. Ventura, of Muirabad, and J. Qalandar, of Basharatpur, to priests' orders, by the Bishop of Lucknow.

The following are the members of the Allahabad Corresponding Committee:—the Bishop of Lucknow, the Revs. P. H. Chapman, J. P. Ellwood, J. W. Hall, and T. Russell, Mr. F. E. Elliott, Captain Gibbon, and the Hon. Justice Knox. The Rev. C. H. Gill is Secretary of the Mission.

I. NORTH-WEST PROVINCES.

The Rev. A. E. Johnston came to England, invalided, in October, 1898; Mrs. E. T. Pegg, for family reasons, in November; the Rev. E. A. Hensley in December; Miss E. M. F. Major, on account of her health, in March, 1899; the Revs. W. Seetal and S. Nihal Singh, on the invitation of the Committee, also in March; the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Bowlby in April; and Mrs. T. F. Robathan in May. On the other hand, the following sailed for India:—the Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Gill, Mrs. J. J. Johnson, and Miss M. Stratton in October, 1898; and the Rev. R. Baker, the Rev. A. W. Baumann, the Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Collins, the Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Proctor, and Mrs. E. Durrant in November. The Rev. J. W. Goodwin, who was married on October 6th to Miss Gertrude Elizabeth Stubbs, sailed, with Mrs. Goodwin, for the Mission in December. On January 18th, 1899, the Rev. E. A. Hensley was married to Miss Annie Lloydie Hughes, of the Z.B.M. Mission; and on April 26th, at Lucknow, the Rev. A. J. Birkett was married to Miss Jane Louisa Jarrett Haskew, L.R.C.P., and S.E., M.D. Mr. and Mrs. Birkett came home in May.

ALLAHABAD.

The Rev. J. N. Carpenter, the Principal of the Divinity School, ALLAHABAD, reports with gratitude the completion in May, 1898, of the new buildings. Mr. Carpenter was assisted in some measure by the Rev. E. H. M. Waller, who, however, was prevented by the requirements of language study from rendering much help in class work. The school year commenced in the autumn with fourteen students, six in the upper class and eight in the lower, one of the latter being a blind man; and three candidates for Holy Orders were expected to take up their residence in Lent, 1899. The work of the school proceeded on the usual lines, but a modification of the evangelistic methods was introduced, and a plan tried which resembled the house-to-house visitation which is so common at home. Allahabad Divinity School.

No report has been received of the work at Trinity Church. The Evangelistic Work was entrusted to the Rev. S. Nihal Singh, who took advantage of every opportunity which presented itself of preaching the Gospel, and by means of day-schools for Chamar children, Sunday-schools (which had an aggregate attendance of about 2,500), the preparation and circulation of Christian literature, regimental services, vernacular lectures, and open-air services, made known the good tidings. While preaching in the heart of the city in March, 1898, Mr. Singh was attacked by an Afghan, who tried to strike him, and begged the bystanders to give him a knife in order that he might murder the Christian, using the while the most abusive and blasphemous language. At length the man was persuaded to go with Mr. Singh to the Kotwal (police officer), and soon afterwards was arrested and imprisoned. At the close of the year arrangements were made by which the work in the city and in two tahsils across the Ganges was handed over to Mr. Singh, while the Rev. W. G. Proctor, who reached Allahabad from England in December, became responsible for the Partabgarh district of the Transgangetic Mission. There was only one adult baptism in connexion with the C.M.S. during the year, that of a woman who was for some years a domestic servant in a Christian family, and was led by the consistent lives of her employers, and the kind treatment which she experienced at their hands, to seek their Master. After her baptism she still continued in their service, "though no longer a servant only." Evangelistic work

Twenty-nine children belonging to the Girls' Orphanage of the Z.B.M. Mission were baptized in February, 1898. That Society has four European missionaries, one assistant missionary, fourteen native teachers, and two Bible-women on its staff at Allahabad.

BENARES.

Benares. The Rev. A. E. Johnston was in charge of Jay Narayan's School at BENARES until he was invalided home in October, 1898, when his place was taken by the Rev. J. J. Johnson. No report of the school has come to hand.

Miss A. H. R. Bull and Miss G. E. Withers carried on the work at the Girls' Orphanage, which had 105 inmates at the close of the year. Some of the girls were passed on to the Normal School; three of them married; and three were removed by death. The famine children still needed careful attention as to diet, but otherwise they were not distinguishable from the remainder of the girls. There were over 300 children on the roll of the Girls' School in the city, of which Miss Bull was in temporary charge. The Revs. A. W. Baumann and R. Baker proceeded to Benares on their return to India at the end of 1898.

Azimgarh. The work at Azimgarh passed through several vicissitudes, due to the prolonged absences through ill-health of Miss E. A. Luce and Miss A. M. Tottenham. Both Miss A. H. R. Ball of Benares, and Miss J. E. Puckle, since transferred to Aligarh, filled for some weeks the gaps which were thus caused. In December Miss Luce was able to return and resume work together with Miss Tottenham, and about that time Miss Puckle was definitely transferred to Aligarh. Sixty zenanas were open to the workers, each one being visited once a week, but the fears of the women were aroused by the many absences of the ladies, which led them to imagine that their intention was to inoculate them, a process of which the people stand in terror, and then go away! The girls of the City School received a good report from the inspector, and two new Hindi schools were opened, the one in the Mission compound for the children of the servants in the neighbourhood, and the other in the village of Sidhari for children of higher castes. There was no resident clergyman at Azimgarh, but periodical visits were paid by the missionaries at Gorakhpur.

The staff of the Z.B.M. Mission at Benares and Sigra consists of twelve European ladies, four assistant missionaries, twenty-seven native teachers and nurses, and three Bible-women. Several interesting cases occurred at the Victoria Hospital, but often the friends of the patients would take them away when they were only half cured. One woman who came in for an operation was not allowed to stay, because of the inconvenience which her husband experienced when she was not at home to have his food and everything ready on his return. When he was told that if the operation was not performed his wife would probably be a cripple all her life, he only replied, "Oh! it does not matter. I cannot be bothered to let her stay any longer."

GORAKHPUR.

Gorakhpur

The Rev. J. P. Ellwood, the superintending missionary at GORAKHPUR, was absent from the station for a part of the year discharging at Allahabad the duties of the Secretariat, and Mrs. Ellwood, who works among the women, was invalided to the hills in May, 1898. Strenuous efforts were made to confirm in the faith the converts who were brought in during the famine of 1897, the catechists and evangelists instructing the men, and Miss Hayward, whose services were kindly lent by the Z.B.M. Mission, assisting Mrs. Ellwood in teaching the women. Mr. Ellwood refers in his Annual Letter to a prevailing misconception that the Christian community consists of a number of half-educated farmers. He says:—

A growing and thriving community.

It is true most of our people are cultivators and earn their bread on the land, but the more aspiring spirits amongst them, as in all thriving communities, aim at something higher, though probably not in all cases more practical. Several are now clerks, guards, and signallers, &c., on the B. & N. W. Railway, and in these capacities they are a growing and thriving community, and promise much in the future. Others from amongst our people find their way into the outer world: two are native pastors in the N.-W.P.; two are now in London; one of the latter is a medical man and the other a medical student. One of our former female scholars is an M.A of the Allahabad University, and another an apothecary on the Lady Dufferin Fund. Quite a long list might be prepared of those who have paved their way to prosperity and success, and left their native village to fill more responsible positions in life. The tendency, therefore, of our Christian community is to rise in the scale of life, and those who remain behind are in most cases simple village folk, with a certain amount of grit in them which has shown itself in their relations and children.

The new Railway Church was consecrated by the Bishop of Lucknow on September 11th.

The Rev. T. F. Robathan reports that great attention is being paid in the North-West Provinces to the spread of education, and he states that 100 new village schools are to be opened, chiefly under the auspices of the Government, during 1899, while higher education is being attended to by both Mohammedans and Hindus, who have their own colleges at Aligarh and Benares respectively. The High School, with the names of 300 boys on the roll, did fairly well in the public examinations, seven out of the fifteen lads sent up passing the Allahabad Entrance Examination, and fifteen out of twenty-two the Middle English Examination. Great progress was made at the Anglo-Vernacular Middle School at Alinagar under the new headmaster, Mr. Chatterjee: the numbers advanced from eighty-three in December, 1897, to 102 in December, 1898, and there was a corresponding increase in the fees which were paid. Six out of the ten boys who went up from the Swinton Memorial Vernacular Middle School for the Government Examination succeeded in passing. The two last-mentioned schools were visited by the Bishop of the diocese. The bookstall at the railway station was re-opened during the year, and Bibles and Bible portions, as well as the books of the Christian Literature Society, were exposed for sale. The Revs. C. C. Petch and P. Webber were occupied with language study, but the former was able to render some help in the Evangelistic Work in the district. Mr. Webber has been appointed to Meerut.

The workers of the Z.B.M. Mission at Gorakhpur consist of six European ladies, fifteen native teachers, and six Bible-women.

LUCKNOW AND FAIZABAD.

Lucknow.

During the year under review the chief part of the work at LUCKNOW of the Rev. A. I. Birkett (now at home) lay in the Normal School for training teachers, and in the High School for boys. He also, however, had the supervision of the Native Congregation, of which the Rev. T. Noah, who is in deacon's orders, is pastor. There was little change in the number of members of the congregation, which was about 450, but the contributions to the Pastor's Fund showed a gratifying increase. On the other hand, much sorrow was caused by the relapse of several of the converts who were baptized during the famine year. Six men and women went back to Mohammedanism, and some of the Hindus who had been received into the visible Church fell into sin. The Rev. E. A. Hensley ministered to the English congregation; the weekly Bible Readings were well attended, and the Gleaners' Union maintained its usefulness. A special Mission for English and Indian children was conducted by Mr. Herklots, of the Children's Special Service Mission, in February, 1898, and resulted, among other things, in the formation of a branch of the Scripture Union.

Associated Evangelists.

The Band of Associated Evangelists, consisting of Mr. Hensley, the leader, Mr. J. C. Harrison, Mr. H. Blackwood, and Mr. J. McIntosh, laboured in the district, which has a population of 800,000 souls. It is calculated that the existing evangelistic force is possibly adequate to reach them all with the Gospel message once in fifteen years! Mr. Hensley, at the close of his connexion with the Band, makes a few remarks in his Annual Letter with respect to this particular form of missionary effort. He says:—

> I feel that it has been most advantageous to me to begin my work in India in company with several other young men. By rubbing shoulders together there is, I believe, a mutual benefit to be obtained, and the spiritual intercourse is in itself a wonderful blessing to a young man, and I would heartily recommend all young unmarried missionaries thus to start their work. The companionship of men of like thought and motive with oneself is a splendid thing for a man who, having left all behind him, comes to make a new start in a new sphere of life. Loneliness is almost out of the question, and it is better for the man that it should be so. As my time here has gone on, I have been led to see more and more clearly how really valuable a Band is, and although it was not always so, I can certainly say now that I never feel sorry that I was led to begin my work in this way. I hope that the day may soon come when all young men connected with the C.M.S. will spend at least three years in a Band. The freedom of all men except the leader from all responsibility in the work, for a given number of years, makes it really possible for a man to get a thorough grasp of the language, and a grasp of the language is essential for the efficient advance of the work of evangelization.

Advantages of community life.

The work in the city gave but little encouragement. The same callousness as of old was displayed by the people, and the same objections with which the missionaries are so familiar were urged. In the villages there were greater signs of progress. Every variety of reception was met with: in some cases scornful indifference was manifested, but in others a warm welcome was given to the preachers, and delight expressed at their visits. In one small hamlet a Brahman to whom a Gospel portion had been sold in 1897, listened with evident pleasure while the evangelists explained the Scriptures, and afterwards bought another book in his desire to know more about Christianity. At Maharajganj, where a month was spent early in 1898, large audiences gathered in the bazaar to listen to the preaching. The concertina possessed by one of the Band was a great attraction, and the "Wordless Book" proved very effective, especially among the lower-caste men, in drawing a crowd and riveting its attention. Five Hindu converts were baptized at Nigohan on April 2nd, 1898, by the Rev. T. Noah, in the presence of seven European missionaries and about 100 non-Christian Natives. A catechist visits the place from time to time on Sundays and conducts the services, and he takes a Bible-reading for the little band of converts on Wednesdays. One of the Christians there and his wife support themselves by making water-jars and flower-pots, which are bought by the Heathen, who say that the work is the best in the village. The village schools in the neighbourhood are rendering valuable service.

The Rev. C. T. Pargiter, who was stationed at FAIZABAD, was occupied mainly with the study of the language, but found time to visit the schools and supervise the native workers. The Rev. A. I. Birkett went over once a month from Lucknow in order to administer the Sacrament. The open-air meetings at Faizabad itself were not well attended, but at Ajodhya, one of the out-stations, although more opposition was experienced, the attendance was always good. Sultanpur, another out-station, was visited by Mr. Pargiter once a month. The number of Native Christians there is small, but the church is nearly filled by the girls from the Orphanage of the Z.B.M.M. Mrs. Pargiter, who was formerly a missionary of that Society, being already acquainted with the language, was able to engage at once in active work. Mr. Pargiter was temporarily in charge of Jaunpur, during the absence, through ill-health, of the native pastor, the Rev. B. Tobit.

The Z.B.M. Mission has thirteen European ladies at Lucknow and Faizabad, seven assistant missionaries, twenty-six native teachers and nurses, and twelve Bible-women. Several baptisms took place at Lucknow during the year, most of them in connexion with the medical work, which was under Miss Haskew, M.D. The ladies at Faizabad also were cheered by the baptism in October of a Brahman family. The man, when he first heard the Gospel from a relation who had been baptized, was greatly opposed to Christianity, but the message concerning the resurrection of our Lord remained in his memory, and after futile efforts, continued for some years, to forget it, he was constrained to make further inquiries, with the result which has already been stated.

AGRA AND SECUNDRA.

St. John's College, Agra.

On the departure of the Rev. J. P. Haythornthwaite for England in February, 1898, the Rev. J. M. Challis, who has been elected a Fellow of Allahabad University, became Acting-Principal of St. John's College, AGRA, and handed over the charge of the Christian Hostel to the Rev. H. W. V. Birney. The staff of the College was weakened by the illness of the Rev. H. B. Durrant, who was seized with a severe attack of typhoid fever shortly after his arrival at Agra, and was obliged to discontinue all work for seven months. Happily a capable substitute was procured in the person of Mr. Abel Arulanantham, a Native Christian of South India, who had recently taken his degree at Oxford in the very subjects which he was required to teach. Unusually large numbers of candidates were sent up for the Allahabad University Examinations, but the results were not known when Mr. Challis wrote his Annual Letter. Those of the year 1897, as was stated in last year's Report, were not satisfactory, and Mr. Challis thinks that the comparative failure was due to the authorities having increased the number of subjects that could be taken up, thus giving the students a wider choice than before, and adding greatly to the difficulty of providing them with adequate instruction. He adds :—

> Each "professor" delivers about five lectures a day, and sometimes more, taking his pupils over time; he has thus but little time and energy left for preparation, and to some extent this may account for a greater number of failures. It is becoming necessary for colleges either to increase their staff or limit their subjects, and as the former means a serious outlay in expenditure, they are forced to do the latter, and this is being done in many colleges.

An overworked staff.

The strain of keeping up all these lectures each day through the hot months of July to December told on us. Mr. Birney and myself each lectured five times a day five days a week, and sometimes six days. The Indian professors were most loyal and painstaking, though I know they were considerably overworked. The senior professor of mathematics was, however, quite broken down, and I was obliged to give him leave for a time.

Mr. Durrant describes the students as attractive pupils, possessed of an intense desire to learn, though probably they are inspired more by a longing to be able to write the magic letters B.A. after their names than by any real love of scholarship. Great care was taken over the systematic Bible teaching, and every Saturday evangelistic addresses were given simultaneously to the upper classes in English, and to the lower in the vernacular, by missionaries not on the College staff. The results of these efforts appeared at the time of the annual examination, which proved that the non-Christians studied the Scriptures earnestly, for in at least two instances they beat the Christians in open competition. Mr. Challis says:—

Knowledge of Scriptures possessed by a nominal Hindu.

The senior student of my "M.A." class (a Hindu nominally) wrote answers which showed most accurate knowledge not only of the text but of its spiritual depths, which I venture to say would have done credit to any candidate for ordination. This student is a Brahman, and I have lately come to know that he has been "out-casted"; and though he has as yet made no public confession of his faith, I cannot but believe him to be a true disciple of Christ in heart, and shall never be surprised to hear him confess his faith openly. While his is certainly the most hopeful case, there are others who seem to be much in earnest, and possess a sincere reverence for the Scriptures. One especially, in the "B.A." class, I often see marking his Bible when any passage of striking importance is explained.

To a similar effect Mr. Durrant writes:—

Thoughts leavened by Christian teaching.

I was much struck in looking over the B.A. essays on the subject, "We boast that we are better than our fathers," to notice how their thoughts are evidently being leavened by Christian teaching and civilization. One and all condemned child marriage; many pronounced emphatically against idol worship; and some declared their belief that one of the signs of advance in the present day was that men now believe in one God who is a Spirit.

It is not only in the course of the definite Bible instruction and the evangelistic addresses that opportunities occur for Christian teaching, for almost all English literature abounds with indirect references to religion. Even such an unlikely subject as the "Midsummer Night's Dream" brought up the question of the Christian view of continued personal identity in the next life, and a discussion of the question of miracles arose out of the study of Carlyle's Sartor Resartus. The three Branch Schools, each of which has a Christian headmaster, increased considerably in numbers, and two of them were overcrowded, necessitating the turning away of some boys who applied for admission. Much encouragement was vouchsafed in connexion with the Scripture teaching, and on one occasion when the master after a definite appeal asked whether any of the boys were willing to confess their faith in Christ, first one Mohammedan, then another, and then a Hindu arose, and expressed their determination to become Christians. It was not possible, however, to baptize them without the consent of their parents. To his duties as Acting-Principal of the College and Superintendent of the Branch Schools, Mr. Challis added those of honorary chaplain to the English Church, member of the Charitable Relief Association Committee, Secretary of the Bible and Tract Depôt, and Secretary of the Gleaners' Union Branch and of the Missionary Church Council of Agra.

Girls' High School.

The Girls' High School made marked advance under Miss A. E. Banks, with whom Miss E. F. Bazeley was associated, the number on the register in November being thirty-eight, and the average attendance thirty-two. The report of the Government inspectress was satisfactory, and two students succeeded in passing the middle examination in the second division, the first from the school to accomplish the feat. Great attention was paid to Scripture instruction. In addition to the daily Bible lesson, two classes were held on Sunday afternoons, and during the cold weather Miss Bazeley, at the request of the elder girls, held a Bible study for them every week. Many of the girls are members of the Gleaners' and Scripture Unions. A long-felt difficulty was removed at the beginning of the autumn term by the introduction of Urdu services, conducted by Mr. Paterson or his head catechist, which obviated the necessity of taking the children to the English Church. The spiritual work was not destitute of visible results, for Miss Bazeley writes :—

Conscience active.

> After a very solemn lesson on the sin of Achan, a little girl came to me and said, "I have been very naughty and I am very unhappy, I have eaten some fruit from the garden without leave." I had a little talk with her, and we prayed for forgiveness, and she went away happy. A short time after another girl came to me and made the same confession. No one would have found them out, but I thanked God for making them feel the burden of sin on their consciences.

Miss Banks, too, says the fruits of the Mission conducted by the Revs. Ihsan Ullah and Nihal Singh, in October, 1897, were seen in the more decided spirit of longing and yearning for the "other sheep" which was displayed by the girls and teachers. In the December of that year an organized effort was made to reach the heathen women of the surrounding villages, which was continued on a larger scale during the latter part of the year under review. A service of song was performed by the pupils, the proceeds of which, amounting to Rs. 100, were given to the Native Pastorate Centenary Fund. Miss J. E. Puckle, of Azimgarh, was at the High School for a short time during the temporary absence of Miss Banks through ill-health.

Evangelistic Work.

The Evangelistic Work was temporarily under the Rev. J. M. Paterson. In Agra itself there are three schools for the sweeper class in connexion with the Hing-ki-mandi Mission, Mrs. Birney being responsible for that for girls. Other zenana schools are superintended by Mrs. Paterson, and the zenana work is vigorously carried on. A large number of inquirers came forward as a result of the city bazaar preaching. Nearly all those who were Mohammedans proved on investigation to be unsatisfactory, but the Hindus, though much fewer in number, turned out comparatively well. Mr. Paterson, with the aid of the six catechists, was able to visit over 150 villages during the first half of the camping season, and usually found the people ready to agree that idolatry was wrong, that Christ was the True Incarnation of the Godhead, and that Krishna was not holy like Christ—though comparatively few of them proceeded further. In one place a native doctor was met who had read the whole of the Bible, and was a believer in the Lord Jesus as the Saviour; but when urged to confess Christ and be baptized, he only replied, "If I confess Him in my life, it will be better than confessing Him with my lips and in baptism." A remarkable thing about him was that through the teaching of the Epistles he had found deliverance from some personal habits of sin. At Ferozabad, a new girls' school was opened, and the visits of the Bible-woman were welcomed in upwards of fifty high-class zenanas, while at Taj Ganj many such zenanas were open to the wife of the catechist, and there were a number of secret believers. The number of baptisms in connexion with the evangelistic work in 1898 was fifty-two. Among them was that of a Mohammedan, which Mr. Paterson describes as follows:—

Baptism of a Mohammedan convert.

In the evening of July 29th, about 5 p.m., we gathered together on the spot and commenced singing bhajans (Hindustani hymns); a large crowd collected, and chosen speakers explained in short addresses the object and purpose of our gathering together. The usual service for the baptism of adults was read, with certain necessary explanations, to make the teaching clear to the minds of the non-Christians present, and the questions and answers in the baptismal vows were specially dwelt upon and made plain to all. In order to perform the baptism I removed my stole, and wearing my surplice over a suit of drill, I walked down into the river, hand in hand with Ali Ahmad, and immersing him, baptized him in the name of the Holy Trinity. Coming out of the water I made the sign of the cross upon his forehead, in the presence of some 600 spectators, whom I called upon to be witnesses of the vows made in the name of our Saviour Jesus Christ. Whilst a bhajan was being sung and two short addresses given, we retired into the tent to get into dry garments, and afterwards I completed the service.

Some of the other converts were the fruits of the work of a man who was baptized by the Rev. W. McLean on Christmas Day, 1897, by the name of Prem Masih, meaning the love of Christ, of whom Mr. Challis writes:—

Prem Masih set himself to work for his Saviour in a most devoted and zealous manner, throwing up his means of livelihood, cloth weaving, and devoting his whole time to learning to read, and to building a mud school-room, in which he hoped to see first his own household baptized, and afterwards many others. God has blessed this man's faith and his efforts in a wonderful way, and on Friday, May 13th, we had the joy of baptizing his aged father and mother, and also his wife in the school-room, which was all ready for use.

Prem Masih in the first place is a very poor man; secondly, he is of a very low caste; thirdly, he is decidedly wanting in common sense and intelligence, and at times is so extremely erratic as to be considered a bit "soft" in the brain. When he started to build a school-room, without even consulting the Padri or any of his friends, the villagers protested, and said that he should not do it, and the matter was laid before the zemindar of the village, who both knew and respected Mr. McLean, the missionary. The zemindar not only gave his consent to the building, but also gave the land on which it should be built, and further, gave leave that timber might be cut to build the roof and doorway. This was a great concession on the part of a high-caste Hindu. Also, this zemindar has led us clearly to understand that we are at liberty to teach and baptize any of the people in his villages, and that he will not turn out of employment any who become Christians. This is perhaps the most wonderful "opening of doors" that we have ever had of its kind in the Agra Mission up to the present time.

Some months ago Prem Masih asked that his household might receive instruction, and so the catechist stationed at Khandauli went over to see them. At first the ignorance of the two women was really lamentable and touching. They informed my wife that they were quite ready for baptism, and that they prayed to Jesus every night by lighting a small native lamp after dark, and doing puja before it. This lamp, I may observe, consisted of a small piece of rag laid on the edge of a tiny mud saucer about two inches in diameter, with a few drops of grease in it to feed the flame. We very soon made arrangements to have them brought into Agra to be properly taught. . . . . .

Ignorant fears regarding baptism.

On Friday morning, May 13th, my wife and I started from our bungalow in Agra to drive out to Joki-ka Bas to baptize Prem Masih's household. At first only five or six spectators came in, the others no doubt being afraid that the Padri was going to do to them many of the absurd things of which they had heard from foolish revilers of Christianity—such as feeding with cows' flesh (which is a terrible sin in the eyes of a Hindu), taking food from our own mouths and putting it into theirs, giving them wine—and other such foolish ideas. I put on my surplice and stole and stood by the little table with a bowl of water on it, and in order to attract the people I began playing some bhajans on the accordion. Very soon a crowd collected outside the room, and some looked in through the door and some looked through the windows, so I commenced the service. Soon the little room was quite full of spectators. After I had asked the questions of the candidates, and had urged them to remain faithful to their promises to be pure and good, and serve God, I turned to the spectators and asked them if the words were not good, and if they did not agree with every word which was said. Some of them said they did. I then asked them to witness that I had done none of the monstrous things which were falsely reported of us, and that they might see a Christian baptism with their own eyes and believe for themselves what it really was. I then baptized the three candidates under the names of Dharm Masih (Religion of Christ), Tara Masih (Star of Christ), Pyari Masih (Beloved of Christ). Their former names, which were names of heathen gods, were to be henceforth forsaken.

The Rev. and Mrs. E. T. Pegg were in charge at the Secundra Orphanage until the autumn of 1898, when they came home, as already mentioned. Valued help was rendered by Miss Lorbeer, of the Berlin Society.

MUTTRA.

Muttra.

The death of his sister at MUTTRA in June was naturally deeply felt by the Rev. P. M. Zenker; he, however, had grace given him to help his colleagues by showing them "how a Christian meets sorrow." A noteworthy event of the year was the purchase of a house for the lady missionaries, namely, Miss M. Stratton, who returned from furlough in November, Miss V. H. Latham, and Miss E. M. F. Major (now at home). This purchase was not effected without much difficulty arising from the doubtful solvency of the proprietor; but the anxiety which was involved brought at least one compensation in its train, since it was the cause of a remarkable manifestation of goodwill on the part of a Mohammedan pleader, who, with exemplary patience, endured the prolonged friction which the state of uncertainty produced, and then refused to accept any money payment for the legal services he had rendered. In order to give some expression to their appreciation of the pleader's kindness, the Allahabad Corresponding Committee resolved to present him with a copy of Bishop Wordsworth's Commentary on the Old Testament, and of Bishop Ellicott's Commentary on the New Testament, and Mr. Zenker says:—

A Moslem pleader foregoes fees, and accepts instead a Bible Commentary.

> When the man received the books he at first seemed dazed, as it were, but his gratitude very soon found a vent when afterwards he pressed my hand. For years he had been wanting to get a big Commentary, and had actually induced me to propose to the S.P.C.K. Depôt at Bombay that he should pay Rs. 5 a month in instalments if they would let him have the Speaker's Commentary. I presume the case will be nearly unique in the history of the Church Mission of a non-Christian lawyer foregoing his fees and accepting instead a Commentary on the Bible.

Itinerations in the district, preaching in the bazaars, &c., were carried on as in former years, and a novelty was introduced in the form of a missionary meeting for the converts. There are five schools in the city, four of them for Hindu girls. One of the pupils died in the same week as Miss Zenker, and a testimony as to her life was given by a heathen teacher, who remarked, "Now she and the Miss Sahib are together with Jesus." The number of zenanas open to the missionaries increased, and in the Sadar Bazaar, which is a suburb of the city, they had access to nineteen houses by November, instead of six or seven at the commencement of the year. In one zenana an old Hindu woman appeared really anxious to be cleansed from her sins, and said one day, "I am a great sinner. How can my heart get clean?" One of her daughters-in-law afterwards told Miss Major that her mother prayed every night, "O Lord Jesus, save me, save me!" At Brindaban, eight miles from Muttra, there were several fresh openings, and some of the women seemed to appreciate the teaching they received, one saying, "Come and teach me every week. I am so old and I cannot read, and you say Jesus will save me; but how can I be saved if I do not know about Him?" The school work at Brindaban was difficult because of the lack of discipline among the children; but it was not without signs of success, for one of the pupils was removed by her father because teaching about our Lord was given—a proof, as Miss Major remarks, that the Bible-lessons were repeated in at least one home. Miss Major, in her Annual Letter, asks for prayer that she and her fellow-missionaries may have faith to expect the day "when the floods shall be poured upon the dry ground," and adds:—

"How can my heart get clean?"

Pray for the missionaries who have "no news."

> After all said and done, what have I been able to tell you? A few more houses open, one or two feebly stretching out their hands to the light, and that is all one can say for a year spent amidst hundreds who "sit in darkness and have no light." How different from news from Uganda, from China, and other places, where we hear of whole families "turning from idols to serve the living God"—people crying out for teachers and begging for baptism—things which stir our hearts to enthusiasm and arouse God's children to renewed earnestness in prayer for those places and people. But oh! when you pray, do remember the places where the missionaries feel they have "no news."

ALIGARH.

Aligarh.

The staff at ALIGARH consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Bowlby and the Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Pemberton, who were reinforced in December, 1898, by Mrs. E. Durrant, on her return to India after furlough, and Miss J. E. Puckle, transferred from Azimgarh. The two last-named took over the work formerly carried on at Aligarh by the Z.B.M. Mission. The Native Congregation suffered through the removal of their pastor, the Rev. J. B. Ventura, both the attendance in church and the contributions showing a falling off; but at the commencement of the New Year the Rev. Yakub Ali was transferred from Annfield to fill the vacant place. A visit was received from the Bishop of Lucknow in April, 1898; he confirmed five men and three women, and expressed himself as pleased with the condition of what he termed "an expanding Mission." The importance of missionary effort at Aligarh is accentuated by the existence there of the great Anglo-Oriental Mohammedan College, and the consequent buying up of land by leading Mohammedans from all parts of India. Mr. Pemberton endeavoured to gain some influence over the students by accepting the invitation of one of the English masters to play cricket with the boys, but the Principal was strongly opposed to any aggressive Christian work among them. However, two lads from the College School paid several visits to Mr. Pemberton's bungalow, and read the Bible with him, listening attentively to the explanations which he gave. At Bulandshahr, where the Z.B.M. Mission has three lady missionaries, one Bible-woman, and seven native teachers, there was a great improvement in the Sunday-school for non-Christian boys, which had a voluntary attendance of over forty. The presence of Eurasians, who were socially superior and spiritually inferior to the native agents of the Society, rendered the work at Sikandarabad one of extreme difficulty; but a school for Chamars which was opened in the town made wonderful progress. At Bilaspur there was steady improvement in every respect, and the dispensary was evidently appreciated by the people. Mr. Bowlby, when visiting Khurja, came much in contact with the upper classes, and was often able to dispose of copies of the New Testament. The power of the printed Word of God lends additional importance to the work of removing some of the illiteracy which is so prevalent in India, and this is illustrated by an incident which Mr. Pemberton relates. He says:—

Influence of the printed Gospels.

On one occasion I went with some catechists in the early morning to a village near Khurja. We sang a bhajan, and the singing attracted attention, and the men and children gathered round, and the women could be seen peeping round the corners of the houses or looking through the windows, but all listening most attentively. The address was given by a catechist, and when he had finished the people were invited to buy some books—the Bible or some portion. There was in the group of listeners a boy who could read, and, after persuasion by an old man, he bought St. Luke's Gospel. Then we left, but as we were moving away I looked back, to find that the interest in the white stranger and his preachers had been transferred to the book. The boy with the book was the centre of an eager group of men and boys desirous of hearing more about Christ and His love. Who can say what the result will be?

The weakness of the staff of native helpers unfortunately made it impossible to send any one to labour at Soron and Kasganj. Mr. Bowlby was enabled to itinerate a little, and early in 1898 made a tour round Iglas and Hatthras, two large tehsils in the district. He met everywhere with a warm welcome, and was encouraged by again and again coming across traces of the work of the late Rev. H. W. Shackell, who in 1863 founded the station at Aligarh at his own expense. Hatthras, which is described as a place of great importance, is midway between Aligarh and Muttra, and is one of the wealthiest towns in North India.

field, and then the Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Collins on their return to India in the autumn. The attendance of boys at the High School did not largely increase, but the educational results, which suffered in 1897 owing to the opposition of the Aryas, were very satisfactory. Eight of the twelve pupils sent up for the Matriculation Examination were successful, and of the five boys who entered for the school final (an examination equivalent to that already mentioned), three passed. The school is carried on in the face of much competition, for the Mohammedans, Hindus, and Aryas all have their own educational institutions, and in addition there is the Municipal College, financed largely by the gifts of the townsmen, to which many of them naturally prefer to send their sons. The three hostels were maintained, though not without some difficulty on the score of expense, and the schools in the district, especially that at Ghaziabad, were carried on with gratifying success. The girls' schools were under the supervision of Mrs. Hall. Manifest blessing continued to rest on the Evangelistic Work. It was carried on in the city, as in former years, by means of bazaar preaching, in which not only the catechists, but also a band of voluntary helpers, took part. In addition, a hall was opened, where copies of the Bible were sold, and several came for further instruction about the way of salvation at the close of the preaching outside. A member of the Arya Samaj persistently opposed the evangelists for some time, but towards the end of the summer his active antagonism ceased, and he frequently went to Mr. Butterworth for a discussion on religious matters. The chief encouragement, however, was vouchsafed in connexion with the village work. It was mentioned in last year's Report (page 216) that Mr. Hall had baptized a number of converts at Jeyi. They were soon called upon to suffer severe persecution. Three times was the little school-church which they had erected partially destroyed, and three times was it built up again. The Rangars (Rajputs converted to Mohammedanism), in conjunction with the native police, tried to turn the Christians from their faith by stopping their supplies of food and water, and by bringing many false charges of theft against them. Mr. Hall gives the following instance as illustrating the kind of persecution to which the converts were exposed:—

Village work.

> One of the Jeyi Christians had journeyed to Meerut to purchase a buffalo. On his return a native policeman demanded the receipt which every purchaser is careful to secure as a protection to himself. The policeman immediately destroyed the receipt, and seized the animal, declaring that it had been stolen. Kallu was, however, promised freedom if he gave the zealous upholder of the law Rs. 2. To obtain this he was permitted to proceed to his village, and on the way he met Matthew and Elisha, our two readers. In their presence Kallu paid over the money, and securing his beast marched off to his home, while the readers came on to Meerut to report the case to me. I sent them back with our head catechist, George Emmanuel, who recovered the amount in the presence of witnesses. The case was duly reported, and the policeman was transferred after some considerable delay, during which he and his friends were constantly in our compound, now beseeching, now threatening our workers if they did not contradict their first statements and get them out of trouble.

Happily these and similar trials, instead of driving the converts back to their old superstitions, only served to inspire them with a longing to win their neighbours and friends to Christianity, and as they were scattered abroad, they followed the example of the primitive Christians by going everywhere, preaching the Word. The consequence was that people came to the missionaries for instruction, and begged that teachers might be sent to them. In one village the inhabitants persuaded an inquirer from Jeyi to dwell in their midst, and teach them all that he himself was learning from day to day, undertaking to provide him with board and lodging. Sohon, the inquirer, taught them the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments, as well as a number of Christian songs, and when he was baptized, after several months of probation, many of his pupils were baptized with him. It should be mentioned that so far from any pecuniary inducement to embrace Christianity being held out to the people, they are on the contrary taught from the beginning that they must not look to the Society even to provide for their spiritual teachers. Month by month they contribute money and grain, and Mr. Hall says that they are quite ready to do their part towards the erection of suitable buildings for worship and for the teaching of the young. At Maliyana, one of the out-stations, the work was hard and unpromising, but at Kankerkera the catechist and schoolmaster were full of zeal, and both the daily service in church and the school for heathen boys were well attended. During the year under review no less than 130 new converts were received into the visible Church of Christ in the district.

An inquirer leads several others to Christ.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Meerut consists of three European lady missionaries, two assistant missionaries, four Bible-women, and eleven native teachers.

There was much to encourage at Ghaziabad, but the lack of fellow-labourers prevented Miss G. L. West from taking full advantage of the opportunities which presented themselves. The zenana visiting list was carefully revised, but even after all houses had been struck off in which no real desire to be taught was displayed, there remained over one hundred where the workers were cordially welcomed. Three houses were closed because the inmates did not wish to hear the Gospel, and Miss West writes:—

Ghaziabad.

One was a sad case—a poor blind girl who from the first listened most earnestly to the Bible-teaching, and never seemed tired of listening, but would at the end of a long talk say, "Oh, tell me more, tell me more." But an old

A blind inquirer.

Brahman and her mother became alarmed, and would neither listen themselves nor let her listen. I commenced to teach her to read, as I had the alphabet for the blind in Moon's type. She learnt the whole in two lessons. At first the mother was pleased, but when she realized her daughter was anxious to learn in order to be able to study the Bible, she put a stop to the lessons and to my visits also. Shortly afterwards a wasp stung the blind girl badly on the eye, and her mother brought her to the dispensary. While Miss Jonathan was attending to her she said, "Miss Sahibji, God told the wasp to sting me because He knew I wanted to come and hear more about Him, so tell me something about Him quickly." Another day she came with a supposed bad ear-ache of four days' standing, but when Miss Jonathan wanted to see it, she whispered, "There is nothing the matter, but tell me about Jesus. I only came for that." The last time I saw her she begged for poison, as she wanted to go to Jesus. At present she is with her husband, thirty miles from here, but I still hope eventually to be able to teach her again.

Two Bible-women were employed, who paid over 2,000 visits in the city and visited sixteen of the villages in the surrounding country. In November, Miss West and two other ladies went with them to the mela at Garhmukhteshwar, on the banks of the Ganges, and were much pleased with the reception accorded to them and the numbers who crowded into the tent to hear the story of Redemption. The dispensary, worked by Miss Jonathan, a native helper possessing medical qualifications, was attended by more than 4,500 new patients, amongst whom a third Bible-woman was at work. It proved useful in removing prejudice, for the headman of a certain village where Miss West could not obtain an entrance on her first visit, afterwards sent to inquire whether she was connected with the dispensary, and, being answered in the affirmative, received her most cordially when next she went. Indeed, so great was the faith of the country people in the healing powers of Miss Jonathan, that they brought even cows, oxen, buffaloes, and a parrot for treatment! It was noticed that the number of girls who came was small in comparison with the number of boys, the reason being that the former were deemed of little value, and were therefore left to suffer and die. A Mohammedan orphan was given to Miss West for her to bring up; the girl's body was covered with burns and sores caused by her relatives, who said that she was possessed by an evil spirit.

Dispensary.

ANNFIELD AND MUSSOURIE.

The widespread expectation of the approaching end of the world is referred to by several labourers in different Missions, and among them by the Rev. T. Carmichael, of ANNFIELD. He mentions that the Hindus had predicted that a terrible earthquake would take place on January 29th, 1898, that on the same day a great Rajah would be born, and that the age of sin would then come to an end, and a thousand years of moral and religious improvement be ushered in. The Native Congregation, of which the Rev. Yakub Ali was in charge, gave much satisfaction; nearly every member of the Christian community, which numbered 376 souls, came to church at least once on a Sunday, and a large proportion were present every week at the prayer-meetings as well. In February, 1898, the novel spectacle of thirteen couples being married at the same time was witnessed. The men belonged to the Annfield Mission; but as there were no women there to whom they could be married, at their urgent request thirteen women were brought up from the C.M.S. Mission at Jabalpur to become their wives! There was some fruit of the work carried on by a young catechist at the out-station of Chakrata, thirty-three miles from Annfield, where the Hindu and Mohammedan servants of the military officers were visited. Two men, both of good character, and earning excellent wages, were baptized. The catechist who was employed among the hill-people of Jaunsar became tired of the isolation of his sphere of labour, and left without notice, but his place was soon filled by another young man, living in the Meerut district, who wrote and offered himself for the hill itinerancy. Mr. Carmichael spent some time among the Jaunsaris, and succeeded in securing a small plot of land next to the cattle-shed of a friendly hill-man, on which he built a hut, or rather rebuilt and enlarged an old broken-down cow-house, in order that he might be able to reside among the people. He gives a lamentable picture of the condition of the hill-men:—

Sad moral state of hill tribes.

What we have seen and learned will not bear too public description. The moral condition of the people is fearful. Polyandry is the recognized social system. A woman must marry, not one man, but a family of brothers. Indelicate songs are sung, and jests repeated, in the most open manner, by both men and women. An intoxicating beverage, which they themselves manufacture, is freely imbibed in all their social and religious gatherings. The villages reek with filth. Caste and superstition prevail to a degree one would not expect. Physical disorders, the fruit of their own evil customs, are found everywhere, in spite of their superior advantages in the way of mountain air and freedom from malaria.

Nevertheless, encouragement was not entirely lacking, for he adds:—

The Gospel teaching not unwelcome.

One of their priests, after hearing us preach, frankly confessed, in front of an audience of eighty persons, that their own religion was a mass of useless and senseless superstitions, and that they had nothing in it to compare with the Gospel to which they had listened. Several young syanas, or headmen, frequently come to us for private conversation, and tell us they wish they could see their way to break up the injurious social and religious customs of their people. A priest, whose temple was accidentally burnt down, said he would give up worshipping a "god" which could not take care of its own house. An old headman, whom my wife and I visited in his "drawing-room," by climbing up an oblique beam of wood through a round hole in the floor, told us he and his people had begun to give up some of their forefathers' superstitions, and encouraged us to preach in all the villages in his charge. In several villages (one of them 7,460 feet above sea-level) the headman and all the people came out to welcome us to preach among them. In another place we visited an old headman on his deathbed and pointed him to "Prabhu Yissu," i.e. the Lord Jesus, as the sure Saviour of the perishing sinner. Some time afterwards his son came and told us he had passed away. "How did he die?" we asked. "He died," he said, "calling upon the Prabhu whom you preached to him—'He Prabhu! He Prabhu!'" i.e. O Lord! meaning Jesus.

New openings for work among these people were of continual occurrence, but Mr. Carmichael found that he and his wife alone were unable to utilize them to the full. Accordingly he pleads earnestly for more labourers in the Hill district, the extent of which he describes as follows:—

Many tribes within reach, but not reached.

From the door of our Annfield Mission-house we see—(1) to the east, within eight or nine miles, the commencement of the Tiri-Gahrwal country, containing a population of 241,242 Paharis, into whose dialect we have already translated the Gospel of St. Matthew, but amongst whom we have, as yet, found no time for evangelization; (2) to the north, within seven miles of us, the British territory of Jaunsar-Baur, in which our present evangelistic work has been begun, containing 50,000 Paharis, for whom we have translated St. Matthew's Gospel and a volume of hymns; (3) to the west, across the River Jumna, the independent State of Sirmur (belonging to his Highness the Rajah, the present owner of the Annfield Estate), containing 115,000 Paharis, speaking a similar dialect to that of Jaunsar; (4) beyond these the independent States of Jubbal, with 19,196; (5) Laddi; (6) Besari, &c. It is impossible for me and my wife to do much more than cross the threshold of the far-reaching country now opening to us through the hand of God.

We should not like to see such an important enterprise dropped through a mere failure in our health. At present we are trying to evangelize about 100 villages. But beyond these 100 villages there lie hundreds and hundreds more, which we ourselves cannot hope to reach, and which, though willing to receive us, are lying in the shadow of death.

The Rev. A. Butterworth has been temporarily transferred to Annfield to help Mr. Carmichael.

Mussourie.

The Work among the English at MUSSOURIE is, the Rev. Dr. W. Hooper thinks, of great importance, for many missionary workers come up there from the plains in search of rest and refreshment. At Eastertide, 1898, a short course of sermons was preached on the "living things" mentioned in the New Testament, viz.—the living Word, the living Sacrifice, living Stones, and the living Hope; and on the Sundays after Trinity Dr. Hooper continued courses begun the previous year on the meaning of the Lord's Supper, and the prayers recorded in the Old Testament. The summer Convention was even more helpful than usual, owing largely to the share which Miss Hewlett, of Amritsar, took in it. The need of suitable native workers was much felt, but Dr. Hooper acknowledges with gratitude the practical help and sympathy of Miss Pope, Principal of the Diocesan Girls' School, in whose large establishment the Hindu and Mohammedan servants are instructed in the Gospel. The candidates for confirmation were prepared by Mr. (now the Rev.) H. Bennett, to whom the Hindustani work in Mussourie and the surrounding villages is specially entrusted. Several persons were under instruction, and two of them were baptized by the pastor of another Mission. Early in the season the work in a village of dhobis (washermen), which had previously been carried on independently by a Christian lady, was taken over, and regular weekly visits were paid by Mr. Bennett.

Dr. Hooper was busily engaged during the year in literary work. The translation of the Old Testament into Hindi was completed, the MSS. of the two books of Chronicles being sent to the press at the end of December, and progress was also made with the new Urdu translation of the New Testament. The revision of the Urdu Old Testament was next undertaken, and was likely to call for steady labour and close application, in order that the new translation might be published as soon as possible. Work of Bible translation.

II. CENTRAL PROVINCES AND RAJPUTANA.

The Rev. C. H. Gill, on his return to India, took up the Secretariat of the North-West Provinces Mission, and was transferred to Allahabad. The Rev. R. Hack came home on sick leave in July, 1898, and left again for the Mission in February, 1899. The Rev. E. P. Herbert came to England in March, 1899, and Mrs. J. A. F. Warren in April.

Mr. J. Fryer was married to Miss Charlotte Deekes on November 21st, 1898, at Jabalpur.

JABALPUR.

Owing to the Rev. W. Latham being invalided home in April, 1898, and the Rev. R. Hack in July, the Rev. J. A. F. Warren was the only C.M.S. missionary at Jabalpur during the greater part of the year. The work in the Schools, with their 1,151 boys, was hindered somewhat from a missionary point of view by the fact that only seven of the forty masters were Christians; but nevertheless the Scripture lessons were regularly given, and by means of the Sunday-school, and of the Bible-class for senior students, which had an average attendance of fifty, efforts were made to win the boys. So far as the examinations were concerned, the year was most successful. Nine of the thirteen boys who went up for the Allahabad University Matriculation Examination passed, one in Division I, four in Division II., and the same number in Division III. The boy who passed in Division I. was fifth out of more than two thousand boys, and first of all students who appeared from the Central Provinces. Twenty-eight boys were sent up for the Middle School Examination, of whom seventeen were successful. The results in the lower divisions were even more creditable. In athletics, too, the schools did well, for at the inter-school sports the Jabalpur Jabalpur. Schools. Good examination results.

boys carried off the silver challenge shield presented by the Commissioner of the Division. The Hostel had twenty-six inmates, although the buildings are but ill-adapted for their purpose; Mr. Warren contrived, however, at the time of the Middle School Examination to accommodate for a few days fourteen boys who came from a distant town for the Government Examination, all of whom afterwards joined the Society's school. The orphan boys at the station were gradually transferred to permanent institutions, and by the end of November only twenty-one were left, and these it was proposed shortly to remove to Secundra.

The general Evangelistic Work of the Mission was carried on as usual, but only a few adults—twelve women—were baptized. Mr. Hack, who, as mentioned in last year's Annual Report, was engaged in itinerating during the cold season, met with some encouragement, largely owing to the simple medical treatment which he was able to administer. He writes concerning his experience in a small town, the home and property of a petty rajah:—

Change wrought by a medicine chest.

> The people received our party most churlishly, refusing to give one of our number a drink of water or to supply the ordinary necessities of our camp. Before our preaching commenced I noticed that the rajah's father-in-law was suffering from fever and in some pain. I at once attended to him, and sent for the medicine chest. Almost immediately everybody seemed to change their attitude towards us; chairs were brought out, profuse apologies given for all the inconvenience to which we had been put, and not only had we an attentive audience, but also a ready sale for all our books.

A Hindu acknowledges the helplessness of his gods.

In another place a tailor told Mr. Hack that he considered his Singer's sewing-machine far more worthy of worship than the majority of his gods, since it was useful and worked for him, whereas they did nothing but stay in their temples and receive the attentions of their votaries. Little advance was made at the out-stations, Murwara and Umaria, owing to the depletion of the staff of missionaries. Murwara is a place of growing importance, being situated at the junction of three railways.

The C.E.Z.M.S., which suffered a heavy loss by the death of Miss Barrington after a short term of service, is represented at Jabalpur by three European ladies, four assistant missionaries, thirteen Bible-women, and five native teachers. Their work at Murwara made satisfactory progress, and on October 9th twenty-one baptisms took place, mostly of children. There were in addition several inquirers. One of them, a married girl, fourteen years of age, was turned out of her home by her mother-in-law during the prevalence of the famine, and was found half dead from want of food; she appears to be a true believer, but is being held back from baptism until it is seen whether her husband is still living.

MANDLA AND MARPHA (GOND MISSION).

The year 1898 is described as unique in the history of the Gond Mission, not, like the preceding year, on account of trial, but because of the visible success with which the work was crowned. At the same time there were many difficulties which had to be faced, not the least being those which were caused by the dense superstition of the Gonds. The Rev. E. D. Price quotes as an instance of this the case of two policemen who went to shoot a leopard that was committing great ravages, and had killed several people. He says :—

Superstitions of the Gonds.

They sat up at night watching over a hill through a loophole in a house. Shortly before midnight the animal came and took away the goat that was lying there, yet the two brave men never fired. Next morning they appeared before the villagers with scared faces, and said that just as they were about to fire they saw the two shining eyes of the ghost of the last man the animal had killed sitting on the leopard's head ; they were afraid to fire, lest the evil spirit should fasten itself upon them. The end of the story is, that the leopard took possession of a house in the village, and the poor people went to a Government officer imploring him to come and help them. He went, and making a hole in the roof of the house, shot the animal through it.

Mr. E. Walker, too, tells of a girl who came to him one day with her face bleeding, and when asked what was the matter, said that while she was in the cook-house, a little woman, a witch, about three feet high, with very long teeth, and hair down to her knees, and her feet turned backwards, came in, knocked her down, took some food, and then left! The Rev. and Mrs. E. D. Price were nominally stationed at MANDLA, but the exigencies of the work of the Mission in general prevented them from spending more than three months of the year at that place. The greater part of their time was passed at MARPHA, where Mr. W. Holloway and Mr. T. Law were resident. The people of the neighbourhood manifested great readiness to listen to the Gospel, and frequently, while engaged in reaping their harvest, they would leave their work and join the missionary in a short service under a tree. Many people asked for baptism, and the Sunday-school was so well attended that it became necessary to enlarge the building in which it was held. Some of the Hindus became alarmed at the progress which Christianity was making among the Gonds, and called meetings to consider what steps could be taken to check it; but Mr. Price says :—

Foolish reports regarding designs of Missionaries.

The only practical result has been that some of the merchants and police have spread false reports as to our ulterior designs, one being that we desired to make the people all Christians, so as more easily to convey them across the Kala Pani (Black Water) to England, that they may all be exterminated ; another, to turn them all into soldiers to fight against a barbarous king who is coming to fight against the Government and slay all Christians about the end of February, 1899. This last report is very prevalent, and has caused some inquirers to draw back. One old man told me he was very thankful he was so old, as whichever way the fighting went, he could not be much affected.

The work at Diuari was hindered by an organized movement against Christianity, in which even one of the leading Christians took part, because he was constantly taunted by the Heathen that ever since he was baptized there had been sickness in his house, and that two of his children had died. But in spite of all, two families were received into the visible Church, and steps were taken to put up a small building for public worship. The sanguine expectations which had been formed concerning Upri were dashed to the ground by an incident which occurred during a meeting held there. For on the suggestion being made that the names of all who were willing to become Christians should be written down then, a regular stampede ensued on the part of the 100 persons who were present. Some rushed into their houses and shut the doors; others climbed over fences, and soon the only people to be seen were the catechists, and one old man and his son, who appeared to be in earnest. But such disheartening occurrences were few and far between, and sank into insignificance when compared with the encouragements which were vouchsafed. At Basadongri a woman, formerly a bitter opponent, the wife of a Christian, was baptized. At Titrahi, Dhobini, and Saliya, there were forty-two inquirers in all, whose instruction was voluntarily undertaken by the leading Christians of the places; and, in addition, the wives of nearly all the Christians came forward for baptism, so that eventually in the Marpha district the female converts outnumbered those of the other sex. The total number of adult baptisms in the Mission during the year under review was sixty-five.

Observance of Christmas.

Christmas was celebrated in the district in 1898 on a more elaborate scale than usual. The Christians and the school children of the various villages assembled at Marpha, some of them travelling thirty or forty miles in order to be present, and on the Saturday, Christmas Eve, a prayer-meeting was held, followed by an exhibition of the magic lantern. The church was crowded for the services on Christmas Day, and on the Monday a great game of football was followed by sports, while in the evening a huge Christmas-tree, with presents for children who had attended school regularly, and a big dinner, afforded much gratification to all assembled.

Mr. J. Fryer had a great reception when he returned to Patpara after his marriage at Jabalpur. Mr. Price says:—

A missionary's welcome.

They received an overwhelming welcome from the orphan children, who ran quite a mile to meet the tonga conveying the bride and bridegroom, carrying branches of trees and flags tied to long bamboos, and waving them in the air. They had also erected of their own accord triumphal arches, &c. On Tuesday the Christians of Mandla and Patpara met together for a big feast. (In a Gond's estimation no marriage is complete without a feast.) Afterwards the villagers came up to dance the peculiarly weird Gond dances.

But far more pleasing than even such tokens of the affection of the people were the proofs that the Divine blessing was resting on the work. The children in the Orphanage, numbering 111 boys and eighty-two girls, who had been brought in during the prevalence of famine, entirely regained their health, and prosecuted their studies with diligence; and the Sunday-school, composed not of children only, but of men and women too, had an attendance of between three and four hundred, who were divided into eight classes and taught by some of the Native Christians. A night school was held by Mr. T. Law (who was transferred to Patpara from Marpha by medical orders) which was attended by twelve boys, who came in order that they might learn to read their Bibles. The twenty-eight inmates of the Leper Asylum were visited by Mr. Law twice a day, and Mr. E. Walker also went occasionally to read to them. Seven of them were baptized during the year. People came from miles around to the Dispensary, which proved most useful as a means of getting into touch with them and winning their confidence. Many of the Christians formed themselves into bands for engaging in evangelistic work, all uniting on the last Sunday in the month for a combined effort. One-third of all the adult baptisms in the Mission took place at Patpara, and at the beginning of January, 1899, sixty inquirers were under instruction.

KHERWARA (BHEEL MISSION).

KHERWARA is the headquarters of the work among the Bheels, one of the aboriginal tribes of India, and probably the pygmy race spoken of by Ctesias in B.C. 400. The women wear very little clothing, and the children none at all; they are dark and stunted in growth, and feed on monkeys, snakes, squirrels, and the like. There is, however, a noticeable difference between the Naga, or naked Bheels, and the Bheels of Kherwara itself, the latter having descended in part by Rajputs and others, and being much taller men. The work among this people was carried on by the Rev. E. P. Herbert (now at home), the Rev. and Mrs. H. Mould, and the Rev. A. Outram, but the last-named was chiefly engaged in the study of the language, and, moreover, he suffered a good deal from ill-health during the year. There was less sickness among the Natives than usual, but the Dispensary still attracted a large number of patients, some of them hopelessly incurable, who had great faith in the power and willingness of the missionaries to give them relief. But the most encouraging work was in the Schools, of which there are twelve in the district, with an average attendance of about 350, nearly all of them Bheels, though a few

Schools.

Native chiefs support Mission Schools.

Hindus and Mohammedans are also found in them. Considerable support is given to the schools by the chiefs in whose territories they are situated, a sum of Rs. 1,158 being contributed in 1898, for those on the Idar border, by his Highness Sir Kesri Sinhji, K.C.S.I., the Maharajah of Idar, and other influential men. Two of the schools mentioned were opened for the first time in the course of the year, one of them being established in a cattle-shed in a notorious pal, or village, in the hills. The chief presented land and promised timber for erecting a more suitable house, and, besides paying a subscription for six months, gave a written promise of regular support. The other new school was started in the village of Chitaria, in the jurisdiction of the Thakur of Pal, who was rather sceptical as to the desire of his people for education, but said that if the school went on for a twelvemonth he would give some help. As there was an attendance of forty boys when Mr. Herbert wrote his Annual Letter, he was hoping soon to claim the fulfilment of the promises. Mr. Herbert, accompanied by Sukha and Isadas, two of the Bheel Christians, made a long Itinerating Tour to the west and north-west of Kherwara in April and May, 1898, visiting several native States, and being honoured as a guest by some of the rajahs.

PUNJAB AND SINDH MISSION.

The Punjab Mission was begun in 1851, soon after the annexation of the province to British India. The first station occupied was Amritsar, the sacred city of the Sikhs; Kangra was occupied in 1854; Peshawar, 1855; Mûltan, 1856; Narowal, 1859; Dera Ismail Khan, 1861; Kashmir, 1863; Bannu, 1864; Lahore, 1867; Clarkabad, 1869; Pind Dadan Khan, 1876; Batala, 1878; Dera Ghazi Khan, 1879; Tarn Taran, 1885; Quetta, 1886. At Lahore, the capital of the province, the Divinity School was founded in 1870 by the late Rev. T. V. French. Mr. Gordon (who was killed at Kandahar, August 16th, 1880) established, mainly at his own expense, stations at Pind Dadan Khan and Dera Ghazi Khan, the latter as a base for work among the Beluch tribes. Several other stations fringe the British frontier, the most important of which is Peshawar, where a Mission to the Afghans was established in 1855 under the auspices of Sir Herbert Edwardes, then Commissioner of the Division. In the valley of Kashmir a Medical Mission was started by Dr. Elmslie in 1865, which has been a great blessing to the people, especially during the famine in 1880, and the earthquake in 1884. The work in the Punjab is deeply indebted to men like Lord Lawrence, Sir H. Edwardes, Sir R. Montgomery, Sir D. Macleod, Generals Lake, Taylor, and Maclagan, Colonel Martin, and others, who nobly exerted themselves to bring the Gospel to the people under their administration.

The Sindh Mission is older in date, having been begun in 1850, but is far behind in progress, owing mainly to its having always been quite undermanned. Yet important fruit has been granted to the patient labours of the Rev. J. Sheldon and others at Karachi (commenced 1850) and Hydrabad (1856), and more recently (1887) at Sukkur, on the Indus.

The Diocese of Lahore was founded in 1877, the Rev. T. V. French, a C.M.S. missionary, being the first Bishop. He was succeeded on his retirement in 1887 by Dr. H. J. Matthew, who died in 1898. The Rev. G. A. Lefroy has been appointed in his stead.

Reinforcements.

THE reinforcements sent out to the Punjab and Sindh Mission during the year under review were the following:—the Rev. Edward Johnson-Smyth, B.A., Trinity College, Dublin, curate of St. Thomas', Birmingham; the Rev. John Anthony Wood, M.A., Christ's College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, curate of Holy Trinity, Leicester; Miss Alice Eliza Bunn; and Miss Mary Nora Neve, niece of Drs. A. and E. F. Neve, of this Mission. Miss Bunn was trained at "The Willows," and Miss Neve at "The Olives." All the above sailed in September or October. The Rev. C. D. Fothergill has retired on account of the ill-health of Mrs. Fothergill; the Revs. R. H. W. Welchman and D. A. Canney have accepted Chaplaincies in India; and Mr. R. Venables Greene has resigned his connexion with the Society.

Death of Bishop Matthew.

Bishop Matthew, of Lahore, died suddenly on December 2nd. In the Cathedral at Lahore, in the evening of Advent Sunday, November 27th, he spoke of the duty of the Church to preach the Gospel of the Kingdom for a witness to all nations, and at the close of an eloquent sermon urged the congregation to look for the second coming of Jesus Christ. "Even if He comes this night," said he, in the terms of a humble faith; "Even so come, Lord Jesus." He returned to the chancel, and after the collection said to the chaplain, "Say the Blessing; I cannot,"

The chaplain began the Blessing, and as he did so the Bishop fell forward and never spoke again, though he lingered for five days. The funeral took place on December 4th. The Rev. E. F. E. Wigram, one of the Bishop's chaplains, read the opening sentences of the service in the Cathedral, and the Rev. Dr. Imad-ud-din was one of the pall-bearers. Bishop Matthew's consecration took place on the Feast of Epiphany, 1888, in Westminster Abbey, so that he had almost completed eleven years of episcopal service.

LAHORE AND CLARKABAD.

Lahore Divinity School.

The Divinity School at LAHORE, of which the Rev. E. F. E. Wigram is Principal, had eleven different students during the year under review, but only one of them was in residence for the whole of the time. One was a candidate for deacon's orders, who stayed for three months during the early summer; another left to take quasi-pastoral charge of Montgomerywala, which is mentioned below; two others left early in the year on the completion of their term of study, and one through ill-health; three were summer students; and the remaining two joined during the year, and were in residence when Mr. Wigram wrote. Valuable assistance in the work was rendered by the Rev. J. Ali Baksh, who lectured in several subjects, and by other friends; and the bazaar preaching and spring and autumn itinerations were carried on as usual. The Rev. J. A. Wood has been appointed Vice-Principal of the School. The accommodation of the Hostel was taxed to the utmost, and at the commencement of 1899 contained five medical and ten arts students, besides a few others. There was a marked advance in the spiritual life of many of the inmates, due in large measure to the work of Mr. J. H. Oldham, of the Y.M.C.A. The congregation of Holy Trinity Church was under the pastoral care of Mr. Ali Baksh, who reports that while the number of those attending the church did not vary much, yet there was material advance in one important respect, since the offertories amounted to twice as much as the average of the preceding five years.

Visits to the Jhang Bar.

Mr. Wigram paid three visits to the Jhang Bar, where a number of villages are springing up in the area which is being brought under canal irrigation, and opened up by a new railway. The district is not easy of access, as is evident from the account which is given by Mr. Wigram of his journey to it in October:—

> Leaving Amritsar on Thursday afternoon we reached Lyallpur at five on Friday morning. Five or six hours' ekka journey over heavy sandy roads brought us up with our camp, which had started previously, at Sardhamer, where we escaped the heat of a tent by possessing ourselves of the police bungalow. Again our camp moved forward in front of us through the night, while we followed in the ekka at 5 a.m. on Saturday, and covered the remaining nineteen miles by about eleven o'clock. We are now thirty-seven miles from Lyallpur, and perhaps only half that distance from Jhang, whence I think I will approach the place on my next visit, as Jhang, though forty-eight miles from a railway, is approached thence by a decent tonga road.

He found among the settlers one Christian and one catechumen, who had each obtained a grant of over 100 acres, and on Christmas Day he baptized a young Mohammedan who owned a similar property. The centre of interest in the district does not, however, lie in these ordinary villages, though they afford abundant opportunities for evangelistic work, but rather in Montgomerywala ("wala" signifies "appertaining to"), a village of fully 3,000 acres. This land was allotted by Government, at the instance of Colonel Montgomery, the Settlement Commissioner and a member of the C.M.S. Punjab Corresponding Committee, for Christian settlers only. The "village" consists of some 120 squares of twenty-eight acres each, of which about seventy were fit for cultivation in October, and were distributed, a square apiece to each colonist, who is to gain the tenant-right of his holding if he can bring it under cultivation within five years. Mr. Wigram writes as follows from the Divinity School :—

A Christian settlement.

When I visited Montgomerywala for Christmas Day I found that, although not a man had as yet got his own house ready, there was a mud wall built all round the future Church compound, and here there assembled a congregation of just 100 people, twenty-two of whom gathered afterwards round the Lord's Table. Munshi Jonathan Charles, the second-year student whom I sent there in November, has done capital work already. I was sorry to have to detach him from his course here, but I could find no one else available who seemed qualified to undertake this most important post. The village will probably by the end of this year contain well over 300 Christians, and it is important to remember that they are not there on their good behaviour like the tenants in a Mission village. They have occupancy rights, and now comes the real test of the reality of their faith. They may renounce it, and yet suffer no worldly loss. They may adorn it, and be a centre of light to the whole country round. I claim for them and their quasi-pastor a very special interest in the prayers of the Committee and their friends.

The Rev. Fath Masih accompanied Mr. Wigram when he visited the Jhang Bar in October, and in one village met an aged Hindu who was well acquainted with the principles of the Gospel. In the course of conversation the old man said that he had once kept a Christian with him and helped him, but the man joined a party of thieves and stole his oxen. When asked whether he had given information to the police, the Hindu replied that he could not do so, because the thief had the name of Christ on him; prosecuting him, therefore, would be, as it were, prosecuting Christ, so he merely made a complaint to Christ himself! Strange to say, this old man has never been baptized, and does not express any desire to receive baptism.

A Hindu's regard for Christ.

The Z.B.M. Mission has five European ladies, four assistant missionaries, and fifteen native teachers engaged at Lahore.

Clarkabad.

Mr. H. B. Claxton, who is over the Boys' Orphanage at CLARKABAD, reports a considerable diminution in the number of inmates, consequent on the removal of lads whose parents were able to support them, and on an outbreak of sin which necessitated some expulsions. The Day School is attended by some of the village boys as well as by those who belong to the Orphanage, and thirty-three of the forty-five who were presented for examination succeeded in passing. The Girls' Orphanage is in the charge of Miss Edgley, of the C.E.Z.M.S., and received a most encouraging report from the Government Inspector. The Misses M. E. and M. J. Farthing (the latter now at home) carried on their Work among the Women, nine of whom were baptized during the year. All of them were of the low caste, with the exception of one Mohammedan who came out with her husband. The event of the year was the occupation of a village near Clarkabad called Chota (little) Clarkabad, by some thirty Christian families, twenty of which were from Clarkabad itself. In spite of their departure the church at the station was too small for the congregation, numbering over 800, which is under the pastoral care of the Rev. T. Howell. All the land in Clarkabad is now held by Christians, for the Mohammedans left in the spring of 1898 to take possession of other holdings given to them by the Government.

AMRITSAR.

Amritsar. The clerical staff at AMRITSAR was unusually weak during the year under review, owing to the absence of the Rev. D. J. McKenzie on furlough and of the Rev. D. A. Canney on sick leave, and when the superintending missionary, the Rev. T. R. Wade, left the station for several months, there was only one European ordained labourer, the Rev. A. C. Clarke, to discharge the manifold duties of four. The Congregation, of which the Rev. Dr. Imad-ud-din is the pastor, increased so much that the church, which will seat from 400 to 500, was insufficient to accommodate the people, and it consequently became necessary to have three services every Sunday. The number of baptisms was fifty-seven, making a total since the Mission was commenced at Amritsar of 1,166.

Medical Work. The Medical Work, under Drs. H. Martyn Clark and A. H. Browne, was carried on vigorously. The out-patients numbered about 90,000, to all of whom, as well as to the friends whom they frequently brought with them, the Gospel was preached.

Patients from distant places. Some of the people came from a distance attracted by the reports of the skill of the doctors, and Dr. Browne says that it was by no means an uncommon thing for patients to arrive from Central Asia, Afghanistan, Kashmir, and Beluchistan, and that one man even came all the way from Benares simply for treatment. In another case a woman brought her boy, aged about seven years, who was almost blind; she had heard of the Amritsar Medical Mission, and being unable to obtain any relief in her own village for her son, made a journey of a month to the hospital on foot, carrying the lad most of the way! The doctors were permitted to see some spiritual fruit of their labours, for several of the patients wished to be taught more about Christianity, and some of them were baptized, while others were placed under instruction. Of the former Dr. Browne gives one instance:—

Baptism of a Mohammedan woman. One of the baptized was a Mohammedan widow (of the better class) whose only boy, about ten years old, was operated upon. The wound was a long time healing, and for several months the lad was brought as an out-patient by his mother about thrice weekly, and each time amongst the other out-patients the two heard the Gospel preached. In the long run the woman wished to be prepared for baptism with her boy, and in due time both were baptized. About a couple of months afterwards at one of our out-stations I saw the woman for the first time since baptism, and the thing that struck me most was the complete change of expression. For months previously, as I saw her day by day at the hospital, her countenance was dull and inanimate; but afterwards it became a bright, winsome face, looking full of gladness. Later on her relatives seized her, beat her, and locked her up; but she afterwards managed to escape, and now glories in having been allowed to suffer for the sake of her Saviour.

Among the indirect results of the work in the Punjab, as in other parts of the world, must be included the removal of prejudice, and the gaining of the people's confidence. A notable example of this occurred in the case of a Mohammedan who hated and despised Christians. His nephew fell off the roof of a house and sustained a fracture of the thigh bone. For a long time the lad lay at home under native treatment without deriving any benefit, and as a last resource he was brought to the hospital with the end of the broken bone protruding through the skin. It was needful to keep the boy as an in-patient for a considerable period, and during this time the uncle and his family (i.e., relatives) learnt to look upon Christians in a totally different light, friendship taking the place of enmity, gratitude that of loathing, while they listened to the Gospel message with respect instead of contempt and scorn. The work at the branch hospitals and dispensaries was no less encouraging than that at headquarters. In one village, where the people were at first most bigoted and for a long time steadily refused to allow any Christian even to visit them, they went so far as to petition against the contemplated removal of the doctor to another station, although through the medical work the Gospel had been spread among them, and many had been baptized; and in another, the consistency of the life of the branch doctor caused some influential Hindus to inquire into Christianity, with the result that one of them put himself under instruction for baptism. In a few remote places schools were established, which also served as village dispensaries, and which had lending libraries of Christian literature, and books on Hindu and Mohammedan controversy, in connexion with them. Dr. Browne, who attaches great importance to these schools, writes of them as follows:—

Gratitude takes the place of loathing.

Village schools used as post-offices, dispensaries, and libraries.

These schools are what are called by Government "indigenous schools"; they are specially favoured by the Educational Code of the province, the teaching is primary, and altogether vernacular. They all work for Government grants and earn comparatively large sums. Each one of them has a lending library, and it is interesting to note that in one month no less than 666 volumes were borrowed and read; these were not tracts merely, but standard works of Hindu and Mohammedan controversy, such as Al Kindy, Din-i-haqq ki tahqiq, and of Christian literature Pilgrim's Progress is a special favourite. This alone means a great deal in the rural Punjab. Further, each village school is a dispensary and a Government post-office; it is thus the chief place of resort in the village. The post-office business brings many men from surrounding villages, and as they are never in a hurry there is always a congregation available on our own ground. Our spiritual workers have always a place to go to and to stay in and to use as a centre for working that locality, thus obviating endless expense and trouble, and they teach the Scriptures to the children and revise the spiritual instruction already given. Parents come in large numbers to listen to the answers of their children, and learn much more themselves than they ever meant to.

To realize what a mighty power these small schools are, one has only to see the large friendly crowd at one of these places and the avidity with which they listen, and to contrast it with the not seldom rowdy, repellant, argumentative, and sometimes hostile few who often meet the preacher in ordinary villages. Then, as children and men are drawn in from other villages, our workers meet with the same respectful hearing in the surrounding country.

One of the schools is in the village of Bababakala, which contains the shrine of the ninth Sikh Guru, Tegh Bahadur; it is one of the holy places of Sikhism, and to the ordinary evangelist a place practically hostile and unapproachable. The medical work from Beas first broke the ranks of the enemy, and now one of our small schools is the Christian garrison amongst the people, as friendly now as they were at one time unreachable.

One other instance must suffice. Khabba, in the far north of our district, is an extra large village community and a stronghold of Mohammedanism, so it goes without saying that the evangelist who very occasionally found his way there had a very unpleasant time. The work at Batala first breached the walls of this fortress, so much so that of their own motion one of our small schools has been planted in their midst, and has their cordial support, and now in all our district there are no people more accessible and friendly than those of Khabba.

Mrs. Grime, who was joined by Miss M. H. Millett and Miss A. E. Bunn in the autumn, has for twelve years been in charge of the Middle-class Girls' School, where in addition to instructing the children, seventy-five in number, she aims steadily at training teachers. Four of the girls gained senior teachers' certificates, and one a junior: the latter went back to her home, and the other four were employed in the school. There were several changes in the staff of the Alexandra High School for Girls. The Principal, Miss Saw, of the C.E.Z.M.S., came home on furlough; on the other hand, Miss Winter, of that Society, went out in February, 1898, to help as an English teacher in the higher classes, and Miss A. F. Wright returned from her furlough in October. The secular training maintained its high standard, and the marked improvement in the conduct of the girls justified the belief that the work was succeeding in the highest and truest sense. During the year the Star list was instituted, and placed on the wall of the school. A blue star was given to every girl each week for good work in class, and a red one for good conduct; but if a girl received a bad mark from any teacher, the star was taken away, and a black cross inserted in its place. One of the pupils obtained the second prize in the Senior Division at the Lake Memorial Scripture Examination, and another the third prize in the Junior Division. The Boys' High School, which was under the Rev. A. C. Clarke during the absence of Mr. McKenzie, had a "happy and successful" year, for the examination results were good, and there were many proofs that the Spirit was working in the hearts of the boys. One boy came to the missionary in the summer to tell him of the likelihood of his father compelling him to divorce his wife on account of domestic differences, and saying that he could not do it, as he had now a "Christian conscience." Mr. Clarke superintended the Boys' School at Majitha, and occasionally took part in the bazaar preaching there. The native pastor, the Rev. Q. K. Nehemiah, was hampered by the lack of good workers, and also by illness, which prevented him from giving the needed attention to some sixty inquirers who were gathered in two of the villages under his care. Few baptisms are reported by the Rev. W. Mull, of Bahrwal-Atari. The Rev. M. S. Masih, of Ajnala, speaks of the reform movements within Hinduism and Mohammedanism as signs of the influence of Christianity, and refers to the hindrances arising from caste.

A "Christian conscience."

The C.E.Z.M.S. has thirty-four European ladies, sixteen assistant missionaries, thirty-four Bible-women, three nurses, and twenty-nine native teachers, engaged in scholastic, zenana, medical, and village work in Amritsar, Batala, and the neighbourhood.

BATALA.

The Rev. T. E. Coverdale is the superintending missionary at BATALA, which is twenty-four miles from Amritsar. He relieved the native pastor, the Rev. N. C. Dass, of the charge of the A.L.O.E. High School, but the latter continued to take part in the Scripture instruction, and had great hopes of one lad who was not ashamed to confess Christ openly. The Baring High School met with most gratifying success in the University examinations. It provided not only the first Christian on the list of successful matriculation candidates, but the second as well, and the only two Christians in the first class, and one-third of all the successful Christian candidates in the province, were boys from the school. In the junior University examination, half of the six successful candidates from the school passed the examination fully a year sooner than, under similar circumstances, boys had ever done. The Rev. E. Corfield, the Principal, describes the work as increasingly interesting, and adds :—

Batala.

Successes of Baring High School.

> As we see the school gradually fulfilling the purpose for which it was established, by turning out boys who are not only trustworthy, but command respect, we thank God and take courage. I do not wish any one for a moment to think that every Baring High School boy is a model of virtue; there has been too much evil in the past for that. But what I do mean to say is this, that, considering everything, he proves that Christ is faithful to His promises; that through His grace evils of all sorts are still cast out of the heart; a tongue uttering the language of Heaven takes the place of one addicted to evil communications; the ever-present poison of evil influences hurts not, and the sick in soul are recovered by ministrations which Christians alone can offer. Only those who have some idea of the depths of evil which human nature has sunk to in India can in any fitting measure rejoice in what God has wrought.

Death of a school-boy.

One of the boys, Samuel Amir-ud-din by name, died during the year from the effects of an accident in the gymnasium. He received an injury while dropping to the ground after the performance of a feat which he had often accomplished before, and succumbed after an illness of nine days. Mr. Corfield says:—

He bore the pain with Christian patience, always ready with a smile or a "thank you" for any little attention shown, and ever pleased when read to and prayed with. God is Love; the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin; safe in the arms of Jesus; and that all things were ordered from above, were the truths he was invited to rest upon; and his murmurs of assent showed that he did so. A little time before he grew unconscious he expressed a wish that his Mohammedan parents and others could see what real Christian love was, for he never thought it could be so deep.

Deep waters run smooth, and certainly Amir-ud-din, though he was never a leader of boys, was one of whose spirituality no one could doubt, and in whose heart the work of grace—amidst failings and falls—was evidently going on. The school is the poorer to-day on account of his departure, but the influence of his quiet unassuming life will continue to work amongst us. His grave is close beside that of Frank Norris, the only other boy who has died at the school during the twenty years of its existence.

Tribute to an old master.

A pleasing event of the year was the presentation of an address, together with a purse of Rs. 600, to Mr. I. C. Singha, on his completion of twenty years' work as assistant headmaster. Both Europeans and Indians readily contributed, and three of the six donations of fifty rupees each came from Punjabis, while fifty-five of the eighty-five donors were Natives of India.

Some 300,000 souls are found in the Batala district, of whom it is calculated by the Rev. H. U. Weitbrecht that not more than one-tenth have received any kind of impression of Christianity, and that of these "one in ten again may have a fairly intelligent notion of it, and have thought somewhat of its claims." The Rev. Fath Masih, who has been transferred to Amritsar, reports that there were two inquirers in the villages around Batala, but that the pressure on the European staff rendered it difficult for them to find time for itinerating work, and for examining and baptizing the catechumens. The number of Christians at Fathgarh is about 200.

NAROWAL.

Narowal.

An interesting paper by Mr. D. N. P. Datta, M.B., a Native of NAROWAL, and a Government doctor, was read at the Edinburgh Annual Foreign Missionary Week in the autumn of 1898.* In the course of the paper, which dealt with missionary work among the low classes in the Punjab, Dr. Datta referred to the Chandals, who according to the Hindus are descended from the great and unpardonable criminals of ancient India, whose very touch and even shadow is regarded as pollution, and for whom it is thought there is no place in heaven, and enumerated five chief Chandal classes, viz:—(1) Chuhras, or sweepers; (2) Chamars, or workers in leather; (3) Doms, or basket-makers; (4) Gagras or leechers; and (5) Gipsies. He described the first of these, the Chuhras, as regarded with the greatest contempt, and allowed only to live as the lowest menials of all the upper classes. They are the scavengers, sweepers, and conservancy menials of North India; they are filthy, and live and thrive in filth; they eat even carrion, and worship a white snake. It is from this despised class that the majority of the Christians of the Narowal Mission have been gathered, and Dr. Datta wrote:—

The Chuhras in their heathen state.

> Twenty years ago, there were no more than thirty Christians all told in my native town of Narowal. Now there are nearly 2,000 in it and the surrounding villages. Narowal has been the sphere of work of my spiritual father, your noble, whole-hearted, consecrated, and saintly missionary, the Rev. Rowland Bateman, for the past thirty years. Two years ago, when he left Narowal for a visit to England, he had the joy of seeing 1,400 worshippers met together, to worship along with him his Saviour and their Saviour, in his church, which he delights to call his cathedral.

But the fact that the converts are mainly from the lower classes involves the missionaries of the station in one special difficulty from which many of their colleagues in other parts of India are exempt; for, as the Rev. C. M. Gough (now at home), who was in charge of the Mission during the year under review, points out, the low-caste inhabitants of the villages of the Narowal district do not as a rule experience any of that persecution or hardship on becoming Christians which converts from Hinduism and Mohammedanism so often undergo, and consequently escape that testing of the purity of their motives to which the latter are frequently subjected. There is, however, one trial by which they are confronted, and that is in connexion with the observance of the Sabbath, for many of them are practically the serfs of the Mohammedan and Hindu landowners, and are dependent on them for their daily bread, and if they refuse to work on the first day of the week they run the risk of being turned adrift. One great feature of the year's work at Narowal was the stress which was laid on this matter of Sabbath observance, which had previously been almost ignored by the majority of the Native Christians. New converts were required to show, by making at least some genuine attempt to keep the Sabbath during the time of their catechumenate, that they were ready to suffer some hardship, if need be, for the sake of Christ. The enforcement of this requirement resulted in there being fewer baptisms than in recent years, only five adults being received into the visible Church of Christ. There was no resident Indian pastor to look after the Christians, who are scattered about in 110 of the 240 villages of the district; but the Rev. Ihsan Ullah preached in the church, and held Bible-classes for the catechists and readers whenever he visited his home. The salary of one of these catechists was guaranteed during the year for the first time by the Narowal Church Committee, which thus made a beginning in self-support. The Anglo-Vernacular Middle School, which was stated in the Report for last year to have suffered from the opening of a school by the members of the Arya Somaj, had 120 names on the roll in January in the place of eighty at the same time in 1898, while the numbers at the rival institution greatly diminished. A commencement in industrial work was made at the Christian Boarding School, and the number of boys in the nineteen village schools, which are under the superintendence of Mr. Faiz Ullah, increased from 438 to 538. In spite of all that has been done to evangelize the Narowal district, Mr. Bateman is of the opinion that not one in twenty of the people has yet had the Gospel fairly placed before him. Schools.

An interesting incident occurred in connexion with open-air preaching in a village in the district, where two Mohammedans made themselves very obnoxious in consequence of the baptism of the chief Mohammedan resident. Dr. H. M. Clark thus describes what happened:—

Islam and its fruits.

After the varying fortunes of an hour's talk, I summed up the position as regarded their perversity by saying, As was the root, so was the fruit. Islam was responsible for their state of mind—bad fruit of an evil stem. They were but worthy followers of the example which had been set them by the great men of Islam. Pressed to justify my words I instanced a particularly brutal assault on Fatima, the daughter of Mohammed, after her father's death, by his successor, Abu Bakr, during a squabble over the disposal of her father's property. This was furiously denied, and I was challenged to prove my assertion, and after much talk, in solemn form an agreement was drawn up, by which I bound myself to prove this thing from reliable books of Islam. I had made the remark and accepted the challenge on the strength of what a maulvie recently baptized had told me. The thing had now assumed large proportions, and much depended on it. When I set to work to get my references, I found the fact was well known, but no one could point out the authority. After much patient inquiry, I got the name of the book, which had been published some years ago, dealing with the question, one of much acrimony between the Sunnī and Shiah factions of Islam. But a patient, diligent search in the bazaars of Punjab cities down to Delhi failed to obtain the book. Time was now drawing on, and I was still without the wherewithal to meet my friends. The book I could not obtain, nor could friends, Christian, Mohammedan, or Hindu, help me to what I wanted. On the day before I left for Narowal, at a wayside station, I met a friend, a railway engineer, a Shiah Mohammedan, who was interested in my predicament, and thought in some of his books—he did not know which, and there were many—I might perhaps get the information. He was to send the books, but was himself called away to a distant part of the line, so with some expense and more trouble the books reached me at Fathgarh, en route for Narowal. About 10 in the evening, after a journey and a hard day's work, I commenced them. Page after page of crabbed Urdu, miserably printed on wretched paper, with here and there Persian thrown in, and then again Arabic of a pronounced type, were run through. One book was finished, another three-quarters done, when, about 2 a.m., I found what I was looking for—not all I wanted, but something wherewithal to make out a case, and so went to sleep with a lighter heart over this special matter than I had had for many days.

Next day in the evening, as we were in Ramdass, one stage from Narowal, my friend, the Afghan maulvie from Swat, who was baptized some years ago, and whose wonderful story has already been told to C.M.S. readers, said (to translate freely), "Why beareth thy brow the marks of thought?" I told him the whole story. He laughed, and said, "Why hast thou been troubled? here is that for which thy heart longeth," and in resonant Arabic from the authorities of Islam, he gave me the passage. Never before have I so rejoiced in the sound of Arabic! The matter was put into trim at once, press manuscript got ready, and published in an impossibly short time by Dr. Lankester's Christian press in Amritsar, and so a couple of days later we were ready. In the intervals of a campaign against the Aryas of Narowal the bolt was launched. The matter had excited considerable interest. Mr. Bateman and his successor, Mr. Gough, were there; a concourse of Mohammedans, of course, with a couple of champions of their own; a party of Shiah Mohammedans of Narowal, in dire straits between their abhorrence of Sunnis and their detestation of Christians, gave the requisite element of comedy. The lists were set, and the battle raged some two or three hours, and in the end we came home to the Arya battle, rejoicing over a thorough good day's work. "By their fruits ye shall know them." had been our text.

Inquiry was stimulated by this controversy, and although no conversions or baptisms directly resulted from it, yet the Mohammedans were at least shown that Islam would not really bear close investigation.

TARN TARAN.

Tarn Taran.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Storrs took up their residence at TARN TARAN in March, 1898, on the same day that the Rev. E. Guilford left on furlough. During four weeks in June and July special classes were held for the catechists, readers, and Christian teachers of the district. In the mornings an epitome of the books of the Old Testament was taken, and at the afternoon class the translation of Moule's Outlines of Christian Doctrine was read. Mr. Guilford baptized six adults and eight children before his departure, and later in the year the former guru, or religious teacher, of the Christian village of Zamrardar was received into the visible Church.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. consisted of Miss Vines, a fully qualified doctor, two other lady missionaries, five assistant missionaries, four Bible-women, and six native teachers. Miss Hanbury found that at the time of the monthly mela, when she was speaking to some people on the flat roof of a house, it was extremely difficult to gain their attention, but as soon as the picture of the Crucifixion was shown, the careless ones drew near, and listened with intense interest to the story told.

MULTAN.

Multan

There are about 1,800,000 people in the MULTAN district, of whom, it is calculated, not more than one in a hundred of the inhabitants of the city, and one in a thousand in the country districts, have had the Gospel placed before them in sufficient fulness to enable them to accept it if so disposed—and to work among this vast multitude the Society has only two ordained European missionaries and one Native in deacon's orders, besides the native lay agents! Several changes took place in the staff: the Rev. C. E. Barton was invalided home in the autumn of 1898, and the Rev. W. F. Cobb was thereupon joined by the Rev. E. Johnson-Smyth, one of the recruits of the year; while at the High School, Mr. W. Khem Chand, as stated in last year's Report, accepted a Government appointment, and was succeeded as headmaster by Mr. B. H. Chatterjee. "Unity and concord" characterized the members of the Congregation, which was under the pastoral care of the Rev. Talib Masih, and they engaged in active work for Christ as far as was in their power. At the beginning of 1898 an Itinerating Tour was undertaken in a new tract of country north-east of Multan, between that town and Jhang, and the undermanned condition of the district was demonstrated by the statement of the people in the two largest villages that it was fifteen years or more since they had had a missionary to preach to them. The great change which has taken place in the attitude of the inhabitants of those regions to which more frequent visits have been paid, is illustrated by the following, written by the Rev. T. Bomford while at home:—

Fifteen years since Gospel last heard.

Changed attitude of the people in some of the rural districts.

Ten years ago I could hardly ever get twenty people to listen for even a few minutes to the preaching; then Hindus (as a rule) met the preaching with indifference or ridicule, and Mohammedans with a certain amount of opposition. I have seen Mohammedan priests come and order away any Mohammedans who were listening, and then turn round and abuse me for venturing to try to disturb the faith of true believers. I have, day after day, been refused supplies of food of any kind, though willing to pay an exorbitant price. Then, if a few did stand by when one was preaching, they were hardly listening, but conjecturing who I was and what my object was in coming amongst them, and many were the efforts made to find out from my servants what my real purpose was. "Is he a police officer in disguise?" "What does he really want?" Preaching they considered a very transparent cloak of hypocrisy to hide my real design, but they were never sure what this was. Little by little all this has changed. Now I number my attentive hearers nightly by the hundred, and reckon that in two to two-and-a-half months the Word has been preached to some 10,000 willing listeners. Now, as soon as I am known to be in a neighbourhood, the people, both Mohammedans and Hindus, come to ask whether there will be preaching. Now, instead of trying to drive me away from a place, they urge me to stay longer. Now, Mohammedan priests never oppose. I have known them help to keep order in a crowd while the preaching was going on, and leading Indian Mohammedan gentry ask me to come to their houses and preach to their wives. Not only in that district are there hundreds of willing hearers, but there are scores of thoughtful hearers, men who are reading and thinking and comparing the New Testament with the teaching of their own religions. "Our priest," said a boy to me, "bought a New Testament from you three years ago, and every night he studies it." "I have begun reading the New Testament," said a Mohammedan maulve to me, "and I am astonished at it. Take that command alone, 'Love your enemies;' we have nothing like it in the Koran. Yours is the better book of the two."

Several inquirers came forward, but only one adult was baptized, a man named Amir Ahmad, holding a good Government post, who had been an inquirer for at least nine years. On two previous occasions he decided to become a Christian, but his courage failed him at the critical moment; but on Easter Sunday, 1898, he was at length baptized by immersion in the church at Multan. Mr. Barton describes the service as follows:—

A baptism by immersion.

We began with the Easter hymn, "Jesus Christ is risen to-day." Then Talib Masih read morning prayer. Cobb unfortunately could not be present, as he had to take the English service in cantonments. We omitted the first lesson, but I read the second, and immediately after went to the font. It had been filled, of course, the day before, and required a great deal of water. I wore sandals and socks, a pair of white trousers (such as we wear in the hot weather), vest and shirt, and over all a white cassock and surplice and stole. Amir Ahmad had also a change of clothes with him. Talib Masih read the first part of the service up to the questions, and then I read the rest. Immediately before the immersion we all knelt and sang a hymn, which was a prayer for the Holy Spirit. Then I removed my stole and we descended into the font, Amir Ahmad first, I following. The water was not so cold as I expected, and when we reached the bottom rose rather above my waist. I immersed him once completely, the water passing right over him, and repeated the solemn words appointed. Then came the making of the sign of the cross, after which we both ascended the steps out of the water. Talib Masih gave out another hymn, and Amir Ahmad retired into a small room behind the font to change, whilst I went into the vestry. Then, wearing black cassock, stole, surplice, and hood complete, I returned to the font, and Amir Ahmad having come out dressed in a new clean white suit, we finished the service.

DERA GHAZI KHAN.

Dera Ghazi Khan.

Dera Ghazi Khan is a town of some 20,000 inhabitants, and the chief place of a district 200 miles long, with an average breadth of twenty-five miles. The population, nine-tenths of which is found in the rural districts, is mainly Mohammedan, at least in name; each little village has its saint's tomb, and there is keen discussion as to which saint is really the holiest. Dr. A. Jukes, in an interesting account of the Mission,* mentions that the hospital is built on ground which was given by a Hindu, and that 126,000 out-patients and 2,194 in-patients have been treated within its walls since the station was opened in 1879. Although the autumn of 1898 was not so unhealthy as the same season of some recent years, the number of in-patients increased. One of those admitted was the son of a Beluch chief, who, after careful treatment, was restored to health; before he left, the chief sent a thankoffering of Rs. 60, and calling the doctor to the bedside of the patient, asked him to pray for his son. The hospital at Fort Monro, where the Natives have their hot weather quarters, was open through the summer, and in October a new branch dispensary was started at Sakhi Sarwar, where the people congregate in the winter. A lady missionary, writing in India's Women and China's Daughters, says that Sakhi Sarwar is believed to have been a great teacher and worker of miracles, and that at the time of the annual fair the steps to his tomb are crowded with devotees from all over the Punjab, as many as 5,000 sometimes visiting it in the course of a single day. The dispensary received 1,500 visits from patients during the first ten weeks, and that not in the season for the pilgrims. Dr. J. O. Summerhayes made two itinerating tours, in the course of which he treated more than 2,500 patients; and the Rev. M. H. Izhaq, the native clergyman, preached in sixteen different towns and villages to the south of Dera Ghazi Khan. The River Indus, which caused much anxiety in 1895 (See the Annual Report, 1895-96, page 222) again gave trouble, and Dr. Jukes wrote:—

* See Mercy and Truth for January, February and March, 1899.

New branch dispensary at Sakhi Sarwar.

Danger from the Indus.

> Those who ought to know think that Dera Ghazi Khan will be in greater jeopardy during the ensuing hot season, when the river is in flood, than at any previous time since the British rule began. If the river encroaches much more on its west bank there is a possibility of cantonments suffering, or of a branch of the river forming to the west of the city; if, however, the river exerts its force on another spot, the city itself will be in some danger, as it may get behind the stone band (embankment) which now protects it.

Dr. and Mrs. Summerhayes left for Quetta in November, 1898, and Dr. Adams was transferred from Srinagar to this station. Dr. Jukes has been transferred to Hazara, to occupy a new C.M.S. station there. The C.E.Z.M.S. have two missionaries and one Bible-woman working at Dera Ghazi Khan.

DERA ISMAIL KHAN, BANNU, AND TANK.

Dera Ismail Khan.

The Rev. F. Papprill, on his return from furlough in the autumn of 1898, resumed his former charge of the work at DERA ISMAIL KHAN, and was accorded a hearty welcome. About the same time the Rev. C. D. Fothergill was obliged, as already mentioned, to leave for England on account of his wife's health. At the commencement of 1898 sickness was prevalent, and the death-rate for the year, caused by fever during three months, rose from twenty-three to forty. The charge of sixty boarders belonging to the High School consequently involved more than the usual anxiety, which was not lessened by the high prices resulting from a drought of eight months. The school commenced the year with more than 350 names on the register, but a fierce and determined attack was made by the Arya-Samaj, the members of which posted bills in the town declaring that the morals of the boys were being ruined, and threatening the parents who sent their sons; the result being a reduction of the numbers to 277. Happily this falling-off was but temporary. Gradually the ebbing away of the boys ceased; for a time it was low tide, and then the flow commenced: parents came imploring that their sons might be re-admitted, and when Mr. Fothergill left in October there was a roll-call of 342 names. The school again did well in examinations. In the Middle School, out of thirty-nine candidates for the Middle examination, thirty-two passed, and in the Primary School two open Government scholarships were won by boarding-house lads. In the High Department all the twenty-three candidates passed in English and Persian at the Lahore Entrance examination, thus meeting with greater success than those from any other school in the Punjab. An athletic team was sent in March to the Multan Schools Tournament, receiving from the Government a grant for its expenses, and returned with one first and four second prizes, an encouraging result of an initial effort. Early in 1898 the school was visited by H.E. the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, who most kindly spent fully an hour and a half in seeing over every portion of the premises, and then stayed to watch the drilling and games. Close intimacy and friendship with the boarders was maintained, and advantage was taken of the many opportunities of individual dealing and Christian conversation with the lads who attended the school. No changes were made in the staff. It is difficult to find Christian masters, but some of the teachers, though not yet baptized, are Christians at heart. One such, the senior master, who is described as being "almost a Christian," and as leading a model Christian life, remarked one day to the Principal, "Sir, you do not know what it is to change your religion, and to leave home and friends!"

High School.

Visit of the Lieutenant-Governor.

"You do not know what it is to change your religion."

The Rev. Mulaim-ud-din, the native pastor, made one itinerating tour as far as Leiah, where he had a long talk with two men in particular, who appeared to be much impressed. He gave an Urdu translation of the book Sweet Firstfruits to one of them, and after his return home received a letter from him in which he said, "I have read the book you kindly gave me from beginning to end, and consider it, indeed, as it is called, Sweet Firstfruits, for it has made an impression on my heart, and I was never tired of reading it—so much so that I was obliged to read it more than once, and it has made me decide to read the Bible, which I believe to be the true Word of God; will you therefore please send me a copy." With this exception but little evangelistic work was done.

The C.E.Z.M.S. staff at Dera Ismail Khan consists of four European ladies, one assistant missionary, and two Bible-women.

Bannu.

The staff of the Society at BANNU consisted of Drs. T. L. Pennell, W. B. Heywood, and H. A. Smit, but the two latter, as recent arrivals, were unable, owing to language study, to render much assistance in the work. In the absence of any clerical missionary, Dr. Pennell was obliged to devote a good deal of time to the Boys' School, which was raised in 1898 to the status of a High School, its power of usefulness being thus considerably increased. A boarding-house for boys living at a distance was opened during the year, and had twelve inmates, besides the master in charge. The Government chaplain when in Bannu occasionally administered Holy Communion to the Native Christians, and he also baptized one child; but the baptism of a family desirous of openly confessing Christ in baptism had to be deferred. The ordinary Church services were conducted by Dr. Pennell and Mr. T. Benjamin, the headmaster of the school, and the Rev. Ihsan Ullah paid a visit of eight days to the station. The Hospital had as large a number of both in- and out-patients as in 1897, the wards being generally full. Many of the trans-border tribes were represented among the patients, and the wide-reaching influence of the medical work is illustrated by the fact that of the 438 in-patients during one year, 171 were Bannuzais, 76 Waziris, 40 Khattaks, 33 Marwats, 39 Hindkis, 16 Khostols (Nyazis and Punjabis); and of the remainder, nine were Ghilzais, eight Mahsouds, eight Bangash, six Dawaris from the Tochi Valley, five Jats, four Cabulis, four Zadrans, three Purbiahs, two Afridis, and one each of the Awan, Orakzai, Zaimukht, and Ningrahar tribes. Mrs. Pennell, the mother of Dr. Pennell, in an account of some of the occupants of the different appropriated beds in the Hospital, gives some instances which show the difficulties by which doctors in the Punjab are confronted in both their medical and their spiritual work. She writes:—

Many tribes represented in Mission hospital.

A few days ago a lad of twelve years old was admitted, seriously ill with pneumonia. He was put in clean clothes, wrapped in blankets, and made comfortable in a bed. But on returning an hour afterwards to the ward, we found the bed empty, and the boy on the cold floor. His father, who was with him, on being remonstrated with, said, "The boy does not like being in a bed; he wants to be on the floor"; and when told that that could not be allowed, he at once carried away the boy. In the ward for eye cases, we had in for cataract a woman named "Beautiful Pearl." Her husband, who also was almost blind from cataract, had heard in their far distant home, Kabul, that an English doctor had come to Bannu who could cure all eyes. So, getting together all they could, which only came to about 18*s.*, they both started on foot with their only child, a little girl of ten, to wend their weary way to the goal in view. But before they had got far, some cruel men robbed her husband of all his savings in a lonely part of the road, beating him to death before his wife, and then went off, taking her child with them, and leaving her alone, and crushed with grief. From that time it took her just ten months to reach Bannu. She arrived here very weary, and in rags, and was so thankful to get into a comfortable bed, and most grateful. The operation for cataract was successful, and resulted in her having good sight in that eye. But meanwhile someone had frightened her, telling her "hell would be her punishment for listening to our teaching," and she refused to have her other eye operated on, or to listen to a word more about our wicked religion, and left us. We saw no more of her for about four months, and then she appeared one day at the dispensary in great pain, with a suppurating eye. She had been to a native doctor, and had suffered so much that she felt she must come back. Since then she has often been among the out-patients, and has heard the Gospel from time to time, but she remains untouched, saying, as so many do, "Your medicine is very good, but your religion is wicked."

Testimony of Lieutenant-Governor.

The Lieuteuant-Governor of the Punjab, Sir W. Mackworth Young, referring to Dr. Pennell's work, wrote a short time ago:—"Pennell's work is splendid, and his witness is most valuable all along the Derajat frontier. His devotion is in every one's mouth."

At Tank, Dr. Samuel Singh, a Christian licentiate of the Agra Medical College, had numbers of patients from among the Mahsud Waziris, and at Esa Kheyl a more limited work was carried on among the rural population.

PESHAWAR.

Peshawar.

The Rev. W. Thwaites left PESHAWAR in April, 1898, and after his departure the station was without a clerical missionary, and the large Edwardes High School without a Principal. As was natural, therefore, but little progress was made, though the school and the general work of the Mission were maintained. Dr. Arthur Lankester (now at home), whose brother, Dr. Cecil Lankester, was associated with him in the Medical Work, describes the new hospital which was opened in the middle of January, 1898, as situated "in the centre of the city, close to the principal mart for trans-frontier produce, and in the neighbourhood where almost all the traders who come with the caravans from Afghanistan and Central Asia, and all the tribesmen from the hills around, make their abode when in Peshawar." About 12,000 visits of out-patients were recorded, and nearly 200 people received treatment as in-patients. By far the greater number came from a distance, and there were representatives from Tirah, Swat, Buneyr, as well as from the various districts of Afghanistan, and also a considerable number of Afridis who had been wounded in the recent war. Many of the patients had had been specially directed to come by others who, after being medically treated, had returned to their homes healed and thankful. A new out-station was opened at Landi Kotal, at the further end of the Khyber Pass, of which Dr. A. Lankester says :—

New hospital.

Wounded Afridis among patients.

Work opened at Landi Kotal, beyond the Khyber Pass.

We were enabled by the kind help of Sir William Lockhart to obtain permission to start medical work "for sick and wounded Afridis and others" at this place. I went out and had most encouraging times of itineration amongst the villagers in the Khyber Pass and round about Landi Kotal, and now we have a convenient little dispensary with a Christian assistant in charge, in a corner of the great serai where all the caravans halt on their way between Kabul and Peshawar. The people have welcomed us warmly, and we are hoping thus, with God's blessing, to prepare the way against the time when in all this wild district the Gospel may be preached without let or hindrance.

Dr. C. Lankester gives one or two instances of native methods of treatment, which serve to explain the attractive power of the medical mission. On one occasion a man came with abscesses in his neck, and with a piece of dirty string tied round that part of his body, which he said a hakim had put on to cure him; while a boy with epilepsy had been treated by holding a piece of burning cloth so that the smoke entered his nostrils! These, however, were deviations from the favourite remedy for all kinds of ailments, which is to take the skin of a goat from an animal just killed, and apply it to the body or the injured part!

Baptism of a Pathan from over the frontier.

The Evangelistic Work was superintended by the Rev. C. H. A. Field (now at home), who reports the baptism of a Pathan from across the border, whose first contact with the Gospel was through a torn copy of St. Matthew in Pushtu finding its way to his village. The classes chiefly met with in this form of work were Khans, Mullahs, and native officers, and Mr. Field says of them :—

The Khans are generally friendly and entertain one hospitably, especially in villages at some distance, according to the well-known saying of their prophet, "Honour the guest, though he be an infidel." One Khan has attended our preaching chapel in the city several times and also been to church. He seems attracted to Christianity, and is probably held back by fear.

Fruits of Bible reading.

The second class, Mullahs, are those I have had most to do with. They and their talib-i-ilms, or students, are the most interesting class one meets. As a rule, they are brimful of bigotry, but have very good brains. They study the different branches of Mohammedan science with great assiduity. It is impossible to get into close contact with them without a certain knowledge of Arabic, as they continually quote the Koran in that language. They often listen more attentively to the Bible when read aloud in Arabic than in Pushtu. By the kindness of the Bible Society Committee in Lahore I have been able to give away several copies of Arabic Bibles and Testaments to Mullahs. Two Mullahs in the villages showed me Arabic Testaments, given them long ago, which shows they are not destroyed. One is struck in almost every case of genuine inquiry with the fact that the inquiry was started by a copy of the Scriptures falling into some one's hands, and not by anything the missionary had said or done. A Testament bought at an auction led to the purchaser becoming an inquirer in one case; and one taken up casually in a friend's house led to the same result in another.

The third class, native officers, are often met with when staying in the forts in the district. Contact with English officers has made them more open-minded than the Mullahs. At Fort Michni a havildar, uninvited, came into my room and read carefully the eighth and nineteenth chapters of St. John's Gospel in Pushtu, asking several questions. The subedar in charge of Fort Shabqadr asked for an Urdu Bible to be sent to him, which was accordingly done.

St. Paul's character defended in public by a Mullah.

Mr. Field mentions as a hopeful sign that the Mohammedans are beginning to dispute among themselves, and instances a controversy he heard of which took place between two Mullahs as to whether St. Paul was a good man or a deceiver. Mr. Field points out that most Mohammedans consider him the latter, and that it was remarkable that a Mullah in a public discussion in his own village should have the courage to defend him.

The European staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. at the Duchess of Connaught Hospital, Peshawar, consists of two fully qualified lady doctors and one trained nurse, with two assistant missionaries and one Bible-woman; two other European ladies, with a Bible-woman and eight native teachers, are engaged in visiting the zenanas. At the end of October a Pathan girl about sixteen years of age, who heard the truth in the hospital, was baptized by the Rev. I. Shah, the native pastor.

KANGRA, KOTGUR, AND SIMLA.

Kangra.

The work in the district of KANGRA, with its 11,000 square miles of mountainous country and a population of one million, was under the charge of the Rev. J. Tunbridge, who pleads in his Annual Letter for large reinforcements. He reports that during the year Church Committees were established at Kangra, Sidhpur, and Dharmsala, which undertook the upkeep and repair of all the churches, and steadily aimed at self-rule, self-support, and self-propagation. Kangra itself is a centre to which pilgrims resort from all parts of the Punjab and the North-West Provinces, but the spread of education and of the Gospel have caused a noticeable diminution in the number of pilgrims, and have led to the abandonment and decay of many of the shrines. There were signs of blessing among the boys of the Schools, and gratifying progress was made in secular subjects, evidenced by the favourable reports of the Government Inspectors, and the increased grants which were received. An English Bible-class was held on Sundays during the summer for the elder boys, and every Thursday a Gospel address was given in Urdu to both masters and scholars. One of the boys of the highest class asked one day for tracts and portions of Scripture in order that he might take them to lads in the village where he lived, and they too might in that way learn the Gospel. Mr. E. Rhodes says that the boy who continues to go to the heathen temple is considered by his companions to be quite behind the times, and Mr. Tunbridge remarks that "idolatry is at a discount" among the lads! There were from forty to fifty inmates of the Boarding-house for heathen boys from the district, and fifteen in that for Christians. The Evangelistic Work afforded much encouragement, for large crowds assembled at the open air preachings, and Scripture portions, tracts, and books were gladly received. A Mohammedan tailor was baptized, of whom Mr. Tunbridge gives the following account:—

Schools.

Baptism of a Mohammedan.

His home is some thirty miles from Kangra, and he there received education in a board school. For a time he followed in his father's steps as a faqir, but relinquished it for the more honourable calling of a darzi, and settled in Bhawan near the Mission. For four years he had been a secret inquirer. A tract was handed to him at the bazaar preaching one day, and the same night he gave himself up. Great opposition arose, and a public discussion with the Mohammedans ensued. For once the stolid indifference of Bhawan was stirred. However, the baptism passed off quietly. A good deal of persecution set in, but Fazl Ilahi (as he elected to be named) stood firm, and is a bright growing Christian. Three of our poor Christian boys have been apprenticed to him. He is winning the goodwill and esteem of Hindus and even of the Mohammedans.

Mr. Rhodes made two itinerating tours, in the course of which he visited many small towns, and distributed several hundred copies of Urdu translations of Spurgeon's sermons, as well as of other forms of Christian literature.

The Bible-classes in Dharmsala were well attended; the men met in turn in each other's houses, and the women were taught by Mrs. Sage (formerly Miss Dixie, of the C.E.Z.M.S.), the wife of the commanding officer at the station. Confirmations were held at three centres in October, and twenty candidates were presented: three of these were inmates of the Leper Asylum. The Girls' Boarding School was removed from Kangra to Dharmsala, where it was placed under the charge of Mrs. Däuble and Miss Michaelis, the latter of the Berlin Ladies' Society, but all the branch village schools were closed owing to the difficulty of obtaining Christian teachers for purely vernacular work. There were five adult baptisms during the year, including the Mohammedan already mentioned in the account of the work at Kangra. One of them was a policeman who had been three years coming to a decision. The relatives nearly succeeded in kidnapping his little boy, but the baptism which took place soon afterwards effectually destroyed any hopes which they may have entertained of preventing the man from embracing Christianity. The wife eventually threw in her lot with her husband and child, so that all were united in the faith. Immediately after the baptism, the policeman's superintendent, unsolicited, made him his own orderly, and increased his wages from his private purse, thus proving the truth of the statement, "The Lord will provide." Another of the converts was a young man who first heard the Gospel from the late Rev. C. G. Däuble in 1891; he then tried to anger the missionary, but the latter gave him a loving answer in return, and from that time the young man began to search for the truth.

Evangelistic tours.

Mrs. Däuble, who is in her thirty-first year of service in the Mission-field, made several Evangelistic Tours in the district, and was full of thankfulness for the many mercies vouchsafed to her. She writes :—

> We visited old places and could see how the Word of God had done the work everywhere, and we visited new places where no missionary had ever been. There was a hunger and thirst for God's Word which I had never noticed before. In Yuwala Mukhi, which my dear husband opened as an out-station in 1891, though there are no agents now, the work done by the former agents in all simplicity, and the Word of God which has been distributed there, and the prayer offered for the bigoted place, have not been in vain. Children and grown-up people came to my tent to be spoken to and to receive God's holy Word, as they always put it now. There are three postmasters' families in this district who are true seekers, and read the Bible.

A young Rajput declares himself a Christian.

At Mandi, the capital of the native State of that name, a young Rajput, President of the Municipal Council, was convinced of the truth, and anxious to embrace it. He told his father about the Saviour, and when a younger son was ill, after trying Hindu remedies and gods in vain, the father prayed to the Lord Jesus Christ to heal his son, and the next morning the lad was well. "Now," he said, "I know that Jesus Christ is the living God, and henceforth He shall be my God." Mr. Tunbridge adds :—

> In the Market Place every morning our evangelists had large audiences —from 150 to 200—listening in wrapt attention to the Words of Life. The superintendent wrote to me, saying that the people threw up their hands, and with tears in their eyes renounced idolatry, being broken down with the thought of their being such sinners as to render it necessary for God to send His only Son to die for them.
> A Rajah wishes to embrace the Gospel.
>
> On a subsequent visit the Rajah himself declared before all, "I will myself become a Christian—don't you people (his courtiers) become a spider's web to ensnare me." This was not to be tolerated, and Satan soon brought influence to bear, which led to the quiet expulsion of the preachers from the city.
>
> The people of Suket, another native State near, are almost as eager. God send the men and means !

Kotgur.

The Rev. H. F. T. Beutel, at KOTGUR, carried on the work of "pastor, preacher, teacher, doctor, judge, builder, repairer, farmer, gardener, accountant, correspondent," &c., but the main interest of his work lay in the itinerations which he and his native helpers made in the surrounding district. Lantern slides proved most useful in the villages, where good audiences were met with, and the work at the time of the Rampur mela resulted in some thousands hearing the Gospel, and in many of the people carrying away some tracts and Scripture portions to their homes. At the beginning of the year 1898 the native agents, headed by Jaswant Singh, who spent three months at Lahore preparing for ordination, had a remarkable experience, which is described by them as follows:—

Gospel preached by native catechists in a Rajah's court.

We received an urgent letter from the Rajah of Bisahir, asking us to come to Rampur as quickly as possible, in order to prevent the Tikka Sahib's (ruling prince) widows from committing suicide. The prince had suddenly died in consequence of a severe attack of influenza, and now his widows were in an awful state to kill themselves. We at once started for Rampur, and his Highness the Rajah received us with great delight. The following day he gave orders that all the people of the court and the residents of Rampur should assemble to listen to our message. Also the widows of the late Tikka Sahib were gathered together in a covered house close by, from where they could hear and understand what was said. So we preached God's Word to a large gathering at the Rajah's court. When finished, the Rajah said to his pujaries: "Now listen; you all cried to the great Deo Bishahur (the idol of the State), and brought him here in order to restore the Tikka Sahib from his illness, and the Deo asked for a big piece of land instead, and said that we need not trouble, but that the Tikka Sahib would be restored to health. Now you see what a great lie it was that he (or rather you) told. The Tikka Sahib has not recovered, but is now dead. I am quite sure now that the deota is nothing at all. If he cannot help the Rajah, what can he do to the parja (subject)?" In the same manner he spoke to those that had treated the Tikka Sahib during his illness, and who also had said that he would recover. He considered them all false. Only what Christian people were saying was true, and their advice should be listened to.

Christians pitiful and generous.

The evangelists also came in contact with another Rajah, by whom they had previously been kindly received, and found that he had read the Christian books which had been given to him, and showed signs of being a true inquirer. The contrast between the spirit of Christianity and of Heathenism was manifested in the case of a poor non-Christian family who lost everything they possessed through a fire. Their heathen relations and co-religionists did not move a finger to help them in their distress, but the Christians made a collection amounting to over Rs. 15, which was handed over to the father of the destitute family.

The Rev. T. R. Wade, of Amritsar, was in residence at SIMLA from May to October, 1898, and Mr. Beutel spent the four Sundays in Advent there, and conducted the services on Sundays and week-days. The congregation paid all church expenses and added Rs. 47 to their Pastorate Fund, and the salary of a catechist-in-charge was also raised by local subscriptions. The population of Simla is increasing rapidly, and it is estimated that in a few years it will be 60,000, owing to the advent of the railway.

II. KASHMIR.

DR. A. NEVE sailed for India in November, 1898; and the Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Tyndale-Biscoe in January and February, 1899, respectively.

SRINAGAR.

Srinagar.

SRINAGAR, the capital of Kashmir, has been described as a sort of dirty oriental edition of Venice. Its chief streets are canals, which receive the drainage from the overhanging houses and the refuse which is thrown from their windows, and from which consequently a terrible stench arises. The hundred thousand inhabitants are said to be in keeping with their city.

The average Kashmiri.

"Their clothes and their persons are generally filthy. Morally they have the vices of bad children added to those of adults. The unanimous testimony of travellers, missionaries, and officials represents the average Kashmiri as a despicable scoundrel, who may be bullied and oppressed with impunity, and, in his turn, will bully and oppress any who are weaker than himself. Corruption is rampant in all the grades of Government." *

The missionaries in this city throughout the year were the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Knowles and Dr. E. F. Neve; and Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Adams were there until the autumn, when they removed to Dera Ismail Khan. The rebuilding of the Hospital, which has been in progress since 1888, was continued, the old lath-and-plaster sheds being gradually replaced by substantial brick-and-mortar pavilions, one of which was opened by the Maharajah in person. Dr. E. F. Neve thus describes the nature of the work:—

Spiritual work among patients.

The day's routine runs about as follows:—8 a.m., morning visit and inspection of all the wards, seeing all in-patients, and doing all necessary surgical dressing. At 12 noon the bell rings, and all the hospital assistants and servants, some thirty in number, gather in the chapel for morning prayer, including one of the Lessons, with usually a brief exposition. After this comes the evangelistic work of the hospital, and then the medical work. The out-patients in the waiting-room and the in-patients in the wards are visited, read and talked to. Sometimes the people are so apathetic and listless that talking to them is very trying. There can be no doubt that there are heaps of patients who make no attempt to listen—are too ill, too ignorant, too lazy, too comfortable in their own belief or unbelief, too much opposed to the pure teaching of Christ, too sensual, too worldly to take the trouble to listen. Others are quite the reverse—eager hearers, loud in assent. The Parable of the Sower and different kinds of soil never fails to gain their attention; it just "hits them off," and they know it. But how very little good soil there is! mostly wayside and stony ground. The evangelistic work is undoubtedly extremely hard here, and the language difficult and cumbersome, while the people are saturated with mendacity and avarice.

During the year 1898 about 12,000 attendances of new patients were registered at the hospital, but many of these paid repeated visits, so that the daily average in the out-patient department was about thirty-seven new, and seventy old, patients. Dr. A. Neve, speaking on May 5th, 1898, at the Annual Meeting of the C.M.S. Medical Mission Auxiliary in Exeter Hall, gave some instances of the need and the power of medical work. He said:—

* See C.M. Gleaner, January, 1899.

A Tibetan makes a four months' journey to the hospital.

It is not at all unusual in our hospital to see patients who have come 400 miles in order that they may obtain our treatment. In some cases the people will even make their way over mountain passes as high as Mont Blanc itself, and face the greatest difficulties in order to get medical treatment. Let me mention one particular case. A Tibetan was afflicted with blindness, and he heard there was a surgeon down in Kashmir who could probably cure him. That man called his friends, and asked them if they could manage to take him down to the hospital. It involved a four months' journey coming and going, but they managed to bring him. It was wonderful to see that old man arrive full of certainty that he was going to have his eyesight restored. I am glad to say that it was restored, and he went back taking the Word of God in his hand.

Barbarous native remedies.

The native medical treatment is barbarous in the extreme. It resolves itself into starving the patient for five days, and, if that has not effected the patient's recovery, then they will bleed him for the next three or four. The result is more interesting to the undertaker than to the friends of the patient.

A sort of "Mohammedan Archdeacon" confesses that Christ is the Saviour.

Let me give you an instance of the way in which the work affects the people. An old man was brought to the hospital suffering from a very serious complaint, a malignant disease. He was one of the chief Mohammedans of Kashmir; he was what we might call the Archdeacon of the upper part of the valley; he was looked up to as being a spiritual guide and teacher, and was constantly visited in the hospital by the leading Mohammedans of the city. For the first few days in the hospital he was apparently not by any means inclined to listen to what we had got to say. He drew up his blanket over his head and pretended to snore; but after a day or two I noticed that the blanket was not drawn over him altogether, but he pricked up his ears, and I found him ready to converse on religious topics. I put a Kashmiri translation of the Gospel of St. John into his hands—the most suitable Gospel for Mohammedans—and that man studied it day by day, and his opposition gradually faded away. He confessed to me that what was in our Book was true, and that he knew Christ was the Saviour of the world.

The C.E.Z.M.S. lady missionaries in Kashmir are five in number, and have three assistant missionaries working with them.

III. BELUCHISTAN.

The Rev. D. C. W. Harrison was invalided to the Engadine in September, 1898; Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Eustace came home on special leave, and Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Sutton on furlough in December. Dr. J. O. Summerhayes has been appointed to Quetta. No report has been received of the work of the Station.

IV. SINDH.

Mrs. A. E. Ball came home in November, 1898, and the Rev. A. E. Ball in March, 1899. The Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Abigail left England for the Mission in November, 1898.

Sindh District Church Council.

The thirteenth Annual Meeting of the Sindh District Native Church Council was held at Karachi on October 31st. After an administration of Holy Communion and the transaction of business, papers were read on "The Qualifications of a Preacher," and other subjects. The Council Meeting was preceded by three days of special gatherings in church for all the native agents at the three Sindh stations, at which addresses were given by the Rev. H. G. Grey on the characteristic words of the first Epistle of St. John: "I know," "Light," "Truth," and "Life." The numbers attending were larger than had been expected.

KARACHI.

Karachi.

Reference was made in last year's Report to the prevalence of the plague in KARACHI at the close of 1896 and the commencement of the following year. Unfortunately it has to be recorded that the visitation was renewed in the spring of 1898 with even greater severity than before. The Rev. A. E. Ball wrote in May of that year:—

The plague more severe than ever.

The record of the past six weeks is a terrible one, over 2,000 cases, with some 1,500 deaths. Last year the highest number of cases in a day was fifty-nine, and of deaths fifty-two. This year we have gone altogether beyond this, the worst day's record being 102 cases and eighty-nine deaths. The city presents a melancholy spectacle. Nearly all the shops and houses are closed, thousands having gone away altogether, while thousands of others are living in huts on the plains surrounding Karachi. Plague-marks—a red cross enclosed in a circle—meet one at every turn. On one house I saw four, on another six. In some cases whole families have died. In others one only is left. In the Convalescent Hospital there are just now two little children, one ten days, the other a year old, who have no relatives left.

A Sanscrit mantra recommended as a charm.

In the very early days of the epidemic a bill was posted about Karachi, containing a Sanscrit mantra, with translations into Hindi, Urdu, Gujerati, and English. The English translation was as follows:—"Oh, Brahma Rupa Shakti, oh, Adya Shakti, oh, Vishno Shakti, I bow down to you. Drive away this disease from this place, appease her wrath, churn her like curd and turn her away. Oh, Rog Shakti, go to the Himalayas. Oh, sick man, suffering as you are from this disease in consequence of the actions of your past life, and involved as you are in the jaws of death, the reciting of this verse will save you, and you will live. Believe that the scourge has gone to the mountains, and you are now in the pool of nectar. The Sanscrit mantra (sacred verse) to be recited in Sanscrit, and also to be written on left-hand palm (in Sanscrit), and passed over the sick man."

Plague committee recognize services of Mrs. Ball.

Mr. and Mrs. Ball and sixty-six of the Native Christians were inoculated with Dr. Hoffkein's plague serum, and enjoyed complete immunity from the disease. Three of the Indian Christian women were engaged in hospital work, and, at the request of the Plague Committee, Mrs. Ball took charge of the Plague Convalescent Hospital. When the epidemic had almost subsided, and the hospital was closed, some Indian citizens of the town subscribed for a piece of plate to the value of Rs. 95, which was presented to Mrs. Ball, while in addition the Plague Committee recorded their high appreciation of the "unwearying care, kindness, and sympathy" which she showed. The Congregation continued to cause considerable anxiety. A young Sindhi apostatized on account of difficulties with his Hindu wife, who refused to live with him; and another young man was proved guilty of immorality and was excommunicated by the Bishop. A lack of unity and concord was also apparent, a good deal of which was caused by some members of the Temperance Society, who brought charges against others, which could not be substantiated, of having broken their pledge. The native pastor, the Rev. B. N. Ghose, whose blindness was mentioned in last year's Report, happily regained his sight through a successful cataract operation. The Bible classes for men and women respectively had an average attendance of nearly twenty, and three female candidates were confirmed by the Bishop in March, 1898. During the prevalence of the plague the numbers at the High School were greatly reduced, and in April, 1898, just before the school was closed, there were only seventy-two boys in place of 225 a month earlier. Efforts were made in various ways to win the non-Christians. Colonel Freeman, of Bombay, gave three lectures on "Personality," "The Glory of Christ," and "Oxford"; by the help of the Postal and Telegraph Christian Association copies of Friendly Greetings were sent to sixty postmasters in the district as well as to some ninety others; a catechist was appointed to work among servants and postmen; and the more ordinary methods of Evangelistic Work, such as bazaar preaching, were employed as usual. In addition, a short tour was made early in the year under review by Mr. Ball, accompanied by the Rev. and Mrs. J. Redman, of Hydrabad, with the special object of reaching a people called the Kolis, who, it is said, are quite ready to listen to the message of the Gospel, but are not willing to give up the worship of Krishna. As one result of all the forms of work which have been referred to, six adults were baptized, and there were five catechumens at the close of the year.

Congregation.

Tour among the Kolis.

Three European ladies, four assistant missionaries, two Bible-women, and twelve native teachers form the staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. in Karachi.

HYDRABAD.

The report of the work at HYDRABAD sent by the Rev. J. Redman is more encouraging than it has been for some years past. Three Punjabi brickmakers and one woman were baptized, and six other adults, working as cooks for the English troops, were under instruction in January, 1899. All of these, however, were of the low castes, and the work among the Sindhis continued unfruitful. Mr. Redman writes:—

Hydrabad.

> A revival of Hinduism also is taking place; new teachers and new sects are rising up around us. People seem ready to accept any new form of error; the worship of Krishna, too, is being greatly revived. Thus the hearts of the people are firmly closed against the message of salvation. Often one feels ready to exclaim with Isaiah, "Who hath believed our report, and to whom hath the arm of the Lord been revealed?" Still, our work is to bear witness, to testify "whether men will hear or whether they will forbear," to preach "repentance towards God and faith towards our Lord Jesus Christ." And we feel it a privilege to do so, however strong the opposition.

The Girls' School, under the charge of Mrs. Redman, had 210 names upon the roll, and the vernacular Boys' School also was well attended, but the numbers at the High School were smaller than for eighteen years past. More than 4,000 Christian books were sold at the shop rented in the bazaar, or during the itinerations which were made in the district.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Hydrabad consists of four European ladies, two assistant missionaries, and one Bible-woman.

SUKKUR.

No report has been received from the Rev. A. E. Redman, who is stationed at SUKKUR. The C.E.Z.M.S. has three lady missionaries, two assistant missionaries, and two native teachers labouring at Sukkur and Shikarpur.

WESTERN INDIA MISSION.

For fifty years after Bombay became a British possession the English had neither church nor chaplain in the city, and it was not till a century later still that any effort was made for the evangelization of its inhabitants. The first Protestant missionaries, agents of the American Board of Foreign Missions, arrived in 1813. It was in 1820 that the C.M.S. work was inaugurated in Bombay by the Rev. Richard Kenney. The operations of the Society there have been very limited, but in 1832 the work was extended to Nasik; Junir was occupied in 1843; Malegâm, 1848; Aurungabad, 1860; and Poona, 1882. Special efforts are made to reach the Mohammedans and Parsis. The first Bishop of Bombay, Dr. Carr, was consecrated in 1835. His successors have been: Bishops Harding (1851), Douglas (1869), Mylne (1876), MacArthur (1898).

Bishop McArthur

THE appointment of the Rev. James McArthur to the Diocese of Bombay was mentioned in last year's Annual Report. His consecration took place at Westminster Abbey on September 29th. In the course of an interview which he had with the Committee of the C.M.S. before he sailed for India, he remarked that he had been a very sympathetic observer of the operations of the Society; that he had felt an increasing admiration of its enthusiasm and devotion; and that he hoped his attitude towards its missionaries in Bombay would be one of "governance with geniality." The Bishop, who has accepted the office of Vice-President of the Society, presided at two of the C.M.S. Second Jubilee meetings: the one held at Ealing in October, and the other in Bombay the following month.

Death of the Rev. H. T. Jacob,

The Mission suffered a great loss by the death, on September 15th, of the Rev. H. T. Jacob, B.A. London University, who, after a course of training at Islington College, was added to the staff of missionaries in 1895. He was the son of Colonel Jacob, his mother being a daughter of the Rev. J. Abbott, of the American Marathi Mission. He was stationed at Khed, a village of 4,000 inhabitants, twenty-six miles north of Poona, and was engaged in the Itinerancy. The Rev. L. B. Butcher sent an account of his death and an expression of appreciation of his character, from which the subjoined is extracted:—

> Every one speaks of his beautiful patience and cheerfulness, and on the Sunday before he died he tried to sing two or three hymns, the last being, "Work, for the night is coming." Truly he himself had done this; I have known few more earnest in taking every opportunity to try and win souls for Christ. The end was very peaceful; he had no pain, but sent messages to various dear ones as strength would allow, and his last words were, "I'm going now, good-bye." A moment or two afterwards those by his bedside just caught the word "milestone," as if he meant the last milestone was passed. From living alone with him at Khed, and itinerating alone with him last cold season, I was privileged as few others to see the closeness of his walk with God and the depths of his inner life. Prayer was the secret of all, for I do not remember his ever going to any engagement—whether to preaching in a village or to a game of cricket with our Khed boys—without first shutting himself up in his room for a few moments of prayer. Hence no wonder that a Poona missionary, not C.M.S., who knew him well, wrote to say that his life was just made up of Holiness, Happiness, Heartiness, and Humbleness. Certainly, I have known few whose lives were more consistently pure and holy, or who were so invariably cheerful and happy. The respect and love felt for him were evidenced in the number of those who attended his funeral the next morning, missionaries from nearly every Society in Poona being present, besides civilians and others.

and of Rev. A. Cornelius.

The Rev. A. Cornelius, pastor in charge of the Nasik congregation, was called to his heavenly rest on May 30th, 1898. Andrew Cornelius was educated in the cantonment school of Aurungabad, his father being a subordinate officer in the Hyderabad Contingent. He worked for some time as a clerk, filling up his spare time in voluntary evangelistic work, but, finding his liberty of preaching the Gospel fettered, he sacrificed his prospects and joined the C.M.S. in 1876. He worked zealously at Aurungabad for nearly twelve years, and then at Nasik, Buldana, Dhulia, Poona, and Bombay. He studied at the Divinity School under the Rev. R. A. Squires. His ordination was delayed in consequence of severe illness, but after his recovery he was ordained deacon in 1896.

There were no reinforcements for this Mission during the year; on the contrary, it has been called upon to surrender the Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Peel for the benefit of East Africa, he having been appointed Bishop of Mombasa. The staff has, however, gained a new member by the marriage of the Rev. L. B. Butcher, on September 27th, to Miss Ethel May Jacob, sister of the late Rev. H. T. Jacob, whose death has been mentioned above. For two years she was a missionary of the C.E.Z.M.S. in the Punjab. The Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Peel and Mrs. L. B. Butcher (invalided), came home in March, 1899. The Rev. C. W. Thorne and Mrs. W. A. Roberts sailed from England for Bombay in October.

Ordinations.

On November 13th, at Hyderabad, Deccan, Bishop Morley, acting for the Bishop of Madras, admitted to the order of deacons Mr. Sumant Umap, an agent of the Native Church Council working at Aurungabad under the Rev. Ruttonji Nowroji.

The following are the members of the Bombay Corresponding Committee:—the Bishop of Bombay, Sir Andrew Wingate, Col. Freeman, Mr. H. E. E. Proctor, Mr. P. B. Savile, and the Rev. W. A. Roberts (Secretary).

BOMBAY.

Bombay.

Every branch of missionary work in Bombay was more or less affected in 1898 by the plague. The visitation, it is true, was not so severe as during the preceding year, and such vast numbers of the surplus population of the country were attracted to the city that shortly after the epidemic few visible traces of it remained excepting the marks on the houses; but at the same time the people were generally unsettled, and it was practically impossible to carry on the work as under normal conditions. The C.M.S. Girls' Schools, under Miss F. Harris, of the Z.B.M. Mission, suffered considerably from this cause in the early part of the year under review. The vernacular day-school had 140 on the roll in December, and the Anglo-vernacular school about twenty; and there were on the average thirty-five girls in the boarding school. One of the boarding school girls was baptized. Three of the students of the Robert Money School were carried off by plague, and although Mr. J. Jackson tried to induce the lads to be inoculated, only about a dozen of them availed themselves of that precautionary measure. The report of the Government Inspector was the best that the school has had since Mr. Jackson became connected with it, and five students were sent up for the Matriculation Examination, but it is not stated with what results. Instruction in the truths of Christianity was systematically given, and visits by the Rev. P. Ireland Jones and by Mr. Herklots, of the Children's Special Service Mission, were highly appreciated. The meetings of the general branch of the Children's Scripture Union in Bombay, which had a membership of 150, were conducted by Mr. G. H. Hodgson, who also held a class for some Indian Christian young men on Sunday mornings.

Robert Money School.

The Girgaum Church was under the charge of the Rev. W. G. Peel, the Secretary of the Mission, until his departure in February, 1899, the Rev. L. B. Butcher assisting him towards the close of the year. A new hall, which will seat 300 people, was opened in the church compound in January, 1899. Some years ago a legacy of Rs. 15,000 was left by a member of the congregation, to be dealt with by his executor, the Rev. H. C. Squires, in such a way as to benefit the Indian Christian congregation in connexion with the C.M.S., and this sum, which had been largely increased by the accruing interest, was utilized for building the hall. On February 21st, Mr. Peel, Bishop-Designate of Mombasa, was presented with an address, purse, and silver casket, by his congregation. The address dwelt upon the sympathy and devotion which he had displayed, the growth of the Mission under his fostering care, and the gentle influence of Mrs. Peel. The Bishop-elect was also the recipient of addresses and presents from his brother missionaries in Western India, from the Marathi congregation, the Parsi Christian Association, and the Z.B.M. Mission Girls' High School.

The Rev. D. L. Joshi, the pastor of the Marathi Congregation, again refers to the difficulty experienced by the Christians in obtaining suitable work, which was mentioned in last year's Annual Report. The carpenter's shop which was opened had to be closed, but the other industries met with more or less success. Another problem which presses for solution is that concerning the housing of the Native Christians, who in many cases live in the midst of surroundings which are in every way injurious. The chief developments of the work in 1898 were the opening of a boarding school for boys and the extension of the voluntary preaching by Indian Christians. Mr. Joshi writes concerning the latter:—

United evangelistic efforts.

It was thought that, in a city like Bombay, instead of making isolated efforts, it was most desirable to concentrate the energies of Christians of all denominations on this great common object. The Indian Christian Association, which has become by this time a recognized institution, has commenced evangelistic work on a systematic basis. Five departments of work have been opened, each under a superintendent—viz., street-preaching, hall-work, apologetic literature, hospital visiting, and tract distribution. Our people are taking a hearty part in this larger movement. Magic-lantern and singing have been helpful in drawing large audiences. Four languages have been made use of. I believe the time has come when Indian Christians are beginning to feel their special responsibility for making the Gospel known to their own countrymen.

The Marathi Evangelistic Work was under the Rev. W. H. Dixon. He reports that on Sunday, November 27th, a young Brahman, who had been carefully instructed by Mr. F. Anderson, the energetic Y.M.C.A. Missionary in Bombay, and who made a decided and hearty profession of faith, was baptized and admitted into the Marathi congregation. Considerable encouragement was vouchsafed in connexion with the work of the Servants' Mission. A large proportion of the Bombay servants come from the district of Surat, in the Guzerat country. Although of low caste, these men are, generally speaking, honest and intelligent, and Mr. Dixon says of them:—

A Brahman convert.

Suratis baptized.

They have many opportunities of improving themselves in domestic service, and when conversing with one of this class in English about his travels in China and Japan, I could not help thinking how wonderfully he had been raised in the scale of humanity by contact with Europeans. The influence of their masters must necessarily be great, and where the Sahibs are true Christians, the result is quickly seen in the less prejudiced and more open-minded attitude of the servants. The Guzerati catechist, Mr. Bhikaji, has long carried on a faithful work among them, visiting as many bungalows as he is able in the mornings, and reading and talking with the servants. As a result of these efforts six men and lads came forward for baptism in July last, and after baptism were attached to the Marathi congregation. At the same time an informal service in Guzerati was started for their benefit at the Money School on Sunday afternoons, which is regularly attended by from twelve to twenty Christians and inquirers of the servant class. Some of them show an earnest missionary spirit, and are endeavouring to lead others to Christ. The Suratis do not always adopt domestic service. Of those recently baptized, two are servants; one who has received a High School education is employed as clerk in the railway—two others are learning the fitters' trade, and one is still a boy living at home.

At the beginning of November Mr. Dixon paid a visit to Bulsar, a small town south of Surat, which is the centre of the villages from which most of the Suratis come. He made the acquaintance of many young men who were friendly and well-disposed, although not definite inquirers. One of these was a most diligent student of the Bible, and showed a true appreciation of it; and another said plainly that he wished to become a Christian, but was kept back by family circumstances.

The Parsi Christian Association continued steadily on its course, and the monthly prayer meetings were well attended. Colonel T. A. Freeman had some interesting conversations when visiting the people in their own homes, but the Parsis showed that even if they were convinced of the truth of Christianity, they had not the courage which would enable them to avow the fact by baptism.

Mohammedan Work.

The Rev. T. Davis initiated two new movements during the year in connexion with the Mohammedan Work. Early in January, 1898, he commenced a regular course of magic-lantern services in the suburbs of the city, and was agreeably surprised to meet with no opposition, but rather a respectful hearing; indeed, in one case a Mohammedan even requested him to visit his village which was a few miles off. On another occasion Mr. Davis unconsciously began the service outside a Hindu temple, and in the middle of the address the temple bells commenced to ring. This was rather distracting to the audience, some of whom went to the temple and requested the priests to stop the bells—a request which was not, however, complied with. Shortly after the lantern work ceased, some Christians living at a distance asked that cottage meetings might be conducted for their benefit. They were accordingly held in the homes of the people in turn, the host for the evening providing tea and native biscuits. Six adults were baptized, one of whom was a young educated Arabic-speaking Jew, who was attracted to Christianity by his fellow-workers, and especially by the Christian example of his own overseer. Mr. Dixon also received into the Church a Punjabi Qazi, who had been baptized many years before in Amritsar but had relapsed into Mohammedanism; he was under instruction for two years, and is spoken of as leading "a steadfast and faithful life."

Second Jubilee celebration.

"A most happy Second Jubilee celebration, characterized by much heartiness and liberality," was held in Bombay in November. The Bishop (as already mentioned) presided at the meeting, and expressed his sympathy with the work of the Society. The Bishop also presided at the distribution of prizes to the pupils of the Girls' High School, which is in connexion with the Z.B.M. Mission. That Society has a staff of eleven lady missionaries, nine assistant missionaries, twelve native teachers, and seven Bible-women working in Bombay.

NASIK.

On the Rev. A. Manwaring leaving for furlough in the spring of 1898, the Rev. W. A. Roberts took charge of the work at Nasik. NASIK. The various Schools in the district had an aggregate of 150 scholars. They lost through death the senior Brahman Pundit, who for twenty-five years had proved a willing and efficient teacher. In the Normal Class teachers are trained for the vernacular Mission-schools in the Bombay Presidency; four were sent forth during the year, and fourteen others were in training. In December Bishop MacArthur paid a visit to Nasik and confirmed forty-seven candidates. On the death of the native pastor, the Rev. A. Cornelius, which has been already mentioned, the care of the Native Christians at Sharanpur devolved upon Mr. Roberts; the majority of the adult population are in one way or another connected with the Mission, and with few exceptions their lives and conduct were satisfactory. The famine greatly increased the numbers in the Sharanpur Orphanages, and 114 children were in these institutions. Some efforts were made to instruct the inmates of the boys' orphanage in technical work, in order that they might on leaving be able to earn their own livelihood. There was no ordained pastor in the Igatpuri pastorate, but the contributions of the members showed an increase over those of the previous year. The Evangelistic Work was superintended by the Rev. E. J. Jones, the Chairman of the Native Church Council, who had catechists and Bible-women under him, and was assisted in addition by a band of voluntary preachers. In the rains a daily class was held for the Bible-women, a special grant of Rs. 2 per month being made to two of them to compensate for the extra expense caused by their living away from home. One woman, however, returned the money, saying that she and her husband were only too grateful for the opportunity which had been afforded her of increasing her knowledge of Divine truth. The colporteur was placed at the Nasik railway station, and was able to effect sales of portions of the Scriptures to many who were passing through by train as well as to the pilgrims visiting the town.

Orphanages.

The staff of the Z.B.M. Mission at Nasik consisted of two European ladies, one Parsi assistant, thirteen native teachers, and two Bible-women.

POONA AND JUNIR.

Poona Divinity School.

At the commencement of the year all the seven students of the Divinity School at POONA, under the Rev. R. S. Heywood, left to resume work at the various stations from which they were originally drawn, and it was not until June that the school was re-opened with eight new students, six of whom were in the junior catechists' class, and two in that for senior readers. The men gave assistance with the preaching in the bazaar, and it was impressed upon them that the acquiring of mere head-knowledge was not the main object which they should have in view. It was while the Rev. H. T. Jacob was in temporary charge of the Divinity School, during the absence of Mr. Heywood at Kodaikanal, that his death occurred.

Congregations.

The Rev. G. Yesudian, the pastor of the Tamil Congregation, which consists chiefly of servants, reports the formation of a Pastorate Committee. He was encouraged by the increase in the contributions of his people to the Pastorate Fund, for although small, they were yet three times as much as those of former years. Boxes were given to those who could not subscribe regularly. One of these was held by a poor woman who was accustomed to go about selling bottles of oil; whenever she set forth she put something into her box, which at the quarterly openings was usually found full of copper coins. The Marathi Congregation, the strength of which (including the Christians at Khed) was 150, had the Rev. D. K. Shindé as their pastor. He refers with satisfaction to the accomplishment of a desire long entertained by the formation of a voluntary band of preachers, and states that "the idea that only missionaries or catechists should work for souls is gradually dying out, and individual members of the Church are beginning to feel that they are equally responsible for the salvation of their fellow-countrymen."

Women converts.

Three of the four adult baptisms were fruits of the work of the Z.B.M. Mission, the staff of which in Poona is composed of Mrs. F. Sorabji and three Associated Workers, two assistants, nine assistant teachers in the High School, twelve vernacular school teachers, and three Bible-women. The two women baptized were sisters, both over sixty years of age. One of them, named Laxmi, was formerly matron of a hospital in Poona, and enriched herself with bribes; while her sister, who lived with her, and had more leisure, performed the religious rites for both, and even went on pilgrimages to various shrines in the hope that thus expiation might be made for the sins of the matron. Eventually they felt the inadequacy of their prayers, and Laxmi, too old for her former post, came to the Z.B.M. Mission ladies as ayah. Everything she learned from them she passed on to her sister, and, after considerable hesitation and delay, both of them asked for baptism. When they were being examined by the C.M.S. pastor, he happened to say: "You are both old, and almost useless; what can you do for God? Perhaps He will not receive you." To which they replied: "He has given salvation to others; will He deny it to us? When children press round a mother's knee does she drive any of them away? You are trying to put hindrances in our way, but we know God will have us."

The Rev. W. C. Whiteside took charge of the Evangelistic Work on the removal of the Rev. W. A. Roberts to Nasik, in March, 1898. Before his departure, Mr. Roberts, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Heywood, itinerated along the valley of the Bhima, and found the people densely ignorant, but very willing to listen.

Expectation of the end of the world.

There was a widespread belief that the end of the world would come on January 29th, 1898, and the missionaries entering on that day the market in a country town, discovered it to be almost deserted, the people being engaged in purifying the village street by means of sacred water, in the hope that thus the great disaster might be averted. Mr. Whiteside succeeded in securing a suitable preaching-room in the cantonment, and discussions were held there twice a week. The Mohammedans predominate in that quarter of the town, and the Rev. T. Davis, of Bombay, was invited to hold a series of meetings with the object of reaching them. After the first two discussions the hall was so crammed that it became necessary to remove the large windows, and even then, with people crowding outside, numbers had to go away. There was a complete absence of bitterness at the meetings; only one person was allowed to speak at a time; and the most pronounced Christian utterances were listened to with respectful attention.

Discussions with Mohammedans.

Junir.

JUNIR, which is fifty-six miles from Poona, also received a visit from Mr. Davis. Public discussions were held daily. At first some of the few educated Mohammedans came, and were most friendly, but later on they ceased to attend, and then the more ignorant people took their place. Mr. Davis relates a touching incident which occurred during his visit:—

A missionary's memory venerated.

In one corner of the large C.M.S. compound there is a small cemetery, surrounded by a well-built wall, outside which are many beautiful trees. In it are the graves of several Native Christians of former generations, and also a solitary grave and tombstone of a European lady missionary. I was speaking one day to an old maulvie about the iron railing of the grave having been stolen, and it seems he went home and told his wife. Next day he came to the bungalow and requested me to take him to the cemetery. We went there together, and to my surprise the old man showed the greatest marks of respect for his friend who had died thirty years previously. He reverently took off his shoes as if he were entering a mosque, and going to the tombstone he leaned on it and wept bitterly, repeating the words, "She showed great kindness to me!" He was also much annoyed at the theft of the railing, and had received orders from his wife to replace it at their own cost. I found out afterwards that this missionary's wife had nursed the old maulvie's wife through a serious illness, and had succeeded in restoring her to health when the doctors had given her up. She was only thirty years of age when she died, and had been asleep thirty years. Surely "she being dead yet speaketh."

Prior to his transference to Poona, Mr. Whiteside resided at Junir, and itinerated in that and the Khed districts. The people appeared to be hardened and careless, but there were a few bright incidents which indicated that perhaps the indifference was not so great as it appeared. Thus Mr. Whiteside writes:—

"All our religion is gone."

A kunbi (agriculturist) one day remarked after our preaching, "All our religion is gone, nought now remains but to accept Jesus Christ." May he prove a true witness! On another occasion, seeing the listlessness with which the people listened, I felt constrained to say, "Even hearing the name of Jesus appears to grieve you." One old man replied: "Nay, not so; His name is sweet to us; go on telling us of Him."

Work in the Poona-Khed district was also carried on by the Rev. L. B. Butcher, who, in company with the late Rev. H. T. Jacob, spent most of the time from November, 1897, to April, 1898, in travelling about the country. The nature of this form of evangelistic effort, and the disadvantages which arise from the fewness of the workers, are well described by Mr. Butcher, who writes:—

We would be up before daybreak, so as to have a light breakfast and start from our tents on our ponies as soon as we could see our path, for unless we arrived at the village where we meant to preach before or about sunrise, the men would all have gone out into the fields, and we should have lost our audience. Our agents generally preceded us, and collected the people in front of a village shrine, or the village resthouse, ready for the preaching when we arrived. Very often, after singing a hymn, one of the agents would speak first, and then Mr. Jacob would follow, and answer any objections that might be raised. Such objections would be reiterated in village after village, e.g. "How can Christianity be good when it allows you to take life for food?" "Jesus may be a good Saviour for you, but we have our own saviours; let us each keep to our own," &c., &c. And in the hour at our disposal, the teaching given would have to be both destructive and constructive: destructive in demolishing their faith in their own gods and means of salvation, constructive in putting Jesus Christ before them as the one means of access to God, by whose atoning death salvation is already purchased for them as well as for us. But again and again when the sun was getting hot, and the time had come to leave them, we felt as if it was almost hopeless, in the limits of the time at our disposal, to leave an adequate conception of the Message in their minds. An hour's preaching, and then a whole year to elapse before they would be visited again! Was it any wonder that when we tried to find out if they remembered anything of Mr. Roberts's preaching the year before, they should answer: "How should we remember? The sahib came, and his tents were over there, but we are not clever—how can we remember what he said?"

"How should we remember?"

In December the Rev. W. H. Dixon was transferred from Bombay to take up the work of the Itinerancy.

The work at KHED suffered not only through the death of the Rev. H. T. Jacob, but also through that of Mr. Warth, the head-master of the school, who fell a victim to the plague. He was trained in the C.M.S. Orphanage at Nasik, and served as school-master at several of the Society's stations. Another master was attacked by the same disease, but he happily recovered.

MALEGÂM.

MALEGÂM was nearly deserted in consequence of the plague, until the early part of April, 1898, and though the population then began to return, it was in diminished numbers. Altogether about four hundred people were attacked, of whom two hundred and sixty died, but the Rev. F. G. Macartney records with thankfulness that the Christian community entirely escaped the ravages of the pestilence. It was mentioned in last year's Report that the famine relief had resulted in a large number of applicants for baptism coming forward; only a few of them were accepted by Mr. Macartney, but with some catechumens they formed a little colony of Christians, consisting of fifty-two men, women and children, at a place called Sowkerwadi, fourteen miles from Malegâm. Another result of the famine relief work was the opening during the year of two new schools, one of which is situated in a village it had long been wished to occupy. Already, when Mr. Macartney wrote his Annual Letter, prejudices had been softened and the way prepared for the preacher to follow. The Schools in the district numbered fifteen, most of them elementary, and the total grant received from the Government was greater than in 1897. The schoolmasters carried off three of the six prizes (including the first two) given by the Bombay Corresponding Committee for proficiency in Scripture to the Christian schoolmasters in the Western India Mission. In December all the agents were invited to come to headquarters for a week of special meetings. Formerly their expenses were paid, but it was felt that, as the Heathen gladly go to festivals at their own cost, the Christians ought to be able to gather for social intercourse and religious exercises without any help from the Mission. It was gratifying to find that notwithstanding the new arrangement a large number assembled, including several from the out-stations. The native pastor, the Rev. L. M. Joshi, did not find his pastoral duties very heavy, and was therefore able to take a considerable part in the Evangelistic Work. Regular services were held in the main streets of the town, but the meetings in the preaching-hall were perhaps more satisfactory than those in the open air. It used to be customary to speak from the verandah, while the audience stood in the road below; but in 1898 Mr. Macartney tried a new plan, which answered well, of inviting the people to come into the preaching-hall. On nearly every occasion the room was crowded, and the interest well sustained. Unfortunately the Hindus held aloof, but the Mohammedans "came in readily, put their bazaar purchases under the benches, made themselves comfortable with cigarettes, and listened attentively to what was said."

A new little Christian colony.

Special meetings for agents.

In the Report for the year 1896-97 mention was made of a maulvie from North India who was put forward at the preaching place as the champion of Mohammedanism. This man, Abdul Khalif by name, was one of the few prominent adherents of the Moslem faith in India who submitted to the claims of Christ during the year under review, and his story, as told by Mr. Macartney, is so deeply interesting that it must be quoted at length. Mr. Macartney writing in January, 1899, said:—

He was trained for his work by a well-known maulvie at Delhi, where he studied for twelve years. Even then his mind was in a state of unrest, and he could not find in the Koran a divinely appointed way of salvation. His teacher told him that God was merciful; that by almsgiving, fasting, prayer, &c., he would obtain eternal life. Abdul listened to Christian preachers as opportunity offered, and had interviews with some Padris. A Bible was given him, which he began to study. His teacher forbade him to read the Word of God, and taunted him with wishing to become a Christian. At that time he seems to have been "almost persuaded," but he stifled his convictions and twice went on pilgrimage to Mecca. One day, when travelling in a train, he was taken ill, and a missionary attended to him. The two conversed with each other, and the maulvie was led to search the Scriptures again. Former doubts and anxieties were re-awakened; he travelled about from place to place, hoping that by zealous work his impressions of Christian truth would fade away from his mind. Malegâm was one of the towns he regularly visited. Here he became the leader of the Mohammedan community. In 1897, when he saw what we were doing for the famine-stricken people in the city, he bitterly opposed us; tried to persuade the Mussulmans not to take the grain and clothing we provided for them; and commanded the children not to attend the Mission-school. He organized famine relief for his co-religionists, with the object of preventing them from coming into contact with Christians. Every Friday he started opposition preaching in front of the large mosque, which is only a few yards from our preaching-hall. He always had a good crowd before him when he stood on the steps of the Jama-i-Masjid to preach. He came into the hall for discussion sometimes, and we even found that he was familiar with the Bible, as he quoted chapter and verse for some of his statements. Last year, during the hot season, he visited Basim, in Berar, where some of his followers reside. There, too, he showed his hostility to Christianity. But he came into contact with the workers of the Methodist Episcopal Mission. As the outcome of discussions with them he asked the Mohammedans there to show him from the Koran "the way of salvation for sinners." Failing to do so, to their astonishment he announced his intention of becoming a Christian. He gave a dinner to the leading Christians and Mussulmans at Basim; after the meal was over further discussion took place, and Abdul Khalif declared that he was convinced that salvation was to be obtained through Christ alone, and asked Mr. Moore to baptize him at once. His wish was soon after complied with, and the Mohammedans tried to poison him; for this some of them were prosecuted and punished. Much to my surprise, I received a letter from the maulvie announcing his conversion, and saying that he would take an early opportunity of visiting me at Malegâm, for the double purpose of asking pardon of the Christians for all the trouble and pain he had given them, and also of publicly announcing to the Mohammedans here his change of faith. The preaching-hall was filled to its utmost capacity when he appeared there; we had to close the doors or we should have been mobbed. He prayed most earnestly and pathetically, and then gave a very stirring address for about an hour, showing how he had been led to take the position of a disciple of the Lord Jesus. The voluble Mohammedans were for once completely put to silence; and a very solemn meeting came to an end.

A former Mohammedan champion baptized.

Attempts to poison him.

The Itinerating Work in the district was vigorously prosecuted. Two native evangelists made preaching tours in the direction of Aurungabad; three were at work along the main road from Malegâm to Dhulia, the capital of Khandesh; three others accompanied Mr. Macartney on a visit to Central Khandesh; and later in the year a tour was made to Songir, Thalner, and other places. The Khandesh district is of great extent, covering an area of 10,337 square miles, and containing a large population, of whom 1,337,000 are Hindus, and 90,000

Mohammedans, but it was hoped that before the close of the itinerating season all the Talukas in Khandesh would be visited with the exception of those on the eastern side, which are worked by other Societies. The British and Foreign Bible Society has appointed a colporteur for the Khandesh district, and two Bible-women for Dhulia. The total number of adults baptized was above the average. Eight were baptized in Dhulia in March, 1898, and several in Malegâm the following month; altogether thirty-one adults and twenty-eight children were added to the roll of membership.

The staff of the Z.B.M. Mission consists of Miss M. Clark, three Associated Workers, four school teachers, and three Bible-women.

AURUNGABAD.

Aurungabad. No striking event distinguished the year at AURUNGABAD, where the Rev. Ruttonji Nowroji is stationed. The new Boarding-school buildings, opened in January, 1898, were occupied by orphans and children of destitute parents; and the Day-schools, the one for heathen boys and the other for the children of Christian parents, continued their work. Thirty-two adults were baptized, making the number of Christians in the district 1,630. The preaching to the Heathen was carried on without much interruption; and such disputants as appeared were quietly answered. One of them, a Mohammedan of middle age, asked for a Bible, and it is hoped that through his diligent reading of it the truth may reach his heart, although his object in studying the Book is rather to find fault than to derive profit. Several of the Mahars applied for baptism, and placed themselves under instruction; they were, however, held back because of a doubt whether they would associate with the Mang Christians, whom they regard with contempt, in spite of the fact that they themselves are looked upon by the higher classes as equally low and degraded.

SOUTH INDIA MISSION.

The Tamil country south of Madras was the scene of the S.P.C.K.'s Missions in the last century. But the first two clergymen of the Church of England who went to India as missionaries were sent to Madras by the Church Missionary Society in 1814. The East India Act of 1833 made provision for a new bishopric of Madras, and Daniel Corrie was consecrated in 1835. His successors have been Bishops Spencer (1837), Dealtry (1849), Gell (1861), Whitehead (1899). Work was commenced at Ootacamund, on the Nilgiri Hills, in 1870.

The Telugu Mission was begun in 1841 by two of the most devoted men on the roll of missionaries, Robert Noble and Henry Watson Fox. Noble started the famous English school at Masulipatam, now known by his name, worked it for twenty-four years, and died at his post in 1865. Many Brahmans trained in it have embraced the Gospel, and it has sent forth several native clergymen to labour among their countrymen. Fox was a preaching missionary, and set the example of those itinerating and rural missionary efforts which have resulted in the foundation of an increasing Telugu Native Church, chiefly drawn from the Malas and other low-caste or out-caste people. Ellore was occupied in 1854; Bezwada, 1858; Raghavapuram, 1872; and Khammamett, 1888. A Mission among the Kois, a non-Aryan tribe on the Upper Godávari, was founded by General Haig in 1860.

In 1820 the Rev. J. Hough, Chaplain at Palamcotta, drew the attention of the Society to the claims of Tinnevelly, where there was already a community of 3,000 professed Native Christians, an offshoot from the S.P.C.K.'s Lutheran Mission in Tanjore. Two missionaries were at once set apart for this work, and from that time to this, through the labours of Rhenius, Pettitt, Thomas, J. T. Tucker, Hobbs, Sargent, and others, the Gospel has not ceased to spread among the Tamil population, chiefly among the Shanars, or cultivators of the palmyra tree. In North Tinnevelly a vigorous Itinerant Mission was established by Ragland, D. Fenn, and Meadows. Dr. Sargent and Dr. Caldwell were consecrated in 1877 as Assistant Bishops to the Bishop of Madras for the Native Churches. The former died in 1889 and the latter in 1891. Dr. Morley was consecrated in 1896, his jurisdiction consensual (extending) over Tinnevelly and Madura.

Retirement of Bishop Gell.

Dr. Gell, the Bishop of Madras, retired from his arduous post in February, 1899, after thirty-seven years of active service in India. He was a contemporary of Henry Watson Fox at Rugby, and on the death of the latter in 1848, Mr. Gell, then Fellow of Christ College, Cambridge, wrote to the headmaster of the school, Dr. Tait, suggesting that a fund in memory of his old friend should be opened, which should be applied to the promotion of Christian education in India. The Rugby-Fox Memorial Fund was accordingly instituted, and Mr. Gell was secretary of it for thirteen years, until his consecration in 1861. He has since manifested in a variety of ways his sympathy with the work of the Church Missionary Society. The following extract from a well-known native journal, the Hindu, expresses the high reputation which Dr. Gell obtained among non-Christians:—

Respect entertained by Hindus for Bishop Gell.

> We are not Christians; and we cannot pretend to be in any sense enthusiastic about the results of the propagation of the Christian Gospel. But a pious man is a pious man, whether he be a Christian or a Hindu. Practical religion—religion as concretized in thought, feeling, and conduct—is unsectional, above and beyond all forms and dogmas, and universal. And as true Hindus we are tolerant, nay, large-hearted enough to recognize in Dr. Gell a saintly personage—in the presence of whom all sectarian strife is stilled, and the thought of petty outward differences is not.

From the day he landed here he has been the same, shedding a benign influence all round, offending none, irritating none, and taking sides with no one, and yet witnessing unto the beauty of his faith more effectively than all the militant missionaries about. Orthodox Hindus who have come in contact with him bear witness to his worth as eloquently as the most enthusiastic of his followers. And no Christian would look for a better reward for his religious labours in this land. Christian progress here is not to be measured by the increasing number of converts, but by the growth of appreciation for Christian character. And we are as sorry to bid him good-bye as any Christian could be. In sooth, as the new Metropolitan of India said the other day in Bombay, he has held a unique position in the Indian episcopate, as much by reason of his saintly catholicity as by his learning and devotion and length of service.

Death of the Rev. W. P. Schaffter,

One of Dr. Gell's first acts as Bishop in 1861 was to ordain the Rev. William Pascal Schaffter, who died at Selby on September 7th, 1898. Mr. Schaffter served in Tinnevelly for five years, 1854–59, as a layman in educational work, and then, after going through Islington College, as an ordained man for seventeen years. His last year of service abroad was spent in the Tamil Coolie Mission, Ceylon. He was the brother of the Rev. H. J. Schaffter, the Principal of Tinnevelly College, and son of the Rev. P. P. Schaffter, who sailed for South India in 1827, and who joined Rhenius in seceding from the C.M.S. in 1835, but three years later resumed connexion, and remained at his work with only one break for furlough until his death in 1861. Mr. W. P. Schaffter, since his retirement in 1880, has successively held the livings of Maryport, in Cumberland, and of St. James', Selby.

of Mrs. Darling,

Mrs. Darling, wife of the Rev. T. Y. Darling, vicar of Compton-Abbas, Dorset, who laboured in the Telugu Mission with her husband for some twenty-five years, died on August 11th, 1898.

of Mrs. Vickers,

Earlier in the year another former member of the Mission was called to her rest in the person of Mrs. Mary Anne Vickers, widow of the Rev. W. H. Vickers, who was a missionary of the Society in Travancore from 1855 to 1860. Mrs. Vickers returned to India in 1871, after her husband's death, and for twenty-two years laboured faithfully at school and zenana work in Madras.

and of Mr. W. H. Wise.

The death of Mr. W. H. Wise, which occurred in May, 1898, was referred to in a footnote (page 281) in last year's Report. He first sailed for the Tinnevelly Mission in 1892, and acted as lay missionary and accountant. He was ill only a few days, and passed away on May 10th, 1898. Mrs. Wise returned to England in the following month.

Reinforcements.

The Revs. Frederick Bright Maule, and Ernest Scudamore Tanner have been added to the staff of the Mission. Both of them were students at Islington College, and were ordained by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, June 5th, 1898, the former being "Gospeller." Mr. Tanner sailed for India on October 21st, and Mr. Maule followed at the beginning of November.

Madras Diocesan Conference.

The Madras Diocesan Conference was held on March 18th, 1898, at the Satthianádhan Memorial Hall, Madras, under the presidency of Bishop Gell. The subject discussed was the "Priesthood of the Laity," which was introduced by a paper by the Rev. E. Sell, in which he made the practical suggestion that the Bishop should institute an order of Lay Readers in the diocese. Among the appointed speakers was Professor S. Satthianádhan. In the course of his speech he quoted Bishop Tucker's statement that "if our Native Churches are to be developed on healthy lines, there must be a larger and freer use of the ministry of laymen." In summing up the discussion, the Bishop thought the great practical outcome of the addresses should be to stir the clergy present, and those at out-stations, to see whether they could not encourage lay work.

A Government grant towards Y.M.C.A. building in Madras

Official recognition of Christian Work in India is not always forthcoming, but it is pleasing to observe that a substantial endorsement of the work of the Young Men's Christian Association of Madras has been given by the Government of Madras, which has sanctioned a grant of Rs. 24,973 towards the new Association building. The grant has been given in recognition of the good work which has been carried on by the educational department of the Association.

The Madras Corresponding Committee consists of Bishop Gell, Archdeacon Elwes, the Revs. A. A. Williams and W. Scott, Mr. A. W. B. Higgens, Mr. W. R. Arbuthnot, Mr. W. B. De Winton, and the Rev. E. Sell (Secretary).

I. MADRAS AND THE NILGIRIS.

The Rev. W. D. Clarke came to England on the invitation of the Committee in March, 1899.

MADRAS.

Madras Divinity School.

Two of the students of the Divinity School, Madras, went up for the Oxford and Cambridge Preliminary Examination for Holy Orders, which took place in October, 1897, and both passed in the second class. One of them, Mr. J. Gnanamuthu, became head-master of the Ellore High School, and the other, Mr. P. M. Aaron, was appointed to work in the Bezwada Itinerancy. During the sixteen years that the Rev. H. D. Goldsmith has been Principal of the Divinity School, not one candidate has failed of those sent up for the Oxford and Cambridge Theological Examination. At the commencement of the current year there were nine students on the roll. One of them carried off the first prize in the Bishop's Greek Testament Examination, in competition with the S.P.G. Theological College, Madras. The students took part in evangelistic preaching in the open air, and in the work of the various Day- and Sunday-schools. Mr. K. Adam, who entered the school in July, 1897, was ordained on October 23rd.

Harris High School.

The native masters and pupils of the Harris High School for Mohammedans presented the Parent Committee with a silver paper-weight on the occasion of the Centenary. It consists of what is heraldically called a mound or orb—a cross surmounting a globe—fixed upon a pedestal. An inscription on the globe contains the Arabic version of the text, "Glory to God in the Highest." No report of the work at the School has been received. Bazaar Preaching was carried on by the Rev. Dhan Singh and others. Some excitement was aroused by the words of Ignatius Elias, a Christian faqir, who came with warm letters of introduction from Burmah, and joined the C.M.S. agents for a few days. The workers were accompanied by a Mohammedan youth belonging to the Lubbay class, an inquirer, who on one occasion was carried off by his co-religionists, but he returned the next day to the band of preachers, and was baptized in April, 1898. He afterwards rendered great assistance to Mr. Dhan Singh in the preparation of tracts in Arab-Tamil, the dialect used by his class of Mohammedans.

A Moslem of Lubbay class baptized.

Work among educated Hindus.

Work among the Educated Hindus in Madras was carried on by the Rev. S. John by means of discussions with young men in clubs and literary societies, visiting the houses of the Hindus in order to get into conversation with them on religious subjects, and holding meetings at which special addresses were delivered. A patient hearing was usually given; but although the people appreciated the moral precepts contained in the Bible, and had no objection to practising some of the lessons which our Lord taught, nevertheless they would not allow themselves to be known as Christians.

Pastorates.

The Rev. J. Satthianádhan is in charge of the Northern Pastorate in connexion with the Madras Church Council. In the two congregations under his care, those at Black Town and Tinnevelly Settlement, there are about 668 members, including children, of whom 353 are communicants. A number of gatherings were held with the object of deepening the spiritual life of the people, the most popular being the Cottage Prayer Meetings, at which thankofferings were made to the amount of Rs. 16. A monthly prayer-meeting was also conducted in connexion with the Gleaners' Union, and several of the members commenced to engage in active Christian work. The Archdeacon of Madras, the Ven. W. W. Elwes, presided on the occasion of the fifth ingathering service, which took place in September. The sale of the articles which were contributed realized Rs. 210. The children are not forgotten either as helpers in the missionary cause or in efforts for their own spiritual good. Two Juvenile Missionary Associations, the one for boys and the other for girls, are carried on, and some special gatherings for the young, on which God's blessing manifestly rested, were held by Mr. B. Herklots, B.A., of the Children's Special Service Mission. Satisfactory reports were received of the Sunday-schools, and of the four primary schools, which had the names of 164 boys and fifty-three girls on the rolls. Nine adults were baptized. One, a young man, was impressed by the words, "The wages of sin is death"; another, a woman, by the text, "Be sure your sin will find you out"; while a third was brought under conviction of sin by hearing about the final day of judgment.

The number of baptized Christians in the Southern Pastorate was nearly the same as in 1897, but the Rev. W. D. Clarke reports with thankfulness that he observed a deepening of the spiritual life of his people, which he attributes largely to the Day of Special Prayer for India, to a series of meetings conducted by the Rev. Handley Bird, of Coimbatore, for nearly a week in February, 1898, and to another series of gatherings in connexion with the Tamil Christian Congress. Mr. Clarke mentions a special Three Years' Enterprise effort, which may be productive of great results. He writes:—

Prayer for increased faithfulness.

In connexion with our week-day services an important prayer-meeting is being held in the Satthianádhan Memorial Hall on the last Wednesday of every month. The object of this prayer-meeting is to invite subjects of prayer from the members of the Southern Pastorate, and bring them for prayer before the congregation. Our people seem to like this idea very much. A few months ago a member suggested an important subject, asking the congregation to make it a matter of faith and to plead with God in prayer in their public and private devotion. The subject was that, as a thankoffering from this congregation for the approaching C.M.S. Centenary, the congregation should pray that God may raise from among its members one hundred thoroughly consecrated souls. This idea, unique as it is, was evidently taken from that consecrated Indian Christian lady, Pundita Rama Bai, who has lately made a vow that she would ask God with faith to raise one hundred thousand Indian consecrated women for the evangelization of India. I am thankful to inform you that this idea has received the warmest support. Reference is made to it constantly from the pulpit and in all our prayer-meetings, and I have not the slightest doubt that many men and women in the congregation are asking God with faith to touch their hearts and fill them with the Holy Spirit. . . .

You may like to know whether we have seen any answer to this prayer. Thank God, two souls have already come forward, and the remaining ninety-eight are on their way to come. A young man, who is nearly twenty-eight years of age, and who is a graduate of the Madras University and employed in one of the important Government offices in Madras and has a very bright prospect before him, has lately felt a call, and he has thoroughly consecrated himself for God's service. He does not want to spend any more of his time in serving his worldly master, and he has approached the C.M.S. Corresponding Committee to accept him as a candidate for the Lord's work. He is even prepared to go to Wynaad.

Work of Preachers' Association.

Evangelistic work was carried on by the Preachers' Association of the Pastorate, which is a purely voluntary movement, started in 1887 by the late Rev. W. T. Satthianádhan with the view of raising a band of independent Christian workers from among the lay members of the Pastorate. When the work was begun it was arranged that the members should be grouped in two bands, one of which was to work in and around Chintadrepettah, and the other in and around John Pereira's. Once a month the two bands carry on a united preaching in an important centre of Madras. On June 1st, 1898, a preaching tour was undertaken by a band of twenty-nine men, who took as their centre the "Red Hills," a village about eleven miles to the north-west of Madras. The routine of the work was much the same as has been described in previous Annual Reports:—

The programme of a day's work.

The members rose as early as four in the morning, had their private devotions and got ready for their daily duties, met together at 5 a.m. for an hour's Bible-reading and prayer, took a cup of warm coffee, and then went out in five groups in different directions visiting as many villages as were on their way, and returning to their camp at noon or at 1 p.m. They then had a simple mid-day meal, rested for an hour or two, met again for an hour's prayer-meeting, to speak about and pray for their work in villages, and started again in the evening to visit villages that were not reached in the morning. Moonlight preaching was conducted every night with the help of torch-lights. The day's proceedings closed with a short prayer-meeting at 9 p.m., and the night meal was taken at 9.30 or 10 p.m. And when the preachers went to their well-earned rest, it was, as a rule, never before 11 p.m.

Thirty-eight villages were visited during the tour in question. The twelve adults who were baptized in the Pastorate during the year represented several different forms of missionary effort, for besides a Mohammedan from South Tinnevelly, there was a girl eighteen years of age whose conversion is traced to the Scripture instruction in one of the schools, a Hindu who was impressed at an open-air preaching, and a husband and wife who were influenced by Miss Oxley, of the C.E.Z.M.S. The High School, five mixed schools for poor children, and four Hindu girls' schools, the last-named being under the management of Mrs. Clarke, continue to discharge their useful functions.

The Mount Pastorate is under the Rev. D. A. Peter, who was also in temporary charge during the year of the Poonamalee Pastorate, which has a resident deacon, the Rev. J. Gnanapragasam. Ingathering services were held for the first time both at Poonamalee and in the surrounding villages. In the latter the poor ryots contributed their sheep, fowls, eggs, different kinds of grain and pulse, fruits and vegetables, bundles of firewood and broomsticks, &c., and even the children went into the adjoining forest, and brought thence roots and fruits into the sanctuary with much emulation and joy. Mr. Gnanapragasam speaks of the spiritual tone of the congregations as having improved.

Scripture teaching was regularly given in the schools, which earned larger Government grants than in 1897.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has three lady missionaries, nine assistant missionaries, fifteen Bible-women, and fifty-two native teachers engaged in Hindu and Mohammedan work in Madras.

Hyderabad.

On the return of the Rev. M. G. Goldsmith on furlough, the work at Hyderabad, in the Nizam's Dominions, was carried on by the Rev. T. H. Fitzpatrick, who was lent by the Society for the purpose to the Madras Diocesan Mission. An interesting feature of the year was the ordination on November 13th, of Hafiz Malcolm Jan by Bishop Morley, of Tinnevelly, acting for the Bishop of Madras. The newly ordained deacon belongs to a good family in the North-West Provinces. His father spared no pains to make him a hafiz—that is, one who has in the proper way committed the whole Koran to memory. Malcolm Jan succeeded in doing this when only ten years old, and was made to act as prayer-leader before a large assembly of Mohammedans, after being examined as to his proficiency. When he grew up Malcolm Jan was employed in Hyderabad, and often led the prayers in the musjid (mosque) there. How he first became attracted by Christianity has not been mentioned, but in 1891 he wrote to the then chaplain of the Hyderabad Residency. The chaplain referred him to the Rev. M. G. Goldsmith. He applied to Mr. Goldsmith in January, 1892, who suggested that he should come and live with him and judge for himself. In the following March Mr. Goldsmith held a discussion in the office of an Urdu newspaper with a Delhi moulvie, who pretended that he had defeated the well-known Rev. G. A. Lefroy, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission, in argument. Malcolm Jan was at the meeting, and, much to Mr. Goldsmith's surprise, although the feeling of the meeting seemed to go against Christianity, got up and avowed himself a Christian. He was baptized soon afterwards, and later on took his course at the Allahabad Divinity School—a course which includes English, Greek, and Hebrew. After his ordination he returned to Hyderabad, where he is known as a former Moslem prayer-leader.

Ordination of a former leading Mohammedan.

NILGIRI AND WYNAAD TAMIL MISSION.

The Rev. A. H. Lash was in charge of the work during the last nine months of the year under review, and was able not only to appoint two new catechists, but also to provide the necessary staff for two Lower Secondary Schools and to establish two new schools. The total number of baptized Christians was 1,112. Thirty-two candidates were confirmed by the Bishop of Madras in April, 1898, and at the close of the year there were eighty-eight catechumens. The native pastor, the Rev. G. Swamiadian, reports that the members of the Congregation at OOTACAMUND were diligent in their attendance at the means of grace, 400 being present at the service in the morning of Christmas Day. A Young Men's Christian Association was commenced, and open-air preachings were regularly held. Mr. Swamiadian visited Coonoor six times, and baptized a woman, formerly a Hindu, who was influenced by her husband to embrace Christianity.

Wynaad. Mr. Lash spent three months in the Wynaad, which is a hilly country lying between the Nilgiri range of mountains on the east, and the plains near Calicut on the west, and has an area of over 1,000 square miles. He examined the various schools in the district, and paid a visit for the first time to a Kurumbur village, where he was accorded a hearty reception. Four children were baptized at Gudalur, and at Manantoddy a young Brahman schoolmaster and his wife were admitted into the visible Church of Christ. The following accounts of these latter converts, taken from Mr. Lash's journals, show how much the Natives have to endure if they desire openly to confess their faith in the Saviour :—

Opposition to the baptism of a Brahman convert.

Oct. 15*th.*—Rama Krishna, and his wife and child, came in to see me by night. The town is in a great state of excitement, as the news of their impending baptism has got wind. At nine o'clock to-night two policemen called on me, with a Brahman, who professed to be Mrs. Rama Krishna's uncle, and who handed me a paper forbidding me to baptize his niece. I found on cross-examination and inquiry that he was no relation, and therefore handed him back the paper and told him to mind his own business. I gave the two policemen a severe talking to for trying to intimidate me, and threatened to report them.

Oct. 16*th*, Sunday.—Early this morning a man came bringing me a letter, signed by both Rama Krishna and his wife, asking me to baptize them at once. The chief constable had tried overnight to induce me to promise not to baptize the wife, on the plea that she is a minor. I found this was false. After an early breakfast I drove down to the house where the Brahman converts are staying. The streets were full of people, and policemen were on guard to prevent their entering the compound. My wife and I went into the house, and saw Mrs. Rama Krishna, and her sweet little girl. I found her agitated, but quite firm. I examined her in the fundamentals of our blessed Faith. She answered well and with intelligence. After prayer with them we started for church. A large congregation had assembled, and by the time I commenced the service many were standing in the church, and many people who could not get in were looking through the doors and windows. There was a silence as I read the Baptismal service in Tamil. Rama Krishna had chosen the names Abraham and Sarah for himself and his wife, and Mary for the little girl. Sarah, who is much attached to her parents, is greatly in dread of her father's coming, and told us that she had begged her husband not to let him see her if he came, for she cannot resist his tears.

Oct. 24*th.*—Sarah's father came to-day. He met his son-in-law, and asked to see his daughter. Abraham consented, and called Sarah to see her father ; then, fearing that an attempt would be made by the Brahmans who had accompanied the father to carry off his child, he ran to find her, and brought her into the house. When he came back to the place where he had left his wife and her father, they had gone. He did not follow at once, being afraid of making a scene in the street, and in the meantime the old man hurried his daughter to the house of the Tahsildar, who is a Brahman, and from there carried her off to a Brahman village near. After much consultation we decided that Abraham should wait until his father-in-law and wife left for their village, and then that he, with some of the agents, should follow, and when the Brahmans, who would be sure to escort the fugitives for some miles, had left, they should appear and try to induce the wife to return to her husband and child, and at the same time pacify and comfort the father. The plan was followed out exactly. Sarah and her father were overtaken when some twenty miles on their way, and induced to return to a place of shelter. Shortly afterwards I received a letter signed by both Abraham and Sarah, in which they wrote:—"We are now very happy: my wife does not wish to leave me, and requests me to hurry back to Manantoddy. Please make arrangements for our protection, &c."

Mr. Lash concludes the story:—

A striking proof of sincerity.

The old father was much altered before he left. He had prayer with the little company who had followed him, and before leaving said, "Let me go, or I, too, shall become a Christian." His son-in-law and the catechist accompanied him for some distance, and before they parted he said, "Pray with me," so the catechist and Abraham both prayed, kneeling in the road, and then sent the old man on his way much comforted. The converts were sent to Palamcotta, where they were kindly welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Kember, and some of the Native Christians. I ought to mention that Sarah took off the jewels she was wearing, which had been given her by her mother, and handed them to her father, the old man. This was a striking proof of her sincerity, for a Hindu woman loves her jewels dearly."

The C.E.Z.M.S. has five lady missionaries, one assistant missionary, one matron, seven Bible-women, and seventeen native teachers at work at Ootacamund and Coonoor. A Malayalam girl who had been under instruction in the Zenana Boarding House for about a year was baptized in May, 1898.

II. TELUGU MISSION.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. W. A. Clarke came home on furlough in March, 1899. Mrs. J. B. Panes sailed for the Mission in October, 1898, and the Rev. J. Harrison in January, 1899.

MASULIPATAM.

Noble College, Masulipatam.

The staff of the Noble College, Masulipatam, had cause for thankfulness regarding the results of the Peter Cator Examination in Bible and Christian Evidence, which is open to all the colleges and schools in the Madras Presidency. The first three prizes of the senior section fell to students of the College, the first prize being gained by a Christian, while the second and third prizes were carried off by Hindus and Brahmans. Three other students obtained certificates. The boy who gained the second prize knew nothing of the Bible when he first entered the College two years before the examination in question. Ten of the students belonged to the Christian Evidence Class, conducted by the Rev. W. C. Penn, and studied together a little American book called The Plan of Salvation. Mr. G. S. Eddy, of the S.V.M.U., who in November married Miss Maud Arden, second daughter of the late Rev. A. H. Arden, of this Mission, and whose successful Special Mission at the College in the spring of 1898, was described in last year's Report (page 271), paid a second visit in the autumn, and for three weeks taught the students during the first hour after the opening of the school, which is always devoted to Bible instruction. He spoke on St. Luke's Gospel, and Mr. Penn writes:—

He began in much weakness, for he was attacked with malarial fever soon after his arrival, but that did not seem to detract from the power with which he was enabled to portray the divine character of the Son of Man. Clearly and simply he gave a running exposition of St. Luke's account of the Universal Saviour. I may say I have never heard the salient points in the life of our Lord put so ably and so convincingly, and I am sure that the Holy Spirit witnessed in many a heart to the Truth.

The Rev. E. G. Roberts says that to himself personally the Mission was one of the greatest blessings of his life, and that he is convinced it will result in conversions in the near future. Mr. Eddy also gave a couple of public lectures on "The Cross of Christ," which, however, were not so well attended as previous lectures, because discussion was not invited. The reason for this departure from the usual practice was that it had been found that the discussions were not profitable, and only detracted from the force of the lecture by reason of the frivolous side-issues which were introduced. Signs were not lacking that the persistent preaching of the Gospel in various ways was making an impression, and one Brahman student said that his conscience told him that the Gospel was true, but that because of his caste and his family he felt bound to argue against it. Mr. Penn adds:—

A student may commit the greatest crimes, and little notice is taken of it by his friends; but if there is the least whisper that he is going to become a Christian, immediately all his co-religionists are up in arms, and an outcry is raised against the missionaries for leading the youth of the country astray.

Mr. Roberts also, who suffered much during the year through ill-health, refers to the obstacles in the way of any Native embracing Christianity, and lays special stress upon the statement of well-informed Native Christians, that Brahmoism has over and over again been the hindrance which prevented young students from becoming converts. He says:—

Brahmoism an insidious enemy of the Gospel.

Some able and excellent men have, I know, regarded Brahmoism almost with favour, believing that it is an intermediate stage from which men may come on to Christ. But no! emphatically no! I would not minimize the good that is in Brahmoism, still less would I say a word against the excellent men who were and are its apostles. But there is more hope of the orthodox Hindu than of the Brahmo. Of the latter we must say, "So far he will go, but no further." Let us see what some of its attractions are. It presents to those who have outgrown Hinduism a grander and truer ideal of God.

So far, so good. But it has attractions which are false as well as some that are true. Man is not compelled to acknowledge his exceeding sinfulness and his absolute need of a Saviour. To quote from a Brahmo tract, "This is not a world of sin and suffering as the orthodox Christians teach." "Simple repentance is quite sufficient for pardon. There is no need of any Redeemer or Saviour." Man's sinful spiritual pride is not wounded by such flattering teachings as these; and the national pride of the Indian is gratified by the thought that this religion is his own religion, the religion, as he thinks, which was that of those early forefathers whom he endows with so many mythical virtues. His intellectual pride is pleased with the utterly erroneous idea that the Theism which he professes is more in accordance with modern thought than Christianity. He fondly imagines that the destructive spirit which assails the Gospels will leave his own institutions unattacked. Then to become a Brahmo needs no sacrifice. The Hindu may call himself a Brahmo without severing himself from his orthodox countrymen. He will denounce caste, but he will not break it. He can run with the hare and hold with the hounds. He will express the greatest admiration for the character of Christ, and also for that of Krishna, the latter being altered to suit modern ideas. Brahmoism, then, appeals to the love of compromise and to national, intellectual, and spiritual pride. You will readily perceive that some of the very elements which secure for it a transient success must conduce to its ultimate decay, and that sooner or later it must share the fate of all merely theistic religions, but undoubtedly at the present time it is a powerful and insidious enemy to the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Branch Schools.

The numbers at the six Branch Schools connected with the College grew steadily during the year, though some difficulty was caused by the prejudices of the people. In one instance kindergarten lessons in the lower classes had to be abandoned because some parents objected to their sons going through action songs, which they associated with the dancing-girl caste, and therefore regarded as degrading. Another difficulty consisted in the lack of efficient vernacular Bible teachers. The Rev. H. J. Tanner was in temporary charge of the Preparandi Institution, which with the Practising School had some 120 boys. The Normal Class students numbered thirty-two, four of whom were Lower Secondary students. A new departure was made by admitting non-Christians (chiefly Sudras, though there were a few Brahmans) as day scholars, and Mr. Tanner calls attention to the significant fact that men of the higher classes, and even Brahmans, were willing to come and learn in a school which consisted mainly of the Pancharna class, and which used to be known as "the Pariah School," especially when there was a Government Training School near at hand where no religious instruction is given. One death occurred during the year, that of a boy who was seized with cholera on his way to the school, and arrived only to die The incident, however, served to reveal the courage of two of the Christian lads. When the boy was in the hospital, every one was so frightened that none of the ordinary assistants could be induced to attend to him, and even his father refused to be with him. In this emergency the two Christian lads, who were in no way related to the sick boy, went and slept with him, and literally did all the nursing, even to the washing and laying out of the body after death! With this exception the health of the boys was remarkably good, a fact which Mr. Tanner attributes in part to the regular and vigorous exercise which they took. Cricket and football were popular, and also a game of their own something like "prisoner's base," while in the Inter-collegiate Sports Competition the boys won several prizes. Progress was made in the building of the Central Boarding School, the foundation-stone of which was laid by the Governor of Madras.

Sharkey Memorial School.

The Sharkey Memorial School, under Mrs. Eales, had sixty-two boarders. The results of the Government Examinations were good. Eleven old Normal pupils were presented for their practical test, and ten passed, nine of them in the first class. Ten Normal pupils went up for the written examination in Method, and nine passed; and twenty-one out of the twenty-eight girls who entered for the C.M.S. Scripture Examination were successful. A favourable report was received from the Inspectress of Schools, who said: "Efficiency was generally good. Dress was neat. Manners, discipline, and tone were very good."

Pastorates.

In the absence of the Rev. A. E. Goodman on furlough, the Rev. H. W. Eales was Chairman of the Masulipatam Church Council, which has seven Pastorates in connexion with it. The Rev. M. Devanandam, of the Masulipatam Pastorate, was the only Native Christian of the Telugu Mission deputed to attend the Quinquennial Conference at Allahabad. A Mission was conducted among the Christians in October by Mr. G. S. Eddy, and was productive of much good. The advance in the contributions for religious objects, which was recorded in last year's Report, was maintained during the year under review, and the collections on the occasion of the Harvest Festival were larger by nearly Rs. 100 than those of 1897. Mr. Eales writes:—

Offertory at a Harvest Festival.

> The offertory was the most extraordinary I have ever seen. Mr. Tanner kindly went outside, and received an antelope, two sheep, ducks, fowls, and other things which could not be brought inside the church, while Mr. Penn and I received at the Communion rails the money offerings and gifts in kind, such as a handsome silver plate, pots of flowers and ferns, fruit, vegetables, garments, lace, sweetmeats, rice in the husk, pictures, soap, toys, and fancy articles of all conceivable sorts. Immediately after the service all these things were sold either by auction or on tables at fixed prices by the ladies. There was another service at 3 p.m., with similar offerings. All was disposed of in the church schoolroom by nightfall.

The Rev. A. E. Goodman visited Tummalapalli, where the Rev. M. David is pastor, in March, 1898, and found that the heathen inhabitants were in great dismay owing to an outbreak of cholera. He gives a sad account of the action which they took in order to get rid of the visitation:—

> The Heathen were making a sumbram to the goddess Gungumma, to appease her anger. Near the caste quarters were erected three little sheds with a pandal before them. In one of the sheds were six small idols. The low-caste and non-caste Heathen formed a procession and marched through and round the village night and day for a week; the higher caste Heathen took no part whatever, and did no act of worship. They paid others to do it for them. It was their custom to do this, they said. All the offerings to the idols were presented by the gollas (shepherds). In the band were Malas, barbers, and Madigas. They drummed, shouted, danced, and played their horrible instruments night and day with the greatest vigour, and called upon their gods with yells of fury. Six golla women, with dishevelled hair, were dancing and shouting like maniacs. Idolatries in time of a cholera outbreak.

At Vennanapudi, the next village, the Heathen had collected money and bought three large pots of kullu—native beer. One pot of this I saw being poured out as an offering before the village stone god on the bank of the tank; the other two pots of kullu were to be consumed by the men. A good excuse for a drunken carousal. What an idea of worship in a time of distress!

Mr. Goodman also went to a village called Turkulabad, which had recently been formed by seven families of Christians, consisting of twenty-four persons, and other non-Christian families. With the exception of one or two, all the non-Christians enrolled themselves as inquirers. At another village, Gollapollam, some converts baptized in 1897 were standing firm in spite of great persecution.

The work of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Masulipatam is on an extensive scale, the staff consisting of six lady missionaries, four assistant missionaries, thirteen Bible-women, and forty-two native teachers. A woman was baptized in October, after a probation of two years.

BEZWADA.

The Rev. J. Stone superintends the work in the BEZWADA district, in which there are three Pastorates. The work in the twenty-two villages which compose the Bezwada Pastorate was carried on by one evangelist, five schoolmasters, and two schoolmistresses, under the Rev. G. H. Asirvatham, who was transferred at the close of the year to Ellore. A weekly prayer-meeting was held on Thursdays, which was transformed into a missionary meeting once a month, when the agents of the district met in Bezwada for instruction and Christian fellowship. Some of the converts took part in evangelistic work during the festival of Sivarathri, and thirty-five adults were baptized. The Rev. K. Naganna, of the Bolapad Pastorate, reports that the twenty-four congregations under his superintendence contain about 931 members, including both baptized Christians and catechumens. Some of the former are described as very earnest, and as setting good examples. A church was built at Indupally as a Centenary effort, and the converts, notwithstanding their poverty, readily paid their T.Y.E. subscriptions. At Manikonda, five miles from Bolapad, five families were admitted into the Church by baptism. The Tiruvoor Pastorate, under Bezwada. Pastorates. A Centenary effort.

the Rev. B. Daniel, was sub-divided during the year, ten of the congregations being placed under the care of a sub-catechist, while thirty-five villages, with about 950 baptized Christians and catechumens, were left to Mr. Daniel. The Christians experienced some difficulty in attending the services on Sundays, owing to the oppressive treatment which they received at the hands of the zemindars and the village officials of the Nizam, in whose territory part of the Pastorate lies. Mr. Daniel describes them as being practically slaves to the authorities mentioned, and says:—

Hard treatment of Christians by employers.

> They are very meanly, and hardly treated. The coolies are engaged by force to do work. The wages they get are hardly sufficient for their daily food. If they ask for more pay they are threatened to be turned out of their villages. The petty cultivators are over-burdened with heavy and unjust taxes.

Four adults were baptized during the year under review, and there were one or two hopeful inquirers.

Itinerating Band.

The Itinerating Band, consisting of the Rev. R. W. Peachey and five native agents, visited most of the large towns and villages of the C.M.S. Telugu Mission districts. As usual, they met with varied receptions. At some places when a hymn was sung a few people would stop and listen for a moment or two with an amused or cynical expression upon their faces, and then would pass on; at others, there would be an attentive audience of some forty people, who would wait for two or three hours while the message of salvation was preached; but on the whole there was general friendliness, a lack of opposition, and an absence of controversy which spoke of progress. Mr. Peachey mentions two encouraging incidents:—

General friendliness.

"Why don't you answer them?"

> Among our audience one day in a village was a man of the goldsmith caste, who, distressed that his beliefs seemed to be slipping away from him, turned to a Brahman sitting by, and, calling him his guru (i.e. priest and teacher), appealed to him, saying, "These people come here again and again, and say it is all confusion and contradiction in our shastras, and that it is impossible to believe any of them. What have you to say? Why don't you answer them, and explain all these things?"
> In another village, where we had almost always met with bitter opposition, this year a number of Brahmans and Sudras came after us a long way to ask for some books, that they might read more about what we had said.

At the same time there were many hindrances. The difficulty experienced by the Hindus in grasping the simple truths of Christianity, and their dense superstition; the ignorance of the people, who were ready to believe the wildest rumours about the plague and inoculation; and the power of old associations—all these things stood in the way of their accepting salvation through Christ.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has two lady missionaries, four Bible-women, and four native teachers working at Bezwada.

ELLORE.

The Rev. F. W. N. Alexander was encouraged by the work in the ELLORE district, for he says that never in his days has the Gospel been so ably and so widely preached, and never were both caste people and Panchamas so open to receive instruction. The statistics of the year showed that decided advance had been made, for there were 3,745 adherents and 3,063 baptized Christians, an increase of 682 on the former, and 435 on the latter count. But, unhappily, caste feeling, so far from diminishing, appeared to grow with the advance of Christianity, and Mr. Alexander writes:— Ellore.

We have had the oldest and best congregation in the whole district refuse to receive a trained Christian master of Chuckler origin simply on caste grounds, though the master's house is far from the village, and does not touch their own in any way. Christians refuse to receive him because he was born a Chuckler, a lower caste than their own, and when pressed to do so they threatened secession to Rome if this master was forced upon them. As a counterblast, the nearest Chuckler congregation has withdrawn from divine services with Christians of Pariah origin, and threaten to secede altogether if not provided with a master of their own. There is not the slightest trace of a fusion as regards marriage or social intercourse between Christians of the two castes. The Holy Communion is a united service. No scruple appears as yet to trouble us in the love feast, but in all other respects the future outlook is gloomy as regards Christian unity and love. Caste feeling among Christians.

The Rev. G. Krishnayya was in charge of the Ellore Pastorate, where the average attendance at the Sunday Services was over 100, and there were forty communicants. He expresses great thankfulness for the accession to the Church of some Panchamas, a people who in this district had previously held aloof from Christianity. Eight new villages were occupied and six places had their teachers restored, but these gains were counterbalanced to some extent by the abandonment of three villages in consequence of caste persecution. The educational work prospered. Ellore agents carried off the first prizes in the upper and lower Bishop's Bible Prize Examination, and the headmistress of the boarding-school gained the first place in the evangelist grade. Some of the schoolmasters, however, were not altogether satisfactory, and several had to be dismissed in the course of the year. The Chintalapudi Pastorate is superintended by the Rev. K. Ephraim, who has 258 baptized Christians and forty catechumens under his care.

The Rev. W. J. Williamson was appointed manager of the Ellore High School when Mr. M. Browne left on furlough, and a Native Christian graduate, Mr. J. Gnanamuttu, became acting headmaster. The year 1898 began with 178 boys in the High School, and ninety-three in the Preparatory School, and by the end of August these numbers had risen to 202 and 131 respectively. Twenty of these were Christians and ninety-four Mohammedans. In the Peter Cator Lower Grade Examination High School.

fifteen of the lads obtained certificates of merit, of whom two were placed in the first class, and in the Matriculation Examination nine out of the twenty sent up were successful. Mr. Krishnayya, who continued to help with the Scripture teaching, says that in the High School the pupils appeared to enjoy the time allotted to Bible study as much as their instructors, and that in the Preparatory School the lads would sometimes cry out, "I will believe in Jesus," "I do believe in Jesus."

Bible study enjoyed.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Ellore consists of three European ladies, one assistant missionary, six Bible-women, and twenty-six native teachers. They experienced great difficulty in obtaining suitable premises for their work.

RAGHAVAPURAM AND KHAMMAMETT.

Raghavapuram.

RHAGAVAPURAM was without a European missionary during the year, but the Rev. M. K. Ramiar was in charge of the Pastorate, which contained nearly 600 baptized Christians, scattered about in eighteen different villages. The schools in the district numbered only five, but efforts were made to increase the number. There were a few inquirers in the Jaggiapett Pastorate under the Rev. A. Sabbarayudu, but they hesitated to confess Christ in baptism lest they should be excommunicated by their people, and so lose their means of gaining a livelihood. In some of the villages there were serious disputes between the Mala and Madiga Christians.

Khammamett.

In the KHAMMAMETT district the year was one of "rich blessing," in spite of some disappointments, caused by inquirers returning to their idols. More than 150 candidates attended the confirmation classes; in seventy-one different villages there were converts and catechumens; and evangelistic work was carried on in over 100 others. The number of baptisms was in excess of that of previous years, 142 souls being added to the visible Church, and there was a corresponding increase in the number of those under instruction. At Chinna Mandava, a village adjoining that in which a convert from Mohammedanism resides, ten adults and ten children were baptized, and the Christians at last succeeded in obtaining a site for a good schoolhouse, and permission to build from the Nizam's authorities. In another village seventeen became Christians, while at a new out-station, Ramachandrapuram by name, the first-fruits were gathered in. The Rev. J. B. Panes, who is in charge of the district, gives the following account of the work in this place:—

Answers by a candidate for baptism.

The evangelist has eight villages within a circle of five miles, in which he preaches regularly, and has to take prayers and give Christian teaching in three every Sunday. There is a second teacher in a similar group of villages working in union with this evangelist. Twice in the last six months there have been baptisms here. Altogether eighteen adults and twelve children have received this Holy Sacrament. The following answers of one of the candidates to questions put to him will give some idea of the instruction they have received. After repeating from memory the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, the Ten Commandments, the General Confession, and some Scripture texts, when further questioned on the way of salvation, he said, "I learn these things for the good of my soul. I need eternal life; I receive eternal life when I believe on God; I receive it because Jesus Christ offered Himself as a sacrifice for my sins. Jesus is the Son of God. The Holy Ghost is the Spirit of God. He makes the heart good; He gives us good sense and teaches us righteousness and wisdom. He teaches us what things we ought to do. He now helps us day by day not to sin as we used to do."

In October, Mr. Panes made a long journey to the east into the midst of thick jungle, to a village where some inquirers were baptized, who had bravely endured severe testing from opposition and persecution. While there he was pressed to go eight miles further to a small hamlet, where he found four persons well instructed and manifestly taught of God. He says:—

A consistent Christian blacksmith.

The chief man was a blacksmith; he does work for the farmers of that and some neighbouring villages. For some months previous he had been instructed by our evangelist, and was able to read the Bible for himself. He received the truth with an honest and good heart, and soon it was made clear to all that it influenced his daily life. He declined to do any work on Sundays, even in the busy time of seed-sowing. At first the heathen farmers were very angry to find he would not repair their ploughs, &c., on Sundays as well as other days, and he lost considerably. But when they found him consistent, and as obliging and respectful as ever, they became friendly again, and gave him their work as usual. It was a treat to hear his confession of faith in Christ. He and the others, including his wife, a widow and her son, are very happy Christians, and will, I trust, prove a means of great blessing to all around them. Eight of their neighbours have lately become catechumens. Thus a nucleus for a living, growing Church is gathered out in this distant jungle village.

In some of the places which were visited a large number of inquirers were found, and requests came in from several villages that teachers might be sent to them. Mrs. Panes, who rejoined her husband towards the end of the year, was able to make a long tour in the Khammamett district, and to exercise a much-needed influence upon the women.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has one lady missionary, one assistant missionary, and two Bible-women at work in the district.

DUMMAGUDEM.

Dummagudem.

The Mission at DUMMAGUDEM was originally commenced in order to evangelize the Kois, a southern branch of the Gonds, one of the aboriginal tribes of India, and at one time it appeared as though they would flock into the Christian Church; but tribal influence was too strong, and the admission of the Malas into the Church proved as great a stumbling-block to the Kois as the admission of Gentile converts did to the Jews. The Rev. J. Cain, now in his thirtieth year of service, lays stress in his annual report upon the great isolation of the Mission, which lies 120 miles from both Rajahmundry, the headquarters of the Danish Lutheran Mission, and from the C.M.S. station at Ellore, while Khammamett is rather more than 100 miles distant. Very few visitors are seen, with the exception of European officials. The Bishop of Madras went to Dummagudem in 1877 and 1895, and the Madras Secretary in 1875 and 1888, and the visit of the Rev. H. E. Fox at the end of 1887 is always remembered as an epoch in the history of the district. And not only is the Mission isolated, but the population is scattered, and the difficulty of watching over the Native Christians, of whom there were 538 in November, 1898, is proportionately increased. Travelling is frequently no easy matter, especially in the rains; and Mr. Cain mentions one occasion on which the river rose suddenly, and he was obliged to anchor the boat for five days, so that altogether it took him a week to travel thirty miles! Witness to the value of the work done by the Boarding Schools for boys was borne by a man who was not a Christian. Pointing to two young workers who had been trained in them, he said, "Ah, if all Christians were like these two we would soon become Christians!" Unhappily some of the converts fail to walk worthy of their vocation. Many applicants for baptism were under instruction, but it was thought specially advisable to subject them to a long period of testing, because the desire to be baptized sprang up during the famine, when they received temporal assistance from the missionaries. Early in 1898 a new congregation was formed in a village seventy miles to the south of Dummagudem, and on the way to Ellore. Describing the commencement of the work there Mr. Cain writes :—

Why the Kois have not accepted the Gospel.

District isolated and people scattered.

How new congregations spring up.

> The Malas of the place had heard the outlines of the Gospel story from a Christian woman, a relative of theirs living at Turmalagudem, twenty-two miles nearer us, and they had been more or less interested in her singing. At last there sprang up in the mind of one of them a great longing to know what happens after death, and the poor woman told them of our Lord's resurrection and the strong hope thereby granted to us of a resurrection to everlasting life. The man was struck with what she told them, and before long he and several others were enrolled as catechumens, and last February we visited the village and I baptized nine adults and seven infants.

Many of the converts in the Mission manifest a cheering readiness to tell others of the good news which they have received. In bygone days all the extensions in the district have been due to this, and opportunities for new extension continually occur, as in the instance just given, from the same cause. Five important villages, in four of which there were no Christians at all, were desirous that schools should be opened in them, and in the Malkanagiri and Rampa Taluqs also, which were under the pastoral care of the Rev. M. Gnanasigamoni, extension was the feature of the year. Mrs. Cain carries on medical work of a simple character when itinerating, but the dispensary at Dummagudem is under the charge of Miss Graham, of the C.E.Z.M.S., who has Miss Bruce and Mrs. Dowling as her colleagues.

III. TINNEVELLY.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. N. C. Storrs sailed for India viâ Australia in October, 1898, and the Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Douglas returned to the Mission in December. The Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Breed came home in April, 1899, and Mrs. H. J. Schaffter and Mrs. R. F. Ardell in May.

Deaths of native agents.

The death occurred of the Rev. John Pakianadhan, pastor of Meruthakulam, Tinnevelly, Secretary of the Alvaneri Circle, who was called to his rest at Mengnanapuram on December 27th. He was ordained deacon in 1878, and priest in 1881 by Bishop Sargent.

Mr. S. Moses, a C.M.S. evangelist, died on July 11th. Born of Christian parents at Suviseshapuram, in the Tinnevelly district, he was educated at the Mission-school and then at Bishop Corrie's Grammar School. He was subsequently sent to the Training Institution, Palamcotta. For thirty-seven years he worked faithfully and unostentatiously. During the last four years of his life he was placed in charge of the congregation of St. Thomas' Mount.

Ordinations.

The Rev. J. Gnanapragasam was admitted to priest's orders, and Mr. K. Adam to deacon's orders, on October 23rd, by Bishop Morley.

Preparandi Institution.

The Preparandi Training Institution, Palamcotta, was under the care of the Revs. T. Kember and F. W. Breed (the latter now at home). On the death of Mr. W. H. Wise, Mr. Breed assumed the superintendence of the work of the Bible and Tract Societies. He writes in detail of the Senior Theological Class, which consisted of sixteen students, and changes its members only once in three years. He describes the need of carefully sifting the characters of the men and the consequent responsibility which rests upon those in charge of the institution. The Junior Theological Class, which had ten members, is formed annually, and consists of young men who have undergone a longer or shorter period of service and probation as schoolmasters. Practice in spiritual work is afforded to the students in both the theological classes, and when Mr. Kember wrote his Annual Letter they were looking forward to sharing in the special Centenary effort which was to be made during the first three months of 1899 to preach the Gospel to every individual residing within the Tinnevelly C.M.S. district. Mr. Kember and Mr. Breed, besides carrying on their work with the theological classes, also alternately taught Scripture to the lower secondary and primary classes of the Normal Department. Some interesting particulars concerning one or two of the students in this department are given by the Rev. Ll. G. S. Price, who resided at Palamcotta for a few months. He writes:—

Boy's first Christian impressions.

When ten years of age the father of K. S. gave him a tract which he had got hold of in the bazaar. In this paper a comparison was instituted between Christianity and Hinduism. The father, a Heathen himself, gave the paper to the boy merely to please him. The boy did not pay any attention to what was written in it at the time, but eight years after he came across it again, began to read it, and became interested. He began to doubt the power of the Hindu gods, and this doubt was increased by an incident that took place in his village. One night some thieves came, threw down the idol, and stole the jewels. Much shocked at first at what had occurred, he afterwards began to think that if the idol could not take care of itself, and defend itself and its jewellery from such attacks, how could it take care of and save him? He inquired further into the truth of Christianity, bought a Bible and read it, and finally offered himself as a candidate for baptism. Since then he has been labouring in the Master's service.

N. D., a convert of the town of Sivagiri, said that when he was a boy of thirteen a catechist came to see his dying father. The father, in answer to the entreaties of the catechist to believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, declared, "I cannot become a Christian—I am too old," and then, pointing to his son, he said, "The boy will become a Christian." These words sank into the boy's mind, and prepared him to listen favourably to Christian teachers. He went to a Mission-school and read St. Matthew's Gospel. At the New Year festival in his village he refused to eat the food offered to the idol, and went hungry for a walk in the fields. While walking on the bank of a ditch, he suddenly found a fish left high and dry. He took this as a direct provision of God for his needs, and convinced it was the Lord's doing, he joined the Christian Church. Subsequently his whole family placed themselves under Christian teaching and were baptized.

High School.

The boys of the High School as usual did creditably in their examinations. Mr. E. Keyworth, the Principal, reports that nine of the nineteen sent up for the Madras University Matriculation Examination passed, two of them being placed in the first class. This was specially encouraging, for the average for the Presidency was one pass out of four, and one first-class out of twenty who succeeded in passing. In the Lower Secondary Examination, thirteen out of twenty were successful, and eight out of twelve in the Primary Examination. The Children's Scripture Union was helpful to the younger, and the Y.M.C.A. to the older, scholars; all the boys belong to one or other of these societies, and keep up their daily Bible-reading. Fifteen were sent up for the Peter Cator Scripture examination, and all passed—twelve in the first and three in the second class. One carried off a prize, although there were only nine prizes for the whole of the Presidency. At one time an attack on the school was feared, concerning which Mr. Keyworth writes in the following terms:—

An attack by thieves threatened.

In the town there is a large number of hereditary thieves and robbers. Some give up their ancient profession when they become Christians, though they retain a spirit of independent energy something like that attributed to Simon Zelotes. The difference, even after baptism, between meum and tuum is not so great in some of their eyes as it will be in perhaps another generation. Many are not Christians, and are regarded with respectful awe by the less warlike sections, upon whom they levy blackmail as Rob Roy and Rhoderick Dhu did in Scotland, and Robin Hood in England. They call themselves "Thévars," meaning "gods," and are known as Maravars. Some months ago they began raids on Mission buildings, churches, and schools, not for gain, but for spite and bravado, breaking doors and locks, taking away communion cloths, a clock, &c., partly to annoy the police, which many of them have joined. Copying the chivalrous Rajputs of mediæval history, they sent and posted up in the bazaar a notice saying that they would attack the High School on a certain night. I distributed sticks to the students, and distributed students as volunteers to sleep in all verandahs of the Institution's dormitory, dining-house, class-rooms, and bungalow for a month. The boys practised fencing extensively every day but Sunday. They heard our intended visitors in the rice-fields close by one night; but finding an armed force of scholars eager for combat, for we have some Maravars among the boys, and brave lads of other tribes, they decided not to honour us with a call.

There was more sickness in the school than usual: one boy, who died of fever in June, 1898, remarked shortly before he passed away, "My name also is written in the Book of Life." The results of the examinations in the Dohnavur Boys' Boarding School were good. So they were also in the Mary Arden School, which has the names of 143 children on the register, and is situated in the completely heathen part of the town, in premises which were formerly used as a distillery. The Bishop of Tinnevelly presided at the third annual prize-giving on July 18th, 1898, and Mrs. Morley distributed the awards, the scholars afterwards reciting a number of texts about sin, salvation, and holiness.

Sarah Tucker College.

The Sarah Tucker College, a C.M.S. institution, is worked by Miss Askwith and other ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S. After the visit to the College of his Excellency the Governor of Madras and Lady Havelock, which was mentioned in the Report last year (page 280), the Governor sent Rs. 100 as a subscription, and wrote to Miss Askwith saying that in her institution she had contrived to "combine the influences and way of training best calculated to advance the people without destroying their nationality." Connected with the Sarah Tucker College, and superintended by the same ladies, there are a number of affiliated branch schools and boarding-schools, and schools for the blind, deaf, and dumb. The most remarkable feature in the blind schools is that pupils are sent up to public examinations, in which they acquit themselves remarkably well. The inspector, speaking of arithmetic, says: "To gratify my curiosity, I made them work sums in arithmetic on their zinc sheets by arranging the leaded types in the borings. The process of working was so very exact that it would seem to be a work of legerdemain. They have such a quick perception and strength of imagination, and they have received such a training, that touch or hearing is, with them, as good as seeing." The Committee have sanctioned the College being raised to the status of a First Grade institution preparing candidates for the B.A. degree examination of the Madras University. No report has been received of the Girls' Boarding School.

Tinnevelly College.] The Rev. H. J. Schaffter, of Tinnevelly Town, who is in the thirtieth year of his connexion with the Society, observes a great change in the general attitude of the Heathen towards Christianity, which he briefly describes by saying that when any argument takes place, it is now always about Christians and their misdoings, or about missionaries and their mistakes, and that never is a word said against our Lord. The College began the year with the worst examination results it had ever known, for only five students passed the First Arts, and two the Matriculation Examination. But in spite of this, and of the introduction of moral teaching, i.e. of lectures by the Tamil pundit on the Hindu Shastras and Puranas, at the rival Hindu College, the number on the roll by the end of March, 1898, was larger by 100 than in the previous year. The Rev. R. F. Ardell mentions that two of the young men were so convinced of their sin, and of their need of the Saviour, that when their parents put them under restraint, they left home, and went to places where they thought it would be easier for them to confess Christ in baptism, one of them going to Burmah. Mr. Schaffter describes an event which filled him with thankfulness. He says:—

A former student of high caste purposes to be baptized.

> Fifteen years ago a high-caste Hindu in the College gave every hope that he would shortly confess Christ in baptism; but when we had almost fixed the day, his father-in-law, the inspector of police in the town, suddenly removed K., and sent him off to a place 300 miles away. I had long given up thinking of or praying for him. A few weeks ago he came to see me, and told me he is now high up in the Government service, that he has tried in vain to get his wife to come out with him; but now he felt it his duty to confess Christ, and for that purpose he had brought his wife here to introduce her to different Christian families, and ask her once more to be baptized with him. "If she again refuses, I am going to be baptized with my two daughters." He has gone back to his post, and we are expecting to hear every day of his having taken the step.

The inmates of the Hostel for Christian students were afforded opportunities of engaging in evangelistic effort, which the majority of them readily embraced. Mr. Ardell gives an interesting case which came under his notice of the power of the consistent life of a Christian woman. He says:—

> A poor woman had for many years been a consistent Christian living with a heathen husband in the midst of heathen surroundings. Again and again has her husband beaten her for praying to Christ and going to Christian services, but while submitting in patience she still held fast to her faith. A poor, weakly woman she looks by the side of her stalwart husband, but she found strength and comfort in prayer and in reading her Bible. Her husband, finding out her source of strength, tore her Bible to shreds, and threatened to kill her if he should ever see another in her hands. This led her to pray for him all the more earnestly, and when a catechist came to visit them one day he found the man willing to listen, for, said he, "the quiet, consistent behaviour of my wife has already produced a change in my mind." He was soon ready for baptism, and the poor woman had the joy of seeing him and their children admitted into the fold of Christ.

Some former students of the Tinnevelly College, by way of celebrating, after the event, the opening of the new buildings on January 24th, 1898, which was mentioned in last year's Report, presented an address of thanks to the Society, inscribed in letters of gold on a parchment roll, and enclosed in a beautiful silver box of native workmanship. The address is "To the Members of the Church Missionary Society, England," and runs as follows:—

Address of past students to C.M.S.

GENTLEMEN,—On behalf of the past students of the Tinnevelly Church Mission High School and College, we wish to express on this auspicious occasion of opening the new buildings, that we feel that it is our grateful duty to make public acknowledgment of the great good you have conferred upon the people of this district. As in other numerous places, you have been the pioneers of education in this district, and to you the bettering of the condition of your fellow-men, of whatever country or creed, has been a labour of love. The Tinnevelly Church Mission College has taken its rank as a leading second-grade College in the Madras Presidency, and your gift of the new building, so simple and majestic, so commodious, and so nicely situated, supplies a want much felt, and will, we trust, remain an honourable and enduring monument of the educational work you carry on. The only return for such great and beneficent kindness is the use made of it, and you may have the gratification to know that this College has expanded the minds and elevated the morals of numerous young men; and by all such, and by all those interested in them, and by all to whom education is dear, your names and your labours have always been, and will always be, cherished with love and regard. We pray and hope that this College may remain, with prospects brighter and still more bright, a useful and noble institution, to the blessing of the people, and to the fame and virtues of your good selves and of all those liberal-minded persons who by their generous contributions help on your work.

The address was signed by a number of leading men, one being a pleader, another a sub-magistrate, and nearly all graduates of the Madras University. None of them are baptized Christians.

Apostacy of a member of the Itinerating Band.

The Itinerating Band, under the Rev. J. C. McL. Hawkins, was strengthened by two recruits, Mr. M. Vedamanikam and Mr. A. Savarimuthu, from the Tinnevelly College, and one, Mr. M. D. Jesudasen, from the Palamcotta High School, but a heartrending loss was sustained by the defection of Mr. Gnanathesikan, one of the most trusted members of the band, who relapsed into idolatry. He went in August to a town near his native village, and while there was interviewed by his mother and several of his relations, with the result that he sent in a curt note, announcing his resignation, and shortly afterwards was seen in Tinnevelly Town wearing the sacred Siva necklace and smeared with ashes. Two of the men were candidates in the Bishop of Madras' examination on the Greek Testament, and one of them succeeded in gaining the prize for outsiders, the other prize being always given to a student at the C.M.S. or S.P.G. Divinity School in Madras. Some encouragement was vouchsafed to the workers, for a man who had been a magician and sorcerer was baptized with his wife after a probation of fourteen months. Shortly after their baptism, the wife was brought to death's door by illness; but when her heathen relations and friends came to see her, and told her that her trouble was due to her having embraced Christianity, the poor woman was enabled to reply that whether she lived or died she had given herself to Christ, and would not deny Him in the hour of her distress. The itinerations during 1898 were entirely in the Southern half of the district.

Pastorates.

The Rev. E. S. Carr is the Chairman of the District Church Council, which deals with matters concerning the native congregations in connexion with the C.M.S. in Tinnevelly. He refers in his Annual Letter to the many losses recently sustained through the removal of native clergy and others by death, and the difficulty experienced in filling up the places thus left vacant. Two men received deacons' orders during 1898, but many more were required, for the work pressed heavily upon some of the pastors, who were in danger of finding their tasks too great for their strength. There were over 250 excommunications in consequence of irregular marriages and joining in heathen ceremonies, but on the other hand several of those who had been put out of communion in previous years manifested signs of true repentance, and were re-admitted into the Church by the Bishop. Mr. Carr, after speaking of the stress which was laid at the Quinquennial Conference held at Allahabad upon the need of prayer, concludes his report with an earnest request that intercession may be offered to the following effect: (1) that the missionaries may be shown whether they are working on the right lines; (2) that they may be enabled to do their work far more than ever before in the spirit and power of prayer; and (3) that men of power, true servants of Christ, may be raised up from among the people themselves who may be apostles to their own countrymen, and that the European missionaries may have grace, when such men arise, not to thwart their work, or impair their usefulness by insisting on their own methods or preconceived ideas, but to wisely guide them so that their gifts and powers may be turned to the best advantage.

Exercise of discipline.

Request for prayer.

The following particulars from the Annual Letters of two of the native clergy, descriptive of their work, may be regarded as more or less typical of all. The Rev. D. M. Pakkianadhan, Chairman of the Surandei Circle, has under his charge the two pastorates of Surandei and Uttumalei, which contain some twenty-nine congregations, with 1,513 baptized Christians, and 107 other adherents. Holy Communion was administered in fifteen different centres. Twenty-three adults were baptized. Special efforts were made in connexion with the Three Years' Enterprise to proclaim the Gospel more widely than before, and some of the more earnest Christians gave voluntary help in that work, but the field is described as being on the whole barren and unpromising. In the Sâchiâpuram Circle the Rev. S. Paul found that the memory of the Rev. T. G. Ragland was still revered, although forty years had elapsed since his death. Within his old sphere of work there are now 234 villages, containing 5,812 baptized Christians, 1,400 communicants, 78 schools, and 2,147 scholars. The progress which has been made is also illustrated by the increase in the native contributions for religious objects, which in Ragland's days amounted to Rs. 167, but in 1899 to Rs. 4,700. The late Viceroy conferred on Mr. Paul the title of Rao Sahib (Rao is a Hindu title for a chief or prince) in recognition of his having translated many important books from English into Tamil, besides writing several original works in the latter language.

In 1897 the Rev. T. Walker resigned the chairmanship of the District Church Council, and took up his abode near the heathen village of Perunkulam, in order to devote himself to directly evangelistic work in the villages. He was not allowed to adopt this course without meeting with some opposition on the part of the native brethren. One of them, an educated layman, meeting him a few months after his resignation, told him that he was surprised to find him actively at work, for he thought he had retired to a secluded spot, in order that he might read up for a Cambridge professorship! In old days Rhenius paid a visit to Perunkulam and baptized a convert there, but the present condition of the district is very sad, and Mr. Walker writes feelingly of the density of the prevailing darkness. The large church, it is true, was filled on Sundays with 700 or 800 Christians, but they came straggling in irregularly during the service, and even after the sermon had commenced, and many went to sleep without any attempt at worship. Sunday after Sunday was spent in exposing sin and proving from God's Word that no man who continues in sin can hope to go to heaven, but then the people began to say, "We cannot forsake our sins. We did not become Christians with the object of giving up lying and avarice and Sabbath-breaking. This doctrine may be true, but it will not do for us." Lying and evil-speaking, quarrelling and Sabbath-breaking were, by their own confession, sadly prevalent, and, in addition, even in the ranks of the Mission agents such gross sins as stealing, false swearing, and falsifying of school registers in order to get larger Government grants, were brought to light. Nor was this all. Some were found who formerly professed and called themselves Christians, but had abandoned their profession and openly apostatized. One was an inspecting catechist, to whom the marriage difficulty was fatal—i.e., he loved his caste more than he loved his Saviour. Another, now a devil-dancer, was formerly an evangelist, noted for his eloquence as a preacher, but he found that devil-dancing was more lucrative than Gospel evangelistic work. A third backslider used to be a Mission schoolmaster. Sad facts such as these constitute a loud call to Christians at home to give themselves more earnestly to prayer. In the visible Church, as the twenty-sixth Article says, the evil is ever mingled with the good; but there can be found wheat as well as tares, and Mr. Walker is able to tell of a bright as well as a dark side to the picture. Some of his Tamil fellow-workers were led to gather together for earnest, believing prayer; some spiritually dead Christians were quickened into newness of life; and some heathen souls were brought out of darkness into the light of the Gospel. The baptism of a girl from Perunkulam, who left home and friends to follow Christ, was the signal for an outburst of fury on the part of the Heathen, but that was not entirely unwelcome, for it was regarded as better than the stagnation of utter indifference which previously characterized the place. Mr. Walker says:—

Low spiritual state of a Christian congregation.

> We see not yet all that we long to see, but we have proved that God answers prayer. It looks as though God were going to bless Tinnevelly by raising up one and another here and there to be His witnesses and filling them with His spirit. The darkness is great indeed, both in Christendom and Heathendom of Tinnevelly; but our power is prayer. Our Church Council systems will not effect what we all long to see. God's way of blessing will probably baffle all our calculations. Living souls are better than dead machinery, and true life, when it comes, may refuse to follow the channels of our systems. Only may God send it, whatever it may mean and whatever it may lead to. In His own way, and by His own instruments, and for His own sole glory, may the God of all power and might quicken the Tinnevelly Church.

The Rev. and Mrs. Ll. G. S. Price have resided at Sachiapuram since April, 1898. Mr. Price's time was occupied with language study, but he was enabled to carry on his loved work among the children, for some of whom a Sowers' Band was formed, and also to set on foot a branch of the Gleaners' Union.

Elliot Tuxford School.

Mrs. and Miss F. E. Thomas and Miss E. C. Vines continue to labour at the Elliot Tuxford School, MENGNÁNAPURAM. Miss Vines refers to the removal of some of the children by death. One of them, who was "a true Christian girl, quiet and conscientious," was attacked by cholera, and died the day after her seizure. During her short illness she sent a message to the missionaries that she was "going home to Jesus." The Rev.

and Mrs. E. A. Douglas went to live at Mengnánapuram in December, 1898.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has fifteen lady missionaries on its staff in Tinnevelly, five of whom are connected with the Sarah Tucker College; sixty-two Bible-women and the same number of native teachers are at work under them. They were not left without some tokens of God's blessing. The school for dumb children was carried on with increased numbers, and on one occasion some of the girls accompanied the ladies when they went into the district. Their presence was useful, for in a village Sunday-school where Miss Swainson was unable to gain the attention of the children, one of the dumb girls was told to explain by signs the "Wordless Book" which was being shown, and all that the heathen children learnt that day was from her. Several baptisms, too, took place. One was of the pupil of a Bible-woman in an outlying village, where the women, having to work all day in the fields, learn their Bible lessons by lamplight after the day's work is over. Through the Biblewoman's husband, the father and two brothers of the girl were brought to the knowledge of Christ, and together openly confessed their faith in Him.

TRAVANCORE AND COCHIN MISSION.

The Mission in the semi-independent Native States of Travancore and Cochin, which occupy a narrow strip of country on the south-western coast of India, between the Ghaut mountains and the sea, was established in 1816 at the invitation of Colonel Munro, the British Resident. For twenty years it was worked by Benjamin Bailey, Joseph Fenn, Henry Baker, sen., and others, mainly with a view to the reform of the ancient Malabar Syrian Church, which claims to have been founded by the Apostle St. Thomas. Since 1837 the missionaries have worked independently, the result of which has been not only the adhesion of many Syrians to the purer worship of the Church of England, but an active reforming movement within their own Church, which was much fostered by the late Metran, Mar Athanasius. The labours of Peet, Hawksworth, H. Baker, jun., and others, among the Heathen, particularly the lowest castes and the Hill Arrians, have been also greatly blessed. Allepie was occupied in 1816; Cottayam, 1817; Cochin, 1817; Mavelikára, 1839; Trichur, 1842; Pallam, 1845; Tiruwella, 1849; Kunnankulam, 1854; the Arrian Mission, 1855; and the Alwaye Itinerancy, 1881.

On July 25th, 1879, the Rev. J. M. Speechly, a C.M.S. Missionary and for some time Principal of the Cambridge Nicholson Institution, was consecrated first Bishop of Travancore and Cochin. On his resignation in 1889 the Rev. E. N. Hodges, who had previously been Principal of the Noble College, Masulipatam, and of the Trinity College, Kandy, Ceylon, was nominated to the See, and was consecrated in 1890.

Deaths of Mrs. Henry Baker,

By the death of Mrs. Henry Baker, which took place at Hampton on September 11th, the last remaining link between the founders of the Travancore Mission and the present generation of workers was severed. She was a daughter of the Rev. I. Kitchin, Rector of St. Stephen's, Ipswich, and a sister of the present Dean of Durham, and was married to the Rev. H. Baker, jun., in 1843. Her husband and she sailed almost immediately after their marriage for India, travelling in a sailing vessel round the Cape; on their journey they experienced some narrow escapes, for they were chased and nearly captured by a privateer, and were almost crushed by icebergs south of the Cape. On her arrival in Travancore, Mrs. Baker established a school for girls, and for seventeen years worked continuously with her husband, without furlough to England, or even a visit to the hills. After the death of Mr. Baker in 1878, Mrs. Baker lived on at Cottayam, where her daughter still carries on the boarding-school, for nearly eighteen years, but was eventually compelled by illness to leave India in 1897. A fellow missionary has described her as "very accomplished and very able, of striking presence and great charm of manner, and with unfailing sympathy and readiness to help those in trouble or sorrow."

the Rev. A. J. French Adams,

The Rev. A. J. French Adams, who died in Herefordshire in May, 1897, was the son of a Wesleyan missionary, and was born in the Friendly Islands. He took a good degree at Oxford, was ordained in 1882, and as Rector of Foscott, in Buckinghamshire, offered to the Society in 1890. He went out to Travancore as Principal of the Cottayam College, and was invalided home in 1895. He met with much success during his comparatively short term of service, both in the intellectual part of his work, and also in winning the affections of his students, one of whom remarked after he left, "I don't think any one loved his students more than Mr. Adams, and we loved him."

and of two native clergymen.

Besides these European workers, two of the native clergy passed away in the course of the year. The Rev. Kuruwella Kuruwella, who died on May 3rd, 1898, was born of Syrian Christian parents, and educated at Cottayam College. He was ordained deacon in 1860, and priest in 1865. His first station was Mavelikara, but he was subsequently transferred to Cochin. He was a member of the Malayalam New Testament Revision Committee from the beginning of their work. The Rev. A. F. Painter writes concerning him :—

> His influence was great in the Church Councils. When, in 1876, the "Six Years" heresy arose in Travancore, and one of our leading pastors went astray, carrying many members of our own and the Syrian Church with him, Mr. Kuruwella was chosen to take up the work in the parish where the heresy arose, as most likely by his influence, tact, and piety to reclaim those who had erred. He succeeded in a marked degree. His chief characteristics were gentleness, meekness, and unaffected piety. By utter absence of self-assertion, by courtesy and quiet dignity, he won affection and compelled respect.

On September 12th, at Aymanam, the Rev. George Curian passed away, at the age of seventy-five years. He was of Syrian parentage, and always had strong Syrian sympathies. Educated at Cottayam College, he was at first engaged as a catechist. In 1856 he was ordained by the Bishop of Madras, and appointed pastor of St. Andrew's, Cochin. In 1869 he was transferred to Pallam, and in 1873 to Tallawadi, where he remained till 1883, when he retired. He was a leading member of the Mavelikara Church Council, and for some time held the office of vice-chairman.

Bishop and Mrs. Hodges sailed from England for the Mission in November, 1898, and Miss M. F. Baker in December. The Rev. C. E. R. Romilly, who was married on October 22nd to Miss Mary Louisa Stenning, returned to India with his wife in the following month. The Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Bishop came home in May, 1899.

Reinforcement.

Miss Isabel Baker has been taken into local connexion. The Rev. and Mrs. Jacob Thompson, whose resignation on the ground of Mrs. Thompson's health, was accepted in the spring of 1898, rejoined the Society's staff a few months later, and were assigned to the Ceylon Mission.

A State enactment affecting extension of the Mission work.

An enactment was passed in 1898 by the State of Travancore prohibiting the erection of any new place of worship, or the conversion of any existing building into a place of worship, without the sanction of the Government. It is alleged to be directed against the fanatical tribe of Mohammedans called Moplahs, who have at times committed excesses against both Hindus and Christians. But the missionaries on the spot are apprehensive that the enactment may be used to render penal the advance of Christian Missions, since it will expose any one who uses a school-house as a meeting-room for religious purposes (unless it has been previously so used) to the risk of being fined or imprisoned. The missionaries have joined in an earnest representation to the suzerain British authorities on the subject.

The Society's Second Jubilee.

The Second Jubilee of the Society was celebrated in Travancore with great enthusiasm by the Native Christians in connexion with the various pastorates. Accounts have been received of the proceedings at several of the stations. They generally included a procession of the Christians from the out-stations, who marched with banners flying to the central church of their pastorate, to the accompaniment of the beating of tom-toms and the firing of cannon; a service in church; and a feast of some sort. The day closed in most cases with fireworks and other visible signs of rejoicing. The expenses of the celebrations were borne by the people themselves, who also made special offerings as a token of their gratitude to God for the mercy which had sent them the message of salvation. At Cottayam the proceedings occupied two days, commencing with the service of Holy Communion in the pro-Cathedral at 7.30 on the morning of November 1st. The children, some 500, were entertained in the grounds of the Cambridge Nicholson Institution. At six in the evening a missionary meeting was held in the pro-Cathedral. There was a very large gathering, over which Archdeacon Koshi presided. The proceedings opened with the Te Deum, which was followed by prayer. On the morning of the 2nd there was a solemn Thanksgiving Service in the same place. Large though this building is, it was crowded and packed to its uttermost capacity. Archdeacon Koshi in his sermon described the religious life of the Christians in Travancore as he found it fifty years ago, and then contrasted it with the life of the Christians of to-day, and he pointed out that the great changes and improvements were all due to the beneficent work of the Church Missionary Society, and that, in consequence, there was abundant cause for praise and thanksgiving to God. It must suffice to quote in addition the words of the Rev. W. J. Richards, who, in describing the celebration at Pallam, says that he writes as a visitor, "since no European missionary has now pastoral charge of a native congregation," and adds, "To me everything was simply perfect. So much effort, unity, brotherly feeling, and genuine joy, and such orderly arrangements I have never seen surpassed."

Religious disabilities of Christians.

There are ten pastorates in connexion with the COTTAYAM CHURCH COUNCIL. Among those baptized in the Cottayam Pas- torate was a Chogan, whose reception into the Church was delayed by the fact that he had property, and was unable for some time to finish transferring it to his adopted guardian, on account of the illness of the latter. It is a strange satire upon the so-called toleration which prevails in Travancore, that if a man is baptized before giving away his property he loses his title to it. He is therefore obliged to hand it over to some one, trusting to the man's honesty to restore it to him afterwards! Some encouragement was vouchsafed to the Rev. J. Chandy, of the Pallam Pastorate, by the baptism in December of a Hindu goldsmith and his family, who put themselves under instruction on the day after the Second Jubilee celebration. One of the sons, an intelligent lad of eighteen, was a pupil in the pastorate school, and had often spoken to his father about Christianity. On another occasion the kudami (or tufts of hair denoting Hinduism) were cut off the members of a second family, consisting of a father and his six sons. Many of the Hill Arrian converts are connected with the Mundakayam Pastorate, and impress all who see them by their zeal for the conversion of others.

Pastorates.

The MELKAVU COUNCIL has three pastorates connected with it. The Bishop paid a visit to Melkavu in January and confirmed about two hundred candidates. More than eight hundred people were present at the morning service, and there were five hundred communicants. Some of the old men among them could remember the day when there was not one Christian to be found among the Hill Arrians.

The TIRUWELLA COUNCIL has also three pastorates. The Tiruwella Pastorate is under the Rev. K. P. Oomen, and has fifteen out-stations, with 2,124 Christians and 379 catechumens. The Rev. O. A. Matthai is over the Puwattur Pastorate, in which there are 2,177 adherents; Mr. Matthai also takes surplice duty in the Kawyur Pastorate, which is under the charge of a candidate for Holy Orders.

Eight pastorates are found in connexion with the MAVELIKARA COUNCIL. The Rev. O. Mamen, who is in charge of the Mavelikara Pastorate, reports the baptism on May 19th, 1898, of forty-one adults, drawn from four different villages, and from three different castes, viz.— Chogans, Palayans, and Pariahs. Writing to the Bishop he says:—

Baptism of representatives of different castes.

These converts are the first we have had from among the Pariahs, who are very different from the Palayans. The Western Palayans came under instruction in 1850 in this diocese; the Eastern Palayans came only in 1870 in large numbers; and the Pariahs in 1880. The Western are the lowest in quality; the Eastern more religious, loyal to their masters; the Pariahs the most intelligent and energetic and cunning. They are degenerated from Brahmans. The forty-one converts were instructed by myself before they were accepted. The words of Isa. xi. 6, wolf and lamb, were fulfilled. These three castes were inveterate enemies, never ate together nor touched each other. After baptism they were all entertained by me. It looked like a festival; all enjoyed the occasion and were very happy. The Pariah women sang our lyrics very beautifully, and repeated the Creed, &c., without a single mistake and mispronunciation. All came in their clean clothes. About forty remained behind gazing at the sight. Several were very sorry that they were refused as unfit to be baptized. After their cangy they all remained to witness a marriage of a Palayan couple.

A testimony and a prediction.

These Palayans often have to suffer much when they become Christians. They are persecuted, beaten, robbed of their crops, falsely charged in the law courts, and have their schools burnt; and yet they remain steadfast. Old habits, it is true, draw them down, but still they are surely though slowly improving, and a Mahratta Brahman once remarked that "the greatest proof of the truth of Christianity is what it does for these poor people, for whom Hinduism can do nothing." Mr. Mamen predicts that the high castes will learn the Gospel from the lives of the poor, despised low castes, and mentions a case in which a Christian slave refused to go to the harvest on a Sunday, and the master consented to postpone the reaping to the following day, and recalled all his reapers for the sake of his Christian slave!

COTTAYAM AND PALLAM.

Cambridge Nicholson Institution.

The important work of training native agents was continued at the Cambridge Nicholson Institution, COTTAYAM, by the Rev. J. J. B. Palmer and his native colleagues. Five of the students left to take up work as English teachers, and eight as vernacular teachers. Four men sat for the Oxford and Cambridge Theological Preliminary Examination, of whom two passed in the third class. At the beginning of 1899 there were twelve students in the theological classes, and sixteen in the normal classes; nearly all of these took part in open-air preaching on Sunday afternoons, and many of them taught in the Sunday-school. A convention, organized by the Y.M.C.A. and the S.V.M.U., was held in August, and the emphasis laid on daily Bible study, daily prayer, and personal consecration for service proved helpful to many. Mr. Palmer was well satisfied with those under his charge, though, as he justly remarks, it is hardly reasonable to look for a very fully developed Christian character in the junior students of the normal classes, many of whom are only sixteen years of age.

The College.

The efficiency and popularity of the College, of which the Rev. F. N. Askwith is the Principal, was demonstrated by the fact that the numbers on the books increased by about forty, and several applicants were refused admission. The sickness which prevailed at the end of 1897, combined with the successes of recent years, which led to over-elation on the part of some of the F.A. students, and consequent neglect of their work, prevented the results of the public examinations being as good as usual. The convention, which has already been referred to, made a considerable impression upon the boys. Most of the meetings were held in the College buildings, and many of the lads promised to devote an early hour of the day to religious exercises, while one or two joined the Student Volunteer Missionary Union. Mr. Askwith was much pleased with the entire absence of excitement at the meetings, but expresses his opinion that there is a danger of having too many such special efforts, and that the real need is for sustained endeavour to build up the lads in their most holy faith. The enlargement of the College, which was commenced at the end of 1897, was completed in 1898, and proved extremely useful.

A student's convention.

Mrs. M. A. Clark, a daughter of the Rev. H. Baker, sen., was placed in charge of the Girls' Boarding School during the eighteen months' absence of her niece, Miss M. F. Baker, who returned in January, 1899. Mrs. Clark draws an interesting contrast between the state of education for girls when the C.M.S. first commenced work in Travancore and that which now prevails. She says:—

Girls' Boarding School.

> Then, a small girl here and there, sitting cross-legged on the floor among the boys, and shouting her letters as she traced them in the sand which she spread out before her, was, with rare exceptions, all that could be found to represent female education in the country. At seven or eight she was married, and went off to be her mother-in-law's drudge in her new home. There were no Malayalam books. The services in the churches were conducted in Syriac, and the teaching of the Catanars (priests) was her only means of obtaining a knowledge of Divine things.
>
> My mother obtained six little girls to teach and provide for in the rooms over the old Syrian College here for priests and deacons, which she and my father shared with the old Metran (Bishop). This was the beginning of girls' schools in this country. For many years inducements had to be offered to get girls to be taught. They were taken into the boarding-schools, and clothed and fed free of cost. Then a dowry of from Rs. 3½ to Rs. 10 was given to any girl who remained a few years in the school. The teaching was very elementary, but all had at least a Testament, and could read it, and had learnt to sew.
>
> Now, the Buchanan Institution prepares girls to be teachers, and these usually marry Mission agents and teach the girls in the many day-schools that are being opened all over the country; and the people pay—a trifle indeed—but still pay for being taught.

Progress of female education.

The school had seventy-four boarders and sixty-eight day-scholars, six of the latter being Hindu girls, viz., daughters of an Assistant Peishkar, of the head of the Revenue Department, of a Government Inspector of Schools, &c. Besides the boarding-school, there were three elementary mixed schools, attended by from 150 to 170 children.

The Industrial School and the Mission Press were carried on as usual, Mr. Palmer acting as secretary of the committee which directs the latter.

Buchanan Institution.

At PALLAM the Rev. and Mrs. E. Bellerby, upon their departure for England in April, 1898, handed over their respective responsibilities regarding the Buchanan Institution for training girls as teachers to the Rev. and Mrs. W. J. and Miss K. Richards. The results of the examinations which were held in 1897 were not made known until the beginning of 1898, when it appeared that all the three students in the senior training class, and also the assistant mistress, who entered for the Lower Grade Peter Cator Scripture Examination, were successful, and passed in the second class; and that of the eight girls who sat for the Madras Lower Secondary Examination, five passed the complete test. Towards the end of 1898, eighteen girls were sent up for the Madras Primary Examination, but only ten of them met with success. There were 128 boarders and forty-nine other girls in the Institution. The majority of these, about 120, belonged to the Scripture Union, and half that number were members of the Gleaners' Union, and met every week for a working party, by means of which they realized Rs. 150. A Gospel meeting for the girls was held every Wednesday evening, and a devotional meeting for the teachers every Friday afternoon. A great deal of sickness prevailed from May to July; three of the girls died, one of them actually in the school, and it became necessary to disperse the children for a short holiday.

Branch Schools.

The Branch Schools which were assisted by the proceeds of the working party mentioned above, were eleven in number, and contained 560 children. The teachers had to encounter many difficulties, not the least of which arose from the influences to which the children were exposed in their homes, and the early age at which they were removed from the schools in order that they might be married.

ALLEPIE.

Allepie.

The Schools in ALLEPIE and its district, nine in number, were under the superintendence of the Rev. W. J. Richards, but his removal to Pallam prevented him from paying them so much attention as in former years. He acknowledges the kind help rendered by Mr. Maltby, the son of an old C.M.S. friend, and the chief European official in the town. Mrs. Maltby paid a weekly visit to the Zenana Mission School for the daughters of high caste parents, and also on Sundays taught the English class for Eurasian children which was formerly taken by Miss Richards. The Leper Asylum, for men only, was quite full throughout the year; and the sales at the Bookshop, though fewer in number, were of greater value than in 1897. Mr. Richards, upon whom the Archbishop of Canterbury has conferred the Lambeth D.D. degree, was busily engaged in translational work, the final revision of the Malayalam New Testament and of the Prayer Book occupying much time.

Translation work.

TIRUWELLA AND ETTAMANUR ITINERANCY.

Tiruwella.

The Evangelistic Work at TIRUWELLA was under the charge of Archdeacon Caley, who was assisted, among others, by ten Bible-women, four of whom gave the whole of their time to the work, while six, at the out-stations, gave part of it. He was encouraged to hope that some of the highest Brahmans would embrace Christianity, for he had interviews with several who came by night, and afterwards by their influence disposed others to listen to the truth. There were many signs of increasing unrest and uncertainty, and the Archdeacon adds:—

Sense of impending changes tending to the overthrow of Hinduism.

> There is a consciousness that changes are impending that may overthrow the Hindu religion. Some go so far as to say they think it has had its day, while others profess to look forward to a new cycle of ages similar to those through which Hinduism is supposed to have passed.

Ettamanur Itinerancy.

The Rev. C. A. Neve, on his return to the Mission in March, 1898, resumed the superintendence of the ETTAMANUR ITINERANCY, making his headquarters at Cottayam. There were twenty-three out-stations, two of which were opened during the year, and in addition a request that work should be commenced among them was received from the inhabitants of Alapra, a remote place, situated in the midst of the jungle. The history of Chenapadi, one of these out-stations, is interesting. When work was commenced there, the place was frequented by wild elephants, and the teacher had to live in a hut made in the fork of a tree. The people were all of them servants of some rich Nairs of the place, and as they were required to protect the paddy cultivation by driving the elephants away, their huts had to be removed year after year to the places where paddy was sown. Sometimes this would be from three to five miles away from the school, which was only a temporary shed used for public worship on Sundays. This, and the fact that at some seasons the station could not be reached in consequence of floods, caused it to be abandoned. But the people kept on meeting together for prayer and instruction in the Word, and subsequently on the representation of a deputation, who promised to support a teacher, the station was re-opened. The Rev. M. C. Chakko, the native pastor of Kanam, visited Chenapadi in May, and after careful examination of a number of inquirers, which resulted in the rejection of some who were not regular worshippers, and of others who were reported to be leading inconsistent lives, baptized twenty-three adults. Some members of a family of goldsmiths were also admitted into the visible Church at a place near Cottayam. Their leader is a respectable and very intelligent man, who possesses much influence over the Hindus of his neighbourhood. The generosity which characterized the late Baptisms at Chenapadi.

Moopen Patros (see last year's Report, page 295) appears to be hereditary, for Mr. Neve writes :—

A generous native donor.

> I was pleased to find on my last visit that the old man's son is walking in his father's steps. Whilst I was at Kangra he brought me Rs. 30 to be given to help a poor congregation a few miles distant to build their church. Rs. 30 is a very large sum for a man in his position—almost a year's income. A Palayan (the caste from which Patros was a convert) only earns three chackrams a day. It would take him ten days to earn one rupee. I also think the gift was the more valuable as it was not given to finish or improve his own (the Kangra) church, but one in which he had not so much personal interest.

Mr. Neve paid two visits of a month or six weeks each to Permaad, where the Rev. M. Nallathambi is stationed. In April, 1898, he proceeded thence to the "High Range," a hill district in the north of Travancore, where a tea-planting estate has recently been opened by a company, which gives employment to 100 Europeans besides some thousands of coolies.

The progress which has been made in the district covered by the Itinerancy is evidenced by the fact that the 300 adherents of 1882 have increased to 3,267, of whom 576 are communicants.

ALWAYE ITINERANCY.

Alwaye Itinerancy.

The ALWAYE ITINERANCY was worked by the Rev. T. K. Ninan, under the supervision of the Rev. W. J. Richards. The four schools were still carried on, but the attendance at one of them showed a considerable falling off, owing to the existence of a rival school belonging to the Government. One family of Chogans joined the Christians, but no cases of conversion from among the Hindus are reported.

COCHIN: TRICHUR AND KUNNANKULAM.

Trichur.

The Rev. J. H. Bishop had the Rev. J. I. MacDonald as his colleague in the evangelistic work in the district of TRICHUR. A series of lectures on the historical accuracy of the Bible, illustrated by diagrams, was given to the pupils of the High School, but the attendance was not as good as had been expected. The new wing of the school was completed during the year, both the head carpenter and the head mason being members of the C.M.S. congregation. Six pupils from the Girls' Boarding School passed the Upper Primary Examination.

Special Mission to Children.

Mr. B. Herklots, of the Children's Special Service Mission, conducted a Mission to children and others, which appeared productive of good, and Mr. MacDonald threw himself heartily into efforts to reach the young. At Mala, where work was commenced in 1897, a native house was obtained, and a new school for both sexes was opened close to the Jewish synagogue. The Jews in the town were very friendly, as were the Mohammedans and Hindus, but bitter opposition was experienced from the Roman Catholics. Sustained efforts, lasting for a week or ten days, were made to influence the Hindus at Uragam and other centres, and met with a certain measure of success. The work of visiting the Namburi Brahmans, which was referred to in last year's Report, was continued, and Mr. Bishop mentions a case in which one of these men who had previously refused the gift, gladly accepted a Bible, and even allowed his daughter, who for some reason had been excommunicated by the Brahmans, to be taken care of by the Zenana missionary ladies, and instructed in the Christian religion.

Visit to a settlement of Malayars.

In October, 1897, Mr. Bishop, with three evangelists, paid a visit to the Malayars, who live near a large Government teak plantation in the valley of the Palapilla Hills, about fifteen miles south-east of Trichur. Their settlement lies in a clearing in the depth of the forest, and is difficult to discover; but a man who exercises a patriarchal rule over the people, and who receives Rs. 3 per mensem from the Government for reporting when any wild elephants are caught in the pits, guided the travellers to the village, and gathered a number of Malayars together for conference with the missionary. Mr. Bishop says of the people:—

> The Malayars are somewhat fair in complexion, of average stature. They observe the marumakkatayam, or inheritance, through the nephew, but they live with their own wives. They seemed fond of their children, and have a sort of marriage ceremony, and are faithful to the one wife. They all wear cloths. The men have their long hair tied behind in a chignon. Both men and women wear earrings. They always bury their dead. Drunkenness, introduced by the low-country traders, is their besetting sin. They are very expert in climbing at night with torches the lofty cotton-tree, and taking the wild honey and wax which, like teak, is a Sircar monopoly. They live chiefly on forest roots. We saw a young woman squeezing the juice out of a mass of stuff which looked exactly like wet sawdust. It was the powdered pulp of a kind of arrowroot which she was cleaning and preparing. They have no temple; they make offerings of arrack and cocoanut to the forest-god Shastawa or Ayappen, and to Bhadrakali. They worship the spirits of their ancestors. They practise exorcism and devil-worship.

And of the conference itself he writes:—

Not heard the Gospel before.

> They seemed very intelligent. They did not appear to have heard the Gospel before. But they had ideas of sin and judgment. They admitted the need of a Saviour. They had some difficulty in pronouncing the name "Yêshu," which was new to them. They repeated Rom. vi. 23. They took in the idea at once of the heart being like a jungle, the abode of impure desires and passions like wild beasts, and of the need of heart-cleansing. They also saw they must be willing to give up sin, lying, and quarrelling and drunkenness, or they would not receive the gift of salvation. The names of some of the men were Wella (white), Kôtha, Kêlên, Kunchu. When we asked them to join us in prayer, they responded, and, as directed, stood up and covered their faces with their hands.

Voluntary pioneers.

Two Hill Arrians volunteered for pioneer work among this despised people, and in 1898 commenced operations at the chief village, which is named Kannattupatam.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has six lady missionaries, fifteen Bible-women, and thirty native teachers working in Trichur and the surrounding district. Ten women and nineteen children were baptized in April, 1898, as the fruit of their labours.

Kunnankulam.

The Rev. F. Bower, writing from KUNNANKULAM, speaks with deep gratitude of the many mercies vouchsafed to him. Every branch of the work gave cause for thankfulness. The schools continued to prosper; the evangelists resident in various villages met with encouragement; the Bible-women, accompanied by Mrs. and Miss Bower, were enabled to address large crowds of people; a Mission conducted by Mr. Bernard Herklots, of the Children's Special Service Mission, was much blessed, both to adults and children; and the Second Jubilee of the Society was celebrated with enthusiasm. Nine adults and seventeen children were baptized. One of the former, a man of the Theeir caste, had often heard the Gospel, but was specially impressed by the reading of some Christian handbills; he delights, it is stated, in speaking to his relatives and friends about the Saviour. Amongst the forty-two catechumens was an inferior priest, devoted to devil-worship. He frequently listened to the Gospel at Guruvayur, and at length resolved, cost what it might, to embrace the Christian religion. His daughter, son-in-law, and three children were also inquirers, and appeared to be much in earnest. Mr. Bower, accompanied by the Rev. K. T. Koshi, the native pastor, the evangelists, three or four young Syrians of the reformed party, and a few boys who helped with the singing, visited the Yagathashi Festival at Guruvayur, and had splendid opportunities of preaching to the assembled multitudes. There was some opposition from the Hindus, but the people were bent upon hearing the Gospel message, and listened more seriously and attentively than ever before. Great encouragement was received in connexion with the distribution of the Malayalam Bible to the Namburi Brahmans. By the close of 1898 as many as 180 copies of the whole Bible had been accepted by these high-caste men many of whom promised to read the Book carefully and give their opinion of it either verbally or in writing. One Brahman, living in British territory, kept the Bible in the temple, in order that he might be able to study it without that interruption from his female relatives which he would be sure to meet with at home. It was even found possible to induce the chief priest of the Cochin State to accept a copy of the Scriptures, and Mr. Bower thus describes the interview:—

A devil priest an inquirer.

Distribution of Bibles to Namburi Brahmans.

Visit to an influential Brahman.

> Two or three months ago Mr. Runga Charlu and I, after thought and earnest prayer, went to the house of this great Namburi and succeeded, I rejoice to say, in getting him to receive a copy of the Holy Scriptures. I also gave him a copy of the Dawn of True Wisdom, as it was thought it would enable him and others to understand the Book of Leviticus and certain parts of the New Testament more easily. When he was offered a Bible last year he refused it. This Brahman officiated at the coronation of the present King of Cochin, and is accordingly a man of considerable influence and position. As I was probably the first European missionary ever seen at that house, many Nayars and others immediately hastened to the spot, to see and hear all they possibly could; this naturally made the chief priest feel anything but comfortable, as some of them looked angry and disgusted at my having given him the Word of God. He is a somewhat young man, very intelligent and gentlemanly, and has evidently seen something of British India, but is not acquainted with the English language. While at his house I had a little conversation with him, during which I gave him and his companions an outline of the plan of salvation, and read a passage or two from the New Testament, to which they listened most attentively.

Afraid to read the Bible lest induced to become a Christian.

Later in the year, an elderly Namburi, when asked to accept a Bible, said, "I have heard the Gospel preached several times during Yagathashi at Guruvayur, and last year I also heard it. I was not only much interested in the preaching, but it also made a deep impression on my mind. I am therefore very much afraid that if I read the Bible I may thereby be induced to embrace the Christian religion; therefore under these circumstances what am I to do? I do not know what to do." He was a man of property and influence, and evidently had some desire to know the truth. After hesitating a minute or two, he received the precious volume and promised to read it.

These incidents should lead to earnest prayer for the Namburis in general, and for those in particular who are studying the Word of God.

CEYLON MISSION.

Ceylon, which became a British possession in 1796, was one of the first fields to which the fathers of the C.M.S. turned their eyes. It was not, however, until 1817 that the Mission was commenced among the Singhalese and Tamils, the two races (with distinct languages) which formed the population of the Island. For the Singhalese population work was begun at Kandy in 1818; at Baddêgama, 1819; at Cotta, 1822; and at Kurunêgala, 1880. For work among the Tamils Jaffna was occupied in 1818; Colombo, 1852; and the Tamil Coolie Mission was begun in 1855.

The first Bishop of Colombo, Dr. Chapman, was appointed in 1845, and has been succeeded by Bishops Claughton (1862), Jermyn (1871), and Copleston (1875).

Deaths of Miss H. M W. Spreat,

THE death of Miss H. M. W. Spreat, which was mentioned in a footnote in last year's Report, occurred in England on May 31st, 1898. Only a few months of missionary labour were vouchsafed to her. She reached Ceylon in December, 1896, and was invalided home in July of the following year. During her brief stay in Jaffna she was enabled to gain the affection and esteem of the scholars under her charge, and by the consistency of her life to leave a deep spiritual impress upon the Native Christians.

Mrs. S. Coles, and Mrs. C. C. McArthur.

Mrs. Coles, the wife of the Rev. S. Coles, who went out with him thirty-eight years ago, died in England on August 8th; and, on December 11th, Mrs. McArthur, the wife of the Rev. C. C. McArthur, who was a missionary of the Society at Nellore from 1858 to 1868, was called to her rest.

Reinforcements.

The staff of the Mission was reinforced by the addition of the Rev. William John Hanan, B.A., Trinity College, Dublin, curate of Cahir, Diocese of Lismore; Miss Valentina Maria Louisa Franklin; Miss Amy Chanter Goodchild; Miss Annie E. M. Thomas, the daughter of Mrs. J. D. Thomas, of this Mission; Miss Maud Lucy Young; and Miss Harriett Edith Payne. All these, with the exception of Miss Thomas, who was already resident at Colombo, and Miss Payne, who left England in May, 1899, sailed for the Mission in October, 1898. They were followed in November by the Rev. Jacob Thompson, M.A., Corpus Christi College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, and Mrs. Thompson, who formerly were on the staff of the Travancore Mission. Miss M. A. Wood has retired from the Mission. Mrs. J. Ilsley came home in May, 1898; Miss K. Heaney in October; the Rev. and Mrs. H. E. Heinekey were compelled from considerations of health to go to Aix-les-Bains in January, 1899, and to come forward to England in February; Miss E. M. Josolyne returned to England in March; and the Revs. A. E. Dibben and W. Welchman in April. On the other hand, there returned to Ceylon the Rev. J. I. Pickford in June, 1898; and the Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Garrett and the Rev. S. Coles in December. Mr. E. J. Carus-Wilson was married on June 10th, 1898, to Miss Katherine Mary Chapman.

Ordinations.

The Bishop of Colombo admitted the Revs. J. Colombotantorige and T. G. Perera, of Anuradhapura and Talangama respectively, and the Rev. S. M. Simmons, to priests' orders, the two former on June 5th, 1898, and the latter on December 21st.

Growth of native ministry.

The Rev. E. T. Higgens, in a speech at Colombo on June 14th, 1898, made an interesting statement concerning the growth of the native ministry which he himself has been privileged to witness during his forty-five years of active service. When he landed in Ceylon the only native ordained clergymen of the Church of England were the Rev. Cornelius Jayesinghe and the Rev. Abraham Gunasekara, both of whom were ordained by Bishop Heber. Soon afterwards the late Canon Dias and the Rev. Cornelius Senanayake were ordained, and also the Rev. De Saram, the first chaplain of what is now known as All Saints', and the Rev. Christian David, a Tamil minister. Instead of the six ministers of forty-five years ago, there are now nearly fifty.

Missionary conferences.

The C.M.S. missionaries in South Ceylon met for the half-yearly conference at Colombo from July 5th to July 9th, 1898. The first day was occupied with devotional gatherings, the opening sermon being preached by the Rev. L. G. P. Liesching. They met again at Trinity College, Kandy, January 4th to 12th, 1899. The 4th was observed as a "quiet day," commencing with Divine service. During the day addresses were delivered by the Rev. H. C. Townsend, on "Christ the Gift of God to Man," and by the Rev. J. G. Garrett, on "Christ the Propitiation for our Sins." A third address by the Rev. J. D. Simmons was given the following morning, on "Christ our Advocate with the Father." Service was also held on the Epiphany, when the Rev. S. Coles preached the sermon. Nearly all the missionaries were present, including ladies of the C.M.S. and C.E.Z.M.S.

I. WESTERN AND SOUTHERN PROVINCES.

COLOMBO.

Colombo.

The Bishop of Colombo laid the foundation-stone of the new church at Galle Face, Colombo, in the presence of a large gathering on June 14th, 1898. The former church, the foundation-stone of which was laid by Bishop Chapman in 1853, was pulled down in consequence of its instability, owing to the fall of the west wall in 1897. The new building was dedicated by Bishop Copleston on March 18th, having been erected at a total cost of Rs. 39,000. During the rebuilding the English services were held in a schoolroom, and were conducted by the Rev. A. E. Dibben; after he left for home in March, the Rev. J. Thompson became responsible for the oversight of the congregation.

Tamil Work.

In July, 1898, the Rev. J. I. Pickford took over from Mr. Dibben the charge of the Tamil Work among the 60,000 to 70,000 people in Colombo who speak that language.

Schools.

The Boarding-schools, under Mrs. Thomas, had a successful year. There were 116 inmates, seventy of whom were boys and forty-six girls. The Government examination resulted in a larger grant than ever before being received. Two boys and one girl were baptized, one of the former belonging to an entirely heathen family. The Vernacular Schools, however, did not prosper, for in towns the parents who can afford it send their children to schools where they can learn English. A large number of such boys as do attend are Mohammedans. The Rev. R. Virasinghe is pastor of the Slave Island congregation. No adult baptism is reported in connexion with it, nor with those at Maradana and Hultsdorf, and the Christians are stated to be lacking in zeal. In the Negombo district, which is about twenty-four miles to the north of Colombo on the sea coast, two adults were baptized, and it was no uncommon thing to find Christians walking twelve and fifteen miles in order to be present when Holy Communion was administered. Evangelistic work in this district progressed favourably, and four adults and three children were received into the visible Church, the people who paid the greatest heed to the preaching of the Gospel being the coolies who work on the cocoanut estates. At Galle there was a remarkable movement towards Christianity on a tea estate, of which Mr. Pickford writes:—

A walk of twelve miles to partake of the Holy Communion.

A place built for idolatry used instead for Christian worship.

> One of the overseers, with a considerable number of men and women under his charge, was building a temple to "Muniandy," when, in consequence of the death of a child, he changed his mind, or rather his mind was changed, and he determined that the building should be a place for prayer to the one true God. The coolies quite agreed, and a considerable number have put themselves under instruction. A young man has been placed on the estate, and there is every prospect of a several people being ready for baptism shortly. The present manager of the estate says that in the course of a long experience of estate coolies he has never seen anything like it, and he quite believes in the sincerity of the people.

Miss E. S. Young and Miss A. E. M. Thomas supervised the work of the ten Bible-women in Hultsdorf, Mutwal, Marandan, Wellawatte, Slave Island, Colpetty, and the Pettah (the native quarter of Colombo). Each woman had about forty houses to visit, and in some of the houses as many as four pupils were under instruction. They met with many disappointments through the falling away of some who had been baptized, and the withdrawal of inquirers who appeared hopeful, but at the same time they were not without tokens that God's blessing was resting on their work. One day a Bible-woman visited an old Mohammedan woman who was dying, and told her about the Saviour's love. She went again later in the same day, only to find that the woman was dead, but the daughter told her that before her mother passed away, she called her and said, "I know I am dying, but I am not afraid, for I am going to God, and I shall be with Jesus, who the teacher says came to save sinners." A very touching incident which occurred while she was engaged in visiting is related by Miss Young. She says:—

A Mohammedan woman trusts in Christ on her death-bed.

A little while ago I was asked by a young Mohammedan mother, as she could not go herself, to take her baby, a child of about eight months, on Sunday morning to the Tamil service, and offer her to the Lord Jesus. The old grandmother came, bringing some money (Rs. 7) for the child to give as a thankoffering. She would have me take the child in my rickshaw. At first the child remonstrated, but I managed to pacify her and keep her good until her grandmother arrived, who took her up to the reading-desk, and the catechist read the words in St. Mark x., "Suffer the little children to come unto Me." She then held out the money tied up in a silk handkerchief, after which the old grandmother took her home. I feel sure that the Lord Jesus did receive that little child, and accept the mother's gift of her little one.

A Moslem mother presents her child to the Lord Jesus.

The Singhalese congregations, which worship in St. Luke's Church, Maradana, and Christ Church, Galle Face, were under the charge of the Rev. D. J. Perera, who is an agent of the Cotta District Church Council, of which the Rev. R. T. Dowbiggin is the chairman. Mr. Perera reports that the number of members was somewhat reduced in consequence of the rise in house rents, which obliged several families to leave the town. Notwithstanding the falling-off in the congregations, their contributions increased, and Mr. Perera mentions that a collecting-box held by one lady was found to contain no less than Rs. 65. Four adults and six children were baptized. A school building was erected in connexion with St. Luke's from funds raised in memory of the late Rev. G. T. Fleming, but up to the end of the year was only used on Sundays. The two schools for girls—the one in the Mission compound at Colombo, with an average attendance of seventy-two, and the other at Kolonnawa, a village three miles in the country—were taught by Mrs. Higgens, assisted by her second daughter. Three of the pupils of the Colombo school were baptized.

Singhalese work.

In addition to discharging the duties of the Secretariat, the Rev. E. T. Higgens superintended the Singhalese Evangelistic Work, which was carried on in the midst of not merely great, but growing opposition, concerning which Mr. Higgens writes:—

Buddhist imitation of missionary methods.

The Buddhists oppose us by imitating most of our methods of work, street-preaching, tract distribution, schools, and every other method that we employ. The opposition may, I think, be traced chiefly to the visits, for longer or shorter periods, of persons from England, America, and the Southern Colonies, who profess to be converts to Buddhism. At present there are two females in Colombo, one calling herself a Spanish countess (though I believe she is an American), who are most active in going about amongst the people. A Buddhist high-school for girls was started a year or two ago. The present principal of it is a Mrs. Higgins, from Australia. This sometimes leads to curious mistakes.

Three catechists were employed in the district and four Bible-women. Miss A. Higgens believes that there was real advance in the work, notwithstanding many hindrances. Towards the end of March, 1898, a girl to whom she had paid frequent visits became seriously ill. Once while Miss Higgens was reading to her she appeared to be greatly touched, and the next day, though scarcely able to speak, she asked for baptism, saying she did believe in and love the Saviour. Early the following morning Mr. Higgens went to see her, and finding that, although her knowledge was but limited, she appeared to have a simple trust in the Lord Jesus, he baptized her in the presence of many spectators. She passed away soon after, and was buried in the Christian cemetery, the crowd of Buddhist relations who attended the funeral behaving with perfect reverence, and listening attentively, while, by the grave-side, they were told of Him who is the Resurrection and the Life.

Translation work.

The Rev. S. Coles resided at Colombo, being engaged in translational work.

COTTA.

Cotta.

At COTTA the year was one of trial: sickness was rife in the district; the active opposition of the Buddhists, referred to in the last Report, was continued; and some of the Native Christians caused anxiety. But while the Rev. R. T. Dowbiggin confesses that "very little seems to have been done," he adds that the progress in numbers is greater than it appears to be, in consequence of the fact that many of the young people go to distant places in search of employment and become members of other congregations. There are 1,548 baptized Christians in the district, of whom about two-thirds are adults, and 514 are communicants. During the year twenty-six adults and fifty-one children were baptized, and the contributions of the people increased by Rs. 213.

Pastorates.

The Cotta and Nugegoda Pastorate is under the care of the Rev. G. S. Amarasékara, who gratefully acknowledges the help rendered by Major Mathison during his residence at Cotta while engaged in language study. Six adults, five of whom were converts from Buddhism, and nineteen children were baptized, and forty-four candidates were confirmed by the Bishop of Colombo, the number being the largest on record in this pastorate. Mr. Amarasékara speaks with thankfulness of an answer to prayer in the conversion of an aged but intelligent member of his congregation, but nevertheless describes the year under review as the most trying he has experienced. Two deaths of Native Christians occurred, one being that of a little Burgher boy, who, in his delirium, when asked whether he loved the Saviour, began to repeat the hymn, "Gentle Jesus, meek and mild." Of the 499 Christians belonging to the Talangama Pastorate, 104 are communicants, and the contributions for pastoral and missionary purposes amounted to Rs. 682.52. Services were held by the pastor, the Rev. T. G. Perera, in eight different places, and the average attendance at Divine worship on Sundays was 328, of whom 131 were adults. Five adults were baptized. Two of the converts were the fruits of school work, and a third, a young woman, was at one time a Buddhist devotee. She was married to one of the Native Christians, but at first was so scrupulous as not to attend the prayer-meetings which were held in her house. After some time her attitude completely changed, and she showed no reluctance to be present at the prayer-meetings, and later on began to attend Divine service in church. She expressed her faith in Christ, and at her own request was prepared for baptism. The Rev. W. E. Boteju reports that in spite of many difficulties the subscriptions of the Native Christians have steadily increased, so that the Mampe Pastorate was able without any special appeal, not only to raise the increased amount assessed by the District Council, but even to close the financial year with a large surplus. Much of the work was of a nature which, as is ever the case with spiritual work, cannot be registered in a statistical table, but at the same time there were some apparent tokens of success. Six adult converts were received into the visible Church, and of one of these Mr. Boteju says :—

A convert does double work on Saturdays in order to rest on Sundays.

She was a young woman born and brought up a Buddhist. She had often, while a girl at school, and more recently at our cottage meetings for Buddhists, at which she was very regular, heard of the claims of Christ, and was desirous of becoming a Christian. Her parents were unconcerned about her leaving her ancestral religion, but they had other grounds of alarm. The girl in question, by her pillow-lace making, was the main support of the family. Her parents feared that, if she became a Christian, she would not work on Sundays, and that would be much to their disadvantage. They therefore objected to her becoming a Christian, unless she was willing to make lace on Sundays. This point was, however, settled by the girl promising to make twice as much lace on Saturday ; and to this day she continues working a double portion on Saturday, so that she may rest on the Sabbath Day, and also that the family may not suffer by her embracing Christianity.

On one occasion the pastor was cheered by seeing two boys in earnest conversation with a blind beggar ; investigation showed that they were telling the mendicant about Christ, much to the joy of the poor man, who had heard of the Saviour before, but was so glad, he said, to hear about Him again. Incidents such as this enabled Mr. Boteju to state that notwithstanding all the difficulties and trials he could discern progress in almost every branch of the work.

Schools. The Schools in connexion with Cotta are of great importance, and the evangelistic work carried on amongst the young affords year by year much encouragement. Mr. Dowbiggin mentions that the grant-in-aid system constitutes in Ceylon as elsewhere a temptation to the teachers to give more attention to secular than to sacred subjects. The Buddhist opposition effected a reduction of the aggregate attendance by no less than ninety-one, the total number of scholars having been 3,526. There were eleven students in the training class for teachers. The numbers at the English School continued to increase. The education which thirty years ago was sought only by the well-to-do classes is now generally demanded, and the people are willing to pay considerable fees so as to secure for their sons the advantages which are gained by a knowledge of English. Four of the 222 boys belonging to the school were baptized during the year. The Girls' Boarding School, which is under the care of Mrs. Dowbiggin, continued its useful career without any striking incident occurring. The results of the Government examination, especially in English, were satisfactory, and an old pupil, now a teacher, a convert from Buddhism, proved herself reliable and trustworthy. Mrs. Dowbiggin is in charge of the Training Class for Bible-women, which was opened on September 1st. Six women joined it, three from the Cotta district, two from Baddêgama, and one from Kegalle.

Evangelistic Work. The Bible-women and catechists were assisted in their Evangelistic Work by a number of voluntary helpers, and through their united efforts nearly 100,000 people were reached with the Gospel message. Several baptisms resulted from this wide proclamation of the Gospel, which has now continued for several years. One was that of a young man, nineteen years of age, whose father was a great enemy of Christianity, and his sister a chief leader of the Buddhist party. On some occasions, meetings in connexion with that religion were held in his home, and he incurred much odium and abuse for refusing to take any part in them; every effort was made to draw him back to his old faith, but grace was given him to continue steadfast. Another baptism was of a young woman, the first convert to Christianity from her village. Of a third convert, Mr. Dowbiggin writes:—

A fearless, trustful convert. For two years she was longing for baptism, but her parents, relatives, and friends were all opposed to it. She prayed that the Lord would make it possible for her to be baptized, and He heard her. The parents finally said, "Though we allow this, we will not render any help in any way; you must see to all that;" and when the young woman was told, her face shone with delight. But her trials were not yet ended. When an elder brother heard of his sister's wish for baptism, he said to his mother, "You tell your daughter that when she returns to this house after her baptism, I will certainly shoot her." The mother with great grief and many tears gave the message, but the girl quietly said, "If my brother wishes it, let him shoot me; I can do nothing else." On the day fixed she came forward to confess her faith in Christ, and after the baptism went home fearlessly, and is rejoicing in the Lord.

Another interesting case was that of a Christian woman, married to a Buddhist, whose eldest girl went to one of the village schools of the Society, and there, at the age of sixteen, was baptized. On her return home, she began to read the Bible regularly to her mother and the children, and persuaded them to go to the service on Sundays. This led to violent behaviour on the part of the father, who abused and beat them; twice, on their return from service, he took away and destroyed their clothes, and three times tore up their Bibles. In spite of all they continued firm, and his efforts to persuade even the children to go to the Buddhist temple proved unavailing.

BADDÊGAMA.

Baddêgama.

The Rev. S. M. Simmons is unable to give a cheerful report of the work at BADDÊGAMA. The Christians manifested no desire to lead their heathen neighbours to Christ, and therefore it is not surprising to learn that there were only four adult baptisms during the year. There was a falling-off, too, in the number of children attending the Schools, and the results of the Government Examinations, and consequently the Government grants, were less satisfactory than in 1897. Each year one of the Gospels is made the school text-book, and thus the children are induced to buy copies, which find their way into many homes throughout the district. The number of pupils in the Girls' Boarding School fell off slightly, but the grant earned in the Government Examination, Rs. 1,248, was the highest that has been obtained since the school was started, and the results of the Diocesan Scripture Examination were even more satisfactory than usual. Miss M. S. Gedge conducted a variety of classes in Baddêgama itself, and in the immediate neighbourhood, and also visited with two of the five Bible-women who were employed in the district. She writes:—

Girls' Boarding School.

> The saddest part of the work lies in Baddêgama itself, where there are many baptized women who are only Christians in name, who never attend church, and whom you would never imagine to be Christians if you were not told. They are the hardest to reach, for they think that they know everything. We need a great revival among them, for otherwise, with such an example before them, how can you expect Buddhists even to wish to be Christians?

Nominal Christianity.

A confirmation was held in the Baddêgama Pastorate in March, 1898, when sixteen candidates were presented, all but one being boys and girls from the schools. Daily meetings for prayer and Bible study were held in the houses of various Native Christians. The Rev. G. A. B. Perera was in charge of the Balapitimodara Pastorate, and received some help from a Singhalese lady, whose husband held an important post in the district court. She conducted two classes every week, the one for children and the other for women, besides assisting with the music at the Sunday services. Christian effort in the Dodanduwa Pastorate, under the Rev. J. P. Kalpagé, was greatly aided by the presence of the European lady missionaries, Miss E. M. Josolyne and Miss H. M. Townsend. Miss Phillips, to whose labours and generosity this out-station owes so much, was absent on furlough in Australia throughout the year under review. The work of Miss Townsend consisted mainly in the study of the language, in speaking by interpretation at meetings of Christians held in their own houses, and in teaching the children in the Sunday-schools. The average attendance each Sunday was seventy-four, excluding the members of a Bible-class for the elder boys, which was conducted by Miss Josolyne. The children were not very regular in their attendance, but this was partially accounted for by the trials experienced at home by those who manifested a desire to come. Their relations spoke of them as "coming over to the religion," and subjected them to constant teasing. Sometimes they were even told that if they became Christians they would not be counted as belonging to the family. The Industrial School had a slightly diminished number of pupils, the average daily attendance during the best five months of the year having been sixty. The Government Inspector examined the school in March. All the seventy-one children who were presented passed, and a grant of Rs. 710 was received. Two of the lace-teachers connected with the school showed much earnestness in attending the Bible-classes, and appear to be ready for baptism, but the possibility of their being married to heathen husbands has prevented them from being actually baptized. Miss Josolyne writes of a young woman, a catechumen, whose brother was a Christian, and who met with ridicule from her friends because of the steady perseverance she manifested in her efforts to learn the Creed. Her mother, a Buddhist, told the Bible-woman one day that there was one thing to be said about the Christians, and that was, that however much they were scolded, or spoken against, or beaten, they always bore it patiently! Similar testimony was borne by another woman, herself, with her father and daughter, under instruction, who remarked that the Christian religion must be right, because the lives of Christians were so much better than those of others. Increasing difficulty was experienced in the conduct of the Dodanduwa Industrial School.

Pastorates.

Patience of Christians.

Village Work, owing in part to a mission which the Buddhists held in the district, and in part to the plumbago mines, at which many of the women and girls, and even children, were employed.

The Evangelistic Work in the Baddêgama district was carried on by the ten catechists and three Bible-women, who laboured in the midst of, "humanly speaking, insurmountable difficulties," arising largely from the fewness of the workers. Mr. Simmons remarks that as he looks upon the district and the workers, he feels that the field is occupied for the Lord about as effectively as Major Marchand held Fashoda for France. Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Carus-Wilson went in October to reside at Bentotte, concerning which the former writes:— District quite inadequately manned.

> It is almost the principal stronghold of Buddhism, though Buddhism so-called has but little hold on the people, and as far as morals are concerned no hold at all. Though Buddha forbade the use of strong drink, arrack taverns and distilleries are multiplying, and the desire for drink is spreading to an alarming extent. Though Buddha forbade the taking of life, and some of them may refrain from animal destruction (after a kind), yet murder is rife. Morality is feeble indeed, and the priests are too often the leaders in all kinds of evil. Stronghold of Buddhism.

II. CENTRAL PROVINCES.

KANDY.

The Revs. H. P. Napier-Clavering and R. W. Ryde have sent a joint Annual Letter concerning the work at Trinity College, Kandy. The numbers in the boarding-house increased considerably, and both there and in the day-school it was felt to be wise to contemplate further building extension. His Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor kindly presided at the distribution of prizes in July, when it was stated that although the examination results had not been quite so satisfactory as was hoped, yet there were some successes to be recorded. In the Calcutta University Entrance Examination, the only first class gained by Ceylon students was won by a member of the College, which passed more lads than ever before; while in the Senior Cambridge Local Examination one of the boys gained the mark of distinction in Physiology and Hygiene, and in the Junior, two obtained third-class honours. The members of the College spontaneously started a Y.M.C.A., and held a meeting every Sunday during term time. No baptisms took place during the year under review, although the hope was entertained, when the Annual Letter was written, that one lad who had given proof of his sincerity would shortly be baptized. At the same time, signs were not lacking that a good work was going on in the hearts of Trinity College, Kandy.

Unbaptized schoolboys describe themselves as Christians.

the students, and mention is made of two nominally Buddhist boys, who when entering for a public examination described their religion as "Christian." A growing belief in the value and power of prayer was manifested by several of the Christian lads, who joined with the missionaries and the boarding-house masters every day in intercession for their companions. Prayer naturally leads to work, and it is not surprising to hear that some of the senior boys began to second the efforts of the masters, and to try to help their fellow-countrymen who were less favoured than themselves with opportunities of hearing the Gospel. Eighteen candidates were confirmed by Bishop Copleston on July 14th. Sir T. Fowell Buxton paid a visit to the College in October.

Singhalese women inquirers.

Miss A. M. Denyer, who had Miss A. L. Earp, of the South Africa Association, as her colleague, was on the whole encouraged in her work among the Singhalese Women. She speaks of the "tremendous opposition between good and evil in Kandy," but at the same time is able to refer to some individual cases which afforded reason for hope. Among them was a jailer's wife, who had learned to read, and was asking for baptism, and a woman, "a strong Buddhist," whose son Miss Denyer was the means of restoring to health.

The pastorate attached to Trinity Church, Kandy, was under the care of the Rev. H. Gunasékara, who was assisted by two pastoral catechists. At two of the out-stations, Katukele and Gaetembe, special services were held at the beginning of 1898; with the result that the attendance at the Sunday services increased, and the amount of the collections was greater than in the previous year. At a third out-station, Gampola, an opposition school was started, the opening ceremony being attended by some Europeans, who had come to Ceylon as teachers of Buddhism, and expressed their determination to empty the Christian school. At first it appeared as though they might accomplish their object, for about twenty-five children left; but the falling-off in the attendance was only temporary, and before long the number on the roll of the Society's school was greater than ever. Nine adults were baptized in the pastorate during the year, and thirty confirmed.

European teachers of Buddhism.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. in Kandy consists of three ladies, who carry on the Clarence Memorial School, and have two native teachers associated with them.

KANDIAN SINGHALESE ITINERANCY.

Singhalese Itinerancy.

The Rev. H. E. Heinekey, who resided at Kandy, superintended the work of the Singhalese Itinerancy in the South-Eastern District until the return of the Rev. J. G. Garrett in December, soon after which both Mr. and Mrs. Heinekey were ordered to Europe. There was much sickness in the neighbourhood of Urugala, the mortality among children being especially heavy, but it did not have the effect of diminishing the prevalent opposition, and in some cases the children who wished to attend the Sunday-school were forbidden by their parents to do so. At Peradeniya, where the Bishop confirmed seven candidates, two adults and three children were baptized. A confirmation was also held at Hangurankette, two candidates being presented. In a neighbouring village, a whole family, consisting of the father, mother, daughter, and two children, embraced Christianity, and were baptized in November, 1897; three of them were confirmed by the Bishop eight months later. The catechist at Pussellawa and Kotmale was cheered by the liberality of the converts, and by the readiness which some of them displayed to bear their witness to their heathen neighbours. One man spent Rs. 10 in tracts against Buddhism, and gave them to the catechist for circulation. The wife of the latter was instrumental in leading to the Saviour a woman who for twelve years had persistently opposed Christianity; she came regularly to the services, and spoke to others about Christ, but, as is so often the case, was afraid to be baptized. In another village the registrar, a man formerly unwilling to listen to the truth, at length confessed that there is a Creator, a fact which Buddhists deny, and with his younger brother was eager for instruction. The Bishop confirmed three candidates at Pussellawa in July, 1898. The C.M.S. had eighteen female teachers in the district until August, but in that month the girls' schools were handed over to the C.E.Z.M.S., which has three lady missionaries, two Bible-women, and one native teacher engaged in village work.

Earnestness of Native Christians.

The Northern District of the Itinerancy, as well as the South-Eastern, was supervised by Mr. Heinekey. In July, Major G. H. T. Mathison, having passed his final language examination, was appointed to the Lower Dumbara District, which lies north of Kandy, and contains 140 villages, with a population of 44,000, and took up his residence at Wattegama. Evangelistic meetings were at once commenced, and although the district is a hard one in which to work, two inquirers soon came forward and were placed under regular instruction. The attendances at the open-air services were satisfactory, and although the people at times showed a disposition to argue, a respectful hearing was the rule rather than the exception. Two men and five women were confirmed in July. Miss Denyer did some work among the women in the neighbourhood, and she and Miss Earp also paid several visits to Waterpullawa, a village about two and a half miles from Kandy, where a substantial girls' school was built, in which an evangelistic meeting was held every alternate Sunday. On one occasion as many as sixty women were present, one of whom at least was called upon to suffer persecution because of her persistent attendance. A small school for boys is maintained by Trinity College, Kandy, in which some of the students hold a meeting for men every week. At Talawa, the wife of the Catechist and one other woman were confirmed. Anuradhapura is a sacred city of the Buddhists, and an important centre for work, since during a portion of the year pilgrimages are made to it from all parts of the island. The Rev. J. Colombotantorige, the pastor, who was married three days after his ordination as priest (see supra, page 295), reports a steady growth in the subscriptions of the members of his congregation. Ten of them were confirmed by the Bishop of Colombo on the occasion of his visit to consecrate the Church of England portion of the cemetery. One of those confirmed was a convert from Romanism, who was influenced by a prayer-meeting held in a Christian family. The distribution of tracts, and the preaching in the villages, the hospital, and the gaol, were continued. At one time some of the prisoners refused to listen to Mr. Colombotantorige, because, at their request, a Buddhist priest was preaching to them every Sunday. Six months, however, sufficed to exhaust the patience of the priest, and the field was left to the native pastor. The gaol was also visited by the Tamil evangelist; one man expressed his gratitude for the addresses which were given, and at the expiration of his term of imprisonment frequently went to the catechist for further instruction. By the help of the British and Foreign Bible Society Mr. Heinekey was enabled to employ four Bible-women, one to work among the Tamil women at Anuradhapura, and the others to endeavour to reach the Singhalese women in various villages.

Preaching in the gaol.

The Rev. L. G. P. Liesching, who was in charge of the WESTERN DISTRICT of the Itinerancy, commences his Annual Letter by saying: "While the past year has not been one of stirring events or great outward progress, it may, I think, truly be described as one of steady development and consolidation." The number of children attending the various schools—twenty in all—showed a slight falling-off, but in every other respect there was cause for satisfaction. Great efforts were made to give thorough and systematic Bible instruction, and much interest was shown by the children in preparing for the Scripture examination. The first book of Samuel was taught in 1898, and Mr. Liesching says:—

Buddhist children's love of Bible stories.

> Never before have I so fully realized that Samuel is, as a writer in a recent number of the Life of Faith called it, the "Children's Book." My five simple questions and three texts have again and again elicited written answers covering both sides of three slates, which, from the minuteness of the details reproduced, have shown how the stories of Samuel's early life, of Saul's asses, of David's anointing and fight with the giant, &c., &c., have become part of the bone and sinews of these outwardly heathen children. The success is the more noticeable because there is no chance at present of procuring the Books of Samuel as a Scripture portion in Singhalese, and but few children possess the whole Bible.

For some time past candidates have been annually sent up to the examination for teachers' licences held by the Director of Public Instruction, but without success, excepting in the case of those who had the advantage of some training at Cotta. In 1898, however, three men who went up direct from the district were successful, two of them gaining first-class licences. One of these was the son of a village Christian, and is probably the only man of that social rank who has ever gained so high an educational distinction. Six pupils left the Girls' Boarding School in Kegalle during the year. Two of them were baptized while in the school, and afterwards married Christian men; a third appeared to be a true believer, but it was feared that her father, a staunch Buddhist, would oppose her baptism. The school was instituted primarily for the daughters of high-class Kandyans, but since they failed to appreciate the advantages of a good education, a new departure was made by the admission of a child belonging to one of the lower castes, a girl who was engaged to be married to the young catechist mentioned on page 310 of last year's Annual Report as "showing grit." The English and Singhalese congregations in Kegalle were under the care of the Rev. F. W. Daundesekera, the native pastor. He mentions with regret that he is unable to speak of any growth of the missionary spirit among his people, and attributes the lack of it to the existing conservatism which leads them to consider it as beneath their dignity to have much to do with those whom they regard as inferior to themselves in social position. Some of the Christians manifested their resolution to keep holy the Sabbath-day, among them a young surveyor, of whom Mr. Daundesekera writes as follows:—

Village Christians obtain teachers' licences.

> When he first came into this district he began his surveying quite irrespective of days—it was all the same to him whether it was Sunday or any other day of the week. His sole object was to finish the block of land he had in hand, and to rush on into another, as delay meant so much both money lost and time wasted to himself and his coolies. But things could not go on very long in this way, for, being a Christian, his conscience began to prick him, and he was led, I believe with the guidance of the Holy Spirit, to see how wrong he had been, and at once determined to abandon his Sunday work at all costs. When he conveyed this intention to his coolies they began to murmur, as they would be obliged to go without their wages for that day, and said that they could not work with him. Then he explained to them how it was necessary that they all should have a day of rest, and further, to put an end to their murmurings, he promised to pay them half the day's wages out of his own pocket for no work done in order to observe the Sunday as a day of rest. And now on Sunday he ceases from his labours, and passes it, often very quietly, in his tent. I hope this wholesome example will have its proper effect upon his coolies.

Observance of the Sabbath.

Besides the two girls of the boarding-school, whose baptism has already been referred to, a Singhalese woman of rather high position was baptized. The congregation suffered a severe loss through the death of the last of the four original trustees of the church, of whom the Bishop wrote :—"Our Church has no more loyal member, as far as I could tell; but she has not lost him; he belongs to her still, though occupied in a higher and happier sphere." Eleven candidates were confirmed in August, and at the same time the Bishop kindly gave an address at the half-yearly meeting of the Gleaners' Union. The pastoral catechist at Kurunegala, before taking charge of the pastorate in 1887, was warned by a doctor of the unhealthiness of the district; but when he hesitated to undertake the work, the late Rev. J. Allcock, who died at Kandy the following year, said to him, "Kurunegala is not excluded in 'Go ye into all the world.'" During the time which has since elapsed, he and his family have been preserved in health, and he has witnessed an increase in the number of Christians from eighty-seven to 132, of communicants from forty-three to sixty-five, and of native contributions from Rs. 257 to Rs. 780. This growth in liberality was manifested all over the district, even at Talampitiya, where the new catechist worked with much zeal and devotion; the Christians, for the first time in their history, began to give regular monthly contributions. The evangelistic work presented no new features, and there did not appear to be any genuine spirit of inquiry, but Mr. Liesching relates the following incident :—

Growth in liberality.

An aged convert.

A very old man, reduced to beggary at the end of his life, was found by Mrs. Liesching when visiting with our excellent Bible-woman here in Kegalle. He had been in past years a Government peon, or messenger, and had continually heard the Gospel in the open air. It was not, however, till he was reduced to poverty, in consequence of an accident to his leg, that the Gospel Message was really brought home to him. He was wonderfully receptive, and ready to confess he had been a great sinner. I deferred baptism that he might be more fully instructed, and meanwhile the Jesuit priest, who had been most energetically opposing our educational work, was brought in surreptitiously by some Roman Catholic relatives of the old man, and baptized him, telling him he could not otherwise be saved. He was really forced into it, and when what had been done to him was afterwards explained, he refused to have anything more to do with the Church of Rome, or to go to their Home for the Aged in Colombo. He is now in the Victoria Home for Incurables, where he will be visited and looked after by our Colombo missionaries.

TAMIL COOLIE MISSION.

Tamil Coolie Mission.

The same three missionaries as were mentioned in last year's Report superintended the extensive work of the Tamil Coolie Mission, viz., the Rev. J. Ilsley, the Rev. W. Welchman, and the Rev. J. D. Simmons.

The KOTAGALA DISTRICT is under the Rev. J. Ilsley. Two schools were closed in consequence of a change of superintendents of the estates on which they were situated, and a third passed from the management of the Mission; but others were opened in their stead. The educational work was instrumental in reaching some adults as well as the children, for the latter acted as little missionaries, and repeated to their parents the Scripture truths which they learned in school. Considerable difficulty was experienced in caring for the Native Christians, owing to the vast area of the district, which rendered it impossible for Holy Communion to be administered at each of the fifteen centres more often than once in four months. Mr. Ilsley, however, hoped that the senior catechist, who when he wrote his Annual Letter was in training at Trinity College, Kandy, would shortly be ordained, and thus be able to assist in the administration of the Sacraments. The remaining catechists, nineteen in number, were urged to the diligent study of the Bible and Prayer-Book; they are described as "a band of God-fearing, earnest men." November 27th to November 30th were observed as Days of Intercession on behalf of Foreign Missions, and special addresses were delivered, urging not only to prayer, but also to self-sacrifice. An immediate and gratifying result was a contribution of £126 to the C.M.S. Centenary Fund, which Mr. Ilsley says afforded him more pleasure than would have been given by one ten times as large for merely local purposes. The spiritual tone of the Native Christians, though not all that could be desired, yet appeared higher than in former days. Of one man the catechist reported that whenever he was visited all his conversation was of a spiritual nature, and that his blameless life was a daily sermon; and of another, that the "new birth," the "fruits of the Spirit," and "everlasting life," were the topics he loved to discuss. Some of the converts, too, engaged in active and aggressive work for Christ, but unfortunately they were exceptions to the general rule. The usual method pursued in the conduct of the evangelistic work on the various estates, from 500 to 600 in number, is to give an address at six o'clock in the morning on the muster ground, where the coolies assemble before going forth to their daily work, and in the evening to engage in personal dealing with individuals or with small groups of men in the lines where the coolies live. Little or no opposition was experienced, and the catechists, each of whom works on about thirty estates, were the means of leading many to a knowledge of Christ. Twenty-nine adults were baptized, concerning some of whom Mr. Ilsley writes:—

Generous gift to Centenary Fund.

Converts: a Sivite, formerly a missionary pupil in Tinnevelly,

P. is a young Tamil trader. He was a Sivite, and before his conversion he was bold like his parents in the Hindu religion. He is a man of some ability, having been educated in one of the Tinnevelly Mission schools. His father and other relatives of his are the leading people connected with the small Hindu temple in their village, so, naturally, they objected to his leaning towards the Christian teaching. However, the little he learned as a child at school was sufficient to induce him to learn more here in Ceylon. Frequently he heard the Gospel preached in front of his shop, and bought several religious books from the catechist, who also supplied him with a copy of the Gospel according to St. Matthew. One day, immediately after the street preaching, he said he wished to be taught more about Christ's religion, and promised to attend the Sunday services in the church. He told the catechist he was certain that Christianity was the true religion, and that salvation could only be obtained by it. After this he went regularly to church, and having given evidence of his earnestness and sincerity, he was baptized. When he was under preparation for baptism, he wrote to his parents acquainting them with the fact. Their reply was that they were sure some evil would befall him for worshipping a strange God. They tried to terrorize him, and when this failed they began to use entreaties. But he was firm, and his answer to their threats and prophecies of evil was—"My trust is in the living God."

a Jaffna Hindu, a former opponent;

From another part of the district comes the story of the conversion of an educated Jaffna Hindu. He is well instructed in the tenets of Hinduism, having attended a Hindu school. His great delight was in speaking against Christianity, and in bringing forward all the arguments he could against it. The catechist frequently saw him, and had quiet, earnest conversation and prayer with him. He never lost an opportunity of pressing the claims of Christ. And thus the opponent became an inquirer, and the inquirer eventually became a disciple. He was baptized in October.

In one case at least we have entered upon another man's labour. The instance referred to is that of a young Tamil from the neighbourhood of Coimbatur. He knows English sufficiently well to translate from English into Tamil, and for this purpose he was engaged by someone in India, presumably an English clergyman, to help him in his work. The heathen translator was much interested in the message he was delivering, and eventually became an inquirer. Possibly the death of the good man who engaged him as an interpreter was a factor in his wishing to become a Christian. At any rate, he made known his wish to his parents, both of whom were very much opposed to it, going so far as to threaten violence if he persisted in his desire to become a Christian. His resolution, however, could not be shaken, and as he felt that his remaining in his native place would be a hindrance to his confessing Christ in baptism, he came to Ceylon. He was engaged for some time as a schoolmaster, and kept a small school on his own account here in Dimbula. After being duly prepared, and giving evidence at the time of his baptism of his sincerity, he was admitted to be a member of Christ's Church, and up to the time he left this district he was living an exemplary life. He is now a schoolmaster in a Government school.

The KANDY DISTRICT, with eighteen congregations scattered over an area of 2,500 square miles, was superintended by the Rev. W. Welchman (now at home), who welcomed the Rev. H. C. Townsend as his colleague on the latter's arrival in May, 1898.

Mission services for Tamils at Kandy.

The special feature of the work among the Tamils in Kandy itself was a Mission held by the Rev. T. Walker, of Tinnevelly, in November, 1897. He conducted a series of services for the Mission agents, dwelling chiefly on the work of the Holy Spirit in the hearts of Christians, and Mr. Welchman says:—

> It was a time of much blessing, and many of our fellow-workers felt they had received a fresh insight into Divine truth and a real help in their spiritual life. We cannot look back upon the happy, holy time without feelings of the deepest thankfulness.

Mr. Townsend speaks of several men in connexion with the street preaching in the town, who confessed their belief in the truth of Christianity, but were kept from embracing it by a fear of the consequences. Miss Finney devoted her energies to the work among women, and spent several hours every day in visiting with the four Bible-women. She also superintended the lace and embroidery school, which was mentioned in last year's Report (page 312), and has since been registered by the Government as a grant-in-aid industrial school. There were twenty other Schools in the district at the end of September, which were attended by more than 800 children; during the last four years the Government grant has increased from Rs. 481 to Rs. 2,070. Of the value of this form of missionary effort Mr. Welchman remarks:— Industrial school.

> The longer I remain out here the more I feel that, notwithstanding all its special difficulties and discouragements, school work is the most important evangelistic agency that can be employed. The lessons learnt are repeated in the homes of the children, and one of the most interesting cases of conversion in connexion with the work in this district, was that of a conductor, who became convinced of the truth of our religion through hearing his little daughter repeat the words of the Gospel which she had been taught at school. Importance of school work.

The Out-stations were under the charge of the catechists, but Mr. Welchman frequently visited them, and received great kindness at the hands of the planters. Thirteen adults were baptized, but in no instance were the conversions attended by any striking circumstances. All those baptized had gradually been led to believe in Christ as the Son of God: some had learned the Gospel at school, others had heard it in India, and one or two had been adopted into Christian families and had there begun to grasp the message of salvation. Eighty-one men and women were confirmed in September. Some of the Christians gave way to intemperance, a vice which is increasing rapidly among the Tamils, but on the other hand there were many signs of real spiritual life. One which gave cause for special thankfulness was the increase in the contributions for religious purposes. The amount subscribed was larger by more than Rs. 400 than that in 1897, and the Native Missionary Association, which in 1894 only supported one catechist, in 1898 defrayed the expenses of three. Mr. Welchman concludes his Annual Letter with a request for prayer couched in the following terms:—

> I would ask all who may read this letter to pray earnestly for the work. It is carried on under circumstances of great difficulty, and we who are engaged in it feel deeply the need of very special heavenly grace, not only for ourselves, but for our fellow-workers and for the Christians, whose temptations are so many, whose opportunities are so few. Request for prayer.

The Rev. J. D. Simmons is in charge of the work in the HAPUTALE DISTRICT, but feels that his strength is not adequate for the wearying journeys which the supervision of the district demands. His experiences were of a varied nature. One of the seven schools had to be closed because the attendance was so small, and several of the inquirers of whom good hopes had been entertained proved disappointing, and turned back to their old ways; but, on the other hand, there were some promising individual cases, including a head overseer on one of the estates, and a Brahman widow who as a child attended a Mission school in Benares, and there imbibed a desire for Christianity which has remained with her ever since. In 1897 there were no baptisms in the district, but during the year under review Mr. Simmons felt justified in receiving six adults into the visible Church. All of these continued steadfast. One of them cheerfully bore considerable persecution at the hands of his relations, and another manifested a real desire to tell others of his newly-found Saviour. The agents working at a distance were twice assembled for prayer and Bible study, and those who were near enough came to Mr. Simmons every week while he was at home for a similar purpose.

III. NORTHERN PROVINCE.

Nellore.

THE Rev. H. Horsley continues in charge of the work in the Jaffna Peninsula. The workers in NELLORE were cheered by a visit from the Bishop of Colombo, and also by a retrospect of the Mission which was made at the time of the celebration of the golden wedding of Mr. Fry, a prominent member of the Native Church. When he was married there were only seven Christians as the result of nineteen years of work, whereas in 1898 there were 1,357. The Girls' Boarding School was managed by Miss K. Heaney until she left for England in September. Three of the pupils were baptized, and there were others who desired to publicly confess themselves to be Christians. Miss Heaney states that during the past five years no girl has left the school who would not have been glad to be baptized if only the way had been open. The Vernacular Schools in the district, numbering sixty-six, earned Government grants exceeding those of the previous year by Rs. 1,417, but it was felt that many of the masters were lacking both in Bible knowledge and also in spiritual power. With a view to remedying this, systematic teaching was given by the Rev. C. T. Williams, of Kokoville, and the masters were twice examined in Scripture by Mr. Horsley. Eighteen adults were added to the Church by baptism, the attention of one having first been directed to Christianity by the perusal of a small catechism, taught in the schools, which belonged to his little brother.

Schools.

St. John's College, Chundicully.

The Rev. J. Carter, the Principal of St. John's College, CHUNDICULLY, states that the number of names on the books increased from 261 to 275 during the year, and that six boys passed the Calcutta University Entrance Examination, four others failing in one subject only. Two students were baptized in December, 1897, and two more at the close of 1898, and twelve were confirmed by the Bishop on the occasion of his visit in February of the latter year. The Girls' English High School, which was opened in 1896, made steady progress, the number of pupils rising from thirty-nine to sixty-two. At the close of the year Miss Goodchild became associated with Mrs. Carter* in teaching the girls, one of whom was baptized in October. The Congregation was under the charge of the veteran native pastor, the Rev. G. Champion, who celebrated his golden wedding in the course of the year under review. He mentions the case of a young man who was brought to Christ by reading the New Testament, and lent the book to his mother, with the result that she too became a Christian. Miss L. A. Case conducted a class for children and young women in the low-caste quarter of Copay, and also accompanied the Bible-women on their rounds.

She considers that there was marked advance in the intelligent grasp of Christianity shown by many of those among whom she laboured.

Miss Saul, who had her headquarters at Pallai, which is situated in the jungle, twenty-five miles from Jaffna, visited the surrounding villages, and assisted in the bazaar preaching in her immediate neighbourhood. In September she went to Vavoniya Valanculam in the Wannie, and was enabled to proclaim the good news to the people who flocked to see a European lady. The Rev. J. Backus, the pastor of Pallai, also itinerated in the district, and generally received a warm welcome, even in remote villages.

* The news of Mrs. Carter's death on June 8th is received as these pages go to press.

MAURITIUS MISSION.

Though geographically more nearly connected with Africa, the little island of Mauritius is, in a missionary sense, a dependency of India. Two-thirds of the population are immigrants from Bengal and South India, brought hither to work on the sugar plantations; and among these are labouring Bengali and Tamil-speaking missionaries, whose work has been much blessed. Over 5,000 have been baptized, the majority of whom have returned to their own country. The Mission has owed much to successive Bishops of Mauritius, especially to Dr. Ryan, Dr. Royston, and Dr. Walsh. The present Bishop, Dr. Pym, was consecrated in 1898.

THE Right Rev. Dr. Walsh, whose resignation of the See of Mauritius was mentioned in last year's Report, has been succeeded by the Right Rev. Dr. W. Ruthven Pym, who was previously Vicar of Rotherham. Peculiar difficulties confront those who labour in the island, for the educational policy of the local government inflicts disabilities upon Mission-schools; the Church has suffered severe monetary losses in recent years; and the difficulty of obtaining men and means is great.

Deaths of Mrs. H. D. Buswell,

The Mission suffered a grievous loss by the death, on May 1st, 1899, of Mrs. H. D. Buswell. She went out to Mauritius as Miss Wilkinson in 1896, and was married to Archdeacon H. D. Buswell in the following year. She was a daughter of the late Rev. J. Wilkinson, a member of the Committee, and a sister of the Rev. D. H. D. Wilkinson, a Secretary of the Society.

and of the Rev. F. Schurr.

A former member of the staff of the Mission died at Hattenhof, in Germany, in the person of the Rev. F. Schurr. Trained at the Basle Seminary and the Church Missionary College, he went out to India as an ordained missionary in 1845, and laboured at different stations in that country for twenty-eight years. He was transferred to Mauritius in 1874, and eight years later was placed on the retired staff of the Mission. He, however, continued at work, until in 1884 his complete disablement obliged him to return to Germany, after thirty-six years of active service.

The Rev. and Mrs. V. W. Harcourt returned to England in October, 1898, and the Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Finnimore in December.

Archdeacon H. D. Buswell, with the assistance of the Rev. S. S. Singh, the native pastor, and several catechists, proclaimed the Gospel in the villages in the neighbourhood of

Rose Belle

ROSE BELLE, but were not permitted to see many results of their work. As a general rule the people listened to the preaching most readily, and consented to all that was said, but it was only in rare instances that there appeared to be any conviction of sin, or real anxiety to find the way of salvation. Three adult inquirers, however, came forward, and were put under instruction. The Archdeacon gives a typical case illustrating the difficulty in carrying on the work which is caused by the number of languages spoken in the island. He writes:—

In one of the churches which I visited the service was supposed to be in Tamil. There were about 110 present, more than half being under eighteen years of age. Probably ten would have understood a very simple address in English or even in French; perhaps twenty would have understood a simple address in Hindi, at the most thirty would have made something of an address in Tamil. Fifteen or twenty at the most could follow the prayers in Tamil, one half could have done so—did so, in fact—in English, having been trained to follow in English at school. The prayers were partly in Tamil and partly in English, and it was not difficult to hear that the responses were given in both languages. The hymns were chosen from both the Tamil and English hymn-books, and were sung in both languages at the same time. Services in two languages

The year under review was noteworthy at the Girls' School and Orphanage for the erection of a new dormitory, which was successfully accomplished by the end of December, 1898. Governor and Lady Bruce attended at the distribution of prizes in the previous March, and his Excellency acknowledged the claims of the Institution for a grant-in-aid, but pleaded the poverty of the Government as a reason for its being withheld. There were three cases of serious illness, but happily all the children recovered. The late Mrs. Buswell, who managed the school, wrote with thankfulness in her Annual Letter that there were signs that the Holy Spirit was blessing the work. Confirmation classes were commenced in Lent, and ten of the children, after long and careful teaching, expressed their desire to ratify the vows made in their behalf when they were baptized.

The Work among Women proceeded on the usual lines under the supervision of Miss H. A. Wilkinson. Eleven meetings were held every month in different parts of the island for the Christian women who were urged to attend by the Bible-women, seven in number, who were at work. The average attendance at each meeting was 150. The Dispensary attracted numbers of people, and in one place resulted in some thirty Hindu women being present at the meetings for Christians; these waited patiently until the Creole address had been given and Miss Wilkinson was free to speak and sing to them in Hindi. Special prayer is asked for the Native Christians, of whom it is said, in the words of the beautiful Collect for the fourth Sunday after the Epiphany, that "they are set in the midst of so many and great dangers, that by reason of the frailty of their nature they cannot always stand upright," and that they sorely need "that strength and protection, which alone can support them in all dangers, and carry them through all temptations." Work among Women. Dispensary.

The Rev. V. W. Harcourt was in charge of the Boys' School and Orphanage at PLAISANCE until he left for home in September, 1898, when his place was taken by Miss M. L. Penley. There were forty-five boarders and twenty day scholars. Two of the elder lads failed in their efforts to gain masters' certificates, but the rest of the boys, with but two exceptions, passed their annual examination. Mr. Harcourt refers with thankfulness to the Boys' Orphanage.

sturdy independence of character manifested by the Native Christians.

Beau Bassin. The Rev. C. A. Blackburn experienced many trials during the year at BEAU BASSIN. He met with a serious accident, which eventually necessitated three operations, and prolonged inactivity; and although he was able to recommence work in March, 1898, several months elapsed before he was completely restored to health. The Roman Catholic priests drew away many of the converts by offers of temporal advantages; and some of the Native Christians were injuriously affected by mixing with the degraded and vicious Creoles of the place. The number of baptisms fell off; but the evangelistic meetings were carried on in spite of the disadvantages involved by the lack of well-qualified native agents. Conferences and lectures made some stir among the Mohammedans, and there were signs that brighter days were at hand.

Pastorates The Pastorates were supervised by the same clergy as were mentioned in last year's Report. The Rev. S. Susunkar, of the Port Louis Pastorate, speaks of six inquirers, one of whom, an ex-soldier, came to England on the occasion of the Diamond Jubilee. During his sojourn in this country he received some impressions of Christian truth, which led him on his return to his native island to put himself under instruction with a view to baptism. The Christians of the Northern Pastorate responded well to the appeal made by the Rev. J. Ernest in behalf of the Society's Centenary Fund. In the North Central Pastorate, under the Rev. I. F. Chorley, twenty-three adult baptisms took place, and the five Sunday-schools continued their useful work.

CHINA.

Both as concerns her domestic affairs, and also her relations with other, and especially European Powers, the year was one of change for the Celestial Empire. The attempts, referred to in last year's Report, which were successfully made by Germany and Russia to obtain "spheres of influence" in China, followed by the concession to France of a lease of Kwang-Chau-Wau, on the Lei-Chau peninsula, opposite Hainan, led to a general expression of fear in this country lest Great Britain should be shut out from some of the most important markets of the world. Stimulated, no doubt, by the feeling to which utterance was given, the Government carried on negotiations by means of which they eventually obtained possession not only of Wei-Hai-Wei, which is situated to the east of Che-Foo in the Province of Shan-Tung, and which was one of the principal naval stations of China during the war with Japan, but also of a small piece of the mainland, in addition to that already occupied, opposite the island of Hong Kong. In order to preserve the appearance of the integrity of the Chinese Empire, these territories, like those of the other European Powers, are held under the novel and agreeable fiction of a lease. Efforts to obtain concessions and facilities for the construction of railways proceeded simultaneously with those which had as their object the acquirement of territory, and various lines were prospected which may conveniently be regarded as belonging to the northern, central, and southern zones respectively. In the northern zone a line is to run from Tien-Tsin to Chin-Kiang, and is to be constructed by Anglo-German finance; in the central zone there is to be a railway from Pekin to Han-Kau, controlled ostensibly by a Belgian syndicate; while in the southern zone a line constructed by French capital is in contemplation from the south bank of the Yang-Tsze to Canton, and in addition a British syndicate has obtained permission to construct a short railway from Kow-Loon (which is on the mainland opposite to Hong Kong) also to Canton.

Concessions of territory to Foreign Powers.

Railway concessions.

The young Emperor of China, actuated doubtless by a sincere desire for the welfare of his country, and influenced by a little party of Chinese statesmen who realized the necessity of radical reforms in the fiscal, judicial, and executive branches of government, issued during the year 1898 a number of edicts initiating important changes. Possibly these were promulgated too abruptly and were premature. Certainly the Emperor had not accurately measured the strength of the resistance which they were calculated to provoke. He was quickly enlightened on this point. In September (1898) the energetic Dowager-Empress, then in her sixty-fifth year, by a remarkable coup d'état once more installed herself as co-Regent; compelled the Imperial edicts.

Dowager-Empress resumes power.

Emperor to issue decrees rescinding all measures of reform initiated by him; and ordered the arrest of his liberal councillors, six of whom were executed and two banished, while two contrived to escape. She then declared herself in favour of a policy of moderate reforms, and proceeded to set a startling new precedent by receiving at the Palace the wives of the Foreign Ministers.

Local insurrections.

While these changes were taking place, parts of the country were in more or less active rebellion. In the Province of Kwei-Chow, Mr. W. S. Fleming, a missionary of the China Inland Mission, was murdered at Panghai in the autumn of 1898. An organized insurrection occurred in the Province of Ngan-Hwei, while in the Province of Si-Chuan there were not only isolated and independent acts of mob violence, but also more systematic efforts to expel all foreigners. At three stations of other Societies the Mission-houses were destroyed during the year by riots, and the life of one native worker was taken by the brutality of the mob. But Bishop Cassels, who refers in detail to the troubles in his Annual Letter, compares such disturbances to a passing summer storm, which breaks violently on some exposed spot, and then goes on its way leaving things to resume their normal aspect. A far more serious matter was the fully organized anti-foreign outbreak which occurred, with the avowed object of sweeping Christianity out of the Province of Si-Chuan, and which appeared, humanly speaking, to possess sufficient power to accomplish its purpose. Bishop Cassels writes of this :—

> The leader of this movement, Mr. Yü, is an old offender, who has earned for himself the name of the "fierce," or "wild man." Some years ago he was in conflict with the French Roman Catholics, and having been worsted in the encounter, vowed to avenge himself when an opportunity should arise. Personally, he is an illiterate man, the owner of some coal mines and small iron works; but he has, it appears, associated with himself others, some of whom are scholars who have won high degrees.
> Mr. Yü is also said to be in league with a secret society which has its ramifications all through this province; and it is probably by this agency that his anti-Christian placards, which proclaim his intention of killing all the foreigners, have been circulated and posted so widely in the cities and markets of the province. His own immediate followers, who are well drilled, armed, and in uniform, number several thousand; but it is said that there are many more who are favourable to him, though they have not yet openly joined his standard. The policy which he has adopted of refraining from deeds of violence against any but Christians has earned for him the favour of many of the officials and people, who would otherwise have repudiated him as a rebel.

Attack on Roman Catholic Missions in Si-Chuan.

Hitherto the demonstration has been confined chiefly to Roman Catholic Missions, which have large numbers of adherents in the region in which he is carrying on his operations. It is reported that some twenty of these Mission chapels have been destroyed, and that thousands of their members are now destitute, their houses burned and their lands and property taken possession of. It is also supposed that two or three score Roman Catholics have been killed, and it is known that in some cases they have been beheaded on refusing to recant. The French priest who was captured by Yü is kept as a hostage, making it very difficult for the officials to know how to deal with the uprising for fear of causing his death.

There has been a good deal of anxiety in some of the stations in this district. In one country station in the hills particularly it was known that a band of armed men, said to be connected with Yü, were lurking in the neighbourhood with the intention of attacking the Mission-house, and pictures of "Hwa Sang" arose up before the mind; but you will have rejoiced to learn that the C.M.S. stations, which are far from the centre of the disturbance in the south of the province, have been free from anything more than the alarming rumours which have been heard in every corner of the province, and which were for a time of a very disturbing nature.

It is necessary to refer to the political vicissitudes of China in the Annual Report of the Church Missionary Society, because they have a real and intimate bearing upon the spread of the Gospel in the Empire. The responsibility obviously rests upon those whose object is to evangelize the world, of which China is such a large and important part, to watch the development of events in the land, in order that they may take advantage of such opportunities as God may give to send missionaries to centres where they may best be of service. Accordingly the following resolution was passed by the C.M.S. Committee in July, 1898:— Proposals to extend C.M.S. Missions in China.

"That in pursuance of the policy adopted by the Committee in their Minute of March 8th, 1898, with respect to their taking advantage of the providential openings for extension work in China, the Committee feel that they are called upon at the earliest possible moment to inaugurate a Mission in Central China, it may be in the Province of Hunan, which they regard as a district exerting almost unique anti-Christian influence in the Empire." Province of Hunan,

And two months later, on September 27th, the Committee determined:—

"That, in regard to the West River District, in consideration of (1) recent concessions to Great Britain, (2) the work done there by Bishop Burdon, and other Missionaries of the Church Missionary Society in former years, and (3) the vast area which is untouched by other Protestant Societies, it is the duty of the Church Missionary Society to extend and strengthen their Mission in the West River District. The West River.

"That with a view, if God open the way, of ultimately taking up work in Hunan, without interfering with other Missionary Societies, the Committee recommend that that province be entered from the south, in connexion with the South China Mission; and that for this purpose Kwei-Lin Fu, on the border of Hunan, be occupied at as early a date as possible."

Further resolutions dealt with arrangements by which these plans might be executed, and, as will be seen later on, they have already in some measure been carried out.

From designs for future extension the mind turns naturally to the study of past effort, and a contemplation of the difficulties which have been experienced, and of the measure of success which has been attained. And while it must be confessed that figures are unreliable as a test of spiritual work, yet there is cause for much thankfulness in the statement of the Rev. J. Hudson

Taylor, the honoured founder of the China Inland Mission, that in seven years the number of Protestant communicants in China has almost trebled, the 30,000 of 1889 having become 89,600 in 1896. The British and Foreign Bible Society reports that the circulation of Scripture portions in China during 1898 amounted to 728,716 copies. The circulation of the New Testament trebled that of the previous year.

During the ten years 1886–96 the foreign commerce of China increased from 165 million taels to 334 million taels. There are features in that commerce which have always met with open criticism from Christian missionaries, and possibly that fact has had weight in producing a feeling of antagonism towards them on the part of some of the commercial community at the Treaty Ports, a hostility which has often been echoed by travellers whose sole acquaintance with missionary work has been derived from the opinions expressed in the clubs and hotels occupied by the foreign community at the Coast stations. It is on that account satisfactory to read the testimony of an impartial witness on the question of the actual commercial effects of missionary work. Mr. Carles, who had been Acting British Consul at Fuh-Chow, in his report, which was quoted in the Times of October 19th, wrote:—

Effects of missionary work on European commerce with China.

> How far the policy of opening Mission-stations in remote parts of the province may be prudent is an open question, but undoubtedly our commercial interests are advanced by the presence of missionaries in districts never visited by merchants. It is not only that British goods required to supply the missionaries' wants are thus brought to the notice of the Natives in inland districts, but that Chinese are gradually becoming accustomed to the sight of Europeans, and with custom their hostility decreases. Very valuable work is being done by the American Missions, which more especially devote their attention towards education in the English language and Western matters. In Fu-Chow alone some 500 boys are being trained by their means, and those who go through the course of six years' training are fitted for employment, not only in the telegraph and similar establishments to which many of them drift, but, it is hoped, in wider fields of usefulness.

Mohammedans in China.

It is interesting to note, what is not commonly understood, that there are a considerable number of Mohammedans in the Chinese Empire; some 20,000,000, according to the Rev. E. Sell, of Madras (see C.M. Intelligencer, February, 1899, pp. 89 seq.), Their tenets differ in some respects from those of their co-religionists in other parts of the world; as regards their dogmatic beliefs they may be classed as orthodox Mohammedans, but they are lax and time-serving in their conduct, and purchase religious liberty by conforming to pagan practices and ceremonial, and by a subserviency to the prejudices of the State officials and of the literary classes.

SOUTH CHINA MISSION.

The great Empire of China was opened to missionary effort in 1844, when the Treaty of Nanking, which closed the first Chinese War, gave England the possession of Hong Kong, and the right of residence at five leading ports; and more fully in 1858–60, by the Treaty of Tientsin and Convention of Peking. Hong Kong was occupied in 1862, Pakhoi in 1886, Canton in 1898, and Wu-Chau in 1899.

The Fuh-Kien Mission has a truly remarkable history. Fuh-Chow was occupied in 1850, and the first eleven years passed without a single convert appearing. Two out of five missionaries died during this interval, and two retired. The fifth died soon after gathering the first-fruits of his labours, leaving a new-comer, the Rev. J. R. (now Archdeacon) Wolfe, in charge. Up to 1864 the work was confined to Fuh-Chow city. In that year and the following, other large cities were occupied by native evangelists. In 1866 the first two or three converts from these were baptized. Fuh-Ning was occupied by European Missionaries in 1882; Ku-Cheng, 1887; Lo-Ngwong, 1889; Nang-Wa-Kau, 1889; Kien-Yang, 1891; Hing-Hwa and Kien-Ning, 1894; Ning-Taik, 1896; Keng-Tau, 1896; Ko-Sang-Che, 1896; Lieng-Kong, 1897.

China, south of lat. 28°, is under the episcopal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Victoria, Hong Kong. The first Bishop, Dr. G. Smith, the third, Dr. Burdon, and the fourth, Dr. Hoare, were C.M.S. Missionaries; and the second, Dr. Alford, was an active friend of the Society at home.

Consecration and enthronement of Bishop Hoare.

THE appointment of the Rev. J. C. Hoare to the Bishopric of Victoria, Hong Kong, was mentioned in last year's Annual Report, and also, in a footnote, the fact that he was consecrated on June 11th, 1898. The consecration took place at St. Paul's Cathedral, together with that of Bishop Turner, of Islington. Archdeacon Sinclair was the preacher. Bishop Hoare sailed to return to China in October. His enthronement took place in the Cathedral at Hong Kong on November 12th; the Chief Justice (Sir J. W. Carrington, C.M.G.) acted as Pro-Chancellor, the chaplain of the Cathedral, the Rev. R. F. Cobbold, was installant, and the Rev. Ll. Lloyd filled the post of Bishop's chaplain. The Diocese of Victoria extends from the coast to the far western limits of China, and from its southern boundary to the twenty-eighth degree of north latitude.

Deaths of Bishop Alford,

The deaths of the second Bishop of Victoria, and of the wife of the third, occurred during the year under review. The Right Rev. Bishop C. R. Alford, formerly Bishop of Victoria, was called to his rest, at the age of eighty-one, on June 13th, 1898, two days after the consecration of Bishop Hoare to that See. He was ordained deacon in 1839, and for several years was Principal of the Society's former Training College at Highbury, and also a valued member of the Committee. He was consecrated in 1867. By him the first Chinese clergyman in the Fuh-Kien Province of China was admitted to deacon's orders in 1868. After his resignation of the See in 1872, and his subsequent return to England, he became again a regular member of the Committee.

and Mrs. Burdon,

On the very next day after Bishop Alford's death, though in a far distant region, the Mission suffered a felt loss by the death at sea of Mrs. Burdon. She returned with Bishop Burdon to the Mission in December, 1897, and they took up their residence at Pakhoi, where the Bishop had kindly offered to take charge of the clerical work during the absence of the Rev. E. B. Beauchamp. Mrs. Burdon was sister-in-law of the Rev. S. D. Stubbs, Vicar of St. James', Pentonville, London, and she had the great joy of welcoming three of her nieces to her husband's diocese as wives of C.M.S. missionaries—namely, Mrs. Ost, now of Chu-Ki, in the Mid China Mission, and formerly of Hong Kong, and Mrs. Horder and Mrs. Beauchamp, both of Pakhoi. Bishop Burdon will devote himself to revising the New Testament, and assisting in any other work that is suitable. The Bishop has been connected with the C.M.S. for nearly fifty years, and at the age of seventy-two, when weakened by frequent attacks of fever, "his devotion to work for the Master," a missionary writes, "is most striking." He is residing at Pakhoi.

Another death was that of Miss Rochfort Wade of the C.E.Z.M.S., which took place at Ku-Cheng on June 13th, 1898. Miss Wade had been in Fuh-Kien about three and a half years, and was a devoted worker.

Reinforcements.

The reinforcements from England, Ireland, and the Colonies were the following:—the Rev. Louis Byrde, B.A., Corpus Christi College, and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, who was married on September 1st to Miss Emma Constance Croft; the Rev. George Alexander Bunbury, M.A., Oriel College, and Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, curate of Holy Trinity Church in that city; the Rev. Sydney James Nightingale, of Islington College, who was ordained deacon by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, June 5th, 1898; Miss Amy Elizabeth Hill Burton, of Bedford; Misses Augusta Frederica and Florence Annie Forge, of the Society's Highbury Training Home; Miss Anna Louisa Greer, of Lurgan, trained at The Willows; Miss Mabel Poulter, M.B., B.Ch., Glasgow, of Blackheath; Miss Rose Bachlor, of the New South Wales C.M. Association; and Miss Ellen Mort, Miss Kate L. Nicholson, and Miss Amy Smith, of the Victoria Church Missionary Association. All of these, with the exception of Miss Bachlor, who sailed in December, left for the Mission in the autumn. The Rev. Alfred Iliff, formerly Chaplain at Hong Kong of the Missions to Seamen, has been taken into local connexion.

Secretaries of the Mission are: the Rev. Ll. Lloyd for the Province of Fuh-Kien, and the Rev. W. Banister for that of Kwan-Tung; Mr. W. E. Hipwell is Acting-Secretary for Kwan-Tung during Mr. Banister's absence on furlough.

I. PROVINCE OF KWAN-TUNG.

THE following returned to England:—Mrs. W. Banister and Miss A. M. Finney (invalided) in May, 1898; the Rev. W. Banister and the Rev. and Mrs. E. B. Beauchamp in June.

HONG KONG.

Hong Kong.

The work in HONG KONG was temporarily under the supervision of the Rev. Ll. Lloyd, who speaks highly of the Rev. M. Fong, the native pastor in charge of the Congregation. The latter at the end of the year received a tempting offer of work among his countrymen in Australia, but he refused it, although the stipend offered him was five times the amount he at present receives. In past times much dissension has prevailed among the Christians, but happily it has latterly decreased, and the work in general has revived. Five members of the congregation were carried off by the plague. One of them, a promising young doctor, led such a consistent life, that he was known by the Heathen as "the holy man." The contributions of the people towards evangelistic and philanthropic work amounted to $823, besides $500 given for the new church on British territory near to the city of Kow-Loon on the mainland, as compared with $666 in 1897; and the baptisms increased from forty-seven in the last-mentioned year, to seventy-six, of whom fifty-four were adults, in 1898. Mr. W. E. Hipwell was in charge of the fourteen Day Schools in Hong Kong, and was increasingly impressed with their importance. He refers with gratification to the fact that there are fifty such schools in connexion with the various Protestant Missions, in all of which the Bible is taught for at least one hour every day. The Boarding School was under Miss A. K. Hamper. Six of the girls were baptized during the year under review, and eight confirmed. Miss Hamper mentions with thankfulness that of the nineteen rescued girls who, since the opening of the school in 1888, have become converts themselves, and married Christian men, fifteen have continued satisfactory and are taking an active part in Christian work. Miss A. M. Jones visited the women in Hong Kong and Kow-Loon, and in the villages around. Every week the Bible-women were gathered together for prayer and the study of God's Word. At some of these meetings a translation of one of the addresses given at the Keswick Convention was taken, and at others one of the Epistles was carefully examined, passage being compared with passage. The constant changes in the population rendered the work in the city one of peculiar difficulty, but there were many encouragements in connexion with visiting the women and girls at the Civil and Tung-Wa Hospitals in Hong Kong, and one woman, who was paralysed, was baptized as a result of this work. In one village Miss Jones was often invited into an idol-maker's house, where the people acknowledged that the doctrine was very good, but added, "If we believe, we must not make idols; we shall then have no work, and no rice to eat."

CANTON.

Canton.

The plans of the Committee for extension on the West River, mentioned in last year's Report (page 327), were developed during the year under review, and in accordance with them the Rev. and Mrs. C. Bennett took up their residence at CANTON on their return to China, and were joined early in 1899 by Miss A. Smith, of the Victoria C.M. Association, and Miss R. Bachlor, of the New South Wales C.M. Association. Canton is one of the oldest cities in the Empire, and the centre of Chinese life in the south. Boats run from it to all parts of the Provinces of Kwan-Tung, Kwang-Si, and Yun-Nan, which have between them a population of from thirty-eight to forty-four millions. The work in the city itself, and in the immediately surrounding district, was by no means encouraging. There was but little desire to hear "the doctrine," and many of the applicants for baptism only came for the sake of what temporal help they could obtain. Shiu-Hing, on the West River, however, formed a pleasing contrast, for eleven adult baptisms took place there, and many people were under instruction. Among those baptized were two youths, of whom Mr. Bennett gives the following account:—

Inquirers eager to learn.

> They found their way to Canton in July, seeking someone to "teach them the Jesus doctrine," as they felt thoroughly dissatisfied with their present life. Some glimpse of the truth had been given them by a Bible-woman Mrs. Colborne had left behind in the neighbourhood of that city, but who had since left. What they had heard led them to seek further knowledge. Hence their visit to Canton, where they fell in with a Christian man, who brought them to me. I had a long talk with them, and found them most eager to learn. After some teaching and prayer, I gave them a Gospel and a book explanatory of the Christian truth, and then sent them to Shiu-Hing, the nearest station (thirty miles) to their home, to be further instructed (they, of course, paying for their board), as I could not take them about with me when travelling. On visiting the station after four months I found they had made considerable progress, and therefore no longer hesitated to grant them their desire, and baptized them.

Miss A. M. Jones, of Hong Kong, who spent a few days in the city of Canton in December, met with a hearty reception, and was much encouraged by what she saw. The work at Kong-Mun was hindered by the unsatisfactory character of the catechist, but after he was dismissed and a successor appointed in his stead, a decided change took place, and before the end of the year six adults were baptized, four men were under instruction, and there were several other inquirers. Kong-Mun is a hard place in which to work; the people are rather atheists than idolaters, but nevertheless processions to propitiate the evil spirits and avert their malignant influences are no less common than in other parts of China. A greater readiness to listen was manifested in the surrounding villages, and Mrs. Bennett had several interesting talks with the Natives. There were twenty applicants for baptism at Hok-Shan, where a zealous catechist is stationed, but it was thought desirable to subject them to a further period of probation, since the unsatisfactory character of some of the Christians had caused a good deal of trouble in the past. At Shekke, a Chinaman from Australia was a great help until he left, and the catechist worked prayerfully, with the result that eleven adults were received into the visible Church. An interesting service which he witnessed there is thus described by Mr. Bennett:—

Rather atheists than idolaters.

> On one of our visits to the city it happened to be the time of the quarterly gathering for prayer and praise which the Christians hold, instead of the heathen custom of visiting the graves to burn paper, clothes, money, &c. On the present occasion the Christians all wended their way to the portion set apart for the burial of Christians of all denominations on the mountain side, about four miles distant from the city itself. Here they met the Christians of another denomination, who had come over the mountains from a different direction. We then had singing, and three addresses, and engaged in prayer, led by several of the members.
>
> It was a most impressive and interesting sight, and a cause of deep thankfulness to realize that where formerly the burning of joss-sticks and the fumes of burning paper-money and clothes ascended, now there arose the incense of prayer, and instead of a cry, hymns of thanksgiving.

Prayer-meeting in Christian burial ground.

WU-CHAU.

Wu-Chau, which was opened in 1897 as a treaty port, is on the borders of the Province of Kwang-Si, and over 200 miles from Canton at the mouth of the West River. It was stated in last year's Report that an experienced catechist had been placed there, pending arrangements for its occupation by European missionaries. The Rev. and Mrs. L. Byrde took up their residence in the city at the commencement of 1899, and engaged in the study of Mandarin, pending their advance to Kwei-Lin, which lies to the North-West in the Province of Kwang-Si, not very far from the Province of Hunan, in which they have been appointed by the Committee to work.

PAKHOI.

The year was marked at Pakhoi by a week of meetings, which were held in August, 1898, with the objects both of deepening the spiritual life of the Christians and of winning the unconverted. Each day all the workers assembled for half an hour of united intercession, and it was arranged that both at the prayer-meetings, and at the public gatherings which followed in the afternoons, attention should be concentrated every day on one or another of the different branches of work. Many of the people acknowledged at the close of the week that they had received a definite blessing, and about seventy came forward for further teaching. There were a few sad cases of backsliding during the year. The blind evangelist who had appeared to be a most earnest worker had to be suspended for two months, and while away married a heathen girl, and two women who had been indefatigable in speaking to others of the Saviour fell into sin.

Boarding Schools.

The Boys' Boarding School had about five boarders and sixteen day-scholars, three at least of whom were very promising. Except in very special cases, only the children of Christian parents were admitted into the Girls' Boarding School under Mrs. Horder, and consequently the number of pupils was not large; but all the girls learned to read and write the Romanized colloquial, and showed at the time of the examination that they had a clear idea of Christian truth. An incident which occurred proved how cruel are the tender mercies of the Chinese. One cold night in March a little two days' old baby was discovered, which had been thrown away by its parents simply because it was without a right hand. The life of the child was saved with much difficulty, and it was placed in the care of one of the girls, A Kiu by name. This girl had been handed over to the missionaries some years before, because it was thought that she was a leper. For four years there were no signs of the terrible disease, but in December symptoms of it appeared, and since her parents absolutely refused to receive her, there was no alternative but to send her to the leper asylum. Miss A. A. Bolton and Miss E. L. Havers, as well as Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Horder, did some visiting among the women of Pakhoi, and the first-named mentions the case of one woman who said that she could not become a Christian because her tiny feet rendered her liable to be knocked down when walking, and therefore prevented her from attending church.

Hospital.

The general Hospital was managed by Dr. L. G. Hill. Several of the out-patients attended the Sunday services, describing themselves as inquirers, and one promised a subscription of $5 a month to the hospital, since the work there, he said, was "honourable and meritorious." None of the in-patients were baptized during the year in consequence of there being no clerical missionary at the station, but some appeared to be convinced of the truth of Christianity. Among them was an old lady, whose story is told as follows:—

She came last March about her eyes, and during the three days she was an in-patient was much impressed by the story of the Gospel. She determined to pray to the true God herself, and morning and evening in her cottage she knelt behind the door, much to the ridicule of her daughter-in-law. When working in the fields she would often kneel down to God, and after doing so said she could always see better to do her work. On her second visit she said she wished to hear more about the true God, and remarked, "When I last came, I told you I was seventy-two years of age, for I feared that if I told you my true age, eighty-two, you would not be inclined to heal the eyes of such an old woman; but now, knowing that to deceive thus is wrong, I am anxious to tell you my true age!" A patient's "true age."

We asked what she said when she prayed. She replied, "I thank God and I thank Jesus Christ for loving and saving me, and for giving me food and clothes, and I ask Him to heal my eyes; I don't know what else to say."

While I was speaking to her and the other patients in the ward, I happened to say, "Sad to say there are a great many who hear about the true God and will not believe in Him," and I was immediately interruped by this old woman saying, "But I do believe; I believe that the Heavenly Father is the true God."

Many of the patients, however, were anything but satisfactory, for such a case as that of the man who when admitted said that he had met with his injuries through an encounter with thieves, but eventually decamped with all the available property in the wards, was unfortunately not altogether unique. The Leper Asylum had on the average seventy-six men and twenty-six women resident in it. Mrs. Horder conducted a Bible-class for leper women, which had twenty-eight members, and Miss Bolton and Miss Havers held singing classes three times a week. A curious parallel to the case of reunion which was mentioned in last year's Report (page 331), is thus described by Dr. Horder:— Leper Asylum.

A short time ago we received a little leper girl, Ch'an-I by name, aged ten. She was brought by her mistress, a kind old lady, who had purchased her from her father five years previously. They came from On-Po, a town six days' journey from here. When I took the little girl to the Women's Compound to ask if they could make room for her by three sharing two beds, I-Sham, the woman who weaves the cloth, at once came forward and said she would like to give part of her bed. Later in the day I-Sham told us she was quite sure that Ch'an-I was her child, and told how five years previously, after the mother developed leprosy, her cruel husband took both her children away and sold them to strangers, without letting her know anything about it. She said her little girl was five years old at the time. She recognized the child by a mark on her forehead. It is a great joy to I-Sham to think she has got her child back. It was remarkable the way we were led to receive this particular child, when so often we have to refuse female lepers, as all the beds are occupied. A leper woman recovers her child.

It was felt to be of importance to give the lepers some definite occupation, so they were encouraged to engage in industrial work, and make baskets, brooms, mats, saws, sandals, &c. Some of them, too, were occupied in printing, and produced three of the Gospels in the Roman character during the course of the year.

Evangelistic Work in the villages was somewhat crippled by the lack of native help, but the ladies visited those in the Evangelistic work.

immediate neighbourhood, and Wong, the catechist, did what he could. Opportunities for advance presented themselves at Ko-Tak, a fishing port, where negotiations were in progress for a house to serve as a dispensary and preaching place, and at Lim-Chau, a prefectural city, a military official was endeavouring to purchase a piece of ground for a hospital, and promised to help to defray the expenses if only the missionaries would occupy the place.

II. PROVINCE OF FUH-KIEN.

Testimony of Acting-Consul.

THE Committee of the Society had the pleasure of an interview, on December 6th, with Mr. W. R. Carles, who had been Acting-Consul at Fuh-Chow, and whose official report has been already referred to (see supra, page 320). He expressed himself in terms of warm appreciation of the Society's missionaries, and of the lines on which they worked, and testified in particular to the value of the work which the lady missionaries were carrying on, and which could only be performed by women.

Destructive typhoon.

At the end of September a typhoon swept over part of the Fuh-Kien Province and did an immense amount of injury to life and property. Many of the Mission-houses were seriously damaged. The Rev. W. Light wrote from Lo-Ngwong on October 19th :—

> On the 29th and 30th of September we were visited by a very severe typhoon, which did much damage, especially near the coast. The ladies' new house at Deng-Doi (Lieng-Kong) suffered severely. The roof was partially carried away, the boundary walls destroyed, and the out-houses much injured. The ladies, who were in the house at the time of the typhoon, have had to leave. One is staying here in Lo-Ngwong, the other two went to Fuh-Chow.
> In addition to the typhoon, there were heavy floods, and for two days the city of Lieng-Kong and the great plain in which it is situated, were under water. The native pastor's house, having but poor foundations, and the walls being of mud, was completely demolished. The church had seven feet of water in it, but it did not suffer much because it was built of stone and brick. The wreckage amongst the native houses in Lieng-Kong city is a terrible sight. Three hundred people are reported to have been drowned and killed. The harvest all over the plain is said to be spoilt.
>
> All the coast stations have suffered more or less, but the centre of the typhoon struck land near Sharp Peak, and did most damage on the Lieng-Kong coast.

Three hundred drowned and killed.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. Shaw came home on furlough in May, 1898; and the Rev. and Mrs. S. W. Howe (in consequence of the ill-health of the latter) in March, 1899, after a stay in Ceylon. On the other hand, Archdeacon Wolfe and the Misses A. M. and M. E. Wolfe, whose departure for China was mentioned in last year's Report, reached Fuh-Chow on August 26th, 1898; and Mrs. Lloyd sailed for the Mission in October.

FUH-CHOW.

Fuh-Chow.

The vast change in the attitude of the people which has been brought about by the lapse of time, and by patient continuance in well-doing on the part of the missionaries, is exemplified by many incidents which are narrated in the accounts of the different stations of the South China Mission; and the Rev. Ll. Lloyd, who was in charge of the work at FUH-CHOW until the return of Archdeacon Wolfe from furlough, speaking of the general condition of affairs, says that the populace of that city has never been more favourably disposed to the missionaries than at present, and that many thoughtful Chinese are becoming more and more convinced that the regeneration of China cannot take place without the aid of the foreigners whom she has so long despised. He states that the young men who, as already mentioned in the general notes on China (page 318), suffered decapitation at Pekin, knew at least the chief tenets of Christianity, and that the young Emperor seems to have inquired diligently what Christ has done for the world. But it must not be supposed, because there are favourable signs, that all opposition has ceased, for there are many Natives who are bitterly antagonistic to Christianity, and from time to time some special manifestation of the existing hostility occurs. Thus, in August there was in Fuh-Chow an epidemic (so to speak) of placards, illustrated and otherwise, vilifying Christianity and Christ Himself, some of which, a missionary wrote, were too horrible to be described. In the country districts, too, the Protestant congregations were harassed in every possible way by the violent and persecuting conduct of the Romanists, or by men who assumed that name for their own purpose, and Archdeacon Wolfe says:—

Improved attitude of the people towards foreigners.

Lawless Chinamen claiming protection of French Consul.

> It is now a very common practice for men whose sole object is to plunder, in order to avoid paying their debts, and to escape punishment by the authorities, to place their names as Romanists on the registers of the Romish Church. They are then entitled to the protection of the Roman Priest and Bishop, and of the French Consul, and can, and do, commit acts of violence with impunity, the Chinese authorities being afraid to interfere to punish so-called converts who are under the protection of the French Consul and Government. This state of things has become very serious to our Mission. Their special object of hate is the Protestant Mission. I have no doubt they are instructed by their priests to oppose and harass us in every possible way, else why trouble us in this manner? Our people do not interfere in any way with the Romish Missions. H.M. Consul has had to appeal to H.M. Minister on the subject, but I cannot see what relief we can get from this action of our Consul. The Chinese magistrates actually ignore him in his appeals to them against the persecutions of our converts by the Romanists.

Most of the Fuh-Chow missionaries reside at the settlement on Nantai Island, which is distant from one to two hours from the city itself. The Rev. J. Martin reports that the students of the Theological College, of whom there were thirty-one, displayed great earnestness in evangelistic work, and he quotes the testimony of a non-Christian with respect to one of them. The student in question had been appointed catechist-in-charge of a preaching hall, and one day when one of the masters was in a neighbouring street he was told that the catechist was "a very bad man, and not worthy of the office of a preacher." The master asked the reason for this statement, and the reply was, "He is always telling us to repent, to give up sin, and to believe in one called Jesus, who died to save men from their sins. He never says anything about Confucius and our Chinese worthies; it is all Jesus and repentance." Would that a similar remark could be truthfully made about all Christian workers in the world! Eighteen of the students left at the beginning of 1899 for various spheres of work. The Rev. F. E. Bland superintended the Boys' High School, which suffered a good deal through illness. The senior pupil left to join Dr. Rigg's band of medical students at Kien-Ning. Many of the boys elect, like him, to devote themselves to medical work, but still more go out as schoolmasters to the small day-schools scattered over the district, the number of which increased to 200. Those in Hing-Hwa were examined by Mr. Bland, and those in Hok-Chiang by Mr. Martin. There were ninety-eight boarders as well as thirty-six day-scholars in the Girls' Boarding School, under the Misses Bushell and Lambert, of the Female Education Society, and seventy-five boarders in the school managed by Miss Lee, of the C.E.Z.M.S. Miss Leslie, of the latter Society, opened a school for the girls belonging to the upper classes of Fuh-Chow, but had only a few pupils at the close of the year. Mr. W. Muller rightly attaches great importance to these educational institutions, and mentions that on one occasion when some high-class Chinese ladies were calling at his house, a girl from the schools came in, and though only a field-girl, commenced in earnest tones to tell the ladies the message of salvation. Miss E. S. Goldie commenced a Women's Class in September, which was attended by fifteen women; two proved unsatisfactory, and had to leave the class, but the others went through the course of three months. One of the most interesting was a woman who had been a Vegetarian, and first heard the Gospel from Mrs. Ling (Chitnio). She is spoken of as a woman of unusual intellectual powers, and of much earnestness in spiritual matters.

Schools.

As in 1897, the chief interest of the year centred in the work in the native city of Fuh-Chow, with its population of more than a million souls. Services were held in four different churches, and work among the women attending them was carried on by Miss Mead and Miss Kingsmill, of the C.E.Z.M.S., and the Misses A. M. Wolfe, E. M. Brooks, and E. E. Massey, of the C.M.S., all of whom lived in the city. A new church and preaching hall were opened, of which Archdeacon Wolfe writes:— Work in the native city.

> We are most thankful to God for having given us this place. It seemed as if the place had been prepared and kept for us. The week after my return these large premises were offered for sale, and I was able to take advantage of so wonderful an opportunity. The week after I had bought them, one of the officials who had been away on a visit in the country returned, and not knowing the place had been for sale, called and said that he deeply regretted he had been absent, and further said he would have given $8,000 for them, that is $3,000 more than I had paid. New church and preaching hall.
> A heathen woman came a few days ago to this house and told my daughter that God had made the premises for the church, that He had been preparing it all these years for us, and that now He had given it to us just as we needed it to carry on all our work in it.

Prior to the opening of this church, services were held in a large old native house, part of which was used as a boys' school, but many difficulties were experienced owing to the ignorance of the people. Miss Brooks says that to begin with they did not know which day was Sunday, and either had to be reminded the day before, or else to be fetched to the service. Then "time" caused great perplexity; some came at eight o'clock or half-past eight for the 10.30 service, and others came at noon, all being equally astonished to find they were not right. Again, they did not know what to do when they did come. One old lady taught several others on her first visit, that they must kneel all the time, and was careful to set the example by trying to kneel upright on the high narrow form; if the missionaries had not gently explained the mistake, the people would have spent their time of worship in trying to balance themselves! And there was yet one more difficulty, for when the baby organ was played the first time, it was a signal for all to leave their seats, and discuss what caused the sound! However, week by week, there was a marked improvement in the behaviour, which was accompanied by an increase in numbers, until one Sunday there were as many as ninety at the service. The ladies, with whom the Rev. and Mrs. S. W. Howe resided for a time, received a number of visitors at their house. Often a large party of ladies would suddenly make their appearance accompanied by a retinue of servants, and would go from room to room questioning, admiring, and touching everything, the missionaries following them carefully, for, Miss Brooks says, in their wide long sleeves they can conceal with great skill the objects which win their admiration if they be portable! The Day-school for girls which was opened towards the end of 1897 was most satisfactory, and the parents, both of the girls, and of the boys belonging to another Mission school, were Elementary lessons as to times, postures, &c.

Visitors at the Mission-house, regularly visited, as well as other Christian and heathen women. Miss Brooks wrote in December:—

and visits to Chinese houses.

> One could go to fresh houses every day and be warmly received in all, but there must be a constant following up of those who have already heard, besides the visiting and teaching the Christian women in their homes. There are numbers who are willing to hear, but we have also met with two or three under actual conviction of sin; these have received the Gospel with unfeigned joy.
> At the end of last winter the Bible-woman and I went to the house of two of the scholars; they had invited us several times, but we had not been able to go. On this day we went, and were received in a very clean room. Several stools were arranged as we have them in the church, and quite a number of women were gathered waiting to hear the Gospel! The Bible-woman and I talked for some time; then I told them if they were really eager to learn, we would try to go once or twice a week to teach them. Of the number who came regularly at first, one was prevented from coming by her husband, and another through illness, after which she has grown rather cold, but the women belonging to the house have been most earnest and persevering; the husbands of both were equally true inquirers. On Christmas Day we had the joy of seeing the two families, excepting the wife of one who was not quite ready, baptized.

Miss Massey conducted Dispensaries at two different centres, and thus prepared hearts to receive the message of salvation. Evangelistic Work was regularly carried on among large numbers of Heathen in the different preaching halls, and the Christians manifested greater boldness than before in the profession of their religion. They even went so far as to carry flags bearing Christian mottoes in procession in the streets; but this was stopped in response to a friendly request from some of the gentry, since there was a danger lest some trouble should be caused by the roughs. Archdeacon Wolfe points out that twenty, or even ten, years ago any Christian who dared to do such a thing would probably have been killed. Some of the villages of the Fuh-Chow Plain were visited by Miss M. E. Molloy, of the Victoria C.M. Association, who is specially appointed to work in them, but language study was still her chief occupation. She was encouraged by Miss A. E. H. Burton being associated with her, and by arrangements being made for building a house near the scene of her labours.

Flags with Christian mottoes carried in procession.

Baptisms.

The total number of baptisms during the year, including those already referred to, was 109, many of them being the fruit of the work of the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies. Twenty-one were baptized on Easter Day, 1898; twenty-two more on June 19th; and on Christmas Day forty-eight souls, forty-one of whom were adults, were admitted into the visible Church, and Holy Communion was administered to about 100 persons. One of the children baptized was a grandchild of the late Rev. Wong Kiu Taik, whose widow, two sons, two daughters, and several other grandchildren were among the congregation. Archdeacon Wolfe says:—

> Thus the past and the present were brought face to face. The present witnessed on this day the church crowded with earnest and most enthusiastic disciples of our Lord, rejoicing over the baptism of new disciples and new members added to His Church on earth. The past witnessed in this same church, day after day for many years, as the Gospel was being proclaimed, the most violent abuse directed towards the preachers by the angry pagan mobs who came for the purpose of stopping the preachers, and the coarse blasphemies uttered against the blessed and holy name of Jesus Christ by the followers of Confucius and the adherents of Taou and Buddha. This violence culminated in the destruction of this very building by the mobs instigated by the followers of these celebrated Chinese sages. The present, to-day, witnessed this same building beautifully decorated with scrolls and evergreens and filled from end to end with converted Confucianists and Taouists and Buddhists, praising and glorifying the blessed name of Jesus Christ as their Redeemer, Saviour, and God, and joining together with the missionaries in that holy feast, the sign and the pledge of His presence and His love, and I, who witnessed both the past and the present, could not but rejoice, and with great joy and praise magnify the exceeding riches of that grace which wrought such a wondrous change.

A contrast between the past and present.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Fuh-Chow consists, including those already mentioned, of two lady missionaries at the Hospital, six other lady missionaries, one assistant missionary, two Bible-women, and four native teachers.

LIENG-KONG.

"The people are a go-ahead set, but need much guiding." Such is the description which the Rev. W. Light, who superintended the LIENG-KONG district, gives of its inhabitants, and he adds that there are wonderful opportunities for work in all parts of the county. At Deng-Doi (distant six miles from Lieng-Kong), a walled city with over 4,000 inhabitants, where Miss A. I. Oxley, Miss M. Searle, and Miss S. S. Newton resided, the little chapel which the Christians rented and fitted up for worship in 1896 became too small, and they subscribed $500 in order that a larger building might be erected. The ladies gained quite a reputation as doctors, and the sick came to them in such numbers that they decided only to see them on Tuesdays and Fridays, unless under exceptional circumstances. As the people came in they paid five cash, and in return received a bamboo slip with a number on it, 2,000 being registered in this way. While the patients were awaiting their turn, the Bible-woman and other Christian teachers endeavoured to instil religious truths into their minds. Cases of alleged demoniacal possession are by no means infrequent in China, and Miss Searle mentions one which came under her notice. She says:—

Lieng-Kong.

Care for the sick.

One morning a Roman Catholic brought his wife in a sedan-chair up to this house, begging us to pray over her, as she was possessed with a devil and they could do nothing for her, but they believed our prayers would prevail in casting out the evil spirit. We felt it was a serious thing to undertake, and had first to go and ask the Lord about it, afterwards we were led to invite them up to the Chinese guest-room and have united prayer; two Christian teachers, the Bible-woman, the man and his wife, one other Christian, and our two selves being present. The passage in Mark ix. 15-27, was read by one of the teachers, and a few words of real power addressed to the man and his wife, and then we all knelt and prayed. The woman remained motionless all the time we prayed, got up, went quietly away after a little further talk, and has been well ever since, coming to worship on Sundays, only not as regularly as we would like. Her affliction has evidently affected her mental powers, and so she is not quick at learning, but we thank God she is willing to join us in worship, and trust there is a glimmer of light in her poor dark soul.

Prayer answered for one supposed to be "possessed."

Work among the blind.

A commencement was made with work among the blind, of whom there are a considerable number. A small house was rented, and three blind boys were taught to read. Regular itinerating tours were made in the district, which is very populous, there being twelve villages within walking distance of Deng-Doi, at least one of which contains a population of 8,000. Miss Oxley describes some of her experiences in the following terms:—

The thing that has cheered me most has been finding out women in villages never before visited by a foreign lady, who are being taught by the Christian men. In many instances the women can only repeat the Lord's Prayer and Ten Commandments, but having learnt this much it makes it very much easier to teach them the meaning. But, on the other hand, some women have astonished me with the knowledge they have of the meaning, especially one old woman of over sixty years of age, who has been taught by her grandson. He has to travel many miles by boat to attend church on Sunday.

Idols removed.

One day I was invited to visit a woman who had been possessed by the fox-devil, but in answer to the prayers of her husband and the day-school teacher it had been cast out. While I was present they took down all their idols, consisting of three pieces of wood about two feet square, with paintings on them. It was a great testimony to the Heathen who crowded into the house.

The total number of congregations in the district was fourteen, and of baptisms ninety-two, and the Christians subscribed $1,300 during the year for the erection of churches, this sum being quite independent of their gifts to the Native Pastorate Fund.

LO-NGWONG.

Lo-Ngwong.

The work in the district of Lo-Ngwong is under the supervision of the Rev. W. Light, who resides in Lo-Ngwong city. He says that the good which was done by the special meetings for the native agents, which were mentioned in last year's Report, in many cases proved to be lasting, and that the Christians of the city congregation again increased their subscriptions to the Native Pastorate Fund. At the same time he laments that he finds it difficult to impress upon them the duty and privilege of observing Sunday as a day of rest, and that in consequence the services are not so well attended as could be desired. There were several apparently real conversions: among them one of a collector of land taxes, of whom Mr. Light writes:—

A collector of taxes dies a Christian.

He was never absent from our Sunday services, and came most nights to prayers during the week. He was most interested in the "Christian Endeavour" services, which we always hold on Sunday afternoons. After he had been coming to worship about ten months, he and his whole family were sorely tried by a severe sickness, which ended in the poor fellow's death. Himself, wife, and children were all afflicted, and at one time his wife was said to be dying. Through all this trial his faith never wavered. When he could no longer attend the Christian Endeavour services, he sent by his friend, a tailor, a passage of Scripture which he regarded as bearing on the subject for that day, to be read to us. He died in prayer to God.

A small church was erected in the Leper Village, and the Boys' Boarding School made satisfactory progress. Ninety-nine baptisms took place during the year, including the mother of the boy who was drowned with the Rev. J. S. Collins, when acting as his load-bearer; some of these were in connexion with the work of the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies. That Society has six European ladies and three Bible-women on its staff in the district.

NING-TAIK.

Ning-Taik.

The lady missionaries at NING-TAIK were the Misses M. De C. Boileau, J. C. Clarke, E. Little, and L. Bibb, and the work was under the superintendence of the Rev. L. H. F. Star, of Fuh-Ning, who describes it as "advancing by leaps and bounds." The Congregation in Ning-Taik city under the native deacon, the Rev. H. S. Hok, varied considerably, the men in particular being irregular in their attendance. But it must be borne in mind that many of the Christians live at a distance, and have to make rough and difficult journeys to come to church. This is exemplified by the account which Miss Boileau gives of a visit to the home of one of the women. She writes:—

Difficult journey to church.

"It took us two hours and a half to get there; part of the road was very bad, a rock sloping outwards to a river, the path round it is so slippery that we stopped half-way to take off our shoes. Before the end we had about 300 feet of stiff climbing straight up the side of a hill, and arrived pretty hot and out of breath. So that is what this good "church-mother" has to do every time she comes to church, and it is not surprising that she only comes about once in two months when the weather is fine.

Miss Boileau presided over the Women's School, which had from seventeen to twenty-four members. Miss Clarke, who helped in the teaching, says:—

Native explanations of Scripture facts.

"The women are almost without exception delightful pupils, so thoughtful and anxious to learn. Their flights of thought are somewhat original at times, and as we are "never too old to learn," I may note one or two new lights on Scripture passages. In answer to the question, "why Cain brought the fruits of the earth and not a lamb," I was told that "the fruits of the earth were cheaper, and he could not bear to give up his sheep"—a truly Chinese calculation! And again, the reason for building the tower of Babel so high (given in summer time, it is true) was "that in the hot season they might have a cool place to which to go and escape the heat!"

The women, provoked to good works by the Sowers' Band in the girls' school, formed themselves into a little branch of the Gleaners' Union, and, during the summer holidays, all but two of them made articles, which were sent to England for sale. There were nearly fifty pupils in the Girls' School, under Miss Clarke, but the increase in numbers, combined with the inadequacy of the teaching staff, caused the discipline to suffer. Prayer meetings and missionary meetings were held with gratifying results, and there were fifteen members of the Sowers' Band, who worked steadily thoughout the year. Four of the girls were baptized on Ascension Day, 1898.

Evangelistic Work at the out-stations and in other places proved full of interest. In one village, among those who listened to the teaching, was an old woman who had been a Vegetarian for over fifty years. Miss Clarke tried to show her the uselessness of Vegetarianism, and to tell her of the Better Way, but the woman only replied, "Jesus has come too late!" In her mouth the words were more or less of an excuse, since a Christian relative had often spoken to her of the Saviour, but who can tell whether, if Christ in the person of His servants had come sooner, she might not have been won for Him? At Kang-Ch'ong, a newly opened out-station, the missionaries aroused much curiosity, and were followed by crowds who filled the street. Chiu-Tong was another place visited, a city standing on an extensive table-land, with thirty-six villages within a small radius. A catechist was formerly stationed there, but as results were small he was removed to a more promising field, and now there is no one to work there regularly. The Bible-woman, Patience, moved from village to village, teaching the Christian women, and visiting systematically among the Heathen. She restricted her visits to those places where a catechist was stationed, and avoided the hundreds of villages where the Gospel had not yet been proclaimed, and yet after two years there were still many places with resident Christians which she had not visited once.

"Jesus has come too late!"

At the end of the year there appeared to be some probability of disturbances arising at Ning-Taik. Food was becoming scarce, and lawless people were attacking some of the richest houses in the city and carrying off the grain.

Miss Little suffered greatly from ill-health, and spent the latter portion of the year under review in Fuh-Chow.

FUH-NING (DUBLIN UNIVERSITY FUH-KIEN MISSION).

Fuh-Ning.

FUH-NING had a large staff of missionaries during the year under review, all supported by the Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission, viz.:—the Rev. L. H. F. Star, who was in charge of the work; the Revs. Dr. S. Synge, Dr. M. Mackenzie, T. de C. Studdert, and W. S. Walsh; Dr. Mary Synge; and the Misses J. E. Clarke, R. Clemson, E. M. K. Thomas, and G. M. Harmar. Three of these, however, were prevented by language study from taking much part in active missionary work. Mr. Star sums up his report by saying that "steady though slow advance has been made against an unusual number of difficulties, and that the outlook is bright." Among the difficulties to which he refers must be numbered the serious and organized persecution which prevailed under the leadership of an educated man, who declared that he would not rest until Christianity was driven out. Mr. Star writes:—

Persecution.

Some catechumens' houses have been broken into and robbed, and the inmates beaten, sometimes badly, several times. If you ask, why do not the mandarins put a stop to this? the real answer is that they themselves are afraid of the people. Their gains are ill-gotten, for they partly live upon illegal squeezes, and the οἱ πολλοὶ hate them with a bitter hatred. This reading man, whose name is Ting Mi Ming, at last personally led 370 men into Fuh-Ning city, and this mob met and hooted the mandarin as he returned through the streets in his sedan chair from the examinations, and threatened to pull down his yamen. The military mandarin, without any request from us, sent a guard of soldiers to the ladies' house, and to the hospital also. We men at the Eastgate house were evidently supposed to be able to take care of ourselves, as we were not provided with a guard. I am most thankful to say that no disturbance occurred. Since that time (May, I think) the war has been incessantly waged, and at one time one of our people was taking refuge in the city church for a month, afraid to return to his home. One of the reports purposely spread about was that I had been seized by the mandarins, and given a thousand blows with a bamboo.

In spite of this state of things the Congregation in Fuh-Ning city kept together well under the head catechist, Nu Tiong Lik Song, a former pupil in the school, who satisfactorily discharged the duties of his difficult position. Some of the catechists, however, caused grievous disappointment: two of them had to be dismissed, two more retired, and another became disheartened and gave up his work.

The Medical Work was in the hands of the Rev. Dr. Synge, Dr. Mary Synge, and the Rev. Dr. Mackenzie. The last-named has not a high opinion of the native doctors, indeed, he believes that the mere ceasing to take the remedies which they prescribe would often suffice to restore men to health. He gives one or two instances of the treatment in vogue:—

Chinese remedies.

In November I attended a little boy in Fuh-Chow suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia; the native doctor when called said the trouble was unimportant, but his mother was to give him medicine, viz., to make a sort of tea of (what I saw bought) a few wizened-up prunes, pieces of bamboo tree, grains of wheat. Next week, in Lo-Ngwong Mission station compound, I saw a woman suffering from ophthalmia; her eyes, by advice, were caked with some brownish powder, and a piece of "silver paper" filled up the inner corner of one eye.

A Buddhist priest in a Mission hospital.

He was greatly struck by the fact that there were no cases of fracture, which he attributes partly to the absence of machinery and partly to the consistency with which the people act according to the invariable parting injunction of a Chinaman to friend and to stranger, "Slowly, slowly walk!" Mr. Walsh visited the men in the wards of the hospital, and the spiritual work was also shared by the students, two in number, who were being trained as doctors. Dr. Synge expresses his hope that they may be like the head native doctor, a man trained by Dr. B. Van S. Taylor, and a true Christian. Among the inmates of the hospital were a Buddhist priest, and a rich native lady who was being cured of the opium habit.

Boarding Schools.

A Boys' Boarding School was opened, and had an average attendance of ten. The school is for the sons of Christian adherents, and each boy pays something towards his board. The same applies also to the Girls' Boarding School. This latter was under the management of Miss Clarke, who was assisted in the teaching by Miss Harmar, and during her absence in the district the work was carried on for two months by the Misses Clemson and Thomas. There were twenty-five boarders, and from three to nine day scholars, but the Fuh-Ning people are slow to realize the importance of education, whether for their sons or for their daughters. One of the day pupils was sold by her parents to a mandarin's wife as a slave. A Sowers' Band was formed during the year, and had eleven members, who met once a week.

School for Women.

A School for Women was held for three months in the spring of 1898; there were six boarders, and two other women attended for parts of each day. Of the six, one left before the course was finished because of family business arrangements, and another in consequence of the serious illness of her husband, but the remainder read steadily and well. At the time of the Chinese New Year special meetings were arranged for the Christian women, at which such subjects as "The Training of Children," "How to read the Bible profitably," and "The best Methods of Preaching to the Heathen," were discussed, and Mrs. Synge, who is a Doctor of Medicine, read a paper on "Hygiene."

Village Itinerations.

Evangelistic Work in the district was prosecuted with vigour. Miss Thomas and Miss Clemson visited many of the villages near to Fuh-Ning, and found that there were no less than eighty-seven within a radius of six miles. More extended journeys were made by Miss Clarke and Miss Harmar, who were accompanied by the Bible-woman, Mrs. Ding. In the Fuh-Ang district, where they spent a fortnight, they had open doors on all sides, with the exception of one house, where the women expressed their hope that the missionaries would not be "maliciously harmful," since there were many young children! One woman who heard the Gospel for the first time during this tour, said, "I am old now, and it is hard to hear and understand. Why did you not come ten years ago, when I could have learnt more easily?" In the middle of September the same ladies went to Fuh-Ang, the great centre of Roman Catholicism in the Fuh-Kien province, and stayed two months there. Twelve women came regularly to be taught, and visiting was carried on in the city and in neighbouring villages. The servants of the well-to-do families, of which there are many in the city, were constantly sent to ask the missionaries to call, and the invitations which were received were so numerous that sometimes engagements were made for three days in advance. One of the men baptized in Fuh-Ting (see last year's Report, page 340) relapsed into Heathenism, but it was hoped that the contemplated residence of Dr. Mackenzie and Mr. Studdert in the city would lead to an advance in the work. The superstitions and fears of the people are, however, a great hindrance all over the district, as is evident from an instance which Mr. Studdert gives of the terror which the mere sight of foreigners sometimes causes. He writes:—

Invitations from upper-class houses.

> As Mr. Star and I were approaching a village in which there had been a good deal of persecution (the catechist having been nearly killed there some time ago), we saw two boys busily engaged fighting, and so intent were they and fierce their fight that they did not see us at first and run from us while we were yet a great way off, as the women and children so often do in some of these places; but when we came near them, and they at last did see us, they simply each of them threw up their hands in an agony of fright, and with wild, staring eyes, fell flat and heavily on the ground, and lay on their backs kicking frantically and beating the air in wild paroxysms of fear, too frightened even to scream. However, we went back a bit, and then, when we were a good distance away from them, they screamed with all their might, got up, and skedaddled for all they were worth, shouting that the foreign devils had come for them and were following them.

Fear of foreigners.

In the course of the year an effort was made to obtain a footing in Sien-Ning, a city four days' journey over the mountains from Fuh-Ning. A young catechist and a colporteur were sent thither early in 1898, but no innkeeper dared to take them in when he knew that they were Christian preachers. At length an inn opened its doors to them on condition that they should pay double for everything, and there they stayed for three months, although at one time the mandarin made up his mind to force them to leave the city. Disturbances which ensued in consequence of the famine, and resulted in seven men being beheaded, did not improve matters, and the two agents were in constant fear that the mob would attack the house which they had been able to rent, but they held their ground, and were still in possession when Mr. Star wrote his Annual Letter.

A new out-station.

The number of baptisms of men, women, and children in the prefecture during the year was about eighty. One of those baptized was the old lady whose visit to the Mission-house in company with Mrs. Ngu in 1894 is mentioned on page 255 of the Annual Report for 1894–95. Two other women were brought in through the hospital work, the husband of one of them being baptized at the same time as his wife.

HOK-CHIANG.

Hok-Chiang.

The Rev. Ll. Lloyd, who had the oversight of the HOK-CHIANG district until the return of Archdeacon Wolfe in the autumn of 1898, speaks of the difficulty of adequately teaching the 6,000 Christian adherents. The two native clergy, the Revs. Yek Siu Mi, and Yek Twang Mi, did what they could, but the wide area over which the converts are scattered, and the difficulties of travel, made it impossible for them to visit their people very frequently. During the greater part of the year the staff of ladies at KENG-TAU consisted of the Misses M. E. Barber, F. E. Oatway, and I. Suttor. They were reinforced in the autumn by Miss E. Mort, of the Victoria C.M. Association, and Dr. Mabel Poulter, but on the other hand Miss Barber was temporarily transferred to Ning-Taik. A class for women was held from February, 1898, until the following June, the average number present being twelve, and Miss Barber says that there was not one over whom she could not rejoice. It was hoped that two of them would eventually be trained at Fuh-Chow as Bible-women. Concerning one of these, a very earnest Malay, Miss Barber writes:—

An earnest Malay Christian.

> Since coming back to this district after a long absence of three months, I have visited with her. She took me to one house where three families lived, all of whom have recently thrown away their idols and now serve God. To my great joy two young women in that house could recite the Lord's Prayer, the Creed, and the Ten Commandments, and some hymns, and also could pray—even the little children said a verse of a hymn to me—and this was the work of that dear Malay woman, who sat by listening to her pupils with a radiant face. She says that the idolaters often ask her to go and sit with them and tell them Bible stories, and their favourite story is about Nebuchadnezzar and the fiery furnace. When I think of the wonderful change in this woman since Miss Oatway first visited her and won her for Christ, I can only praise God and take courage.

Another member of the class was afterwards ill for several months; while on her sick bed she called her neighbours in so that she might tell them of the Saviour, and implore them to turn from their idols and serve Him, with the result that three families commenced to attend church. In Keng-Tau itself the rudeness which at first characterized the people was exchanged for kindness and friendliness; the ladies were constantly invited to go to the homes of the Natives, and no less than forty families gave up their idols. Various motives actuated them in taking this step, and Miss Suttor says:—

Forty families gave up their idols.

> I believe most of them have turned to God because they believed He was stronger than the devil, and would save them from his oppression. There had been a great deal of sickness about, and God used this in turning many from their idols and from worshipping the devil, to whom they attributed all the sickness. They said the idols could not help them, and though they knew so little of God, still they turned to Him. Others have turned to the Church because they thought they might receive help when in difficulties; this grieves us much, but they have at least put themselves in the way of hearing the Gospel, and we trust that, as they learn, they will believe, and their hearts be changed.

Another encouraging sign was the willingness of many of the women to unbind their feet. A child at one of the three new day-schools in the district who took this step suffered a good deal of ridicule in consequence, but only replied, "I do not mind if you are not pleased, for I know that God is pleased, so it does not matter what you say." Visits were paid to many of the villages in the neighbourhood, and ready listeners were always found. At Seng-Lieng, a man and his wife assented to Miss Oatway's statement that idols could not comfort them in times of sickness or sorrow, and the next day told the catechist that they wished to become Christians. There were only thirteen Christian families at Sa-Loo, four miles from Keng-Tau, where the ladies resided for some months, but they contrived, poor though they were, to raise £30, half the cost of their new church. Miss Barber gives an account of one of these Christians, whom she describes as "a constant stimulus" to her. She writes:—

A poor but happy Christian.

Thirteen years ago he put away his idols and decided to worship God. His father persecuted him and tried in every possible way to make him give up his religion. "At one time," said this man to me, "I really thought I would have to leave home, and then, again, I considered that if I did my father could not hear the Gospel, so I stayed on, hard as it was." After eleven years the father himself became a Christian. Two years ago he died, rejoicing in Christ Jesus as his Saviour. A wretched hovel, containing one bed, a stove for cooking, one table, and a form, is the place this man calls home. His wife is delicate and often ill; very often there is scarcely enough food to eat, and yet the other day when our Bible-woman said to him, "How poor you are, it is very sad," he answered, "Don't say that, God has seen fit to give me this portion and my heart is satisfied." His fellow-Christians here tell me he is always happy and never complains.

Catechist kept four months in prison.

The Christians at the village of Kwang-A, situated in the extreme western corner of the county, have suffered grievous persecution of recent years, the catechist and some of his congregation having been attacked by the order of the magistrate and kept for four months in prison. The people, however, were not frightened away from the meeting-houses, but continued to assemble together, and were joined by many new adherents from the adjacent villages. The "Christian Endeavour Society" was started in three or four places in the district, and was instrumental in bringing about a marked increase in the Sunday congregations.

Ko-Sang-Che.

The missionaries at Ko-Sang-Che during the year were the Misses K. Andrews, E. J. Harrison, and (for four months) A. L. Leybourn. In the autumn Miss M. E. Wolfe returned from furlough, and Dr. Mabel Poulter was appointed to reside at the station until the house was ready for her in Hok-Chiang city. The district was visited in 1897 and 1898 with pestilence, and also with drought and famine, which caused food to be scarce and the prices of it to be doubled, and in the autumn a terrible typhoon which swept over the country made matters worse by absolutely destroying many of the crops and blowing down houses. Miss Wolfe's special work was teaching the women, for whom a boarding-school was in course of erection. A Dispensary was managed by Miss Andrews, and gave much encouragement, for the people received the missionaries and their message kindly; some of the sick were visited in their homes in the mornings, and others came to the dispensary in the afternoons. Miss Andrews says that the Heathen always think that sickness is the work of the devil, and that it is difficult for new converts to disabuse themselves of this idea. Some of them, however, succeed in the attempt, and one man in particular, whose son was for a time dangerously ill, manifested a calm, steady faith in God, and an absolute submission to His will, and the little lad himself, when suffering great pain, cried out, "Jesus, save me! Jesus, help me!" In addition to carrying on two weekly classes for girls, Miss Harrison engaged in itinerating, and superintended the work of the Bible-women. She visited eighty-three villages, and had on her list altogether the names of 150 in which there were Christians; this number does not include places where the American Methodists have converts. One of her expeditions was to Lek-Sek, which means sixty, and is the sixtieth township in the county of Hok-Chiang. It consists of a small peninsula, about nine miles long and six wide, lying to the extreme south of the county, and deeply indented at many points by the sea. The Rev. Ll. Lloyd, who paid a visit to the neighbourhood, and baptized thirty-one people after careful examination, says that there are 102 villages and hamlets in Lek-Sek, containing about 3,000 families, 230 of which are nominally Christian. Miss Harrison went to four of the numerous islands lying off the coast, and writes:—

Dispensary.

Christians on the peninsula of Lek-Sek.

Mission ladies the first foreigners to visit the island of Tong-Seu.

Tong-Seu is about three-quarters of an hour's sail from the mainland. The people do not speak our dialect, so besides a Bible-woman, another Christian woman who could speak both dialects went with me. The chapel, which is also schoolroom and catechist's house, is a very tumble-down fisherman's hut, the inner walls of which are only rotten sails. That day they were in much danger of falling down. No foreigner had been there before, and from 10 a.m., when I arrived, until 9 p.m., the room was crowded to suffocation with women. The Bible-woman and I spoke to them by interpretation, and two or three times the teacher got up and addressed them. I visited a few houses, and was very well received.

The Gospel had only just reached there. There was a school of twelve or more boys, one of whom professed to be a Christian (they could understand me, and I them, well enough to be able to question and answer). Two men appear to be real, earnest Christians, and every night nine or ten others went to prayers. That night the room was quite full and the men listened well. One woman professed to be a Christian, but had never been to church. I have heard since that she has been, and that there are other women inquirers. I hope to go again as soon as winds and waves allow. The island is rich and wholly given up to idolatry. I counted five small idol temples within 200 yards of the hut.

HING-HWA.

Dr. and Mrs. B. Van Someren Taylor and Dr. A. T. Sampson were joined at Hing-Hwa at the end of the year by the Rev. S. J. Nightingale and two trained nurses, the Misses A. and F. Forge. There was a decided increase in the number of in-patients at the Hospital, the advance being from 677 to 1,114, and many more wished to be admitted, but were refused in consequence of the lack of accommodation. Two old patients were baptized, and twelve more were awaiting baptism when Dr. Taylor wrote in February, 1899. There were eight students at the beginning of 1898, but the number was reduced to four, for Dr. Taylor's object was not so much to train a large number of men, as to prepare those who would eventually make useful Christian workers. One of the students is the son of a Christian Chinese doctor, and has endured much trouble from the Heathen in consequence of the deaths within a few months of his father, mother, and brother. In the course of the year a quaint and touching petition reached the Church Missionary House from the district of Sieng-Tu. The translation is as follows :—

Hing-Hwa Hospital.

A touching petition.

"A prepared petition from all the Christians of the Sieng-Tu district.

"We Christians, living in this humble city, desire to invite you to choose and appoint a pastor to nourish and quicken this flock of sheep. We also invite you to appoint a renowned doctor to help to increase the Church.

"The country is very large and the people very many, and there are not many to teach them. Sick people needing healing are also very many. Although from the distant city of Hing-Hwa Mr. Shaw itinerates several times a year, teaching the Christians, it is only like a cup of water which cannot extinguish a great fire.

Like a cup of water to extinguish a great fire.

"And with the sick people likewise. Although the distant city of Hing-Hwa has a renowned doctor, it would be difficult to save life in a sudden catastrophe. It is still more difficult for the many sick people to go to the hospital to be cured, for with the Chinese it is not only the distance of the road that hinders them, but because having no money they cannot go, therefore they sit down and wait for death.

"Now we Christians, seeing this with our eyes, are sad at heart. We wish to save them, but we cannot. We also know very well that the Church Missionary Society, which with compassion loves China as a son, certainly cannot be offended at us.

"Moreover, our Saviour formerly sent men to preach, and also at the same time to heal the sick, the two to go hand-in-hand; and because of it the Church has increased as it has.

"We desire a pastor to come and teach us, as a hungry child desires milk, as a thirsty hart wants water. The sick want a doctor, as in John v. 3 the sick longed for the troubling of the waters. There is nothing for it but to earnestly plead with each distinguished member of the Church Missionary Society to promise to send us a pastor to nourish and quicken the flock, and further to give a renowned doctor to help to increase the Church. We will give endless thanks.

"A prepared petition from all the Christians of the Sieng-Tu District Church."

KU-CHENG AND PING-NANG.

Ku-Cheng.

The only C.M.S. missionaries at Ku-Cheng during the year were the Rev. and Mrs. J. R. S. Boyd, of the Canada C.M. Association, and Mr. T. Woods. The Blind Asylum, which was opened in 1897, was full at the end of the following year, and proved useful in breaking down the prejudices of the people, though, as was to be expected, its object was in some cases misunderstood. One blind man who wished to become an inmate was kept back by the influence of seven women, who said that the missionaries had bad motives, and wanted to take his eyes out! Some of the cases admitted of treatment, and at least one successful operation for cataract was performed by the native (C.M.S.) doctor. Mrs. Skinner, of the American Methodist Episcopal Mission, who has made diseases of the eye her special study, kindly gave her valuable advice and help from time to time. The Leper Asylum continued its good work, and Mr. Boyd says of the old churchwarden that he is a "rejoicing Christian," in spite of his bodily weakness. On one occasion the missionaries were invited to a feast given in foreign style by the city mandarin and the head of the military. Mr. Boyd describes it as follows:—

Asylums for the Blind, and for Lepers.

Missionaries entertained by mandarins.

White cotton sewed as a tablecloth with the edge turned down, not sewn as a hem, knives, forks, plates, &c., had been borrowed from the foreigners. The ladies sat on one side and the men on the opposite, with the two hosts at one end—the first time that ladies have sat down with mandarins at a feast in this part, and perhaps anywhere else. They had a bottle of Worcester sauce, which they used freely, pouring it over everything, including pudding. We gave them a return feast in Chinese style, which they seemed to enjoy. The ladies invited the Chinese ladies, and Mr. Woods and I invited the men. Raisin juice was the strongest drink, but with Chinese politeness they said it was better than wine or tea, as it was cool, and they could drink as much as they liked without feeling any the worse for it.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has extensive work in the city and district. Miss Wathen, assisted by Miss A. L. Leybourn, of the C.M.S., who is temporarily stationed at Ku-Cheng, managed the Girls' Boarding School; and the Foundling Home, with its thirty-two inmates, was under Miss Nisbet. Miss Codrington also was at Ku-Cheng for a time, and had much encouragement in connexion with her Women's Class. Of the eighteen members, most of whom were new inquirers, five were baptized. At Chek-Bo eleven women and children were asking for baptism, and at Ngo-Du seventy women were coming to church. The Misses M. Newcombe and Burroughs are at Sang-Iong, and Miss Codrington, with two other ladies, is stationed at Sa-Yong.

There was no European missionary in the PING-NANG district, but a catechist was placed at Tong-Kau, from which centre he worked in Ping-Nang city. He was not able to accomplish much. At one time six men appeared to be interested, but when, in some way or another, they became scattered, there were practically no inquirers. Miss Codrington, writing to the C.E.Z.M.S., makes a strong appeal for workers for this and the Ku-Cheng districts, and says, "We are praying and longing for help. May God lead some hearts to respond! It is such a happy service! Do you remember Mr. Stewart's words: 'Don't say "poor missionaries"—it is a life an archangel in heaven might envy.'" Ping-Nang. "Don't say 'poor missionaries.'"

KIEN-NING.

Dr. J. Rigg and Dr. H. R. Pakenham were stationed at KIEN-NING, the chief town of the Prefecture bearing that name. It should be remembered that Kien-Ning is not, as is often thought, comparable with Ku-Cheng, Lo-Ngwong, Hok-Chiang, or any other single county of the Fuh-Chow Prefecture; it is itself a Prefecture, and has an area not far short of that of Fuh-Chow. The C.M.S. staff consists of only four European missionaries, although no other Society with the exception of the C.E.Z.M.S. is at work in that part of the country, and consequently four of the "counties" are of necessity left untouched by missionary effort. Successive Reports of the Society have indicated sufficiently the hostility of the people of Kien-Ning to Europeans, and although there has never, since 1892, been a repetition of the open violence which in that year culminated in attacks on Dr. Rigg and the Rev. H. S. Phillips, yet the attitude of the Natives has been decidedly unfriendly. Latterly, however, a change has taken place, and now the missionaries hardly ever meet with any bad language when passing through the streets. On October 2nd, 1898, a room in the Mission-house, which was built in memory of the late Rev. J. S. Collins, was opened for public worship. The house is in the very heart of the city, and the room has seats for some 200 people. The Rev. Li Taik Ing, in whose hands is the greater part of the city work, assisted Mr. Phillips in the administration of Holy Communion for the first time in this great heathen town. The efforts of the past ten years to obtain a dispensary within the city walls were crowned with success about the same time, and Dr. Rigg hopes that this dispensary will be the means of influencing the suspicious Kien-Ning people, who are but little reached by the hospital at Seven Stars Bridge, most of the patients at which come from the surrounding villages. Another great step taken during the year was the opening of a hospital for women and children in the compound of the large hospital, Misses Johnson and Gardner, of Kien-Ning. Improved attitude of the people. Church and dispensary opened in Kien-Ning city.

the C.E.Z.M.S., the former a qualified nurse, being in charge. Eighteen adult converts were baptized, some of whom were won directly or indirectly by medical work. Miss Gardner had a narrow escape during the summer. She was walking with a Bible-woman through one of the suburbs, when a man suddenly seized her by the wrist and made an attempt to strike her with a large chopper. Miss Gardner was able to wrench herself free, and before her assailant could attack her again the Bible-woman bravely interposed and bore the brunt of the onslaught, being severely wounded in the arm.

A lady missionary attacked.

Nang-Wa.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. C. White, of the Canada C.M. Association, resided at NANG-WA during a great part of the year, and two of the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies were also stationed there. Five families put away their idols—one in Nang-Wa itself, and the others in neighbouring hamlets. Mr. White thus describes one of the services for the destruction of these false gods:—

> We roused all the men in the hamlet to come—about thirty in all—and then, in the flickering light of tallow dips, sang hymns and prayed. The catechist then gave a short earnest talk, after which the men called for one of our number, Ha Cheng, to speak to them—"For you," said they, "can speak the native words." After this we took down all the idols and idolatrous scrolls, the charms and shrines, idol prayer-books, and paper money, and piled all in the centre of the mud floor.
>
> The Heathen had by this time all gone out, some with frightened looks upon their faces, feeling perhaps that something dire would be sure to follow such sacrilege. The good man's wife, too, was in a fearful state, for she was not yet reconciled to putting away the idols. One idol in particular she wanted to keep. "It is so new and beautiful and cost such a lot; could not I keep it for the children to play with?" But all had to go on the pile, and then, the fire being applied, we watched the smoke and flames with a joyful heart, feeling that it was a real sacrifice unto God, for it was no easy thing for the old man of sixty years to break off from old associations and memories, and to stand alone for the cause of Truth and Christ.

Destruction of idols.

"A true Christian and a refined gentleman."

Yen-Ping was well worked by Dr. Ngoi, who is described as "a true Christian and a refined gentleman," and one baptism took place. At Ciong-Bau a church was built as a further memorial to Mr. Collins, and the efforts of the three C.E.Z.M.S. ladies and their Bible-woman met with great success. The village work, too, prospered, and was only limited by the paucity of native helpers. Of one of the villages Dr. Rigg says:—

Voluntary work of a village Christian.

> One village where the Gospel first got a foothold in Kien-Ning over twenty years ago, and which afterwards became so dead that we removed the catechist, who was also an unsatisfactory man, has been reviving for the last two or three years, chiefly through the voluntary work of a young and rather stupid village Christian who was trained at Fuh-Chow, but afterwards dismissed as not having enough ability for a catechist. He lived and worked at this village—Cüë-Ciong—for two or three years, but now is a colporteur in Kien-Ning city. There is a congregation at Cüë-Ciong of from fifteen to thirty, and it is growing. They have brought a subscription list of over $130, and ask for help to build a church.

KIEN-YANG.

Kien-Yang.

The Rev. and Mrs. Phillips were alone at KIEN-YANG, the centre of the county of that name, situated forty miles to the north-west of Kien-Ning city, but real progress was made, and the outlook for the future is spoken of as one of "chastened hopefulness." The first two baptisms took place on Easter Day, 1898, and were followed by another in the autumn. One of the converts says that his Christianity is a great source of economy to him, as formerly he was continually quarrelling with people, and thus running into lawsuits—an expensive habit in China as elsewhere—whereas now he finds that it is not worth while to quarrel. Mr. Phillips was hopeful about a woman who had spent all her time of late years as a Buddhist chanter, chanting prayers for others, but who abandoned that occupation and tore down her paper idols. A number of Gospels and other papers were distributed to the students who came to Kien-Yang for examination, and were in most cases courteously received, and many of the undergraduates called at the Mission-house. A village of the blind was visited every week, and open-air preachings were held from time to time both in the city and in the villages of the district.

MID CHINA MISSION.

China, north of lat. 28°, became a separate diocese, "North China," in 1872, Dr. Russell, of the C.M.S., being the first Bishop. In 1880, after his death, it was divided into two, North and Mid China, and Dr. G. E. Moule, of the C.M.S., became Bishop of the latter See. Shanghai was occupied by European Missionaries in 1845; Ningpo, 1848; Hang-Chow, 1864; Shaou-Hing, 1870; T'ai-Chow, 1892; and Chu-Ki, 1894. In the earlier years of the Mission much success was, by the Divine blessing, achieved in the numerous towns and villages around Ningpo. Later, in 1877, the Gospel was introduced under striking circumstances into the Chu-Ki district from Hang-Chow, and again in 1886 into the district of T'ai-Chow from Ningpo. Many of the Christians in these districts have manifested exemplary Christian steadfastness and zeal, and seventeen of them have been ordained since 1863.

Progress in twenty-three years.

THE progress made in any Mission can only be adequately realized by a comparison of its condition at periods more or less widely separated. Bishop Hoare has opportunely instituted such a comparison, and points out that whereas when he first went to Mid China in 1875 the Society had only one native pastor in the Mission, and all the converts were practically under the pastoral care of European clergy, in 1898 there were sixteen native clergy, who supervised nearly all the Christians. He adduces also as an illustration of the progress which has been made the instance of the T'ai-Chow Church, which was commenced in 1878 with from thirty to forty converts, and ten years later had some 700 members, scattered over a district stretching 120 miles from north to south.

Reinforcements.

Six recruits were sent out to the Mid China Mission during the year, viz.: the Rev. William Hedger Elwin, B.A., Corpus Christi College, and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, curate of Christ Church, St. Albans, son of the Rev. A. Elwin, of this Mission; the Rev. Thomas Clare Goodchild, M.A., Wooster University, U.S.A., and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, who was ordained priest in St. Paul's Cathedral by the Bishop of London on October 2nd; the Rev. Alfred James Walker, B.A., St. John's College, Cambridge, curate of St. John's, Tunbridge Wells; Miss Ellen Mary Bickersteth Clayton, of Reading, daughter of the Rev. W. Clayton, formerly a missionary of the Society in South India, and now Association Secretary for the Dioceses of Salisbury and Winchester and part of the Diocese of Oxford; Miss Bertha Louisa Frewer, of Hampstead, who was trained at The Willows; and Miss Laura Clements Pope, of Nottingham. All the above sailed in October.

Deaths of Rev. H. Reeve,

A former member of the Mission was removed by the death on September 18th, at Threxton Rectory, Norfolk, of the Rev. Henry Reeve. He entered the C.M. College in 1848, and sailed for China in 1853, but his term of service was short—only three and a half years. He was Association Secretary of the Society from 1858 to 1860.

The Rev. Dzing Ts-sing died in December. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Russell in 1876, and priest two years later, and was in charge of the Ningpo East Pastorate. and of Rev. Dzing Ts-sing.

Bishop Moule, after more than forty years of service, was nevertheless able, during the year under review, to cover some 3,000 miles in the course of his visitation tours. He was absent from his home in Hang-Chow for nearly four months. Bishop Moule's visitation.

The Bishop has admitted the following to priests' orders:— On June 11th, 1898, at Hang-Chow, the Rev. H. Barton; on the 24th of the same month, at Shanghai, the Rev. Dzing Kyi-doh; on October 9th, at Ningpo, the Revs. Mo Kwienyü and Song Vi-sing; and on February 26th, 1899, at Hang-Chow, the Revs. Tsong Sieh-en, Tai Iah-an, and Seng Dziang-kyiae. Ordinations.

The Rev. A. Elwin is the Secretary of the Mission.

I. PROVINCE OF KIANG-SU.

SHANGHAI.

THE event of the year in the SHANGHAI Mission was the ordination of the Rev. Dzing Kyi-doh as priest by Bishop Moule on June 24th, 1898. Since many of the Native Christians are engaged during the day, the service was held by special request in the evening, in Trinity Cathedral, the use of which was kindly granted by the trustees. Any who wished were asked to communicate at the Holy Communion service, which was held after the ordination, and the Rev. A. Elwin, the Secretary of the Mission, says:— Shanghai.

> It was truly a remarkable sight to see Presbyterian, Baptist, Methodist, "Open Brethren," indeed, brethren of nearly every name, meeting together at the Lord's Table, and the venerable Bishop of Mid China in his own cathedral welcoming all who loved the Lord Jesus Christ to remember with him the death and resurrection of the Lord "till He come."

Mr. Dzing was elected pastor of the Shanghai Congregation, which continued to meet in the chapel in a disused cemetery. The Evangelistic Work is under the Rev. C. J. F. Symons. He and his family had the misfortune to be burnt out of their house in November; all their furniture and most of their clothing were destroyed by fire and water, but providentially no one was injured. The fire originated in a native dwelling in the rear of Mr. Symons' house. Mrs. Elwin conducted a Bible-class for women on the Mission premises, but the attendance was poor, owing to the enormous rents charged for even small Chinese houses in the English settlement, which have caused the Christians to drift away to Hong-Kew, the American settlement. In order to reach those who found the distance to the Mission-house too great, a second Bible-class was commenced at Hong-Kew by Mrs. Symons. Visiting was engaged in by both Miss M. J. Godson and Miss R. M. Elwin, who were able to Missionary's house and belongings burnt.

get into touch with a good many of the heathen women. Miss Elwin mentions that the Heathen in Shanghai say that if teachers of the "Jesus religion" cross the threshold, the "kitchen god" will stand up, and all their luck will leave them. A few people were baptized, and there were one or two inquirers. The circumstances under which two of the latter were brought out are thus described by Mrs. Elwin:—

The "Jesus religion" and the "kitchen god."

> While Dr. Hill and his wife from Pakhoi were staying here for a few days, the young wife of one of our Christians, who was not herself baptized, was seized with a serious illness. Her sister-in-law came in great distress to ask Mr. Elwin to baptize her, as she was dying; the native doctor had said there was no hope! We asked Dr. Hill to go and see her, and this he most kindly did two or three times, and, through God's blessing, the woman, Mrs. Li, made a most wonderful recovery. This had a remarkable effect both on Mrs. Li and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Stern, as I may translate her name. They both came to my daughter expressing an earnest desire to go to some school for women and learn to read and study the Bible, &c. Mrs. Stern had been some years ago in our school at Ningpo for a short time, and can read a little, and is a bright, intelligent woman; but Mrs. Li is very ignorant, and rather stupid. However, she has brightened up wonderfully since her illness. They said their husbands and the old mother were willing to spare them. After some correspondence and delay, it has been finally settled that they should go to Mrs. W. S. Moule's school for women at Ningpo, and there they now are comfortably established, and we are thankful to hear they are diligent in their studies and making good progress, especially Mrs. Stern.

Anglo-Chinese School.

The improvement in the attendance at the Anglo-Chinese School, under Mr. W. A. H. Moule, which was noticed in last year's Report, was fully maintained during the year under review, and the increased accommodation which it necessitated was provided by the addition of a new wing to the building. Five of the pupils passed in the Customs Examination, gaining the third, fourth, seventh, tenth, and fourteenth places. Bible-classes were conducted on Sundays for the higher classes, and were attended by several old boys. A former pupil was baptized at St. John's College, which is under the American Episcopal Mission. Mr. Moule refers gratefully to the assistance which he received from his brother, Mr. E. C. H. Moule.

Girls' Schools.

The two Girls' Day Schools had between them about thirty-two scholars, and the Sunday-school which Miss Godson set on foot in the course of the year brought together some twenty children, who soon were able to answer simple questions on the life of our Lord. Another new venture was the knitting-class, which was held every week. The mother of one of the day scholars allowed the free use of her sitting-room, and three or four young girls came to learn to knit. Advantage was taken of the opportunity of proclaiming the good tidings, and there was usually a little crowd of interested listeners gathered round the door.

Translation Work.

Mr. A. J. H. Moule is engaged in Translation Work. Two volumes of his notes on the Old Testament, founded on the R.T.S. Commentary, were published during the year, and the translation of the Book of Ecclesiastes was nearly finished. This work is of special importance, because Old Testament Commentaries are practically unknown among the Chinese Christians. Mr. Moule is joint editor of a paper entitled the Anglican Church Record, which describes the work of the Anglican Church in China and Corea.

II. PROVINCE OF CHEH-KIANG.

Miss L. H. Barnes left England for the Mission in September, 1898; Miss E. Onyon in October; Miss A. Maddison and Miss A. Hunt in February, 1899. Mrs. J. B. Ost returned home in December, 1898, and Miss J. C. Grant in March, 1899. Dr. R. Smyth was married at Ningpo on January 3rd, 1899, to Miss Blanche Emily Bullock; and Dr. A. T. Kember on March 25th to Miss A. Hunt. Both Mrs. Smyth and Mrs. Hunt were previously on the staff of this Mission.

NINGPO.

Ningpo Training College.

The position of Principal of the Training College at Ningpo, rendered vacant by the consecration of Bishop Hoare, was filled by the appointment of the Rev. W. S. Moule. During Bishop Hoare's tenure of the post 164 passed out of the College: seventy-eight of these left or were rejected during their course of training; six were dismissed after employment, and six retired; eight died; four were employed by the Native Church, and one by the S.P.G.; and sixty-one entered into the service of the Society, as evangelists or school-masters, nine of whom were afterwards ordained. Owing to a dearth of candidates there was no theological class during the year, but the entry for the College was the largest in its history, and in November there were fifty names on the roll. An interesting event was the baptism of a former College tutor, Mr. Zia, at the advanced age of eighty-nine. Two boys also were baptized, and six confirmed. The Principal observed with thankfulness an improved attendance at the weekly meetings of the Prayer Union, and an increased definiteness in the petitions offered. The Printing Press was engaged chiefly in the issue of new editions of existing books, those by Bishop Hoare being in great demand.

Baptism of an octogenarian.

Mr. Moule is Acting-Chairman of the Native Church Council. The supervision of the Pastorates is shared between him and the Rev. W. E. Godson. Mr. Moule speaks with regret of the resignation of Pastor Dzing Ts-sing, which was followed shortly afterwards by his death, and writes appreciatively of his sterling integrity and Christian character. There were twenty-seven adult baptisms during the year, and seventy names were on the list of catechumens at its close. Mr. Godson spent much of his time in itinerating in the San-Poh Y-Ky'i, and the Eastern Lake districts, and was led to realize painfully the failure of some of the converts to grasp the responsibility of Christians with regard to self-support, and to witnessing for their Master. He divides his non-Christian hearers into three classes. The first contains those who are utterly careless about spiritual matters, and whose one thought apparently is, "How can I earn more cash?" It is among this class that foolish tales about foreigners take root, and Mr. Godson writes:—

Pastorates.

Foolish anti-foreign rumours.

Owing to large quantities of rice having been sold last summer to the Japanese, we were threatened with a famine in and around Ningpo. In one district a report spread and, was readily believed, to the effect that the foreigners had bought up the rice and were making poisonous medicine with it, and that they intended giving it to the Chinese to kill them. In another district it was to the effect that the foreigners had bought up the rice and were making "gunpowder" out of it.

The second class comprises those who believe that in some way or other it will be to their material advantage to join the "Jesus religion." The missionary was once accosted by a number of men lounging on a bridge with the words, "Ah! foreign sir, we will all enter the church if you will give us twenty dollars each!" Happily there is a third class, consisting of those who seem to be conscious of their need of a Saviour, and to be earnestly seeking for Him. Some of the catechists met with men who showed much interest in the Gospel message, and on one occasion five or six woodcutters sat talking with them from six o'clock in the morning until ten or eleven o'clock at night, only breaking off the conversation when it became necessary to get some food. An interesting event which happened at a village called Zin-Zi, in the spring of 1898, and showed the reality of an inquirer's faith, is narrated by Mr. Godson as follows:—

An inquirer's faith tested.

The man was building a house for himself and family, and when the building had reached a certain stage, the neighbours came to him and said that he must perform certain heathen rites. On his persistently refusing to do so, a large band of Heathen collected with swords and knives and ropes. With the ropes they pulled the house down and completely wrecked it. To prevent the inquirer's friends from resisting their violence and defending the property, the wreckers brought over two destitute old women and declared that if they met with any opposition they would compel this poor old couple to take poison, and having mutilated their bodies, would declare that the inquirer and his friends had murdered them. This plan seems to have succeeded well, for the rascals met with no resistance. I may add that another objection raised to the building of the house was that it was being built too close to an old grave, and that the spirit of the person buried would be disturbed! It was a case of "Feng-Shüi." The upshot of this little event was that the wreckers had to pay damages and allow the house to be rebuilt upon the same spot as at first, and that without the performance of the heathen rites. The inquirer has given $100 to the Native Church as a thankoffering. Since this event quite a spirit of inquiry has sprung up at Zin-Zi, and instead of only one inquirer, as at the beginning of the year, there are now six or seven there.

Dr. Smyth in his report of the Medical Mission for the twelve months ending March 31st, 1898, states that there were 7,404 attendances of out-patients, and 298 visits paid to Natives at their own homes; that the in-patients numbered 295; and that eighteen major and 282 minor operations were performed. There is now accommodation in the Hospital for thirty-two men. Among the patients were thirty opium-smokers, who were all cured after the usual four weeks' treatment. The figures for the last nine months of the year showed considerable advance, for there were 6,000 visits of out-patients, and 340 in-patients, and, in addition, two baptisms took place as a result of the work. The hospital for women was only open for seven months. Dr. Smyth is justly severe upon the awful suffering and risk to which poor women are subjected in China by mid-wives "whose only qualification seems to be old age and ignorance." Chinese cruelty was sadly illustrated by the case of a little girl named Ah-dzing, who was admitted into the hospital in a shocking condition, having had both her feet destroyed by gangrene. The child had been betrothed, and, in accordance with an old custom, was living with her future mother-in-law. The latter treated her very harshly, and at length one day, for some trivial offence, tied cords tightly round each of her legs, and, heedless of the suffering visibly produced, kept the ligatures on until the limbs dropped off! The stumps healed up after secondary amputation, and the child might soon afterwards have been seen on Sundays walking to church on her knees. The medical work was effective in gaining openings for direct evangelistic effort. This was manifested especially in the case of the relations of a young woman who died shortly after being discharged from the hospital as incurable: her mother said that her daughter had been so bright in her death, and had shown such joy at the prospect of departing to be with her Saviour, that both she and another woman were anxious to know more of what the daughter had learned.

The Work among Women was conducted by Mrs. W. S. Moule, and the Misses E. Green, M. E. Turnbull, and I. Hughes. The Sunday Bible-class with which Mrs. Hoare's name is intimately associated was so well attended that it became necessary to divide it. The class for heathen women bore fruit in the baptism of three of its members. The women's school, after a prolonged vacation caused by the prevalence of small-pox, was resumed in October; and the girls' boarding school (under Miss Turnbull, assisted for a time by Miss Green) continued its useful career. The ladies also rendered valuable assistance in the Dispensary and Women's Hospital. Mrs. Moule mentions the encouraging fact that an increased amount of voluntary help in making known the Gospel was rendered by the Christian women, and instances one woman who came bringing with her a neighbour whom she had been teaching, and who was anxious for baptism. The same woman also told of two other women who regularly attended family prayers in her house, and frequently spent the rest of the evening in listening to "the doctrine." Another important opening occurred through the action of the public vaccinator, a Christian, who requested that a Bible-woman might go to his house and speak to the women who brought their children to be vaccinated.

T'AI-CHOW.

T'ai-Chow.

The troubles due to the help in defending or prosecuting lawsuits, given to their adherents by the Roman Catholics, which was referred to in last year's Report, continued undiminished during the year under review. Bishop Moule, after a tour in the T'AI-CHOW district, wrote:—

Lawsuits championed by Roman Catholic priests.

> Professional roughs, not to say actual banditti, find refuge under the banner of the Roman Catholic religion, and as catechumens are championed by Roman Catholic priests and missionaries in lawsuits and trials, no matter how risky, and our people are not seldom sufferers at their hands. But a much more serious danger is that they are tempted to imitate and to press their pastors and missionaries to imitate Roman Catholic proceedings.

The Bishop, by way of illustration of the former evil complained of, mentions an adherent of the C.M.S. Mission whose shop was plundered by roughs professing themselves Roman Catholics, the French priest defending their action. As an example of the latter evil, the infectious influence of these bad examples, he instances the case of one of the Society's catechists who had been offered a bribe by an adherent to secure his patronage in a lawsuit, and succumbing to the temptation had in consequence to be dismissed.

The Rev. and Mrs. G. H. Jose and the Rev. E. Thompson are stationed in the town of T'ai-Chow. The evangelistic work in the city did not meet with much success; the presence of the foreigner there does not arouse the interest of the people in the same degree as in the country districts, and as nearly all the men are busily engaged in the search for wealth they have no inclination to listen to teaching about a religion which prohibits the dishonest methods which are so much in vogue. During the hot weather preaching took place every evening in the dispensary hall, and on some occasions as many as sixty or seventy merchants and others were present, but when the weather became cooler the people ceased to attend, and the preachings were perforce discontinued. Mr. Thompson classes the work in the country under three heads: that at the older stations, where there are proper church buildings and schools, which is mainly in the hands of the Native Church; that at the more recent stations, where the buildings are of a temporary character; and that at the outposts, where the services are held in the rooms of a hired house, or of one lent by a convert or inquirer. During the year under review three new centres of influence were opened in the Northern Pastorate, and in the southern districts a considerable movement towards Christianity was apparent. Mr. Thompson and one of the native pastors went in August to a narrow island, some twelve miles in length, containing seventy-two towns and villages, which lies near the coast, with the result that when Bishop Moule visited the Southern Pastorate in December some of the inhabitants of the island travelled thirty or forty miles to meet him, and brought with them a petition from nine of the villages, subscribed by over ninety names, asking that Christian teachers might be sent to them. On another occasion Mr. Thompson went to the little city of Ts'u-Meng, of which he writes:—

An islanders' petition for teachers.

> At this place there has been a stir in favour of the Gospel for the past three years, and invitations have more than once come to us. We expected, therefore, to find some thirty or forty prepared to receive Christianity, and some more or less acquainted with the fundamental truths of the Gospel. What was our surprise, however, to find a record dating from June, 1896, to May, 1898, including names of twenty-nine outlying places besides the city (a radius of ten miles), of 241 adults, would-be catechumens, and a net sum of $217.75 already promised for bonâ fide church purposes, not to mention alternative sites already chosen for erection of church, &c.
> Although our visit was unannounced and purely tentative, yet a service on the following Sunday sufficed to bring a morning congregation of 150, and an afternoon one of over 100, of whom about one half were inquirers from the city and country.
>
> For the purposes of service a large central guest-hall was arranged, the ancestral idols covered with a white curtain (idols may not be removed unless all the families of a courtyard consent, but any of its inmates may use the guest-hall), and seats and forms collected for the worshippers. The congregation was intelligently attentive, and some were already in possession of Bible, prayer, and hymn-books.
>
> During our stay we were able to interview and interrogate personally about eighty of the nominees; and, as far as erring judgment can ascertain, we believe them to be free from the great vices of the country, and their motives to be pure.

Wide-spread spirit of inquiry.

At another place the audience was so large that the preachers had to resort to the theatre in order to be heard, and even an idolatrous procession with a brass band failed to draw the people away. The growth of the Mission, which now reaches far beyond the Da-Zih valley, and extends over a Prefecture one hundred miles long, forms in one way a hindrance to the work, since it is impossible to place a resident teacher in every place nominally occupied by the Society. Experience has proved that the plan of sending the workers out in pairs is a wise one, but it naturally increases the difficulty of properly manning the out-stations.

Five days' journey between two stations.

During his summer vacation Mr. Thompson travelled down to Fuh-Chow through the northern Fuh-Kien stations. He found that it was possible to cover the distance between the most southern station of the China Inland Mission in the Province of Cheh-Kiang, and the most northern station of the C.M.S. in that of Fuh-Kien, in a little under five days.

SHAOU-HING.

Shaou-Hing.

In the absence on furlough of the Rev. W. G. Walshe, the Rev. A. Phelps was in charge of the work at SHAOU-HING. He reports that the attendances at the Sunday services, while not as good as could be desired, yet gave some encouragement. A monthly Bible-class for Christian women was conducted by Mrs. Phelps. All the members belonged to the local Branch of the Gleaners' Union, which held monthly meetings, at which work was done for the Hang-Chow Hospital. Miss E. F. Turner visited regularly in the city with the Bible-woman; almost every time they went out, they were invited into some houses which they had not previously entered. She received about 230 native callers on the Chinese New Year's Day (January 22nd), and every Tuesday afternoon throughout the year was "at home" to heathen women. One woman, who came nearly every week for some months, eventually became a candidate for baptism. The new day-school for girls, which was opened in April, 1898, made but slow progress owing to the familiar stories that the foreigners wanted to take out the eyes and livers of the children; but, on the other hand, the older established schools for boys were quite full, and one of the scholars was accepted as a catechumen. The Dispensary was again opened, under the charge of a native evangelist from Dr. Main's hospital at Hang-Chow. In the course of his itinerating, Mr. Phelps came in contact with numbers of Tartars who were able to understand Si-Chuan Mandarin, a language which he had acquired during his connexion with the China Inland Mission; many of them listened to the Gospel message with more than the customary attention. There was one inquirer, employed as a hat maker, of whom it is said that in order to avoid giving his master any cause for complaint in consequence of his absence from work on Sunday, he always made an extra hat per day during the week. The Rev. Tsong Sieh-en, the native pastor, who suffered considerably from ill-health, moved about the district as far as possible. He mentions one man who gave special heed to the preaching, and commenced to observe the Lord's Day, walking seven miles each Sunday to a place of worship, whatever the wind and rain might be. The man reported that there were five others in his native village willing to be taught. Before Mr. Walshe left for England in April, 1898, he baptized two adults, the mother and sister of one of the native helpers; and, later in the year, the father of the latter was received into the visible Church of Christ.

HANG-CHOW.

Hang-Chow.

A terrific explosion occurred at the arsenal at HANG-CHOW in the evening of December 16th, 1898, by which over 100 people were blown to pieces, and whole streets of Chinese houses were destroyed. The buildings of the American Presbyterian Mission, South, were wrecked, and several of the missionaries, including two ladies, were injured; but all the C.M.S. party escaped harm, although considerable damage was done to the property of the Society.

Medical students.

The medical work at Hang-Chow was carried on by Dr. D. D. Main (now at home) and Dr. A. T. Kember. There was difficulty in coping with the work, but nevertheless much was accomplished during the year under review. Dr. Main was chiefly occupied with the Medical Class, in which Natives are trained to be doctors, the great aim being to enable them to master methods, rather than to cumber their minds with a variety of theories. One of the most promising of the qualified men left for Shanghai, where he receives a salary three times as large as he was paid in C.M.S. work. The temptation to the men to take up work in a secular connexion, owing to the large salaries which they can command, is very great, but some of them, to their honour be it said, remain in the Mission, and there manifest the efficiency of the training they have received. The great need among them is, of course, a more burning desire for the salvation of their fellow-countrymen. The attendance of Out-patients was very large, 36,571 visits being recorded during the year. Dr. Main says of the people:—

"Unsavoury and unsanitary."

> They smell of disease, poverty, and misery. They are unsavoury and insanitary, and are covered with disease from head to heel, and also covered with some of the lower forms of insect life which do not bear a high reputation! China is still fast asleep on the subject of sanitary improvements and personal cleanliness. The one who can turn away such without trying his level best to help them by word and deed is not worthy of the work to which he has been called. No urgent case was refused admittance, but less serious ones were encouraged to seek relief in the out-patient department.
>
> Our difficulties in connexion with the treatment of in-patients, although very much less than they used to be, are still often very great and trying, and tax our patience to its utmost limit. Chinese nurses lack will power, and find great difficulty in dealing with those who belong to a higher social rank than themselves, but are sadly wanting in ideas of cleanliness.

Excepting in the Women's Hospital, which suffered from Mrs. Main's absence, the number In-patients showed a steady increase. The following extract from Dr. Main's Annual Letter illustrates what a tax on the patience such a work necessarily is:—

Wilful patients.

> The difficulty of dieting special cases is very real, and the patients are ever getting their friends to smuggle in all kinds of dainty dishes, from putrefying bean curd to pork dumplings, turnips, and peanuts. There was one dietetic patient whom we were dieting on pork, port wine, almond emulsion, brown bread, &c., &c., at an average cost of $2 per diem, but no rice was allowed him, as he was told it was bad for his disease. However, his zeal for rice exceeded his knowledge and our advice, and in the small hours of the morning, when everyone was asleep, he went to the kitchen and disposed of large quantities of the cold article! He baffled all our plans, and finally we had to send him home, where he shortly afterwards died. It is not uncommon to find a patient with acute dysentery or typhoid fever refreshing himself with a water nut or a Chinese pear, the hardness of which is only known to those who have tried to eat a piece of stick dipped in syrup.

Work for Lepers.

The Work among Lepers was "sad and interesting." All that could be done was to relieve in some measure their sufferings and make their lives as happy as possible, and this was more successfully accomplished with those who were in the Lake Home than with those who remained in the city. Several of the lepers died during the year; of one of them it is said:—

> For weeks he lay covered with sores—literally covered—and never once did a murmur cross his lips. His great desire was that Jesus would take him home, and for a couple of days before his death the only words he uttered were "Dzi, dzi" ("Thanks, thanks"). His faith and trust in a personal Saviour were very real, and put us all to shame.

Opium Refuge.

The work at the Opium Refuge increased considerably. Dr. Main, who has had great opportunities of arriving at the true facts about opium smoking, is not disposed to modify his opinions as to its prevalence, or as to the evils resulting from it, for he writes:—

> The demoralization and corruption caused by opium smoking can hardly be overstated. The passion for opium corrodes the soul of the Chinese. What principles they have are cast to the winds, and all regard for truth, purity, and duty are crushed out of their hearts. The love of opium is with them the root of all evil. Surely we ought to adopt means and measures to alleviate and finally root out this shameful evil, which is a disgrace to our English name. Without this I have no hesitation in saying that the recovery of the country, whether physically, morally, or mentally, is an impossibility. With the advent of new reforms and new forces of civilization and the spread of Western learning and Christianity a powerful influence can be exerted in favour of winning the Chinese from the degrading vice.

Cases of opium suicide.

Ninety-five persons were admitted to the Refuge so as to be cured of opium smoking, and in the cases of seventy-one the treatment attained its object; while in sixteen the result was doubtful. There were no fewer than 203 cases of attempted suicide, in 185 of which the poison used was opium. The Convalescent-Home.

Convalescent Home, which was opened on the day of the Queen's Diamond Jubilee, was well used, and for several weeks was uncomfortably crowded; indeed, Dr. Main wondered how they managed for so many years without such an institution.

Every effort was made to put the Gospel plainly before those who came for treatment. Evangelists moved among the men, and Miss E. Goudge and others taught the women; but many of the patients came from the country districts, and the difficulty of following them up often rendered it impossible to ascertain whether the seed sown in the Hospital had really taken root.

The Rev. H. W. Moule supervised the three Boys' Schools in the city, as well as the Bookshop which was reopened at the close of 1897, after an interval of fifteen years. In August the young man in charge of the shop died. Mr. Moule says of him:—

A faithful depôt keeper.

> He was formerly a field-labourer, and lived near Ningpo. When first put in charge of the shop, he knew barely enough to enable him to take the post. However, he set to work, and improved in reading and other necessary things in the most satisfactory way. One day I went to the shop to preach, and he asked me if I would see his next door neighbour, who, he said, wished to become a Christian. I said, "Yes," and he called him. I found the man had a considerable knowledge of the Gospel, and was very clear as to what made him hope that Jesus could save his soul. I asked where he had learned all this, and he said the book-shopkeeper had for many weeks got him to come every night and read the New Testament with him. This man, formerly a Vegetarian, now, I trust, an earnest believer in the Lord Jesus, was at the funeral last August.

Out-stations.

Mr. Moule is also in charge of the work at the Out-stations up the Hang-Chow River, in which the Misses M. Vaughan, L. H. Barnes, D. C. Joynt, and J. C. Grant were his colleagues. Twenty-six adults and twelve children were baptized, besides some converts belonging to the district who were received at Hang-Chow; and the communicants numbered eighty-five. Nine of the adults were baptized by Bishop Moule at Tsang-Kya-Fan, where till then there had been no Christians, and Mr. Moule visiting it later on found a congregation of forty, one of whom belonged to a place 300 miles off in the Province of Kiang-Si. At Pondhead the catechist is Luke Chow, the first Chu-Ki Christian. There were but few converts at this out-station, but eight or nine men and boys were inquirers, and some came a distance of ten miles for instruction. A new boys' school was opened at Fu-Yang, thirty miles up the river, and a fourth school for girls at Tsang-Kya-Fan. These schools are valuable not only for the benefit which the children themselves receive through them, but also on account of the influence which the pupils exert on their friends and relations. Miss Vaughan mentions a place where a meeting was to be held to which each Christian woman was asked to get some heathen friend to come with her. What was her astonishment to see a little girl, seven years of age, belonging to one of the schools, bringing in a big girl of seventeen! Thirteen women joined the class which was held during the winter in Hang-Chow, eleven of whom were from the River District. Miss Vaughan had a good reception in many of the villages, but did not invariably meet with kind or gentle treatment. Once she narrowly escaped being shut into a pig-sty. She writes:—

A lady missionary threatened with rough treatment.

It was the first visit to that village, and the people crowded round. Some women politely asked us to sit down on a bench. But seeing that I should not be heard, I got up on a door-step, and for a time the people were very attentive. When some men came in from the fields and called out "beat" and "kill," those standing near told them to be quiet, as they wanted to hear. Presently a man roughly ordered me down, saying the house was his, and that I was not to preach the doctrine in that village. I asked the bystanders if the house was really his, saying that if it was I would go elsewhere. Before I had time to move off, the man rushed up, flung open the door behind me, and revealed a pig-sty, exclaiming, "You can go in there if you like; if not, come down." Needless to say I came down with all possible speed.

CHU-KI.

Chu-Ki.

The year 1898 was one of anxiety for residents at Chu-Ki. The high price of rice induced a disposition on the part of the people to become actively hostile to the officials, and to treat with violence all engaged in the rice trade, and the rice-shops of the city were twice broken into by angry mobs, and their contents scattered in the streets. As time went on, matters appeared likely to become even more serious, and a native pastor wrote to Bishop Moule in August:—

Mob violence threatened.

Lately, the White Flag Club has mustered to the number of some thousands, intending, as rumour says, to break the prisons and wreck the Mission halls. On the 15th I got warning that could be trusted from some country Christians that on the 16th they would rise, and I immediately called upon the civil and military mandarins to ask for protection. The magistrate, Sen, and the commandant, Tu, detailed soldiers to keep a strict watch. Nevertheless, the club men entered the city in large numbers, but did not dare to move. We are now in fair peace, but it is reported that the club will certainly rise some day. A little while ago magistrate Sen asked me to remove my family, and also Mr. Ost's property. But I replied that if I did so the whole city would be more excited than ever, which view he approved. What is your Reverence's opinion? Personally, I should like my family to remove to Hang-Chow for a time, but I cannot leave myself, both lest I should distract our people's minds and because I prefer to share their sufferings (if any) with them.

The native pastor elects to share his people's dangers.

The Rev. J. B. Ost, the superintending missionary at Chu-Ki, on his return in September from a visit to Shanghai, found that the authorities were taking precautions and had added eighteen soldiers to the small local force to act as a sort of police patrol; the city magistrate expressed himself hopeful that the troubles would blow over, but it was impossible to predict what the secret societies would do. The exigencies of the Mission rendered it necessary temporarily to detain at Shaou-Hing Miss L. C. Pope, who had been located to Chu-Ki.

Mr. and Mrs. Ost had an encouraging itineration in the eastern part of their district in June, 1898, in the course of which they found their case of drugs of great use. There was a noticeable improvement in the attitude of the people towards the missionaries, which is attributed by Mr. Ost to the treatment of sickness and disease whenever possible, the frequent itinerations, and the constant contact with the people. During this tour four men were baptized at Dong-Wu, two at Great Valley, and four men and one woman at Ziang-Deo. In the autumn Mr. Tseo Gyi Kwe, a Christian of over twenty years standing, and one of the earliest members of the Church at Great Valley, was called to his rest. He had been a schoolmaster in the Mission for several years, and many of his neighbours, both Christian and Heathen, bore testimony to his consistent life. The Rev. H. Barton, who was engaged in language study, mentions the opening of a new church at Loh-Ko, and states that both the site and the building were provided almost entirely by the Natives themselves. The Christians of their own accord also built a school, and became responsible for the salary of the teacher. He sums up his Annual Report in the following terms, which should prove an incentive to perseverance in prayer:—

End of a consistent life.

> From all I have said you will see that on all sides the work is pushing forward and there is movement all round. Not that as yet the masses are moved, but God seems to be gathering out His people in larger numbers than in previous years. This result is, I believe, in a large measure due to the more mighty pleading with God in prayer on behalf of Missions. We in the Mission-field are gleaning precious souls in greater numbers in consequence of the powerful co-operation of our praying Christian brethren and sisters in the home and other lands, for the whole world is belted with a circle of God's remembrancers, who cease not to plead with Him daily on behalf of the Heathen everywhere.

WEST CHINA MISSION.

The Province of Si-Chuan was occupied by a party under the Rev. J. H. Horsburgh in 1892, but for more than a year it was impossible to rent houses in any place not already occupied by other Societies. In 1894 the cities of Chong-Pa, Sin-Tu, Mien-Chuh, Mien-Cheo, and An-Hsien received resident missionaries, and Shih-Ts'uen-Hsien in 1895. The Rev. W. W. Cassels, a missionary of the China Inland Mission, was appointed, on the nomination of the C.M.S., Bishop in Western China, and was consecrated on October 18th, 1895.

Review after seven years.

An interesting review of the West China Mission by Mr. A. A. Phillips (now at home) appeared in the C.M. Intelligencer for November, 1898, in which the results of the first seven years' work are enumerated as follows:—"The opening of six Mission centres, distributed pretty evenly over a densely populated area of some 180 miles long by eighty broad; twenty-seven converts baptized; and the Gospel preached in some measure and circulated in books and tracts all over that area—a seed-sowing which will surely have a harvest."

Mr. Phillips emphasizes two special characteristics of the work: (1) No church buildings have hitherto been erected, because it is felt to be important that the Natives should provide these for themselves. They are accustomed as Heathen to build their own temples, to give glebe lands which are utilized for their maintenance, and in case of need to supplement the proceeds from these properties by special subscriptions, and consequently it is natural, as well as desirable, that when they become Christians they should act with respect to the worship of the true God with a no less self-sacrificing spirit than they formerly manifested in their devotion to their idols. (2) The missionaries have refrained from employing native agents paid with foreign money, for they believe that it is better on the whole to wait for such agents until the Native Christians are able to support them, the converts meanwhile witnessing voluntarily by life and lips to the power and peace of the Gospel.

The sphere nominally worked by the C.M.S. West China Mission comprises all the country north-east of Chen-Tu, as far as the boundary of the Church of England district of the China Inland Mission, and includes a great part of the very densely populated Chen-Tu plain. In this region, however, ten walled cities and numerous large and important market towns were still unoccupied when Mr. Phillips wrote.

Christians stand firm during rebellion.

The disturbances in the Province of Si-Chuan have been referred to already (see supra, page 318). Bishop Cassels visited the stations of the Society in March, 1898, and again in September, and says that while, in consequence of the disturbances, the progress was less than had been hoped for, yet it was a matter for thankfulness that the Christians had stood firm, and that advance was evident at some of the stations. He adds:—

Our great need now is a band of men who would set evangelistic and itinerating work before themselves in a prominent way to the exclusion of other forms of work. Such men need not have had a University education or pastoral experience, but should be so deeply imbued with an evangelistic spirit, that they would be enabled to resist the temptation to turn aside to other things.

Ordinations.

Bishop Cassels admitted Mr. J. A. Hickman to deacon's orders at Pao-Ning on June 5th, 1898, and the Rev. D. A. Callum was ordained priest at the same time.

Reinforcement.

The only reinforcement which the Mission received was Mr. Ernest Hamilton, of the Clapham Preparatory Institution, who sailed in October, 1898, but was compelled by the disturbances in the Province of Si-Chuan to remain in Shanghai for some months. Miss R. Lloyd and Miss G. E. Wells also sailed to return to China after furlough in October, 1898. Miss E. Casswell, for family reasons, and Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Phillips, on furlough, came home in July, 1898, and the Rev. and Mrs. O. M. Jackson in April, 1899. Mr. W. Andrews was married on January 26th, 1899, at Mien-Chuh, to Miss Alice Maud Barker, of this Mission.

Retirement of Rev. J. H. Horsburgh.

The Rev. J. H. Horsburgh has in effect given up his connexion with the Society. He has for some years felt a conscientious difficulty in accepting an episcopal licence. Bishop Moule and Bishop Cassels successively showed the utmost consideration, as he fully acknowledged, in patiently and hopefully waiting till he should see his way to conform to Church usage in this respect, and Bishop Cassels expressed his willingness to leave him still unfettered as a recognized though unlicensed worker in his diocese. But Mr. Horsburgh deprecated, as all Christians do, the reproductions of the numerous sects and denominations of the home lands in the Mission-field, and from that point of view he felt unable to be a party to the introduction of Church forms—such as confirmation, for example—among the converts of the C.M.S. Mission in Si-Chuan. Under the circumstances no other course was open to the Committee than to sorrowfully acquiesce in a separation taking place "by mutual consent." The example of Mr. Horsburgh's devotion, the spiritual influence of his life and intercourse, and the marked wisdom and judgment with which he has guided the first steps of a new Mission on new lines in a province far removed from the coast, have won the Committee's loving esteem.

MIEN-CHEO.

Mien-Cheo.

The staff at Mien-Cheo consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. O. M. Jackson (now at home), Mr. T. Simmonds, and the Misses M. A. Thompson, I. K. S. Acheson, and R. F. Murray.

Friendliness of the people.

The people of the city manifested increasing friendliness, that of the scholars being due to the fact that Mr. Jackson willingly helped them to procure some books on Western sciences. Many of the men came to the Mission-house for conversation, and no less than seventeen of them were subscribers to the Chinese magazine called the Review of the Times, a semi-Christian work, issued monthly by the Presbyterian press at Shanghai. The proclamations of the Emperor that Western sciences were to be taught in the schools were hailed by these literati with delight, and though a later edict reversed this enactment, it was not until a taste for learning had been acquired. One enthusiastic scholar, when the school for Western science was closed, consoled himself with the thought that the Gospel hall could not be shut, nor the sale of Christian books caused to cease! The average number present at the Sunday services was thirty, two women converts unfortunately being irregular in their attendance. No baptisms took place in Mien-Cheo itself, for the one woman who was admitted into the visible Church, a servant, was a Native of Chong-Pa, and it was deemed desirable to baptize her there; but four women were admitted as catechumens, and the case of one man appeared hopeful. Miss Acheson conducted four cottage meetings every week, which had a united average attendance of from twenty to thirty, and, with Miss Murray's assistance, carried on a small Sunday-school. The one complaint that she makes is that "the days are too short in China." Evangelistic preaching was continued with some success, and permanent premises for this purpose were obtained in a shop without any opposition. In February, 1898, Mr. Jackson visited Tsi-Tong, a large city forty miles to the north of Mien-Cheo, and stayed there four days during a fair. He had good and quiet audiences of men and boys at the street meetings, but all efforts made by him and Mr. Horsburgh to rent a house were in vain. Greater success was met with at Wei-Chen, which is situated twenty miles to the north-east, for a small house was rented there, and an out-station opened. A visit was also paid in October to T'ong-Ch'uan, but the officials urged Mr. Jackson to leave at once, and he was not allowed to preach in the street. He met at the inn a man who, five years before, professed to believe the doctrine, but never came out as a Christian. Mr. Simmonds itinerated in the neighbourhood of Chong-Chiang-Hsien, which lies forty-three miles to the south-west of Mien-Cheo, and resided in an inn in the city for several months, but, as at Tsi-Tong, it was found impossible to rent a house. At one place, where most of the people were friendly, the village constable collected a number of roughs, and threatened the missionaries, even going so far as to strike Mr. Simmonds on the face, but providentially no serious trouble ensued.

SIN-TU.

The work at SIN-TU was under the charge of the Rev. D. A. Callum, who, as already mentioned, was ordained priest in June, 1898. The attendance at the Sunday morning services often numbered as many as sixty. Two men, three women, and one girl were baptized in January, 1898, four of the converts having first heard the Gospel clearly from Mrs. Uang (see last year's Report, page 364), who is an unpaid worker, and embraces every opportunity of witnessing for her Lord and Saviour. She and her husband had some trouble during the year, which is thus described by Miss E. D. Mertens, whose chief work was visiting the women:—

Sin-Tu.

Their house caught fire owing to some carelessness on the part of Mrs. Uang's mother. The fire was quickly extinguished, for the neighbours rushed in and poured water over everything; not content with this, they commenced pulling the house down—this was not a difficult matter, as the walls were only lath and plaster. All the time they were abusing the Trials patiently borne by Christians.

Uangs, saying their house had caught fire because they did not worship the fire-god, and said they must at once burn incense to him; this, of course, they refused to do. About 200 people came to see what was going on, and no one lost a single thing, although many of the neighbours had thrown some of their belongings into the court in case their houses caught fire. We were most thankful for this, as it would have made it much worse for the Uangs. The people were very excited, and said unless the Uangs burned incense to the fire-god they would not allow them to return to the house, and if they did they would all leave. That evening they were all burning incense and candles; besides this, they killed two ducks and offered them to the fire-god to propitiate him.

The Uangs showed such a Christ-like spirit during this trying time—their calmness and faith was wonderful; truly, they found God to be their refuge and strength in this time of trouble.

Four of the converts mentioned above were confirmed by the Bishop two months after their baptism. The fifth convert, a woman named Mrs. Siu, was not presented, owing to some wrongdoing of which she had been guilty; but when she saw the others confirmed and admitted to the Lord's Table, she quite broke down, confessed her sin, and gave every sign of true repentance. Later in the year, when Mrs. Uang went to see her, she said that she had just proved the power of prayer. A few days before some soldiers came to search some of the adjacent houses for thieves, and took advantage of their opportunity to commit wholesale robbery themselves, and destroy rice and clothes and beds in most of the houses which they visited. Mrs. Siu said that she prayed for help, and that only two of the soldiers were sent to her, and they did not do any harm. One of those baptized and confirmed died in the faith of Christ after a short illness, and an old lady who, though not baptized, appeared to be a real Christian, also passed away. Only a few inquirers came forward, though there were several whose cases seemed hopeful. One who for a time showed much interest in the Gospel message was a young man whom Mr. Callum saved from hanging himself in the tower of the city gate. He writes:—

Belief in the power of prayer.

An inquirer whom the missionary had saved from self-destruction.

He had been gambling and lost all his money and most of his clothes, and so in despair he tried to take his own life. Providentially, I saw the crowd standing near our door looking up at the city tower, and, being curious, I went to look also. I was horrified at the sight, but lost no time in cutting him down, and a few vigorous slaps and plenty of cold water brought him round. The crowd was full of admiration, but said they would not have dared to cut him down lest the demon who possessed him should enter into them! The young man told me his story, and I went and hunted up his father, and saw the two of them reconciled, and they went home together. The young fellow came to several meetings, and wished to become an inquirer, but I thought it best that he should wait a while before being enrolled. He has since gone to live in another city, but comes and sees me when he visits Sin-Tu, though he does not show so great an interest in the Gospel as he did.

The people of Sin-Tu were very friendly and willing to listen, and a large number of visitors came to see Mr. Callum and the ladies at the beginning of the Chinese New Year; indeed on the first day the little chapel was filled four or five times with men only. Lantern services were held with success during the week, and it is said that thousands heard the message of salvation. Simple medical work was carried on as before, from ten to twenty men being treated every day, in addition to the women and children, who were cared for by Miss M. C. Gillmor. Miss E. Casswell was able to do a little itinerating work before she left for England, and in one village spoke for over four hours to various groups of women.

Lantern services.

MIEN-CHUH.

Mr. W. H. Gill, who is in charge at MIEN-CHUH, is not able to speak very hopefully of the condition of the work. One of the six converts left to join the Romanists, and another was discovered to be leading an inconsistent life; but, on the other hand, a woman named Wang was baptized in April, 1898, and gave cause for thankfulness by her simple faith. The usual attendance at the services on Sundays was eighteen. The most encouraging part of the work was among the people who came to the guest hall, numbering on the average seventy-three men every day in August and September, besides many women. It must not be supposed, however, that all of these wished to hear the Gospel, for Miss A. M. Barker (now Mrs. W. Andrews) wrote:—

Mien-Chuh.

> The great majority of the women who come into our guest-hall come out of curiosity or to pass away a little time; as a rule, they are very friendly and willing to talk on general topics, but when one begins to tell them of a Saviour who died for them, I have noticed their whole manner change; and if they do not give one another the signal to go, they will interrupt by asking all kinds of questions as to the clothes we have on, how far have we come, what do we eat, &c. When one has finished answering, then another attempt is made to bring home to them their need of a Saviour; if only one could get them to realize their lost condition and to awake a real desire for Him whom they know not!

Indifference to spiritual things.

There were some thirty cases of attempted opium poisoning, but happily in nearly every instance the patient recovered. Many of the old inquirers fell away, but some others took their places, and one or two of the women seemed to be in earnest. Miss Barker says of one of them, Mrs. U., who was mentioned in last year's Report:—

> She is just an evidence of the work of the Holy Spirit in her heart: her case is indeed an answer to prayer. When she first came she had very strong faith in her idols and always had something to say in their favour, but gradually the truths of the Gospel dawned upon her, and gradually, too, her heart opened, until now I believe she is trusting in the Lord Jesus for salvation. She was a life-long abstainer from meat, and it was a long time before she saw that this must go too. We told her to make it a matter of prayer, and that we wanted her to do as the Lord showed her, and not to give it up just because we told her it ought to be given up. To our great joy, and as another instance of answer to prayer on her behalf, she has broken her fast, because, as she tells us, it cannot save her from sin. She is one of our most regular attendants on Sunday, and is always so bright and eager to learn ; she is a very intelligent woman. She comes to us in face of much opposition ; her husband said he would give her no more rice if she "eat our religion," and her sons were also angry with her, but I believe this was only a threat.

In January, 1898, Mr. A. A. Phillips and Mr. W. Knipe, of An-Hsien, joined in an evangelistic mission at Hsiao-Tsuen, a town ten miles distant from Mien-Chuh. A large annual fair was taking place, and there were good opportunities of proclaiming the Gospel—in the evenings at a shop adapted as a preaching room, and in the day-time from a platform erected in one of the main approaches to the fair ground. The Native Christians and inquirers took affectionate leave of Mr. and Mrs. Phillips when they started for England, and some accompanied them a considerable distance, their faithful cook going as far as I-Chang, 600 miles from Mien-Chuh.

A convert accompanies departing missionaries six hundred miles.

AN-HSIEN.

An-Hsien.

The staff at AN-HSIEN consisted during the greater part of the year of Mr. and Mrs. W. Knipe, Dr. W. Squibbs, and Miss I. S. D. Mitchell, but the first-named left in October to make inquiries about the opening of a new station at Song-Pan. The Rev. J. H. Horsburgh spent some weeks at An-Hsien, and assisted in the work. Dr. Squibbs employed the early months of 1898 in visiting the various stations occupied by Protestant Missions in the Province at which medical work was carried on, travelling first to the east, and later on proceeding to Ching-Tu, the capital of the Province, and thence to Chung-King. He found that altogether there were eleven medical missionaries among the thirty or forty million inhabitants, and that some 40,000 visits of out-patients had been registered, and 700 patients treated in the hospitals. The Dispensary in An-Hsien was opened in October, and in two months about 1,000 attendances of out-patients were recorded. The patients were of all classes, from the beggar in rags to the Governor's wife; men who had received wounds either in brawls in the street or in encounters with robbers on the high road ; coolies who had travelled till their legs were covered with sores ; women and little girls not a few, with all the ills following upon their bound feet; the blind with cataract; and the opium habitués. Preaching in the open air and in the guest-hall was continued with encouraging results as far as numbers were concerned, especially at the time of the Festival of the city god. Miss Mitchell, who was delayed on her journey to Si-Chuan by the illness of Miss Murray, her travelling companion, which necessitated a prolonged stay at I-Chang, and who experienced much kindness at the hands of the members of the China Inland Mission and others, had most of her time occupied with the study of the language, but she managed to hold a knitting-class for the elder girls, and also to commence a little Sunday-school, the attendance at which gradually rose to twelve. No baptisms took place during the year, but there were one or two hopeful inquirers, of one of whom, a writer in the Yamên, Dr. Squibbs says:—

A Yamên official attends the services.

His first contact with the doctrine was amongst the Romanists. About the middle of the year his wife had a vision, so he said, in which she saw the Lord Jesus in dazzling brightness; the sight convinced her of her need, and she felt His claim upon her. The vision, however, had more effect upon her husband than herself; he came to tell us about it, saying he wanted to repent of his sins, and recognize the Lord as the true God. He commenced to break off his opium habit, and buying medicine from us, was soon out of its thraldom. He began to attend worship on Sundays, and since then has not missed once, except when he has been obliged to go away on official business.

In October Dr. Squibbs had a narrow escape from mob violence as he was returning from a visit to Sin-Tu. He wrote:—

Missionary threatened by a mob.

I was followed out of a village by some hundreds of people yelling threats of hanging, drowning, and crucifying the foreign dog, &c.; and as I leaned hard on the Lord moment by moment, the more the mob raged the more He filled my heart with love to them, and though the stones and clods of earth they threw at me fell thick on every side, not one struck me, and the Lord restrained them from further violence and kept me safe. The devil possessed some of them to run on ahead and try and incite the people in the next villages, but there too the Lord restrained them, and I only had to run the gauntlet of threats and curses as I walked through the streets.

And, speaking of the rebellion, he added:—

It has done something to make the people distinguish between the various kinds of foreigner, the trader and the missionary, the Britisher and the Frenchman, and, most important, between the Protestant and the Romanist; it is the latter who have been most held up to obloquy, and suffered most during the rebellion. Conversing with one of the soldiers who escorted me after my mobbing, he said, "The people could more abide the foreigners of the Jesus religion (Protestants) than those of the Lord of heaven religion (Romanists)."

Dr. Squibbs was transferred to Mien-Cheo early in 1899.

CHONG-PA.

Chong-Pa.

Mr. W. Andrews, who for a few weeks was alone at CHONG-PA, was joined at the end of April, 1898, by Mr. W. Kitley and Mr. A. Lawrence, who spent most of the year in language study. The help of the missionaries was sought in thirty cases of attempted opium suicide, most of which were of young people, the result of quarrels. Mr. Andrews mentions that sometimes the ashes from the opium smoker's pipe, which are more poisonous than the ordinary opium, are taken. On several occasions he met the exorcist who had been called in to cast out the evil spirit. Such men are numerous in the city, and are much dreaded and believed in by the people, who invite them to go through their performances whenever a calamity befalls them. Two men showed interest in the Gospel, the one a tailor, and the other Mr. Kitley's teacher; the latter purchased a Bible and said that he prayed to God. The man Yang, who was referred to in last year's Report, proved unsatisfactory, temporal cares having apparently choked the good seed. The missionaries were in some danger towards the close of the year, for a mob gathered round their house and a placard was posted announcing that it would be destroyed, but they lived on quietly and were mercifully preserved from harm.

SHIH-TS'UEN-HSIEN.

Shih-Ts'uen-Hsien.

The disturbances in the Province of Si-Chuan adversely affected the work at Shih-Ts'uen-Hsien. Evil rumours concerning the missionaries were current, the attendance at the guest-hall fell off considerably, little interest was manifested in the Gospel, and no baptisms or confirmations took place. Nevertheless, the workers were not left entirely without signs that their efforts were telling, and the Rev. J. A. Hickman mentions the case of an ex-Buddhist priest named Wang, as one which had afforded encouragement. He writes:—

An ex-Buddhist priest a zealous inquirer.

He has proved to be deeply and sincerely in earnest; his chief thought seems to be how best to please his Saviour. During the year he has been duly admitted a catechumen, according to the service prepared by the Bishop for the public admittance of catechumens. This man's father has died during the year, and although all the members of the family are Heathen, he, being the eldest son, would not have any heathen ceremonies performed at the funeral, neither would he accept any paper money from any of their relations or friends, as the custom is. Before his father died his brothers asked him to buy, amongst other things, twenty packets of paper money for the old man to use on his way to the spirit world after death. This he did not do, but instead bought his father some new clothes to be buried in, and a little sugar to eat while still alive. The poor old man was glad to see his son once again before he died, and to find him so kind as a Christian, and so devoted to his parents. As a priest of Buddha, he says good-bye for ever to his home and kindred. The old father was not able to listen to much of the Gospel before he died, he was too near death when his son arrived. The mother was glad to hear. Wang's brother, the youngest, who is a sad cripple, came into the city to spend a few days at the city temple beseeching the city god to cure him. However, as soon as Wang heard of it, he told him how useless it was to ask the idol for help; he remarked, "You have been asking idols for years, but they will not forgive your past sins," that is, sins done before birth into this life. I urged the young man to tell Jesus all about it and trust Him for salvation. This, in time, he promised to do. I gave him some books to read, and told him more about Jesus and the great things he had done when on earth. He did not spend any more time at the feet of the city god, but daily came to learn more about Jesus, the Saviour. On his return home he took down the household gods and burned them, and let it be known far and wide that he with his eldest brother had become Christians.

There were also several women who appeared to be earnest inquirers, though in some cases there were special hindrances which kept them back. Among others, Mrs. Hickman speaks of a woman named Ku, a well-to-do widow, who broke her fast of many years' standing, and was anxious to learn. She says of her:—

This woman had been a Buddhist devotee, and had learnt many prayers to Buddha and other idols, and had exhorted many to become a follower of Buddha, and yet she said she felt no peace and knew her sins were not forgiven. After she had broken her fast I found out there was yet something even harder than this for her to give up for Jesus. It was opium. Poor thing, this is indeed a severe test and a great trial to her, one, too, so young in the faith, but He is able, and we do pray that by His grace she shall be more than conqueror. She is really striving to give it up, and has now broken off about half, but she finds it so hard. We are also giving her quinine and other strengthening medicines to help her. She has suffered dreadfully at times. She was ordered to take opium by a native doctor twenty-one years ago because she was suffering from some internal complaint. "Oh," she said, "if I had only known of Jesus then, I would not have taken this opium. Will He really receive me now? I fear I am too old" (she is seventy years of age). "I have not worshipped Jesus all these years, and have persuaded others to worship Buddha. I fear He cannot be pleased with me. If I get to heaven, I will kneel all day long at His feet and thank Him for dying for me, who am but a worm compared to Him." She has brought several friends to hear the Gospel.

A stern struggle with the opium habit.

Lantern meetings, at which slides illustrating the life of the Saviour were shown, proved successful in attracting good audiences. Miss L. S. Digby was seriously ill in the summer with typhus fever, contracted while visiting some poor women in their wretched homes. After her recovery, and after passing her second language examination, she commenced the itinerating work to which she is specially designated. In the course of a few months she visited five places, staying a few days in each village, and met with favourable receptions at the hands of the people.

It is fitting that mention should be made here of the proposal to occupy Song-Pan, which is situated on the borders of Tibet. It has for some time been occupied by members of the China Inland Mission under Mr. Cecil Polhill Turner, one of the well-known Cambridge Seven, to whom is due much of the advance in missionary zeal at home which recent years have witnessed. It was found that the dialect spoken by the Tibetans in the neighbourhood was different from that which the members of Mr. Polhill Turner's band had studied at Darjeeling, and it was consequently determined to remove to a place on another of the highways to Tibet, and to invite the C.M.S. to take over the work at Song-Pan. This the Committee consented to do, and Mr. W. Knipe was commissioned to pay a preliminary visit of inquiry, and eventually to open the station on behalf of the Society. Some time ago he spent a year in the city, and therefore has had opportunities of becoming more or less familiar with the customs of the people. He says that there are thousands of Tibetans living to the north-west and south of Song-Pan, and that only a few miles from the town Tibetan life is found as rude and simple as if there was no Chinese civilization near at hand. Besides the Tibetans, aboriginal tribes called Man-Tsi are found occupying the hills and valleys in the west of the Province. Mr. Knipe writes concerning them:—

An aboriginal tribe.

When I went with Mrs. Bishop to Somo I got some of their words, numbers, &c., and they have no resemblance to Tibetan at all, proving the languages to be quite distinct. I should think that long ago these aboriginal tribes were converted to Buddhism by Tibetan missionaries, and that from them they received the knowledge of writing, while still retaining their own language. They are tributary to China, though possessing hereditary princes. They live very unrestrained lives. The women have as great liberty as the men. The chief rooms in their houses are given up to their idols, but their worship is mainly done by proxy. One of the sons is generally a priest, and it is his duty to sit in front of the idols reading the Buddhist scriptures, the others all being supposed to share in the benefit.

So far the Name of Jesus has scarcely been named among them, though they are included in God's scheme of redemption, and it is binding on Christians, who have so freely received the rich gift of God's grace, to pass on to these people also that Word which has raised our country out of barbarism.

Concerning the needs of the district, Mr. Knipe says:—

But we must not only occupy Song-Pan, which is at least 180 English miles from our nearest station Shih-Tsuen, we must also occupy the road thither. There is a large town sixty miles west of Shih-Tsuen, 120 miles south of Song-Pan. We must have premises and missionaries there to facilitate communication. Premises were rented in this town, Mao-Cheo, six years ago, but through the opposition of the mandarin there the house was never occupied, nor has the deposit-money been returned. Besides the Tibetans there are also aboriginal tribes called Man-Tsi, using the Tibetan alphabet, but speaking a totally different language. They occupy the hills and valleys in the west of the Province. I saw a good deal of them when I went with Mrs. Bishop to Somo. They have very little intercourse with the Chinese, and are not in the way of hearing the Gospel.

To reach the Man-Tsi we shall need to open two other centres at Wei-Cheo and Li-fan-ting. Both these are Chinese towns visited by the Man-Tsi who dwell on the mountains round about.

Some have been asking about our return to England, but our thoughts are not of return, but of going further afield. Our thoughts do turn homewards, but not with thoughts of return. We look to you to remember us in prayer, and also to furnish the men and the means needed to occupy this large district. We echo your cry of "When?" When will you come and occupy Mao-Cheo, Wei-Cheo, and Li-fan-ting? When will you send the means to enable us to give the Tibetans and Man-Tsi the Gospel? Houses cannot be rented for nothing, though they are far cheaper than houses at home; but houses are not the primary need. We want men. We want some men who will not think it too much to learn Chinese, Tibetan, and Man-Tsi; not all three at once, but one at a time.

JAPAN MISSION.

For 230 years, in consequence of the political intrigues of the Jesuit missionaries in the sixteenth century, Japan was absolutely closed to the outer world. In 1853 the long-sealed empire began to open to European influences, and since that time the country has made most extraordinary progress in the adoption of Western civilization. Still more recent is the toleration now fully accorded to Christian effort. In 1889 a new constitution, formed somewhat on the lines of that of our own land, was promulgated. At the first General Election under this constitution, held in 1890, fourteen Christians were elected to seats in the House of Representatives; and a Christian was subsequently appointed Speaker.

American missionaries arrived in 1859, but for several years they could do scarcely any direct evangelistic work. In 1869, just after the wonderful revolution which restored power to the Mikado, the first C.M.S. missionary landed at Nagasaki. He also could only use quiet and indirect methods of making known the Gospel, and the few converts vouchsafed to his labours were baptized secretly. Since 1874 the Mission has been gradually extended and strengthened. In HONDO, the Main Island, Osaka and Tokio were occupied in 1874; Gifu, 1890; Fukuyama and Matsuye, 1891; Hamada, 1895; Hiroshima and Toyohashi, 1896; and Nagoya, previously worked by the Wycliffe College, Toronto, Mission, became a C.M.S. station in 1896. In SHIKOKU, Tokushima was occupied in 1888. In KIU-SHIU, Nagasaki was occupied in 1869; Kumamoto and Fukuoka, 1888; Oita, 1894; Kagoshima, 1895; Nobeoka, 1897; Kokura and Loo-choo Islands, 1898. In HOKKAIDO, Hakodate was occupied in 1874; Kushiro, 1889; Sapporo, 1892; and Otaru, 1897.

Arrangements were made by Archbishop Tait for the establishment of an English Bishopric in Japan, and Archbishop Benson nominated the Rev. A. W. Poole, C.M.S. Missionary in South India, to be the first Bishop. He was consecrated October 18th, 1883. But in the mysterious providence of God he was permitted to labour for a few months only; he died in July, 1885. He was succeeded by Bishop Edward Bickersteth, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission, son of the Bishop of Exeter. In 1893, the Committee undertook, on the invitation of Bishop Bickersteth, to support two new Bishops for the southern and northern Islands respectively. Accordingly, on March 4th, 1894, and on June 29th, 1896, the Rev. H. Evington and the Rev. P. K. Fyson, C.M.S. missionaries of twenty and twenty-two years' experience in this Mission, were consecrated, the former Bishop of Kiu-shiu, and the latter Bishop of Hokkaido. Soon afterwards Bishop Bickersteth agreed with Bishop M'Kim, of the American Episcopal Church, upon a division of the main island into the Dioceses of North and South Tokio, Kyoto, and Osaka. Bishop Awdry was appointed to the Diocese of Osaka in 1896, and transferred to South Tokio on the death of Bishop Bickersteth in 1897, Bishop Foss succeeding him at Osaka.

Difficulties in the way of the evangelization of Japan.

THE work of evangelizing a nation is always attended by a variety of difficulties, but they serve rather to stimulate than discourage the Christian worker who believes in the over-ruling Providence of God, and trusts in His faithfulness to the promises which He has so graciously given. Many of the obstacles to the propagation of the Gospel are more or less common to all lands. The strength of old ties and associations, the reality of the cross which is placed before those who would follow Christ, the opposition shown by friends and relations to such as purpose to confess themselves Christians—hindrances such as these exist in almost all Mission-fields, but there are others which are peculiar to different countries, and in Japan, as might be expected from the character of her history and the rapidity of her development, difficulties are experienced by the missionaries such as are not found in any other part of the unevangelized world. A recent issue of one of the Christian periodicals of the country has some very timely remarks on this subject. It says:—

Religious liberty not understood by the people.

The Constitution is new, and few are the people who understand its significance. New regulations arrayed against habitual modes of thought and ancient customs do not stand much chance of making their influence felt in a short space of time. The article in the Constitution which grants religious liberty to all Japanese subjects is to the majority a dead letter. Moreover, not a few people regard Christianity as an affront to the throne, as containing elements that promote disloyalty, and hence they are prepared to defy the Constitution when opposing the foreign creed. Many of the teachers in elementary schools are guilty of acting in direct opposition to the Constitution. Without ever studying Christianity, they undertake to inform their pupils that it would be a breach of loyalty on their (the pupils') part to adopt it. The same notion prevails in official circles. Municipal and police officers and men serving in various bureaux are distinctly under the impression that to adopt Christianity would be to lay themselves open to suspicion of disloyalty. In the case of the elementary school teachers the mischief begins at the Normal Schools where they are trained. They go forth from those institutions with all kinds of silly prejudices in their minds. There is no attempt made by the conductors of these schools to enlighten the minds of the students on the subject of religious liberty and what it implies. In official circles the known sentiments of superior officers greatly influence their subordinates, and few are the cases where men are sufficiently in earnest to ignore all consequences of their action and openly profess Christianity.

Other points are referred to by the Rev. J. Williams, who writes in his Annual Letter:—

Upper classes stand aloof from Christianity.

Japan has still much leeway to make up, and has not yet paid the full penalty of her former exclusive policy. There has been great activity in the political, but great apathy in the religious world, during the past year. Lethargy amongst the Christians, and stolid indifference on the part of the people, will be the report of those who are not gifted with a very vivid imagination. Though the Diet has this year elected a Christian to be its chairman, too much importance must not be attached to this fact. It does not prove that Christianity is reaching the upper strata of society.

As a rule, the upper and moneyed classes stand rigorously aloof from Christianity, so that the day of bonâ-fide self-supporting churches in Japan does not seem to be in the near future.

Conference of C.M.S. missionaries.

The United Conference of the C.M.S. Japan Mission was held at Arima, situated in a charming mountain valley near Osaka, from April 27th to May 4th, 1898. Including Bishops Awdry, Evington, and Fyson, fifty-nine missionaries were present. Bishop Awdry says the Conference was on all hands agreed to have been excellent. "The refreshment, bodily and mental, social and spiritual, sent all the missionaries back cheered, strengthened, and chastened to another spell of the ordinary work which God has put into their hands." One of the resolutions passed at this Conference called upon all Christian workers, and the churches in Japan, to set apart October 30th as a day of prayer and intercession for the "awakening of Japan." The English and American Bishops took up the proposal warmly, and issued pastorals to their people asking them to observe the whole week, October 23rd to 30th, as a season of humiliation in view of much backsliding, and of the failure of the Christian Church in witnessing for Christ and in evangelizing the masses, and as a season also of earnest prayer for the fuller outpouring of the Holy Spirit on all Christians. Most of the churches of other communions also set apart the week for the same purpose, so that there was a united cry going up to God from every part of the land.

Another important gathering at Arima was the annual Summer School for the Japanese clergy and workers, which was held in the autumn instead of in July, as had been customary. Some sixty workers gathered together on September 14th and the following days. Some of the most earnest and vigorous met for a prayer-meeting at 5.30 each morning. Morning prayer was held at 7.30. From 9 to 11 a.m. was devoted to addresses on important subjects. Great stress was laid on the necessity of preaching Christ rather than Christianity. The evening meetings were devoted to the interchange of experiences on differents points connected with missionary life and work, with discussion and prayer about the subjects brought up.

Devotional meetings for Japanese workers.

The following reinforced the Mission during the year :—Miss Maria E. Allworth, of the Canada C.M. Association; Miss Mary Penelope Valpy Gregg, of Eastbourne, a niece of Bishop French; Miss Mary Richenda Jex-Blake, of Norwich; Miss Grace Stewart Stevenson, of Cheltenham; and Miss Dorothy Salome Wynne Willson, of Church Hanborough, Oxford. Miss Gregg and Miss Willson were trained at The Willows, and Miss Stevenson at The Olives. All the above reached Japan in October. Miss Annie L. Archer has been taken into local connexion.

Reinforcements.

The work in the Diocese of Kiu-Shiu suffered a severe loss in the death of the Rev. Yasuji Watanabe, pastor of the native congregation. The Rev. A. B. Hutchinson, who had worked with him ever since his arrival in Japan, wrote of him :—"He has been practically the founder of the Church in this district, and his long and varied experience, clear grasp of Scriptural truth, and readiness to spend and be spent in the work of evangelization, made him invaluable." In February, 1898, Mr. Watanabe was laid up with consumption, and, in spite of special treatment, fell asleep in Christ on December 31st. Mr. Watanabe was the first Native to be ordained in Kiu-shiu; he was admitted to deacon's orders in 1894.

Death of Rev. Yasuji Watanabe.

The Rev. G. H. Pole after eighteen years of service has retired from the work for family reasons. The Rev. J. A. Cutten also has resigned his connexion with the Society.

Miss R. D. Howard and Miss E. Huhold came home on furlough in May, 1898; the Rev. and Mrs. H. McC. E. Price in June; the Rev. and Mrs. B. F. Buxton in August; Miss H. S. Cockram, Miss F. M. Fugill, and Miss A. C. Bosanquet in April, 1899. On the other hand, the Rev. and Mrs. C. T. Warren, Mrs. G. Chapman, and Miss E. Ritson left for the Mission in September, 1898; the Rev. B. H. Terasawa in November; and the Rev. B. F. Buxton in March, 1899. On January 11th, the Rev. W. R. Gray was married to Miss Nina Haig, daughter of General Haig.

Appointment of Bishop Foss.

The bishopric of Osaka, vacant by the translation of Bishop Awdry to South Tokio, has been filled by the appointment of the Rev. Hugh James Foss. Mr. Foss was a scholar of Christ College, Cambridge, and graduated in 1871, being placed in the First Class of the Classical Tripos, and in the following year in the First Class of the Theological Tripos. He was ordained in 1872 to the curacy of St. Barnabas', Liverpool, and from 1874–76 he was curate of St. Michael's, Chester. He went to Japan in the latter year as a missionary of the S.P.G. and has laboured at Kobé. He was consecrated at Westminster Abbey on February 2nd, 1899.

Bishop Awdry presided for the last time at the Osaka Conference, which met at Arima on August 23rd. The members placed on record the expression of their appreciation of his unvarying kindness and sympathy, and of their earnest wish for the Lord's abundant blessing on his future work in the South Tokio jurisdiction.

OSAKA.

Osaka.

The population of Osaka, which a few years ago was 500,000, has grown since the war with China to about 700,000, but there has not been any corresponding increase in the staff of missionaries. The return of Archdeacon and Mrs. Warren, and of the Rev. and Mrs. C. T. Warren, however, brought the number of labourers, which had been somewhat depleted, up to its normal standard, and the work in consequence was carried on with greater thoroughness. At the same time Archdeacon Warren is compelled to report that there was little evidence of any advance in the matter of self-support among the Congregations in Osaka. The one exception was at Holy Trinity Church, of which the

Rev. B. H. Terasawa resumed charge on his return from England at the end of October. This congregation decided to make the church self-supporting from January 1st, 1899. The service held in the church on Christmas Day was a peculiarly happy one: there were sixty communicants out of a congregation numbering about 150; four adults were baptized, and seventeen supported privately and unattached to any Society, has for some years been working in co-operation with the Church Missionary Society's agents. The Rev. S. M. Koba was presbyter in charge of St. Saviour's, and the Rev. T. Makioka of St. Peter's. Miss K. A. S. Tristram, who temporarily took up the work among the women of this latter congregation, held a weekly meeting for inquirers, and was encouraged by the case of an old woman, a decided Buddhist, who, having come to live with Christian relations, appeared at the meeting. Miss Tristram says :—

"Would it matter if I prayed to Him then too?'

She was evidently a strong character and a clever old lady, and we heard was very firm in her Buddhist faith. The morning after one of the meetings, however, she did not clap her hands in heathen worship, nor has she done so once since. A few days afterwards she began to pray to God, and lately she expressed her firm belief in Him, and in Christ as her Saviour, and asked for baptism. A few minutes later she said to me, "I always pray to God in the morning and evening, but I so often think of Him at other times during the day, would it matter if I prayed to Him then too?"

The pastoral charge of Jonan Church was in the hands of the Rev. Y. Matsui, under the superintendence of the Rev. W. R. Gray, while Miss E. S. Fox and a native agent visited in the neighbourhood and conducted meetings for Christian and non-Christian women. There were ten baptisms during the year, including that of a man who first heard the Gospel message twenty years before, at the C.M.S. Church or Mission-room in the concession. The Sunday-school made progress, both in numbers and in the good behaviour of the children. The Rev. G. Chapman supervised the work at the Church of the Resurrection, which was without a pastoral agent. Once a month a general meeting for the Heathen was held, which was but poorly attended, in spite of the distribution of notices of the meetings by the Native Christians among their neighbours. Towards the close of the year, however, a few encouragements were vouchsafed, and Miss Fox, who laboured in connexion with this congregation as well as with that of the Jonan Church, writes :—

A young man whose Christian father has been trying to lead him to Christ, comes regularly to church and has expressed a distinct wish to be taught. I heard that he wanted to learn English, and feeling, therefore, suspicious about his motives, said to him, "What is this about your wanting to learn English?" He immediately said, "O, I don't care so much about that. I put God in the first place and that in the second." Since then not a word has been said about English. He came to our Sunday-school magic lantern entertainment the other day, and gave all the help in his power.

No report of the Divinity School has been received. The work at the Boys' Boarding School was under the Rev. W. R. Gray, who was assisted by Mr. F. E. Hamond. The number of pupils on the roll in December was fifty-four, a comparatively large number for a Mission school in Japan, and an outsider bore testimony to the genuineness of the work by remarking to the missionary, "The boys of your school are generally considered to be and to act in accordance with your ethical basis of Christianity." Definite Scripture teaching was given as part of the school curriculum, and a spirit of inquiry was abroad, leading in some cases to disputation and strife, but Mr. Gray felt that even that was better than the lethargy so generally prevalent among the inhabitants of Osaka. The inquirers among the boys were formed into a class for instruction out of school hours, and four of the students received baptism. A meeting of the branch of the Y.M.C.A., which was inaugurated by Mr. J. R. Mott, of the World's Student Federation, on the occasion of his visit in 1896 (see last year's Report, page 375), was held every week with good success, the students carefully preparing beforehand the subject to be discussed, and coming "bristling with hard questions." These were not due to any hostility to Christianity, but simply to a desire to know and understand the truths which the questioners had heard proclaimed.

Students' meetings.

Several of the missionaries engaged in efforts to influence young men which may almost be included in the category of educational work. Mr. Hamond continued the class for students of the Osaka Agricultural College, which was mentioned in last year's Report, and twelve young men read with him on Sunday afternoons. None of them, however, came out as Christians, but this may in some measure be accounted for by the difficulty which they would experience in confessing Christ in such a school as that to which they belong. Archdeacon Warren conducted some English classes and a Bible-class on Sundays, and two of the members of the latter were baptized. One of them represented the united result of various agencies, for he first received a tract from the steamboat missionary, then he was introduced to and taught by Mr. Chapman and Miss Howard, and finally the Archdeacon prepared him for baptism. Miss Fox held similar classes, and writes:—

> One student, himself a teacher of English, is one of those naturally upright moral men who want to do right, and are shocked at the wickedness around them. To use his own words, he wants to be kept from corruption. It has been deeply interesting to watch the stages through which he has been passing. At first he paid very little attention to the Bible-lesson; then came a question as to the meaning of some passages in the English translation of the New Testament. Then one day he said, "I know I am full of sins, but I don't feel sorry." For some time after that he said nothing, but his earnest hungry face made the teaching a tremendous responsibility. The other day he said before the whole class, "I confess to you that I cannot help myself. I must have some power outside myself, and that is the question for me." I have introduced him to Mr. Terasawa, as he said himself with charming simplicity that he thought a Japanese could help him more just now than a foreigner, to which I heartily agreed.

"I know I am full of sins, but I don't feel sorry."

Girls' Boarding School.

Miss Tristram reports that a great trial befell the Girls' Boarding School through an outbreak of a severe type of influenza, which resulted in the death of three of the pupils. Happily there was reason to believe that all of them were true children of God. The youngest was the daughter of a native pastor, the next was also the child of Christian parents, and the last of the three was one of the older girls, and one of the strongest as well as sweetest characters in the school. Miss Tristram says of her:—

Daughter of a Buddhist priest an earnest Christian.

Her father is a Buddhist priest, and she had never known a real home, though she had a Christian elder sister to whom she owed much in the way of love and care. She was converted and baptized between two and three years after coming to school, and after that steadily grew in grace. Always eager in work and eager in play, she was one who was specially alive to the danger of neglecting Bible study and prayer for her school work. She was such a true missionary, and did all she could for her father by conversation, letters, sending him a marked Bible, and prayer, but so far no result has been seen. Her last illness brought out more of the beauty of her character than we had ever known, such wonderful patience and unselfishness, and never shall I forget these and the radiant expression of her face during her last night on earth.

Other trials were experienced besides that which has been referred to, and some apprehension was felt as to the result of the Revised Treaties which will come into force in July, 1899. The Government intended, it was reported, to exercise a certain amount of control over even private schools, and, since some of the Education Department are bitterly opposed to Christianity, it was feared that possibly some restrictions might be placed upon missionary educational institutions. But in spite of all the sorrows and anxieties there was much of brightness in the school history of the year, for some of the new girls from heathen homes were responsive to the teaching they received, and one in particular influenced her father by a certain act of kindness, which drew from him the remark that she must have learnt it at the Christian school, and that he wished to study for himself such a "religion of love."

A "religion of love."

Evangelistic Work was carried on at the seven preaching places in Osaka, the central Mission-room being transferred to a more suitable neighbourhood, and a new centre of work occupied in the south quarter of the city. The Rev. C. T. Warren took the oversight of three of these places on his return to the Mission in the autumn. The attendances at the meetings varied considerably: at times as many as eighty were present, but the average number was about forty. Although this does not appear large, it represented a real advance, and was regarded by the workers as a sign that the minds of the people of the city were being turned towards the Gospel. There were not many apparent results of this evangelistic effort, but some ten inquirers put themselves under instruction, and there were several others who came to the workers secretly, and would not say where they lived. The Rev. T. Makioka gives an instance:—

> One night in the spring a commercial clerk came to one of our preaching services, and subsequently called on me. At the beginning of the year amongst the cards left for me was one from him, on which he had written, "In all my trials I believe in God; don't be anxious about me."

Efforts among soldiers.

An exceptional opportunity of reaching large numbers of men was afforded by the autumn manœuvres, in which 60,000 troops took part in the presence of the Emperor. Some of the preaching rooms were opened as "resting places" for the soldiers, where as many as liked received tea and cakes (free), the workers engaged in conversation with them, and each man was offered a miniature Gospel and a tract. They were welcomed to the compound of the Divinity School in a similar way, and it was calculated that altogether 5,000 soldiers availed themselves of the hospitality offered, and that 7,500 Gospels and 5,000 tracts were distributed.

HIROSHIMA AND FUKUYAMA.

Hiroshima

The little congregation at HIROSHIMA, where the Rev. J. Williams is the missionary in charge, suffered through the removal of some of its members to other parts of the country; but seven adults were baptized, so that the total number of Christians varied but slightly. Two of the baptisms were due under God to Miss A. C. Bosanquet's work among the soldiers. One man had for some time been under Christian influences, but the other was a direct fruit of the soldiers' reading-room, which is supported partly by the Society, and partly by private contributions from England. The work at the room progressed very satisfactorily during the early months of the year, nearly 2,000 attendances of non-commissioned officers and privates being registered, and the numbers present at the Bible-classes being good; but the army manœuvres put a stop to the classes in the autumn, and when, later on, the caretaker had to be dismissed, no one could be found to take his place. The work among women and children was carried on by Miss M. Sander and Miss Bosanquet by means of paying and receiving visits, holding meetings, and various other methods, in which the native women workers rendered loyal and hearty assistance. Miss Bosanquet says:—

Scripture lantern views in private houses.

> We have made friends with a good many nice elder girls, who come to our house and the Bible-women's after school. One girl told us when she began to come how she and her family had made pilgrimages to famous temples in the neighbourhood to pray for her father's health, and how wonderfully he had recovered. A little while ago she brought this father to a magic-lantern meeting here—chiefly Bible pictures—and since then we have been asked to take the lantern and show it at her home. One of the other girls has made the same request, and we hope to have a magic-lantern campaign in new houses after the New Year. Some of the married women we know are reading the Bible earnestly for themselves now, and I am sure that several will ask for baptism soon if their families allow it. In one case the unbelieving husband could not help saying admiringly that his wife's earnestness was "wonderful," but he has not yet given her leave to be baptized.

A heathen husband admires the earnestness of his Christian wife.

Miss Sander, accompanied by the Bible-woman, paid weekly visits to a village called Kaidaichi, six miles from Hiroshima. The priests there exerted themselves to the utmost to oppose the spread of Christianity, but their efforts were only partially successful, for two Bible-classes, the one of men and women and the other of boys over twelve years of age, were regularly held. The English which was taught proved an attraction, but at the same time a growing interest was manifested in the Bible itself—a fact full of encouragement, since it has been found that when people can be induced really to study the Scriptures it often is not long before a work of grace begins in their hearts.

Fuku yama.

Miss H. S. Jackson and Miss A. Roberts (the latter of whom was occupied mainly with the study of the language) were stationed at FUKUYAMA. Three of the Christians were called to their rest; one was the mother of a family, and the other two were young men who died from consumption. Miss Jackson writes of them:—

Peaceful deaths.

Both found constant comfort during their last hours in prayer and God's Word, and by their peace, and fortitude, and faith, were bright witnesses to their relatives until the last. I think their consideration for their mother, even in hours of pain, was a striking illustration of the love of Christ. "Don't be anxious, mother," said one, "my body is in pain, but my mind is at rest"; and the other one, as death approached, anxious to spare his mother, said, "Mother, go away and leave me." She would not leave him, and praying till he could pray no longer, he conquered even in death, and passed away to be with Christ. His sorrowing relatives wondered at the "peace that passeth all understanding," and his old parents were satisfied to forego the usual Buddhist rites.

Efforts for factory girls.

An effort to reach the factory girls, which was inaugurated by Miss Holland, an independent worker, met with some success. A small institute was opened for them, and many of the girls were taught reading and writing, and anything else they might wish to learn, and afterwards were given a Bible lesson, which was usually illustrated by a picture. There were two Bible-women employed in the district, and the Buddhists paid the Christians the compliment of imitation, for they in their turn commenced to utilize women as religious agents! Some progress was manifest at Tomotsu, but no advance could be detected at Fuchiu, where once the work was full of promise. Four men, four women, and four children were baptized during the year under review, and thirteen candidates were confirmed by Bishop Awdry, who had episcopal oversight of his former diocese pending the appointment of a new Bishop. The confirmation was held on the little island of Iwashijima, in the Inland Sea, which is described as the bright spot in the district. The manager of some large copper smelting works on the island, and his wife, who are both devoted Christians, are gradually gathering a little company of believers around them. Advantage was taken of the Bishop's visit to hold two nights' special preachings to the Heathen; the attendance was good, and the people most orderly.

HAMADA.

Hamada.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. G. Warren were the only missionaries during the year at HAMADA, a rapidly growing town, where the population increased from 10,000 to 11,400 in the course of twelve months. These figures are exclusive of the garrison who came in July. No progress was visible excepting in the spiritual growth of the Christians, who, though few in number, appeared to be genuine believers. The numbers attending the evangelistic meetings showed a decided improvement after the arrival of a new catechist formerly employed in the Tokushima district. The second native worker was appointed to reside at Masuda, but the weakness of the staff prevented the occupation of Gotsu and Omori.

MATSUYE.

Matsuye.

The Rev. B. F. Buxton returned to MATSUYE after furlough in April, 1899. There were good congregations at the Sunday Services during the year 1898, composed of inquirers as well as of the Native Christians. Most of the converts were the result of personal dealing rather than of public preaching. Among those baptized during the year was a student, a former opponent of Christianity, whose testimony, given to a crowded audience at the preaching-place, is thus described by Miss B. J. Allen, of Nagasaki, who was present at the time. She writes:—

"The religion of Jesus a religion of power."

> The student's words were particularly striking. "Six months ago," he said, "I, like so many of you, was standing behind the door listening secretly to the Gospel. Why is it that now I venture to stand before you all on this platform and tell you that I have to-day been baptized into the faith I formerly disliked and despised? It is because the religion of Jesus is a religion of power. I studied earnestly the doctrines of Buddha and Confucius, but the more I studied the less peace I had. I had no power to carry out the teaching. In Christ we find truly the power to save men from sin." The men in the crowd listened most attentively, and at the close of the meeting one came forward to seek salvation, and was led, as we trust, that night to find peace at the foot of the Cross.

A promising work among schoolboys was commenced by Mr. Paget Wilkes, who, with his wife, are among the helpers not on the staff of the Society whom Mr. Buxton has gathered round him.

In the country districts the work varied, in some places going on well, and in others proving disappointing. The total number of adult baptisms was forty-eight, some of them at Imaichi, and others at Yonago. Archdeacon Warren was greatly cheered with what he saw in the district in November, and Bishop Awdry, whose visit was subsequent to that of the Archdeacon, describes the work as "continually spreading on the whole, with occasional drawbacks." Of Hirose the Bishop wrote:—

A bright out-station.

I do not know that there is any brighter spot in Japan than the little church at Hirose; the happiness of faith and the mutual love, fellowship, and service of the Christians are all so beautifully exhibited there. The church is a building built by Mr. Adachi, a Christian, as a school; but the school, which was a poor little one, has been wisely dropped, and nothing could be neater than the little building now cleared of its school furniture and furbished up, though it has none of the special features (chancel, &c.) which we consider the marks of a "church." But the real charm of it is the congregation, and in it the most striking feature was the two cripples, one a little old man all bent with rheumatism who makes a scanty livelihood by painting cards at 200 for a yen, and whose face is beaming with Christian thankfulness; and the other, lately a promising student in the Divinity School, who woke one morning last spring paralyzed. A Christian friend had called at the house of each, picked him up, and carried him to church on his back; and there they sat, side by side, full of joy. When the worship is over, friends are ready to take them home in the same way.

Cripples carried to church on the backs of other Christians.

TOKUSHIMA.

Tokushima.

The Rev. R. H. and Mrs. Consterdine were alone at TOKUSHIMA for a portion of the year under review, for Miss E. M. S. Huhold left on furlough in March, 1898, and Miss E. Ritson did not return from England until the following November. There were also several changes in the staff of native workers. The pastor of the congregation, the Rev. S. Ushijima, undertook work in the Loo-Choo Islands, and two of the catechists left. There was, however, much cause for thankfulness. The gatherings in connexion with the Day of Prayer for Japan were largely attended, Presbyterians as well as members of the Episcopal Church being present, and the true spirit of prayer was manifested. The missionaries were gladdened, too, by the action of the Christian women in gathering small sums of money so that they might send some Japanese embroidery to England as a Centenary gift to the Society; and above all, they were cheered by the baptism of several converts. Of one of these, who received the name of Titus, because, Mr. Consterdine says, "God that comforteth those that are cast down, comforted us by the coming of Titus," Miss Ritson writes:—

A Centenary gift to the C.M.S.

He was formerly one of the Normal School students, and used to come to my house to learn English as far back as five years ago, but had not then any intention of ever becoming a Christian. He is now a schoolmaster in a village about seven miles from Tokushima, and during the time I have been at home has been coming all this distance to Mr. Consterdine's, first of all, to learn English, but in the end has been completely won to be an earnest Christian. It was a great grief to him that his wife was at first so completely opposed to his becoming a Christian. She would hide his Bible, and insisted on praying to her idols for him when he was ill; and when she heard he had made up his mind to be baptized she shed many tears. He was so desperate at last, that he told her that rather than give up being a Christian he would separate himself from her. But, before these stringent measures needed to be put into effect he persuaded her one day to come in with him to Tokushima and hear about the Gospel for herself, and shortly after, instead of wishing any longer to prevent his being a Christian, her great desire was that she might also become one herself. He was baptized just a fortnight before I came back to Tokushima, and on Christmas Day she was baptized. The husband said the joy that came into his heart when he saw the sign of the cross being made on his wife's forehead at her baptism was beyond description.

A married couple baptized.

Four baptisms took place near Wakimachi, which lies twenty-seven miles to the west of Tokushima. At the end of November, 1897, Mr. Consterdine stopped at a village called Anabuki, and while engaged in advertising the meeting which was to be held in the evening, happened to pass a boys' school. Seeing some teachers still on the premises, he gave them a special invitation to the meeting, in response to which many of them came, some remaining for conversation after the close of the preaching. Two of the teachers appeared to be impressed, and were regularly visited by the catechist. One of them yielded to opposition and fell away; but the other continued steadfast, and became a true believer, although his wife refused for a while to give up her idols, and when her husband took them away, found some hidden place where she could set them up and worship them. In January, 1899, the man was baptized, and his wife presented their little child for baptism, and even asked that she herself might be instructed with a view to becoming a Christian. The service was held in the house of a man belonging to a well-known Shikoku family, whose wife was received into the visible Church at the same time, as well as a man who lost the fingers and thumbs of both hands through severe treatment in prison in days gone by, but now gains his living by making lanterns, which are in great demand as being specially strong!

II. DIOCESE OF SOUTH TOKIO.

Ordinations.

The Revs. H. Woodward and M. Tomita were admitted to priests' orders by Bishop Awdry, at Tokio, on Trinity Sunday, June 5th, 1898.

The Rev. W. P. Buncombe is Secretary of the C.M.S. work in the Diocese of South Tokio.

TOKIO.

Convention at Tokio.

During the year under review a special effort was made at Tokio to deepen the spiritual life of the Christians by means of a convention, which was held from February 23rd to March 3rd, 1898, the meetings on the first three days, for missionaries alone, being conducted by the Rev. B. F. Buxton. The Rev. W. P. Buncombe, who is stationed at Tokio, assisted with the gatherings for the Japanese, which occupied the latter portion of the time. Towards the end of the convention as many as 700 or 800 Christians came together, and there were many signs that the Holy Spirit was working in the hearts of the people. Some who had been merely nominal Christians appeared truly to accept salvation through Christ, and a remarkable change was wrought among the pupils and teachers of a girls' school belonging to the Baptist Mission, who attended some of the gatherings. In the course of the year the old C.M.S. church of St. Paul's, in Tokio, which was dedicated by Bishop Burdon in 1878, was pulled down. The Japan Quarterly says concerning it:—

The old church pulled down.

> Hundreds of Japanese have confessed their faith in Jesus Christ, and been baptized there since that day, and the old place will be missed by many whose spiritual history was so closely connected with it. During 1898, that is to say, the first seven months of the year, twenty-one adults and three children were admitted into Christ's Church by baptism. The last two months, June and July, were specially glad times of ingathering, sixteen adults confessing their faith before the Church in the old building before it was pulled down. Bishop Awdry held three confirmation services there in June and July, confirming altogether twenty-seven Christians.

The new building, which was commenced in August, is rather larger than the old one, and comfortably seats 160 persons. The foundation-stone was laid by the Bishop on October 15th, 1898, and it was dedicated on January 20th, 1899.

Soon after the Day of Prayer for the "awakening of Japan" a number of Evangelistic Meetings were held in the Central Mission-house in the Ginza, the opening of which was referred to in last year's Report, and were attended by manifest tokens of blessing. At the concluding gathering, thirteen declared their desire to confess Christ as their Saviour, and were enrolled as candidates for baptism, and there were four or five others of a like mind who were unable to be present that night. Mr. Buncombe mentions that he has on his list the names of twenty-eight people who have asked for baptism, or are earnest inquirers, and alludes as a great encouragement to the fact that the majority of the converts are young men. Miss K. M. Peacocke, in addition to other classes, conducted one for the police at the Fukugawa police-station, and was cheered to find that the men who at first barely tolerated the Bible-lesson, and used frequently to laugh and make preparations for leaving during the prayer, gradually came to listen quietly and attentively. Two of the members were baptized during the year, and at its close four more were waiting to be baptized. The Work among Women was carried on in spite of many difficulties, some of which are referred to in the following remarks of Miss Peacocke:—

Ignorance and prejudice of the women.

There is no doubt that work amongst the men is far easier than that amongst women, who have so many prejudices to be overcome, and to whom everything must be repeated many times before they in the least take it in. You may tell them over and over again that there is only one God, and they seem to assent, but you will probably find that all the time they have not in the very least grasped that truth. Still, there are openings, and there is a willingness to hear, and we do expect the day to come when many of the women of Japan may be won for Christ.

Ladies' Boarding House.

Miss O. Julius and Miss Peacocke held four meetings a week for the women, some of which were well attended, and the former had an encouraging little Sunday-school. In the autumn, Miss A. P. Carr and Miss M. Brownlow, the latter transferred from Tokushima for the purpose, opened a Boarding House for young ladies of the higher classes, who came to Tokio to attend the Peeresses School and the Higher Girls' School. It was hoped that by this means an entrance for the Gospel might be found into the homes of the aristocracy.

Out-stations.

The whole of the country work connected with Tokio is in the Chiba Ken (county), where there are four out-stations. At Ichi-Kawa the work was mainly among the soldiers, who resided there for a period of training. Some happy meetings for Christians were held at the out-station in Boshu, which is a division of the county and not a town, and although a good deal of opposition was met with from the Buddhists, five or six people came forward requesting baptism. At Yoka-ichiba, two men, warders of the prison, received that rite; and at Choshi a Shinto priest who at first came to argue, and an ardent Buddhist who had been living in gross sin, were baptized: all these were the fruit of some special itinerating tours which Mr. Buncombe made. Large and attentive gatherings were met with by Miss Julius at Misaki, fifty miles from Tokio; and Mrs. Buncombe and Miss Carr found their bicycles very useful, both for going from village to village, and also for attracting an audience when they wished to speak. At the end of 1898 there were fourteen catechumens in the country districts.

GIFU.

Gifu.

The year 1898 was one of great material prosperity in GIFU, for in the absence of earthquakes, floods, and typhoons, all of which had done great damage in previous years, the crops were far above the average. Unhappily, the Rev. H. J. Hamilton, of the Canada C.M. Association, is not able to report any corresponding progress in spiritual matters. The baptisms were fewer in number than in 1897, and there was but little that was encouraging in connexion with the work either in the town itself or at the out-stations. One of the Christians, however, whose faith had failed during the trials of the years preceding that under review, since he regarded them as signs that God had forgotten him, came out into a fuller and better profession of his religion under the influence of returning prosperity, and another man, formerly a bitter opponent and a persecutor of the judge whose baptism was mentioned in last year's Report (page 386), spontaneously requested that his daughter might be instructed in both English and Christianity. There was hardly any variation in the actual number of children at the Sunday-school under Miss M. L. Pasley, of the New Zealand C.M. Association, and the attendance was most irregular, many of the children coming only for two or three times. Meetings for the young were held in the open air, until they were prohibited by the police, but then some people in a neighbouring cottage offered the use of a room, and the gatherings were continued with an average attendance of ten. The owner of the cottage, it is said, shows signs of being interested in Christianity. The attempt to carry on meetings for women met with no success. Children's meetings.

Three new preaching stations were opened, through which people previously untouched were reached, while, by means of services held by the wayside, the Gospel was carried to at least forty towns and villages, in most of which it had never before been proclaimed. At one of them, Ahasaka, there were a number of earnest listeners, and the work at Sekigahara also was promising. Several applicants for baptism came forward at Kano, among them a man of seventy-four years of age who had long withstood the Gospel; but the classes for women furnished no definite inquirers, although there was reason to believe that at least one of the members was convinced of the truth of Christianity. At Takasu, Jaike, and Imao, the prospects of success were small, for only one convert has come forward in two years, and the attendance at the meeting for women was very sparse; but Kitagata was more promising, and in Ogaki, for which special prayer was asked in last year's Report, there were one or two open doors. Miss Pasley writes :—

A judge's wife a learner.

One lady, the wife of a judge, was really anxious to learn, and bought a Testament to study. I had only given her three or four lessons when she moved to Kyoto, but as she was willing to continue, I wrote to a lady missionary there and also to the Japanese pastor asking them to visit her. I believe her husband too would gladly listen. I have had two nice letters from her, and she was very grateful for my having written for someone to visit her.

The other house in Ogaki is a young married couple's, the wife quite a child and very indifferent. As she is out all day till five o'clock learning dress-making, we must call after that, so have not been able to go lately, as in the winter that is just their meal-time.

NAGOYA.

Nagoya.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Robinson, Miss E. Trent, and Miss M. M. Young, all of the Canada C.M. Association, were joined at NAGOYA in September by the Rev. and Mrs. A. Lea, who also hail from Canada. The congregation slightly decreased owing to the removal of some of the members and the withdrawal of others, but the condition of those who remained was more satisfactory than it had been for some time past. Mr. Robinson mentions that the old man who was referred to in last year's Report as professing sorrow for the sins and carelessness of former days, continued most earnest and faithful during the year.

A former Samurai baptized.

Three adults were baptized: one of them was an old man, formerly a Samurai, whose attention was first directed to Christianity by one who had been an opponent of the missionaries. There was a good deal of trouble in connexion with the Yoro-In, a little home for destitute orphans and aged people which was commenced shortly after the earthquake in 1891. One of the men in whose names the property was held ran into debt and attempted to sell the Yoro-In, and a professedly Christian man who was employed to teach the boys porcelain-painting turned out badly. The class for clerks of the Mitsui Bank, mentioned last year, did not afford satisfaction, but other English classes for boys and men were well attended, and resulted in the enrolment of one or two as catechumens. Blessing was specially manifested on the work among women and children after the Week of Prayer in October. The house-to-house visiting certainly was compassed with difficulty, but the ladies were enabled in various ways to influence a few of the women, and Miss Young was hopeful about the daughter of a judge, of whom she writes:—

A promising inquirer.

She came to me to learn English, and as time went on she developed into a most earnest Christian, and has proved a delightful companion. She is the sweetest and most beautiful character I have met among the Japanese women; and though young ladies in the higher ranks of life are so hemmed in by forms and customs that their influence cannot be very wide, yet I do believe that her pure and peaceful life must and will have a great effect upon those in her own home. She is very friendly at our house, runs in and out very often, which is not at all Japanese custom. She says she has been very much impressed with the peace and happiness that reigns in our home.

Another encouragement was the alteration in a man, who, much to the grief of his wife, was formerly hostile to Christianity. He is said now to spend nearly every evening in reading his Bible, and his wife remarked, "He is so changed in his life: he is kind to me now." During the year under review, two children were taken from homes of great poverty to prevent them from being sold to lives of sin, and were placed entirely in the charge of the missionaries. The elder of the two, thirteen years of age, grasped a great deal of Christian teaching, and appeared to realize in a wonderful way the importance of telling the "good news" to others. Miss Trent gives the following instance of this:—

"So changed in his life."

She came to our Japanese helper one day, asking certain questions concerning the Bible, about which she seemed very much in earnest, and when asked why she wanted to know just then, she replied, "Oh! there is a nice old woman near by who does not know about the true God, so I am just going to tell her about Jesus. I don't want her to be destroyed." Then off she went, Bible in hand, to deliver her message, but first kneeling in prayer before starting out on her (shall we not say) divinely prompted errand. "Just going to tell her about Jesus."

At Ichinomiya, one of the out-stations, where the theatre meeting held in December, 1897, was so disorderly, gatherings were held on three evenings in succession without any disturbance, and were attended by an aggregate of 1,000 souls, in spite of bad weather and the efforts of the priests to prevent the people from coming. Preaching places were rented in three of the surrounding villages, from which a few hopeful inquirers came forward. One man and two children were baptized at Tsushima, where Miss Young held a weekly English class for boys and periodically conducted a meeting for women. The catechists made two tours among the villages of the district, and reported having preached to thousands of people, and distributed a large number of tracts.

TOYOHASHI.

The Rev. H. Woodward took the place of the Rev. A. Lea at TOYOHASHI in June, and was permitted to baptize three young men. One was a carver of signature seals, who suffered some persecution from his relations, but continued steadfast, and bore witness for his Master before his neighbours at the preaching place. The open-air gatherings, which were held until the cold weather set in, were not largely attended, and the average number at the English class for young men was only six; but the indifference to the Bible teaching which was at first manifested gradually wore away, and gave place to apparent earnestness. Itinerating in the district was vigorously prosecuted. Mr. Lea made an interesting tour among the towns of a peninsula called Okugori, and was visited by a number of inquirers at different places. At Tahara, where ten people came to see him, the owner of the house in which the meeting was held refused to accept the amount previously agreed upon for the rent of the rooms, declaring his conviction that the Japanese needed teaching such as that which had been given! In a village named Maisaka, a woman asked whether the tracts which were being given away were to be worshipped; this strange question being due to the custom of the Buddhist priest of selling pieces of paper supposed to have some supernatural virtue in them! At Ono, Futagawa, Shinjo, and other places crowds of people came together to hear the Gospel, and tracts were eagerly sought after. At Toyokawa, another village, there is a famous temple, visited by both Buddhists and Shintoists from the surrounding districts, and even from distant parts of the country, where the fox is regarded with great veneration. Mr. Woodward says:—

Toyohashi.

"The Japanese need such teaching."

Preaching to Buddhist and Shinto pilgrims.

We happened to visit this place on a great festival day. The grounds of the temple were packed with pilgrims. Priests in the temple were beating drums and chanting in a doleful strain some wearying repetitions. Some special merit was supposed to be attached to some devotees who were walking up and down some steps a hundred times. The ordinary worshipper walks up the steps, drops a coin into the large box, rings the bell, claps his hands, bows his head, and says a short prayer. The grounds were prettily decorated with hanging paper lanterns, two huge ones—twenty feet by ten—forming part of the scene. A procession of priests in gorgeous silk robes, acolytes, and image bearers, went round the temple grounds. The chief priest came last in order, with a man holding a huge umbrella over him. Many sorts of wares were sold on stalls in the temple precincts, so that the people make it a time of shopping, pleasure, and worship.

We went to a hotel opposite the temple gate and asked the manager if we could have the place for the evening's preaching. We hardly expected to get it, as these hotels depend for their existence on the pilgrims to the temple. However, we received permission, and so going out into the streets we advertized the evening meeting, preached, and delivered tracts. In the evening we had a good meeting. The hotel being at a corner, two sides were open to the street. These two sides were packed, and the people listened quietly while the catechist and I preached.

III. DIOCESE OF KIU-SHIU.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Bleby came to England on furlough in July, 1898; and Miss H. Riddell in May, 1899. On the other hand, the following sailed for Japan: the Rev. and Mrs. J. Hind, Miss G. Nott, Mrs. H. Evington, and Mrs. J. Harvey in November, 1898; and Mrs. A. R. Fuller in February, 1899.

The Rev. A. B. Hutchinson is Secretary of the C.M.S. work in the Diocese of Kiu-shiu.

NAGASAKI.

Nagasaki.

The Rev. A. R. Fuller resumed the charge of the work at Nagasaki on his return from furlough in May, 1898, but was grieved to find that the number of Native Christians had not materially increased during his absence of nearly two years. This was largely due to the removal of a number of the converts from the district, but partly also to the falling away of some of them. One case in particular is mentioned, that of a man who after successfully enduring much trial as a medical student, came in contact with teachers of peculiar doctrines, and gradually drifted away into Unitarianism. Many of the Sunday-school children were kept from attending by the fear of the odium which they would incur from their companions, but there were some cheering signs that the teaching given in the school made an impression. Miss B. J. Allen writes of one little fellow, five years old, the child of heathen parents, who on his return home after his first visit to the Sunday-school saw the landlady of the house in which his parents lodged lighting the lamps at the idol shrine which is to be found in almost every Japanese house. Pointing upwards, he said to her: "Old lady, it is useless for you to do that; there is only one God, and He is in heaven." The Girls' Boarding School was under the charge of Miss E. M. Bernau, until Mrs. Harvey's return from furlough on Christmas Eve. She says that the word "Home" is a more accurate description of the Institution than "School," since the pupils live in such happy fellowship with one another, and in such close union with their Principal, that they feel themselves to be one family, and often speak of Mrs. Harvey as their "mother." The girls have a wonderful knowledge of Scripture, and would put many English children to shame by the accuracy of their quotations. There was an outbreak of typhoid fever in the autumn, but happily all who were attacked recovered. Evangelistic Work was carried on in various ways, not the least important being the conducting of Bible-classes and receiving visits from men, women, and boys. Thus, Mr. Fuller wrote in 1898:—

A child's rebuke of idolatry.

Girls' knowledge of Scripture.

Desire to learn English.

It is an undoubted fact that we are getting into close touch with a larger number than ever before during my residence in Japan. The primary cause of this might not seem suggestive of the results accruing for which we pray, but proof is not wanting that whatever be the motive in the first instance, in some cases at least no less powerful an agent than the desire to become possessed of spiritual truth retains them. In view of the new treaties coming into force next year, a widespread desire for the knowledge of English has grown up. This has brought many to our houses. In some cases there has been the outspoken confession that nothing but the wish to acquire a further knowledge of English animated them at the outset, but that at a later stage the desire for the Truth had become the dominating motive.

Others, again, have only reached the stage of willingly discussing religious problems. A class consisting of school teachers, to whom I teach English for an hour twice weekly, was gradually led to come to my house on Sunday afternoons for an informal talk on religious matters. I found that their thoughts had been entirely bounded by the material, but a conversation of an hour's duration during the past six months on some fundamental truths has greatly enlarged their vision, and while no one of them up to the present has definitely expressed himself as desirous of becoming a Christian, yet the attention given has sometimes been eager even to the point of a scarcely suppressed emotion, and the answers to a few pointed questions (put cautiously after we had become familiar with each other), has shown that they have reached a stage further than that of being simply intellectually convinced.

The great event of the year for the dwellers in Nagasaki is the festival of O Suwa, of which Miss Allen says:—

Festival of O Suwa.

O Suwa San is a deified hero of mythological antiquity, and it is difficult to learn anything very definite about his personal history. The celebration of the festival, with its present lavishness and pomp (thousands of pounds are spent yearly on the street decorations and processions), dates from the days of the Tokugawa, and is said to have been fostered by the government specially to prevent the revival of Christianity after the great persecution of 1597. It lasts three days, on the first of which the sacred emblems, a sword, ball, and mirror—are solemnly carried in a shrine to a temporary resting-place by the seashore and back again on the third day. The priests of the temple follow on horseback in brilliant robes, violet, green, and white; numbers of young people, boys and girls down to quite little children in arms, follow in the rear, all brilliantly dressed in the costume of Old Japan. It is thought that special good fortune will attend any who thus take part in the pageant, and no expense is grudged for the dresses or street decorations, the people believing firmly, I am told, that they will be fully recouped by the favour of O Suwa. Crowds line the streets to see the procession as it passes, but no one may look at it from an upper window or any elevation, as it would be an insult to O Suwa to look down on his procession. Many of the bystanders bow their heads and clasp their hands in prayer; others throw offerings into the large coffer on wheels which forms part of the procession. The three days are observed as a universal holiday; booths, fairs, street dancing, and processions are to be seen in every direction, and crowds of sightseers come in from all the country round for miles.

Preaching to holiday crowds.

Advantage was taken of the concourse of people to hold special preachings for the Heathen in the church, and as the ladies' house is favourably situated near a busy road, the garden was thrown open, and meetings held in it from 10.30 a.m. until 10.30 p.m., the Bishop kindly helping with the addresses. A large number of tracts were distributed, and members of the other churches, Presbyterian and Methodist, co-operated in the effort.

Miss C. L. Burnside received a warm welcome from some of the Japanese who had known her father during his six years of work in the country. She resided at Nagasaki while studying the language.

Last idol taken down.

The work in the peninsula of Shimabara was full of encouragement. Miss Allen speaks of one house in which the last idol was taken down from the shelf, and the mother and daughter agreed to worship only the one true God; and of others where the women, though not themselves Christians, voluntarily called their friends and neighbours together to hear the glad tidings of salvation. The year witnessed the reception of the first catechumen since the work was recommenced in 1897. She was a young girl of fifteen, whose father, a man of good family and independent means, gave his full consent, and was himself present at the ceremony.

KAGOSHIMA.

Kago shima.

The staff at KAGOSHIMA was reinforced by the arrival at the beginning of February, 1898, of the Rev. F. W. Rowlands, who mentions the little gathering of European and native workers for prayer every Monday morning as having been a great source of help and blessing. A series of special meetings for those who professed and called themselves Christians was held during the week before October 30th, which was fixed as the day of united prayer for Japan. The gatherings were instrumental in leading to real heart-searching and humiliation before God, and some of the people professed their belief in Christ as Saviour, while others became definite inquirers. The joint letter of Miss D. I. Hunter-Brown and Miss H. S. Cockram reports the baptism of five of the six catechumens mentioned in last year's Report, and the admission of five new catechumens. Two of the latter, however, cannot be said to be preparing for baptism, for they have discontinued attending church; they originally came forward of their own accord, without any pressure from outside, and their case illustrates, as is well pointed out, the great value of the check upon candidates for baptism which the catechumenate imposes. The women's meetings and the Sunday-school were kept on throughout the year, and visiting was persevered in with some little success. With a view to reaching as many as possible of the 50,000 inhabitants of Kagoshima, open-air services were conducted once a week for some months, Mr. Brandram, of Kumamoto, assisting in the inauguration of them.

Much difficulty has been experienced in the past in carrying on the work in the Loo-Choo Islands, owing to the lack of a suitable agent. In consequence of the unhealthiness of the climate it was resolved by the Conference of the Mission that only a volunteer should be appointed to the station, and prayerful efforts were accordingly made to induce some one to offer for the work. In September the Rev. S. Ushijima, of Tokushima, expressed his readiness to go to the islands, and proceeded thither in the following month. He was able in a short time to gather a few young Japanese round him for instruction, but his efforts were mainly concentrated upon the acquirement of the Loo-Chooan language, in order that he might be able to preach to the islanders in their own tongue. Mr. Fuller, who paid a visit to Loo-Choo in November, and had crowds of listeners, writes:—

Loo-Choo Islands.

A native clergyman volunteers for an unhealthy station.

> Christianity certainly has a clear field in Loo-Choo, for the Buddhists seem utterly and completely discouraged, the chief priest publicly declaring that the Loo-Chooans have no religious faculty to which they can appeal.
>
> We believe that their response to the Saviour's call will prove the falsity of this statement. Indeed, even now, in a small measure, that proof is available.

FUKUOKA AND KOKURA.

The report which the Rev. A. B. Hutchinson gives of the work at FUKUOKA is decidedly encouraging. The attendance at the prayer-meetings held every Friday improved; there was a marked increase in the number of men present in church on Sundays; the evening congregations were considerably larger; and the number of communicants advanced from 164 to over 200.

Fukuoka.

Thirty-seven adults were baptized in the district during the year under review, three of whom held official positions in Fukuoka. Of one of these Mr. Hutchinson writes:—

Government officials baptized.

> Mr. Funatsu is an official in the local police; and, recently travelling round to engage recruits, called at Oita and Nobeoka on his way. Miss Keen and Mr. Painter both spoke of the zeal he had displayed at these places, calling on the missionaries, assembling with the Christians, and showing much earnestness in the prayer-meetings; and they were quite surprised to find that he had only been baptized after returning to Fukuoka. His wife had asked Miss Sells to give her some special lessons on the Scriptures, because her husband was going daily to Watanabe San's morning hour of exposition and prayer, and, said she, "I do not want him to know more than I do about Jesus."

Another of those baptized was the aged mother of one of the Bible-women, who was in a critical state of health, but desired to confess her faith in the Saviour ere she should pass away. She was perfectly conscious at the time of the service, giving her answers clearly and joyfully, and joining heartily in the Lord's Prayer. When she died, one of her daughters, a bigoted Heathen, tried to have her buried as a Buddhist. Failing in this, she begged that her hair might be cut off so as to have the Buddhist rites performed at the temple over that. When this, too, was refused, she bethought her of a set of false teeth belonging to the deceased, which accordingly was solemnly interred with heathen rites! The English New Testament class was well attended, and three or four members of it showed more than a passing interest in the things which concerned their peace. Miss E. A. P. Sells (now at home) and Miss F. M. Freeth carried on the visiting with the help of the Bible-women, and some of the baptisms mentioned above were the fruit of their work. At the end of 1898 about 150 families were being regularly visited, forty of which were before unreached; and Miss Sells says:—

Attempts to inter a Christian as a Buddhist.

Christians awaking to responsibility.

> Just now there seems a stirring amongst the people; there is certainly a far greater desire to learn than there was some months back, and both Christians and Heathen are anxious to be taught. It is, indeed, a cause for thankfulness. The difficulty now is not where to visit, but how to visit frequently enough those who are so ready to learn. The Christians, too, seem at last to be awakening to their responsibility in regard to their heathen friends and neighbours, and are making efforts to reach them or put them in the way of hearing the Gospel.

Opposition.

The year, however, was not without its trials. Opposition was very pronounced, and public preachings against Christianity were held, at one of which such violent language was used, and such vile aspersions were cast on the Christians, that several of the audience exclaimed, "No, no, not true! Some of our relatives are Christians, and we know that is false." A Christian officer, too, told Mr. Hutchinson that he was not free to attend public Christian services, and that much influence was being brought to bear on the soldiers to prevent their listening to the preaching of the Gospel. Another trial consisted in the removal of two of the catechists; and lastly, there was the death of the Rev. Y. Watanabe, to which reference has already been made.

The progress in the district was not so great as that in the town. Three adults were baptized at Kurume, but the catechist stationed there had up-hill work, and the lack of women teachers proved a hindrance in the efforts to win the women, who could not understand what the men said to them. At Oyamada, formerly known as the Christian village, there was one adult baptism; but there, as in all the villages and towns along the valley, the work was rendered extremely difficult by the action of the priests from Kyoto, who enjoined all the landlords and people of the district that they were on no account to allow Christian teaching to be given.

There were nearly 200 Christians and seventy communicants at KOKURA, where a whole family—the father, mother, daughter, and two sons—were baptized in March. It is the chief town of a large district, containing a population of about 60,000 people, which, with its rapidly extending coal-mines, new commercial centres, and three lines of railway, offers exceptional facilities for evangelistic effort. Kokura.

The work at Kokura was separated from that of the Fukuoka Mission on the return in the autumn of the Rev. J. Hind, who wrote:—

Kokura, humanly speaking, is indeed stony ground, and presents many difficulties, but none insurmountable in the face of the power which makes it possible to say to this mountain, "Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea," and it shall be done. There is both opposition and indifference. In the suburb in which we are living for the present, the priests have been putting forth a good deal of energy and trying to steel the hearts of the people against us. One of their methods is to threaten that any one who comes to a meeting or to see us is sure to go to hell. We have been and are praying for opportunities, and some have already been given, of preaching Christ to our neighbours. Stony ground.

KUMAMOTO.

While no striking success was vouchsafed at KUMAMOTO during the year, there was, nevertheless, steady progress made, and that all along the line. Both the Scripture Reading Union for Christians and non-Christians, and the Daily Prayer Union, made steady advance. The meetings of the former were well attended, while the membership of the latter increased from 434 to 521, and the circulation of the magazine of the Union showed a corresponding improvement. In order to bring into prominence the work of the Holy Spirit, the plan was adopted of asking for literary contributions on a given subject in connexion with it. One or two of the best of Kumamoto. Scripture and Prayer Unions.

these were printed, together with a translation of the teaching of some English Christian on the same subject. Thus in December the subject was "The work of the Holy Spirit in the conversion of sinners," and, together with the Japanese contribution, a careful translation was given of an article by the Rev. Prebendary H. Askwith, dealing with the same matter. The Congregation was well cared for by the Rev. K. Nakamura, the native deacon, under the supervision of the Rev. J. B. Brandram, the missionary in charge, and nine adults were baptized and thirteen catechumens enrolled. Most of these belonged to the student class, and very few others were appreciably affected by the preaching of the Gospel, a fact which Mr. Brandram accounts for by saying:—

Men absorbed in business.

> The cares, and riches, and pleasures of the present Japanese world are terribly engrossing. The students during their days of study are brought within the sound of the Gospel, while those of an older generation, who are already immersed in the business or pleasures of the world, seem almost untouched or un-get-at-able.
> We do not touch those who are in the rush of business life, and I believe, to a great extent, it is owing to the fact that just now the Japanese, as a nation, are making almost superhuman efforts to develop their country as a power in the world. Many who would gladly hear are literally too busy to find time to listen to these things.

Every effort was made to reach these students before they became involved in "the terrible whirlpool of temptation" which besets those who are engaged in the busy life of Japan. Mr. Brandram accepted an invitation to teach English from the authorities of the Government School, where students are prepared for the Universities, and thus for eight hours every week was brought into contact with several hundred young men. He also gave distinctively Christian teaching to a few of them at a Bible-class which he held once a week. Miss H. Riddell conducted a class for other young men on Sundays: there were usually as many as thirty present, and increasing interest in Christ was manifested. The interest is said to be in Christ, and not merely in Christianity. There is a real distinction between the two things, for many regard Christianity as a good religion, even better than Buddhism, for the reforming the morals of the masses, but yet pay no heed to Christ Himself as a personal Saviour. The Leper Hospital had twenty-five in-patients. Seven of them were baptized during the year, and five confirmed, the total number of Christians in December being twenty. Two of the inmates died. One of them was a decided opponent of Christianity when he first entered, but shortly before his death he asked to have the Bible read and explained to him regularly, saying that he should like to become a Christian. Christmas Day was kept with great rejoicing. Each patient received a new zabuton, or square cushion for sitting on in the national style, and also a present from the Christmas-tree, and various games were entered into with much zest.

The Work among Women was carried on by Miss Riddell, Miss G. Nott, who returned to the Mission in October, 1898, and Miss A. H. Wright. Miss Riddell's ill-health, combined with Miss Nott's absence during the greater part of the year, made it difficult to continue all the work, but with the aid of Kakeya San, the "much-loved lady helper," the task was accomplished. Indeed, Miss Riddell almost came to the conclusion that it was not a bad thing for a station to have an invalid lady missionary, for she says:—

An invalid missionary's work.

During that time of my indisposition, it seemed to me that I got to know more about the true heart and home life than I had done before. Sitting quietly by my bed or sofa, the troubles of heart, and home, and faith, were told me more fully and truly than they could ever be during a visit to a Japanese house, where nobody knows exactly who is able to hear on the other side of the paper wall. And those who were Christians brought others (perhaps partly to see how the Englishwoman looked in bed), and then some of another class with whom I had previously had but a bowing acquaintance came to condole, and there again we hope is an open door which, God willing, Miss Nott and Miss Wright will enter.

The progress which has been made in the work among the women and children is evidenced by the fact that whereas during the first six years, 1891–96, nineteen were baptized, ten were baptized during the next two years, and others were added to the roll of catechumens. Several openings for fresh work presented themselves during the year under review. Of one, which came in a strange way, Miss Riddell writes:—

New opening obtained through a robbery.

One night a thief entered my bedroom and took the money for paying the month's accounts and a watch; at that point he seems to have been disturbed. Apparently great efforts have been made by the city police and detectives to recover it, but so far of no avail. The chief of police became quite friendly, and has since asked me if, in view of the coming treaty of July 1st, 1899, when foreigners can live in the interior, I will give him English lessons, and if the policemen of the city can have some classes. Then again the wife of one of the police inspectors whom I met then has asked to be taught Christianity.

In the spring of 1898 permission was sought through the surgeon-general of the garrison hospital to visit the patients once or twice in each month, and was readily accorded, the surgeon-general saying that there need be no limit to the number of visits, and that the more frequent they were the greater would be the favour to the hospital!

Evangelistic Work at the two old preaching places, and at a new one which was opened in the course of the year, continued without intermission, and in this way the Gospel was widely proclaimed. Taketa, a town situated on the road between Kumamoto and Oita, was occupied as an out-station, and some inquirers came forward at Meyazaki.

OITA AND NOBEOKA.

Oita. It is still a time of seed-sowing at OITA, which was without a resident clerical missionary during the year. The Misses E. M. Keen and B. Nottidge carried on the work, with the assistance of a native teacher, under the superintendence of the Rev. J. B. Brandram. Various classes for girls were conducted; that held on Sunday afternoons having as many as thirteen members, who were originally attracted by the promise of instruction in English during the week. The open-air meetings in the neighbouring villages were fairly successful, and one or two persons appeared to be really interested in the message.

Nobeoka. Mr. S. Painter at NOBEOKA was encouraged by receiving two visits from Bishop Evington, although there were no confirmation candidates, and also by two people coming forward as catechumens, one of them a man who had found by experience that Buddhism did not satisfy. Every Sunday afternoon there was a class of from fifteen to twenty boys, followed by one of present and former students of the school where Mr. Painter teaches English, some of whom bought Bibles. His relations with this school continued most friendly, and he was able to have many talks with the lads about Christianity. When he left for a short time, in order to sit for his language examination, Viscount Naito presented him with a silver watch, bearing the inscription, "A token of thankfulness for unwearied labour." One of the masters, the teacher of Chinese classics and morality, a man who was regarded as living up to the teaching which he gave, committed suicide in July, but no sorrow of any kind was manifested by his colleagues and pupils, only contempt for the folly of the act.

IV. DIOCESE OF HOKKAIDO.

BISHOP FYSON, in his review of the work in his diocese, enumerates three problems by which he and the missionaries in Hokkaido are confronted. The first is how to reach the people, for during the short spell of warm weather they are busily engaged in farming operations, and when the cold sets in it is not easy for a foreigner to move about the country. The second problem concerns the supply of native agents. This difficulty of course is not peculiar to the northern diocese, but the Bishop says:—

Difficulty of obtaining native agents. The problem is specially pressing here because there are so many openings for young men of any education or ability, and they can command much higher salaries than they could expect as evangelists, and, naturally, not many are found to offer themselves for theological training with the view of becoming catechists. There has even been a falling off in the number of workers; more than one of our regular catechists have left us, and the number of theological students is much smaller than last year, and so far only one new student has entered. Lately we have decided to try the plan of advertising in the religious magazines, and we hope to secure a few workers in that way from the main island and the south. Of course our intention is not to draw away any who are already engaged in evangelistic work in other places, and we should at once decline any applications from such persons.

The third great problem to which the Bishop refers is the familiar one of self-support. The response to the suggestions made concerning this matter in 1897 was not very encouraging. However, some of the Ainu converts subscribed for the support of one of their own young men while in training in the theological class; and the owner of the land on which the Mission-house at Kushiro stands presented it to the Native Church on the condition that the rent should still be paid and applied towards providing a catechist for that place.

The Bishop visited some parts of his diocese which he was unable to reach in 1897, and confirmed sixty-four persons at the different stations. He believes that the general feeling in the island is in favour of Christianity, and that a knowledge of it is widely diffused, since many of the people are immigrants to Hokkaido from the Main Island, where they have come in contact with the foreign missionary in some way or another.

The serious floods which occurred in the autumn, and destroyed many villages, afforded the native converts an opportunity of manifesting the spirit of practical Christianity, of which they readily availed themselves. The Japan Quarterly says:—

Efforts to relieve distress caused by floods.

The Christians of our own, and of the Methodist and Presbyterian Churches, determined upon a united effort to collect not so much money as clothing and necessary articles of household need. Notices of this intention were distributed in the town, and gifts solicited. On the appointed day, with the town band playing, and with the Red Cross banners flying, three of the Christians of each Church went with carts from street to street. The response was most gratifying. Shops gave of their stores, private houses of their clothes and household utensils, women took their garments off their backs, and their wadded bed-coverlets from their cupboards; even children were seen to tear off their upper coats and throw them into the carts.

Confidence shown in Christians.

Thirteen cart-loads were collected, an aggregate of over 10,000 articles, which were then deposited in the Methodist Church—a heterogeneous mass of clothing, material, pots and pans, cups, plates—nothing would come amiss to those who had lost everything. These were made up into ninety-two separate packages, and three Christians, one from each Church, were deputed to distribute them in the flooded districts. The steamer companies carried the freight free, and the railway at reduced charges. Besides this, the Christians also collected 300 yen from the Japanese and 400 yen from the foreigners resident in Hakodate. The townspeople said they gave so willingly because they had such faith that the Christians would be honest and judicious in the distribution.

It is worthy of note that when the Buddhist monks and priests offered to collect and distribute money and clothing among the distressed, the response made to their offer was but small.

A series of devotional meetings for the workers in the diocese was held at Hakodate in July, 1898. While they were proceeding the Japanese workers in connexion with the Society unanimously resolved to celebrate the Centenary by giving for five years one-hundredth part of their salaries towards the carrying on of evangelistic work at one of the Society's stations in Palestine. This contribution is to be entirely confined to Japanese workers in the diocese, and will be paid by catechists, probationary catechists, Bible-women, and students.

Mr. C. Nettleship has been placed in home connexion.

The Rev. D. M. Lang came home on furlough in June, 1898, and Miss M. Laurence in January, 1899.

The Rev. W. Andrews is Secretary of the C.M.S. work in the Diocese of Hokkaido.

HAKODATE.

Hakodate.

The Rev. W. Andrews writes cheerfully of the condition of the congregations and of the general state of the work at HAKODATE. He contrasts the very few doors at one time open, and the coldness and indifference which were prevalent only three years ago, with the present facilities for holding meetings, and the growth in grace manifested by the Christians in their observance of the Sabbath and their spending the first hour of that day either in their homes or in some quiet nook on the hillside in reading and prayer; and arrives at the conclusion that there is a great blessing in store for the town of Hakodate, with its 70,000 inhabitants. The services were well attended throughout the year. Five of the students of the Training Institution passed their catechists' examination and were appointed to various spheres of work.

Ainu students excel in Scripture knowledge.

Amongst the inmates in November, 1898, were four Ainu, who were superior to their Japanese companions in Scripture knowledge. The Ainu Training School, which had the names of twenty-two boys on the roll, benefited by a change of native teachers, and in spite of the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Nettleship in England, progressed satisfactorily. A careful examination of the circumstances of the Schools for Girls in the Hokkaido jurisdiction resulted in the abandonment of those at Kushiro and Otaru, and the concentration of effort on that at Hakodate, where the staff of teachers was reorganized. By the close of the year there were ten boarders and thirty day pupils in the school, of whom twenty were Christians.

Medical Work.

Medical Work was commenced in May, 1898, by Dr. W. W. Colborne in a dispensary situated in a district at the extreme end of the town with a population of 5,000 souls, but owing to the exigencies of language study, patients were only seen on two days in the week, and then the number was limited to thirty a day. This new enterprise was at once crowned with success. The people were so eager to obtain the advantages of Western scientific skill that they would begin to assemble at eight o'clock, although the doctor did not see the patients until 1.30 p.m. During the long time of waiting the patients had ample leisure to listen to the Gospel message, and the opportunities of speaking to them were diligently utilized. The results of this fresh work were speedily apparent. Two adults were baptized, four or five persons were publicly enrolled as catechumens, and many received impressions which it is hoped will bring forth fruit in definite conversions. Thus Mrs. Colborne wrote immediately after the dispensary was opened :—

An idol shrine removed.

To-day another large idol shrine has been taken down in one patient's house, mother and son having begun to worship the true God. They told me yesterday afternoon, quite rejoicing that the shrine was coming down to-day, and they seemed very intelligent and real in their faith. I gave, or rather lent, the boy a New Testament.

Mrs. Colborne followed up the work by visiting the patients in their homes, and also commenced a Sunday class for girls, which soon had an attendance of fifty, several of whom appeared to be interested in what they were taught. Through this class some at least of the parents were reached, for when one old woman among the patients, who showed that she knew a good deal of the facts of Christianity, was questioned, she replied that her little girl had passed on to her what she heard in the Sunday-school. This woman afterwards came regularly to the services. Miss A. M. Tapson was assisted in the Women's Work by Miss M. R. Jex-Blake. These ladies, like Dr. and Mrs. Colborne, made their home right among the Japanese, and met with much encouragement. There was an average attendance of thirty, including only four or five Christians, at the meeting held every Sunday evening. Two of the women who came to these meetings were admitted as catechumens, one of whom shortly afterwards burnt the little papers sacred to her ancestors which she kept at home, and in their place put up a shelf for her Bible. The Women's Guild grew in numbers and interest, and the importance of it was shown by the fact that sometimes its monthly paper contained notices of meetings held in connexion with it in no less than eight or nine different places. An English class for the boys who attend the large native middle school in the town was commenced. One of those who belonged to it had been led to wonder for what reason a man's soul was given to him; his Buddhist teacher could give him no assistance, but he fell in with a Christian lad, and now, Ladies reside in native quarter of Japanese town.

Miss Tapson says, is longing for the day of his baptism. He and a small schoolfellow were accustomed to go to a quiet corner among some pine trees after school hours, and together engage in prayer.

Out-stations.

The Rev. J. A. Cutten, who, as already mentioned, has resigned, went to reside in Esashi, a town fifty miles from Hakodate, where much opposition was experienced. He was able to get about twenty children to attend the Sunday-school, and had a few interviews at night with men who feared to come to him during the day. Three young men met with in the course of an itinerating tour declared themselves inquirers. Emmanuel Mura, one hundred miles further off, is another out-station. It was visited by a disastrous flood in July, and the farmers were consequently prevented from making their promised contribution towards the salary of the pastoral agent. The Sunday-schools at Obihiro (where a new church was opened), and other places were well attended, and at Moyori the village school building was bought and converted into a church, the Christians, as at Obihiro, contributing liberally to the purchase fund. Fifteen adults and twenty-four children were baptized in the district.

SAPPORO.

Sapporo.

The Ainu Rest House at SAPPORO, which had 101 new inmates during the year, and the various other agencies, continued their useful work under the superintendence of the Rev. J. Batchelor. Miss M. Laurence carried on the English class for young men, and the knitting class for girls, until she left on furlough in October, when Miss Oxlad, of the Female Education Society, who was transferred from Esashi to this station, took up her work. The Sunday-school was superintended by Miss A. M. Hughes, who was much encouraged by the conversion of her teacher, in which she traces a direct answer to prayer offered in various parts of the world. Forty-seven adults and forty-nine children, some of them Japanese and others Ainu, were baptized, and when Mr. Batchelor wrote his Annual Letter thirteen other Ainu were ready for baptism.

Bright Christian Ainu.

Pon-sepu was the brightest spot in the Sapporo district; Pariso, his wife Shutrenga, and her cousin Arimakna, three Ainu workers there, being described as "real salt of the earth" and "cities set upon a hill." Mr. Suzuki, too, the schoolmaster in a village three miles distant, assisted in evangelistic work, and seven of his pupils were baptized in the course of the year. There is a missionary farm at Pon-sepu, of which Mr. Batchelor says:—

A farm worked for benefit of the Mission.

Pariso has given up his land for a time to be worked entirely for the benefit of the Ainu Missionary Society—a Society which was inaugurated last January and of which our Bishop has kindly consented to be the first President. The crops of this farm have now been gathered in, and after paying all working expenses a small sum has been realized as clear profit and placed to the credit of this Society. Besides this, itinerating has been done with the farm horses free of hire, and that means a saving to the Society of more than twenty yen for the year. None but Christians are employed on the farm. Nothing is charged any Christian who passes this way for food and a night's lodging, and a horse can always be had free of charge to the next horse-station. I once offered to pay for horse hire when travelling from here for itinerating purposes (indeed, I kept the horse two weeks), but Pariso would not hear of such a thing, for, said he, "I do not think Jesus would like me to take money for this."

Fifty boxes were held by members of this Ainu Missionary Society, and the aid of the children of the Sunday-school (Japanese) was enlisted, and a monthly missionary address was given to them.

The Sapporo district was one of those which suffered from the destructive floods to which reference has already been made. Mr. Batchelor wrote in November:—

Distress caused by floods.

Houses, huts, and barns were in many cases swept clear away and the entire gardens of whole villages washed quite out. In some places, Piratori, Niptani, and Mivan, for example, where there was every promise of heavy crops of wheat, barley, millet, potatoes, &c., and consequently much rejoicing among the people, there is nothing now left but sand and stones, and the sorrow of the people is therefore great. Whole sides of mountains, covered as they were with underwood and fine timber, have been washed down into the rivers, forcing them out of their courses. The havoc wrought to property and the consequent distress of the people is indescribable. It must be seen to be realized. Hundreds of people are now entirely dependent on charity for their daily food, and must be fed steadily on till the end of next spring. Pariso tells me that he found it very difficult indeed to preach to hungry and weeping congregations, and many were inclined to turn a deaf ear to him. But all is now turning out for the best, and the people are coming better than ever to hear the Gospel.

Miss E. Bryant, who is a fully trained nurse, was stationed at Piratori, and visited the surrounding villages with her Bible-woman. She met with many requests for medicine, and was enabled to relieve much suffering. She acknowledges with gratitude the help which she received from Dr. Baelz, the Emperor's physician, who, when visiting Piratori in order to study the Ainu for scientific purposes, was kind enough to see some of Miss Bryant's patients. The work among women and girls was particularly successful.

OTARU.

Otaru.

The work at Otaru was under the Rev. G. C. Niven. The Sunday congregations improved, a new preaching place was opened, and nine converts were baptized. There were also three baptisms at Bibai, and six people were received as catechumens. An out-station was opened at Fukagawa, and it was hoped that the catechist would receive much assistance from a Christian soldier stationed there, who had volunteered to help by every means in his power.

KUSHIRO.

Kushiro. KUSHIRO, the centre of a large district, containing a population of 4,000 Ainu and from 20,000 to 30,000 Japanese, is a town of growing importance, in consequence of the improvement in the fishing industry and the existence of coal beds in the immediate neighbourhood. The Rev. T. Ogawa, who assumed the charge of the district on the departure of the Rev. D. Marshall Lang for home, reports the baptism of nineteen adults. The schools at Harutori, with forty-two Ainu boys and girls, and Shiranooka, with thirty-eight pupils, were still carried on under the superintendence of Miss L. Payne.

NEW ZEALAND MISSION.

The Mission to the Maoris of New Zealand was the second of the Society's Missions in order of time. It was undertaken at the invitation of Samuel Marsden, Chaplain in New South Wales, who landed on the Northern Island, with the first three men—lay agents—sent out as pioneers, in 1814, and preached the first Christian sermon to the Natives on Christmas Day of that year. Other missionaries followed, whose lives, which were entirely in the power of a race of ferocious cannibals, were frequently in apparently imminent danger. For eleven years no results were seen. The first conversion took place in 1825, and no other Natives were baptized for five years. Then began the marvellous movement which resulted in almost the whole Maori nation being brought under Christian instruction and civilizing influences, and which led Bishop Selwyn, on his arrival in his new diocese in 1842, to write: "We see here a whole nation of pagans converted to the faith. . . . Where will you find, throughout the Christian world, more signal manifestations of the presence of the Spirit, or more living evidences of the Kingdom of Christ?"

In 1840 New Zealand was made a British Colony, and emigration on a large scale ensued. The vices as well as the benefits of civilization were introduced, and the inevitable conflict of races began. The continual disputes about the sale and possession of land led to prolonged and bitter wars, which shook the Native Church to its foundations. In 1864 arose the "Pai Marire" or "Hau-hau" superstition, a strange compound of Christianity and Heathenism, which spread rapidly among the Natives. It was a party of Hau-haus who so barbarously murdered the missionary Völkner on March 2nd, 1865.

In 1883 a C.M.S. Mission Board, comprising the Bishops of Auckland, Waiapu, and Wellington, and other members, was established to administer the Society's grants, which diminish annually, and will cease (subject to personal claims) in a few years.

Deaths of Rev. S. M. Spencer,

THREE former members of the staff of the Society were called to their rest during the year. The Rev. S. M. Spencer, who died on April 30th, 1898, was a citizen of the United States, and went out to the Mission in 1842, after a course of training at the C.M. College. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Selwyn in 1843, and priest eighteen years later by the Bishop of Waiapu. Stationed in the Rotorua district, which was much disturbed by the native wars, he was on one occasion taken prisoner by hostile Maoris, but was released on the intercession of some of the women. He retired in 1883, after forty years' service.

Rev. T. Lanfear,

In October the death occurred, at the age of eighty-four, of the Rev. T. Lanfear, who sailed for New Zealand in 1849. His sister became the wife of the Rev. C. S. Völkner, who was murdered at Opotiki in 1865. She returned to England with her brother the same year, and the latter became Vicar of Letcombe Regis, in Berkshire, where he died.

Rev. W. Colenso,

The Rev. W. Colenso, who went out under the C.M.S. as a Mission printer, and laboured in connexion with the Society until 1852, died early in 1899. He was a first cousin of the late Bishop Colenso, of Natal, and printed from the Mission Press the first book published in New Zealand, viz., the Epistles to the Ephesians and Philippians in the Maori language. Subsequently he devoted himself to evangelistic work, and traversed on foot nearly the whole of the North Island. He obtained a wide reputation as a man of science after his connexion with the Society had closed, and was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society.

and of two Maori clergymen.

Two of the senior Maori clergy of the Diocese of Auckland died in the course of 1898; the Rev. H. Moanaroa, of Lower Waikato, and the Rev. H. Tarawhiti, of the upper portion of the same district. Mr. Moanaroa had suffered for ten years from partial blindness, but even in his seventy-sixth year he travelled about with unflagging energy, and shortly before his death visited all the Natives living within ten miles of Auckland. Mr. Tarawhiti, as a chief of high rank, had considerable influence, though it failed to prevent his people from joining the other Waikato tribes in the war against the Government, when at the same time they renounced their profession of Christianity.

I. DIOCESE OF AUCKLAND.

Archdeacon E. B. Clarke, in his valuable report of the work among the Maoris in the Diocese of Auckland, recognizes that there are signs of greater attention to spiritual matters, especially among the younger members of the community, but deplores the fact that although the Christians were repeatedly urged to manifest increased liberality in the support of their pastors, but little response was made to the appeals. The Mission Board arranged for the native clergy to be received from time to time at the Theological College at Gisborne for a period of further instruction and study, and the Rev. H. T. Papahia accordingly spent some months at that institution. The general Native Church Board met in March, 1898, under the presidency of the Primate, sixteen of the eighteen native clergy and twenty-nine out of the thirty-seven elected lay representatives being present. The three native deacons who were ordained in December, 1896, did good work at their stations, the congregation at Waimate having almost doubled since the appointment of the Rev. T. Kiriwi. A new church was opened in August at Whakapara, in the Whangarei district. With respect to the general condition of affairs the Archdeacon writes:—

Meeting of Native Church Board.

> As a whole, I think that the Natives are still, more or less, in a state of unrest. Land legislation and dog and other taxes are sources of uneasiness which absorb their attention, to the exclusion of material, moral, social, and spiritual improvement.
>
> Belief in witchcraft. Probably the greatest hindrance to advancement in any way is the continued and undisguised belief in makutu (witchcraft). The Tohungas (wizards) seem to exercise as great an influence as in old times, and the dread of their power keeps the people in terrible thraldom. Disease, accident, and misfortune are attributed to their occult power. The influence of these so-called medicine-men is, to quote the words of an enlightened Native, "not only hostile to all progress, but directly tends to degrade and debase all those who are subject to it."

II. DIOCESE OF WAIAPU.

Ordinations.

On Sunday, September 25th, the Bishop of Waiapu held an ordination at Te Kuri-a-Tuatai, near Gisborne, when Manahi Katene Pukerua, Hemi Petiti Huata, Tapeta Timutimu, and Aparahama Tamihere were admitted to deacons' orders.

The chief feature of the year in the Diocese of Waiapu was the great increase in superstition among the Natives, and the growth of the influence of the Tohungas (medicine-men), to whom Archdeacon Clarke refers in his letter quoted above. The Rev. A. F. Williams, the Secretary of the Mission, who resides at Te Aute, writes as follows:—

The Report for the past twelve months is not very satisfactory. With the help of the voluntary lay readers the ordinary services have been continued regularly in all the large centres; but the number of communicants becomes less in spite of regular confirmations of boys and girls at Te Aute and Hukarere respectively, and the offerings of the people grow smaller and smaller.

There has been a great incursion of Native superstitions and karakias; and numbers have fallen under the influence of the Tohungas. The majority of the Maoris seem to have no power to discern the real meaning of Tohungaism, nor to resist the baneful influence. To my mind the reason is apparent. The Native Christians have not realized the truth of an Indwelling Christ; they need to be taught, and to realize experimentally, the gift of the Holy Spirit to indwell them and there make all things new.

Medicine-men use Church of England Prayer-book.

The Tohungas claim that their gods are spirits of ancestors who have returned to bring healing for the Maori race, and that they can heal all diseases, but more especially those resulting from supernatural causes. In blessing food, and before they partake of any themselves, portions are thrown on one side for the different spirits. Those who have visited the Hawke's Bay Natives this year adopted the Church of England form of worship, or portions of it, using the prayers for the visitation of the sick especially, and herein lies the secret of their success in deceiving our people. Inside this outward semblance of belief in and prayer to Jehovah is hidden the real karakia (worship) and atua (god) of the Tohunga. So far from those who have sought their aid being cured, the result has been death on all sides. Major Kemp, of Whanganui, was the first victim. His death has been followed by many others—chiefs, wives of lay teachers and readers, communicants, and children of communicants being amongst the number. The Maoris seemed to be bewitched again in all parts of New Zealand by these men. We hear of Maori clergy, their wives, lay readers and their wives, chiefs, and communicants all running after these Tohungas to be healed of their sickness, and the result is always the same—death.

Happily not all the Native Christians have been deceived. One man, who was warned that if he resisted and spoke against the Tohungas he would probably be bewitched by them and die, replied, "I am not afraid, and I will resist them; if they have the power they can only kill my body, they cannot harm me." And of another, Mr. Williams says:—

"Evil spirits cannot be where Jesus is."

He was entreated again and again by his father to allow the Tohunga to come and eat food, and perform certain incantations in his house in order to drive out the evil spirits that were there. This young man stood firm, on the ground that he believed in and had Jesus Christ with him, and that evil spirits could not be where Jesus was, and he urged his father to likewise trust in Jesus and give up these evil practices. He was threatened with desertion by his father and death by drowning by another chief, and he said to me, "They might tie my hands and feet, and throw me into the river, but I will not deny Jesus Christ."

Mr. Williams speaks feelingly of the need of medical missionaries, who through the nature of their work might counteract the influence of the Tohungas.

Training Institution.

The Training Institution at GISBORNE is under the Rev. H. W. Williams, who is assisted by the Rev. H. A. Hawkins. There were eighteen students in the college during the year 1898, ten of whom were married men, while in addition three of the native clergy spent some months in the Institution. The number of inmates was larger than in any other year since 1889. Four of them were admitted to deacons' orders in September, 1898.

Te Aute College.

During the year under review a Christian Union was formed at the Te Aute College with about forty active members, and many of the boys were confirmed and became regular communicants. The Old Boys' Association, which was inaugurated in 1897 (see last year's Report, page 405), is spoken of as a most hopeful movement, its object being to adopt some scheme by which, with God's blessing, the Maori race may be upraised in every particular. The Native Church Board met at Wairoa on November 27th and 28th, the tone of the gatherings being excellent, owing to the presence of more spiritual men among the Maori members, and to the devotional meetings which were held daily. A new church was built at Porangahan, whither the Natives, who were with few exceptions Ruigatu, have returned. Mr. Williams paid a visit to Taupo at the earnest request of the acknowledged leader of Te Kooti's followers, and met a Ruigatu, who for many years had a bad reputation both among Maoris and Europeans, but had become a changed man, and that simply through reading the Bible, for no teacher or minister had visited him.

Opotiki.

In the OPOTIKI district little change or progress was visible. The Rev. G. Maunsell speaks of a disregard of the Lord's Day, and of a dogged adherence to old customs, which indicate the pressing need of an outpouring of the Spirit. The effort to raise the money for a new church at Te Kaha, which was referred to in last year's Report, was attended with complete success. A large meeting was held on Christmas Day, 1897, to which people came from the east coast as far as Gisborne, and no less than £332 was contributed. But although the necessary funds were thus readily raised, it was not easy to overcome the natural dilatoriness of the Maoris, and induce them to put the work in hand. Consequently by the close of December the building was still unfinished, although Mr. Maunsell originally hoped that it might be opened in the preceding April. Two of the newly ordained deacons were appointed to reside at Whakatane, and work among the Urewera. Temporary arrangements were made for their maintenance, but efforts to raise a permanent endowment were contemplated. Mr. Maunsell writes concerning this matter:—

A general meeting has been summoned for March, the following being the characteristic proclamation printed:—

An Invitation.

"To the tribes, to the clans, to the lordships, within the power of our faith: Greetings. This is an invitation to come here to Whakatane; it is a thought of the mind, it is a thoughtful desire that a sustenance for a minister may be posted at Poroporo, Whakatane. Come in person to this place on March 25th, 1899. Come, ye four quarters of Aotiaroa. Come, bring the things appointed by the kings of Sepa and Sheba. Come, all ye powers, in the strength of affection. March quickly. Let your thoughts be kindly. I am only now stirring, my body having been weak and thought slow. Welcome. No more from your loving fellow-servants." A summons to the tribes.

Here follow the names of all the principal men of every shade of religious opinion.

The allusion to gifts being posted refers to their old custom of building a framework, on which gifts were displayed on occasion of their distribution of presents. Aotiaroa is a native name for the North Island. So that their invitation is comprehensive enough. If the result of similar gatherings is any guide, we ought to net over £300 on the occasion.

The Rev. W. Goodyear, who is stationed at TAURANGA, refers to the death of an old Tohunga, who had become a most devoted and single-hearted communicant, and was always to be found either reading his New Testament or else engaged in prayer. Miss Spencer, the daughter of the late Rev. S. M. Spencer, whose death has been mentioned above, still resides at Maketu, and conducts a weekly Bible-class for elderly Maori women. Tauranga.

III. DIOCESE OF WELLINGTON.

A BRIGHT report of PUTEKI is given by the Rev. A. O. Williams. When he was first appointed to his present district there were only four places, with the exception of Whanganui River, where services could be held; there are now fifty. Instead of three churches in good repair, and three others just tottering to their fall, there are now ten churches, one church room, and one parsonage, all in good condition and free from debt. Mr. Williams refers with thankfulness to the change which has come over the Maoris with respect to their drinking customs, and says that whereas twelve years ago any social function was a scene of debauchery and drunkenness, at the present time drink is never Puteki. Improvement in drinking customs.

seen or allowed on such an occasion. The attendance at the school decreased owing to the opening of four Government schools in the districts from which the children used to come; every child who was sent up to the examination in November succeeded in passing. Eight candidates were presented at a confirmation on November 21st, at which Colonel Williams, the Treasurer of the Society, and Mrs. Williams, were present. At Parapara a new church was opened, built by Maoris who five years ago were all Te Kootiites. The Rev. A. O. Williams paid six visits to The Wairanpa, in the course of which the urgent need of a native clergyman for that part of the field was pressed upon him.

Otaki.

The OTAKI DISTRICT is under the charge of the Rev. J. McWilliam, who observes an increasing unwillingness on the part of the younger Maoris to take any trouble in order to attend services. A great loss was suffered by the death of Mrs. Thomas Ransfield, a half-caste. There being no building of any size in the neighbourhood, the services had for some time been held in her husband's house, and Mrs. Ransfield had been accustomed generously and heartily to provide one and sometimes two meals for twenty or thirty extra people every week. Colonel and Mrs. Williams paid a visit to Otaki, and cheered the workers by their evident interest and sympathy.

NORTH-WEST CANADA MISSIONS.

These are Missions to the remnants of the Red Indian tribes scattered over the vast country formerly known as the Hudson's Bay Territory, but now included in the Dominion of Canada. In 1822 the Rev. John West arrived at a trading settlement on the Red River, a little south of Lake Winnipeg, and began to gather the Indians round him. In 1840, Henry Budd, a native teacher, trained up by Mr. West from his boyhood, who afterwards became the first native clergyman, was sent forth from Red River to open a new station at Devon, 500 miles off. And now, from the United States border-line to the Arctic Ocean, and from Hudson's Bay to the Rocky Mountains, the praises of the Redeemer are sung by thousands of Indians, and in eleven different languages.

The Red River district is now the flourishing colonial Province of Manitoba, and a large part of the Society's work has developed into the settled ministrations of the Church in the Colony. One of the Society's churches has become the Cathedral of the Diocese of Rupert's Land, which was founded in 1849. That diocese, which has been highly privileged in its two first Bishops, Dr. Anderson (1849) and Dr. Machray (1865), was divided in 1872 into four parts, the three new dioceses being those of Moosonee, Athabasca, and Saskatchewan. To the two former Sees missionaries of the Society were appointed, the Rev. John Horden and the Rev. W. C. Bompas, and to the third an active co-worker in the country, Dr. McLean. Bishop McLean died in 1886, and was succeeded by Bishop Pinkham; Bishop Horden also died early in 1893, and was succeeded by Bishop Newnham, a missionary of the Society. In 1884, in pursuance of a scheme formed by the Provincial Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Rupert's Land, the Diocese of Athabasca was divided, Dr. Bompas taking the Northern half as Bishop of Mackenzie River, and the Rev. R. Young, C.M.S. missionary, being appointed to the Southern Division as Bishop of Athabasca. The Provincial Synod of 1890 sanctioned a division of the Mackenzie River Diocese, the territories to the west of the Rocky Mountains becoming the Diocese of Selkirk, and the region to the east retaining the name of Mackenzie River. Archdeacon Reeve, a missionary of the C.M.S., was consecrated Bishop of the latter diocese in 1891, Bishop Bompas again taking the remoter diocese, that of Selkirk. In 1884 the Diocese of Qu'Appelle was formed out of the Dioceses of Rupert's Land and Saskatchewan, and has been presided over successively by Bishops Anson (1884), Burn (1893), and Grisdale (1896). In 1887 the Diocese of Calgary was carved out of that of Saskatchewan, but has not yet received its own separate Diocesan.

The Society labours in all the above-named eight dioceses; but in that of Qu'Appelle the work is confined to one station, Touchwood Hills, opened in 1857.

In RUPERT'S LAND DIOCESE the Society's work was commenced in the Red River district in 1823; Fort Alexander was occupied in 1864; and Rainy Lake district in 1874. In MOOSONEE DIOCESE, Moose Factory was occupied in 1851; York, 1854; Albany, 1855; East Main Coast, 1877; Churchill, 1886; Blacklead Island, 1894. In SASKATCHEWAN DIOCESE, Cumberland and Devon were occupied in 1840; Stanley, 1850; Sandy Lake (Asisipi), 1875; Battleford, 1876; Prince Albert, 1879; Grand Rapids, 1881; and Fort Pitt, 1888. In CALGARY DIOCESE, Fort McLeod was occupied in 1880; Blackfoot Crossing in 1883; Sarcee Reserve in 1886. In ATHABASCA DIOCESE, Fort Chipewyan was occupied in 1867; Fort Vermilion, 1876; Lesser Slave Lake, 1887; Upper Peace River, 1888. MACKENZIE RIVER DIOCESE, Fort Simpson, 1858; Fort Norman, 1871; Fort McPherson, 1874; Fort Resolution, 1875; Herschel Island, 1897. SELKIRK DIOCESE, Rampart House, 1882; Buxton, 1887; Selkirk, 1892; Yukon (re-occupied), 1897; Klondyke, 1897.

Rush to Klondyke.

SUCH is the whirl of the present age that the excitement which was caused in 1896 by the announcement of the discovery of gold at Klondyke seems to be almost a matter of past history, but nevertheless the influx into the country of persons of all sorts and conditions seeking some short road to fortune, continues unabated. Barristers, lawyers, doctors, soldiers, sailors, mechanics, agriculturalists, tradesmen, and even women, have flocked to the Yukon district, some in the hope that they might obtain a portion of the riches hidden in the earth, and others with the object of selling their labour for a price which they could not hope to obtain in any home market. It is estimated that there are as many as 27,000 people now in the district, of whom some 5,000 are actually engaged in digging for gold, and that the output of the precious metal from the Klondyke fields is from £2,000,000 to £3,000,000 a year. Unskilled labour can command £2 a day, and experienced hands are able in some cases successfully to ask half as much again. The incursion of such large numbers of persons, enterprising it may be, but not necessarily godly, with the accompanying demand for labour, naturally introduces a new element into the problem of evangelization, and, it is to be feared, places a fresh difficulty in the way of winning the Indians for Christ. It is not by any means true that all the immigrants are ungodly and vicious, but at the same time the reports from the Mission stations, where the new conditions of work obtain, will show clearly that on the whole the influence of the white man has not been for righteousness, and therefore that there is special cause that earnest prayer should be offered for the labourers in the remotest stations of North-West Canada in what practically constitutes a crisis.

Reinforcement.

The only new missionary recruit sent out from England to the North-West Canada Missions during the year was Mr. Julian William Bilby, a short course student from Islington College, who sailed for Cumberland Sound in July, 1898.

The Rev. and Mrs. G. S. Winter, Rev. A. C. Ascah, and the Rev. E. F. Hockley have retired from the work.

I. DIOCESES OF RUPERT'S LAND AND QU'APPELLE.

The assistance rendered by the Society in the maintenance of the work among the Indians in the Diocese of Rupert's Land was recently recognized at the Synod of the diocese, which resolved, "That a cordial vote of thanks of the Synod be tendered to the C.M.S. for the grant received from that Society for the Indian Missions of the diocese." The Society's grant is administered by a Finance Committee, of which the Archbishop of Rupert's Land is the Chairman. Archdeacon R. Phair and the Rev. A. E. Cowley are joint Secretaries of the Mission. The former, with Mrs. Phair, came home on furlough in April, 1899.

St. Peter's Indian Settlement.

The Rev. J. G. Anderson is in charge of St. Peter's Indian Settlement with its 1,099 baptized Native Christians. The congregations both at the centre and at the out-stations were good throughout the year, and the Sunday and day schools were well attended. A number of the more earnest Christians rendered great assistance in the Sunday-school work and at the prayer-meetings, and in addition visited the sick and endeavoured to influence for good the careless and ungodly. Special pains were taken to extend the branch of the Temperance Society, since drunkenness is very common. The efforts were attended with some success, for although a few failed to keep their pledge, others who had been confirmed drunkards succeeded in breaking the chain that bound them, and led sober and upright lives. Mr. Anderson speaks appreciatively of the visits which were paid to the settlement by the Rev. F. H. Du Vernet, Editorial Secretary of the Canada C.M. Association, and by the Misses M. C. Gollock and M. R. S. Bird.

No report of the work at Scanterbury has been received.

Fort Alexander.

The first confirmation held at Fort Alexander for eight years took place in January, 1899, when fifty candidates were presented to the Archbishop of Rupert's Land. The Rev. E. Thomas reports that the people manifest a good deal of interest in Church matters, and that they appeared as a rule to be not merely professing, but real Christians. Influenza was rife among the Indians for some time. The Rev. B. McKenzie is in charge of the congregation and school at Black River, where there are fifteen families and twenty-four communicants. The attendance at the Sunday and week-day services was good, but the children were irregular in coming to school. Some of them, however, made considerable progress in reading and writing, and Scripture instruction was carefully given every day. Mr. J. Sinclair, the native schoolmaster at Hole River, is a licensed lay-reader, and conducted the services regularly, in the absence of any clergyman.

Islington.

The population at Islington has greatly diminished since the Mission there was commenced in 1853, and now numbers only seventy-five. The people get their living chiefly by fishing and hunting, and consequently, with the exception of a few days when the annual treaty payment is made by the Government, are never all at home; indeed, for about three months in the year the majority of them are absent from the Mission. This fact renders it necessary for the Rev. J. A. Maggrah to travel from one place to another in order to minister to his people, and adds greatly to the difficulty of his work. Two out-stations are worked from Islington—One Man's Lake, with a population of thirty-eight, and Swan Lake, with forty-five Indians. All but twenty-five of the Indians in the district are Christians, and the majority of the Heathen are children who are kept back by their parents. Mr. Maggrah bears testimony to the general superiority of the Christian Natives over their heathen brethren. The Government Day Schools, which are conducted in English, meet with but little success, and the Industrial Schools are so far distant from most of the Reserves that the Indians hesitate to send their children to them.

There were no striking changes at Lac Seul, where the Rev. T. H. Pritchard is stationed, but steady progress characterized the work. The church was enlarged during the summer, mostly by voluntary labour, about fourteen feet being added to the length of the nave. The communicants numbered forty. Patrick Goodwin, the unpaid native agent, acted as lay-reader whenever Mr. Pritchard was absent in his district. Several children were sent to the Industrial School near Winnipeg, and the two day-schools at the station did excellent work. The result of the teaching was seen in the increasing number of persons owning books and bringing them to church, and the consequent growing heartiness of the services. At Wabuskang the heathen opposition was not nearly so great as of old, and when Mr. Pritchard visited it several of the heathen Indians attended the services, and were reverent and attentive. The Rev. A. T. Norquay was removed in June, 1898, from Frenchman's Head to another station, and his place was filled in December by Mr. Brindley, who for a short time was Vice-Principal of Emmanuel College, Prince Albert. A number of the Indians were transferred to a new Reserve in the course of the year.

Rainy River.

The Rev. J. Johnston, supported by the Canada C.M. Association, who resides at Long Sault, is responsible for the work in the RAINY RIVER DISTRICT. The Christians were regular in their attendance at the services, but the number of Heathen present varied considerably, for the medicine-man prohibited the attendance of his people, fearing lest they should be drawn away from his influence. How powerful that is, is evidenced by the following list of the things given to him as a reward for the incantations which he made in order that the life of one superstitious follower might be saved:—A big tom-tom or drum, a quantity of ready-cut tobacco, a large pot of cooked dogs' meat, another large pot of broth, made probably of the liquor got from boiling the dogs' meat, mixed with flour, corn, &c., and in addition a number of blankets, prints, shawls, kettles, guns, traps, &c. In the summer a visit was paid to Long Sault by the Rev. F. H. Du Vernet, from whose description in the Canadian localized C.M. Gleaner of a Sunday which he spent there the following extracts are taken:—

Influence of medicine-men.

"The white man's Sunday business."

About eleven the congregation began to assemble. Almost at the same time the shrill whistle of the bi-weekly steamer echoed far and wide, and as the Indians have often to help to carry a hawser up the stream to enable the steamer to mount the rapids, for which they receive a sack of flour, the effect of the white man's Sunday business upon the Indian's church-going may readily be imagined. The rival steamer had passed up about an hour before this. Notwithstanding this excitement, we had a fair congregation, about twenty all told. The first part of Morning Prayer was taken in Ojibbeway, the ante-Communion service being read by me in English.

It was a great joy for me to have the privilege of preaching to the Indians, even though it was through an interpreter. Knowing that Mr. Johnston had a thorough mastery of the Ojibbeway language, instead of giving sentence by sentence as is usually done, I endeavoured to give a simple but complete thought, and then paused for its interpretation. This was better for the English people present.

Let us analyze the congregation as we look down the church.

. . . One of the Christian Indians present has come forty miles to church, paying two dollars for his fare on the steamer. He has lately lost his wife, and he grieves to think that at Hungry Hall there is no school, no church, no hope whatever of his children being trained as Christians. He may not have much light, but he is certainly trying to live up to the light he has. Near him is a Christian Indian belonging to the "Soo," a brother of a former chief. He has a striking face, but in his little world, which is essentially Heathen, it is hard for him to stand well, as he is trying to do, with the rest, and at the same time stand firm for Christ. One of his sons is buried in the little cemetery behind the church. Another, who is not likely to live long, is present.

That night I lay awake listening to the beating of the tom-tom until three o'clock in the morning. The heathen Indians, reinforced by a party of Minnesota Indians, who are even more degraded than our Canadian Indians, having less done for them, were engaged in a night of heathen revelry—dancing and gambling being mingled with their religious rites.

Then, as never before, I realized that in our Christian land, in the fair Province of Ontario, at our very doors, there was still a great work to be done among those "sitting in darkness and in the shadow of death."

Still a great work to be done.

Mr. Johnston mentions in his Annual Letter the triumphant death of a woman whom he found on his arrival in 1896 joining in the ceremonies of the "Long Medicine Tent," although she had been baptized some years previously. He writes:—

Some two weeks passed before I had opportunity to speak to her. There and then she promised, God helping her, she would never go back to Heathenism again. From that time to the end she was a faithful follower of the Lord Jesus Christ. Her only brother, a staunch Heathen, tried hard to get her back; as she was consumptive, she was told if she would only renounce Christianity and go through the "Long Tent" she would recover, but she resisted their persuasion, and when they found they could not get her back, they persecuted her, but she remained steadfast in the Faith to the end. Some time before she died, on one of my visits to see her, I noticed a bright, happy face, and she said, "I am very glad you have come; I have something to tell you. I saw two shining ones; they came to see me; they want to bear me away to that bright, happy world above. I am not going just yet, but I shall be going soon." And another time she said, "I saw Jesus standing beside me. Oh! how good."

An Indian woman steadfast to the end.

Monthly visits were paid to the three out-stations. At Little Forks, all but three of the people are Heathen, and at Manito Rapids the opposition of the chief, who is a medicine-man, prevented much progress from being made. The people at Hungry Hall, where there are a good many adherents, came eagerly to the services on the occasion of Mr. Johnston's visits; but the absence of any resident teacher was a sad hindrance to the work. Throughout the district, which is situated on the border of the United States, the evil influence of the example of ungodly white men was evident in the prevalence of drinking and gambling.

Fairford. FAIRFORD and its out-stations are under the care of the Rev. G. Bruce. He contrasts the condition of the Mission when in 1868 he first took up the work with its present state, and says:—

> I arrived late on a Saturday afternoon, and can recollect my curiosity as to the place of worship and the congregation. The building was certainly in a crude state, having only four windows (with six lights in each window) and no pews, but simply seats made out of slabs. When the congregation commenced to gather, the men occupied one side of the church and the women the other side. The majority were clad in their original garb, blanket and leggings. When the service commenced, few and far between were books to be seen, and consequently only a voice here and there was to be heard joining in the responses.
>
> Now there are four places of worship and five schools. The Indians within reach of the Mission are well evangelized, and are mostly regular and attentive attendants at the Sunday services.
> Schools have been conducted with a fair average attendance in each respective school, where nothing but the English language is taught, and now it is only a few of the old people that cannot read the New Testament, either in the English or in their own tongue.

The different branches of work were carried on as usual, and the people did what they could to assist in defraying the expenses, contributing matches, tobacco, sinews, &c., in the weekly offertory. Visiting the out-stations involved arduous journeys, for from thirty to sixty miles had to be covered before the nearest neighbour was reached, but Mr. Bruce met with some encouragements which amply rewarded him for the hardships he endured. At one place, after preaching to a band of Indians, all of whom were Heathen, the head man rose and addressed him as follows:—"Minister, we are glad to see you once more; we heartily welcome you in our midst; we are glad to hear so much from your lips about the mind of God; we like to hear it, for when we look at you, and see your white hairs, we cannot but think that surely God must be with you in your work. We will try to remember all that you have said to us out of the Word of God, and think well over it. You see all these children; the day is not far distant when they will be all praying children. Try and come soon again to us; we would like to hear more about God's mind."

Soon "all will be praying children."

No report has been received from Jackhead or Oak River.

Touch-wood Hills. Mr. E. H. Bassing found the work at TOUCHWOOD HILLS, in the Diocese of Qu'Appelle, much more difficult than that at Shoal River, where he was formerly stationed, in consequence of the greater familiarity of the Natives with the white man and his vices. At Poor Man's Reserve the chief used his influence over the people to keep them from embracing Christianity, but the Indians on Way Stars Reserve were willing hearers, and good attention was paid at the services held in the different houses in turn.

II. DIOCESE OF MOOSONEE.

THE progress made in the work throughout the Diocese of Moosonee in general afforded Bishop Newnham much encouragement, and he was greatly cheered also by the arrival, at the end of October, of the Rev. R. Renison and Mr. Renison, who came from Lake Nepigon to join the staff of the Mission.

Ordination.

The Bishop admitted the Rev. R. Faries to priest's orders on September 4th, 1898.

Moose Factory.

The Bishop had a variety of fellow-workers at MOOSE FACTORY during the year. For a few months the Rev. A. C. Ascah was his helper; then, later on, the Rev. R. Faries, who came 500 miles from Fort Hope for his ordination as priest, assumed temporary charge of the work; and, finally, the Revs. E. Richards and R. Renison took up their residence at the station, and assisted with the services and in the schools. Mr. Faries was greatly impressed with the advance that had been made during the three years which had elapsed since his previous visit, and writes:—

> The Moose Factory Indians have made great strides in a well-ordered, moral, and Christian life during the three years I have been away. Old and young seemed to be really trying to live a pure and holy life, and many do their utmost to help the Bishop in keeping order and discipline. The Indian churchwardens and sidesmen are earnest and thoughtful men, not only fulfilling their duties with regard to Church government and discipline, but also preaching a life of purity and holiness in the Church, in their tents, at their work, and wherever they are.

On Sunday, September 4th, the day when the Rev. R. Faries received priest's orders, the Bishop confirmed twenty-five candidates. The Bishop says that nearly all the Indian adults present in church are accustomed to remain for the Holy Communion whenever it is administered, and that family prayer is almost universal among the Natives, though not among the whites. But he is careful not to attach too much importance to this fact, for he writes:—

Disjoining faith and practice.

> The Indians are naturally ready to read their books and to pray aloud, whether in church or at home, and they are very fond of singing hymns in their tents. But this does not mean that they are necessarily earnest, or spiritually-minded. They have a wonderful knack of disjoining faith and practice, and of talking piously while living carelessly. In fact, it is not easy to be sure that those who are ready to speak and pray in public are really men who are fit to do so.

Nine adults were removed by death, one of whom, named Isaac, came to the station in 1852 with the late Bishop Anderson, of Rupert's Land, and led a devout and consistent life, while others of those who were called away showed that their faith in Christ was firm. The day-school was well attended, and the Sunday-school was fortunate in having plenty of teachers, among whom were numbered some of the employées of the Hudson's Bay Company. In order to encourage the Indians to grow vegetables, so healthful an addition to the ordinary diet of salt or tinned meat, a horticultural show was held in the early autumn. There were about twenty-four exhibitors, and some of the exhibits were very creditable.

A horticultural show.

The Rev. J. Sanders, who is stationed at Biscotasing, has a number of out-stations under his charge. At Pigeon's Nest the Natives suffered much through the flooding of the fishing-places, which prevented them from either spearing or netting the fish. Another trial was the scarcity of rabbits, which are valued not only for their flesh, but also for their skins, which when made into robes will keep a person from freezing even in temperatures of fifty degrees below zero. A valuable helper at Brunswick Post, Thomas Jonah by name, died during the year, but a man was raised up in his stead, who conducted the services satisfactorily. At Missanabie, there were many encouraging signs in connexion with the work.

Rupert's House, a few miles up the Rupert River, was occupied for a few months by the Rev. E. Richards, and when he left for Moose Factory, the Rev. A. C. Ascah and Mr. Swindlehurst, a student, took his place. Bishop Newnham paid a visit to the station in August, and confirmed eleven candidates. He says that the Indians there are mostly "coasters," and are hard to move, and that ignorance and superstition are still very prevalent.

Fort George.

There are two distinct branches of the work at FORT GEORGE, that among the Eskimo, and that among the Indians. The Rev. W. G. Walton says concerning the former people :—

Eskimo's love for Divine service.

They are more enthusiastic than ever—in fact, it was said of them last winter that they seemed to have a "mania" for wanting to go to church. I have grown accustomed to seeing them buying their books as the first and best article, but last year several appeared quite indifferent about trading. Before they went to trade they would ask if the minister were going to have service, and, if so, then they would wait till after. One day, after the morning service, the trader told me that they positively left the trading shop because they heard the bell ringing for church, and one man called out to him to look after his money while he went too. The poor people are hungering and thirsting after knowledge, and they will stay with me after service as long as I like to stop, telling their troubles, doubts, and difficulties. The grace of God is truly working in their hearts, and even the scoffers are silenced.

I shall never forget a service we held just before the semi-chief, Kamungwak, and his band went off. After I said a few parting words to them, the chief himself spoke, and spoke to the point. He reminded the people of how they had wrongfully treated dear Mr. Peck in not wanting to pay attention to his message. Then my helper gave them a short address, urging them to be more faithful to their teaching and try to help one another. We closed with prayer, and it filled me with joy to hear one of themselves lifting up his heart in prayer to God, asking a blessing upon teacher and people. This enthusiasm is not merely spasmodic, but lasts even when they are alone in their hunting-grounds.

Christian Eskimo away from home.

Mr. Walton was greatly cheered by hearing from a Government surveyor that some of these people, having gone on a visit to a place called Fort Chimo, had there gathered their fellow-Eskimo together and told them of Christ and His love, with the result that dancing and playing on Sundays were abandoned, as well as many immoral habits. The Indians are not nearly so energetic as the Eskimo, and soon tire of going to church, but during the year under review they seemed to throw off some of their lethargy, and showed a real desire to learn. A warm welcome was accorded to the Bishop when he visited the station in August. He was pleased with the attendance at the school, and also at the services. He gave a feast to the Indians, who had exhausted their supplies of food while waiting for his arrival, and on the Sunday spent a busy day, which he thus described in the Toronto Evangelical Churchman :—

Confirmation services.

Sunday was a very hot, still day, which means great discomfort at crowded Indian services, but we would not wish any to be absent. At 9 a.m. the church was crowded, and the atmosphere terrible ; one girl fainted, and another had to retire. At 11 a.m. we had the confirmation service in English (for one candidate), followed by a sermon and the Holy Communion. I enjoyed this service, though I found it rather difficult to address one candidate before the whole congregation, and I daresay she found it embarrassing too. But the earnest attention of the congregation, and especially of the candidate, helped me much, and I felt that the Holy Spirit was with us. The afternoon Indian service was worse to bear than the morning, the sun being at its full power and the church more than full. Mr. Walton preached, and I listened to his sermon, sitting at the open window of the vestry. A good proportion remained to communicate, and, though their knowledge is so small, I trust that their worship was accepted, and their spiritual life nourished by the heavenly food. Another English service in the evening finished a day that had been rather exhausting to body and mind, but any fatigue was forgotten in the thankfulness and encouragement felt.

In July, 1898, Mr. Walton resided for two weeks at Great Whale River, in order to reach the hunters who gather there for purposes of trade. The Bishop joined him during his stay, confirmed a member of the English congregation, and conducted a variety of services. Among them was the funeral of an old man, who had died suddenly, of which he says :—

A funeral service at Great Whale River.

This is the first funeral at that place that Mr. Walton has had, so the service is not well known. At the usual point I scattered some earth on the coffin. At once every one thought it right to follow my example. After a perfect rain of sand I said that would do, and they should stop. But no one liked to be left out, and the service had to be finished under a scattering fire of sand.

A fatal bath.

The death of this man was not primarily due to disease, but to his taking an Indian "sweating bath." The modus operandi in connexion with that is to bend over some short willows so as to form a sort of bridge, big and high enough for a man to lie down comfortably underneath at full length. The willows are then covered with tentings and blankets, and hot stones are put inside the erection to heat it. The patient then crawls under the tentings, and the people outside shut him in so that no air can make its entrance, and there he lies almost suffocated until he thinks that he had better come out. There was much hand-shaking when the missionaries departed, and a thrice-repeated volley from all the available guns.

Albany.

ALBANY is under the charge of the veteran Archdeacon T. Vincent, who has completed forty-three years of missionary service, during which he has only once been away from his sphere of labour for any lengthened period. His work among the whites of mixed descent, the employées of the Hudson's Bay Company, and the Cree and Ojibbeway Indians was carried on much as in former years, but there was at least one novelty, viz., the renewing of the foundation of the church at the main station. The Archdeacon wrote of this in the Moosonee Mailbag :—

Church restoration under difficulties.

I built this church many years ago. It is a wooden building, strongly spiked together with long iron bolts. Our timber, however, is not very durable, and all our buildings want renewing after a certain number of years. I had no one to help me but one young lad. However, he seconded my efforts bravely, and that was all he could do. We raised this heavy building, by means of wedges, to the height I wanted, removed all the decayed timber, and replaced it with good solid lumber. I spent the greater part of two months over it. It was hard, hard work for me, but I have the satisfaction of knowing that my church is good for another twenty years, should no accident happen to it. While engaged in this heavy work, we still conducted our daily service and other meetings. At the usual time the day-school was opened, and we kept all our Mission work moving. I do wish often that we were nearer than we are to the four churches I am trying to get built. I am 210 miles from the nearest one, and 550 miles from the farthest. If carpenters can be hired, they must be paid for their labour; they will not work for nothing. I am trying to raise funds for this purpose, but they come in very slowly. However, we must be patient, and persevere, and by God's help we will accomplish our work yet.

A rather larger number than usual of the Indians died in 1898, but there was reason to believe that most, if not all, of them were real Christians. The Archdeacon visited the majority of the stations in his large district in the course of the summer, the Rev. E. Richards being left in charge of the work at Albany during his absence. The Rev. R. Faries was at Fort Hope, and was able to get into closer touch with the Indians than in previous years. He found that superstition still had a strong hold even over some of the most devout and earnest Christians, though there were very few people who continued to indulge in the heathenish art of conjuring, and chanting to the spirits of man, beast, and fowl. An encouraging feature in the work was the public renouncing of conjuring by the chief, and the destroying of his drum, which was formerly used in chanting to the spirits. For some time past this man had shown no opposition to Christianity, but, on the contrary, had used his influence to promote the spread of the Gospel; but at the same time he had refused himself to take any part in the services. Since he was well known as a famous and powerful conjurer, much was hoped for from this public abandonment of the black art. The services were well attended, and some devout Natives often tramped twenty miles in order to be present. Occasional visits were paid to the camps of parties of Indians who came to hunt near Fort Hope. They sometimes themselves sent to Mr. Faries with a message begging him to "Pe annummehah," i.e., "come and pray." Two deaths occurred among the Indians at Martin's Falls, the one of a young child, and the other of one of the mail-carriers. Both the Archdeacon and Mr. Faries paid a visit to this out-station, and gave the people encouragement and advice. Mr. Faries has in some measure changed his opinion of the Indians at Osnaburgh, whose sincerity he used to call in question, and has now come to the conclusion that their ignorance and inconsistencies are due rather to the neglect of the Church than to their own fault, since but little has been done in the past to help them to lead pure and consistent lives. One of the Natives, in the absence of a clergyman, assembled his fellow-countrymen every day for prayer and exhortation, and a church capable of seating 250 persons was in process of erection. Two couples were married by Mr. Faries, and several infants were baptized.

A chief renounces conjuring.

The isolated post of FORT CHURCHILL was occupied by Mr. Chapman.

The Rev. E. J. Peck and Mr. C. G. Sampson, who were joined at BLACKLEAD ISLAND in August, 1898, by Mr. J. W. Bilby, found the preceding winter in many respects a trying one. There was great scarcity of food, and the severity of the weather added to the sufferings of the Eskimo. But the difficulties experienced did not arise merely from physical causes, for the moral standard of the people is very low, and from time to time some occurrence manifests the superstitions which are held by the Natives. Thus Mr. Sampson writes:—

Blacklead Island.

Early in the autumn of 1897, many of the Eskimo who came from the south, and had heard little of our Lord Jesus Christ, performed their annual ceremony of killing Sedna, who is supposed to live in a large house at the bottom of the ocean, and who has complete control over the winds and waves, but more so over the whales, seals, and walrus. When she is thus killed, the Eskimo thinks he will have good luck in everything he does. The method is as follows:—A snow woman is made; for eyes they use frozen dog's dung; then when all is ready, at a given signal from the conjurer, who yells, they all rush upon every quarter and thrust their spears into the said image of snow until it is all battered to pieces, after which each person finds some old piece of skin and shreds it up and flings it amongst the people, who scramble for it; then those who get pieces tie them on to their clothes and wear them for luck; then, later on, wives are exchanged.

It was encouraging, however, to find that several of the people who had attended the meetings held by the missionaries took no part in these proceedings.

During the winter, services were held regularly in the Mission-house, which, as stated in last year's Report, was used as a church, and both adults and children were taught daily in the school. There was an average attendance of the latter of fifty, and many of the boys and girls learned to read and to understand portions of St. Luke's Gospel, and to repeat many Scripture texts. The Gospels, printed by the British and Foreign Bible Society, "the backbone of Missionary Societies," as Mr. Peck calls it, were found most useful, and the smaller books also were in great demand; but difficulty was naturally experienced in explaining to people living in such an isolated and desolate region the beautiful illustrations which are contained in, for instance, the 10th and 15th chapters of St. John. The character of the work in Cumberland Sound is well illustrated by the following extracts from Mr. Peck's Journal:—

Difficulty of explaining Scripture illustrations.

Detained in a snow house.

October 31*st*, 1897 (Sunday).—A fearful day. Could not have people together, so Mr. Sampson and myself tried to visit some of our congregation. I managed to crawl into one miserable dwelling through a very low door. I remained with the inmates some time, and then tried to get out again, but the drift had quite blocked up the entrance, so I was caught in a regular snow-trap; however, by dint of pushing and much exertion I was able finally to make my exit from smells and sights quite beyond my powers of description.

December 29*th*.—The prizes were distributed to the following children:—First, those who had made good progress in Scripture knowledge; second, those who attended regularly; and third, those who tried to keep themselves clean. Some of the girls who took first prizes repeated without making a single mistake thirty Scripture texts, while several of the other children only made one or two mistakes in saying by heart the same verses. As regards cleanliness, I am thankful to say that some at least are now beginning to find out the natural colour of their skin, and we hope as time goes on that they may become more cleanly in their habits.

February 27*th* (Sunday).—Held usual services during day. Mr. Sampson addressed the people at evening meeting. I am thankful to notice a more reverent and attentive spirit amongst our attendants. It seems as if God's Holy Spirit is gradually breaking down their prejudices against some truths which strike hard at their besetting sins.

May 22*nd* (Sunday).—Wonderfully helped during the day. Had a very large congregation at the evening service. The attention was very marked. At times especially the people do now show marked interest in God's message.

Large congregation—marked attention.

Aug. 29*th to Sept.* 3*rd*.—A quantity of timber having most kindly been shipped for us by Mr. Noble, we are able to enlarge the house in which we lived last winter, and which we will (D.V.) use for a church, while the building which was taken out last year, and which was planned for our dwelling-house, will be used for the purpose intended. We all set to work with a will, and with the help of some Eskimo, managed to make headway in preparing both buildings for the uses named. Mr. Bilby, having a good knowledge of technical work, helps us immensely.

18*th* (Sunday).—Eskimo gathered together in enlarged building. It will answer nicely for a church. We are now in the house, which we find nice and comfortable, and where we hope to spend many happy days together in the study of the language, and in mutual fellowship and brotherly love.

From March 21st to April 14th, 1898, Mr. Peck was engaged in visiting the Eskimo on the north-eastern shore of Cumberland Sound. He was cheered to find that a woman who had been instructed at Blacklead Island had been endeavouring to teach some of her people, and had been instrumental in arousing interest in the message of salvation. A man named Chittak, too, formerly a noted conjurer, listened attentively to the teaching that was given, and received a copy of St. Luke's Gospel. On his return Mr. Peck paid a visit to Kikkerton, a whaling station, and was much encouraged with a man named Pukkak, who spoke of the sad state in which he lived in the past, and of his desire to believe in the Saviour, and who was always most ready to listen to the Gospel. A little later, in May, Mr. Sampson went to Kikkerton and had a happy time there, the Eskimo coming in crowds to the meetings. He spent the greater part of July and August in an expedition to Signia, the American whaling station near Frobisher Bay, which involved a journey of 250 miles among the ice-floes. On one occasion while sleeping in his tent he was awakened by a crack and a splash, and felt a slight movement. He did not, however, think of danger until he heard the women calling out to him that he was adrift on a small piece of ice. Happily he was soon rescued, and was enabled to reach Signia, where the people manifested a great desire to learn; he found that many of them could read the books given them by the late Mr. Parker, of whom they spoke highly. Although there were no baptisms during the year Mr. Peck was hopeful about the work, and says:—

Adrift on an ice-floe.

We look forward to the time when God will give us a harvest of immortal souls, and when we shall have the pleasure of admitting several of the Eskimo into the visible Church of Christ by baptism. It is necessary, however, for various reasons, that we should not be in a hurry as regards baptizing adherents. Nothing but the power of the Holy Ghost can save and sanctify the people. For this power we must wait and pray. Souls united to Christ by living faith constitute a true Church, and we are anxious that the Church at Blacklead Island should be built on these lines.

III. DIOCESES OF SASKATCHEWAN AND CALGARY.

ARCHDEACON and Mrs. J. W. Tims and the Rev. and Mrs. G. S. Winter came home in June, 1898.

Ordination.

On Trinity Sunday, June 5th, 1898, the Bishop admitted the Rev. J. Taylor to priest's orders at Prince Albert.

Prince Albert.

The number of pupils at Emmanuel College, PRINCE ALBERT, under Archdeacon J. A. Mackay, continues to increase steadily. Ten of them were confirmed, and the industrial work in which they engaged met with great success. One young Indian from the Pas left to take up a position as teacher. After the departure of the Rev. G. S. Winter the work at Sturgeon Lake was undertaken temporarily by the Rev. J. Badger, the native pastor at St. James', but he met with such encouraging indications of progress among the Indians of the place, who have long resisted the truth, that eventually he offered to remain for an indefinite time. A new Reserve was laid out near the Ahtahkakoop Reserve for the scattered Indians of the Sandy Lake district, and shortly after they had taken possession of it Archdeacon Mackay, accompanied by the Rev. J. Taylor, the native clergyman, drove out in order to arrange, if possible, for Christian teachers to be received. They did not, however, meet with much success, for the leader of the Indians only replied to their exhortations in the following words:—"So far as the Reserve is concerned, I am glad that we have a Reserve that the white man cannot encroach upon; but there are three things that I do not wish to see within the boundaries of our Reserve. I don't want Christianity, I don't want a school, and I don't want the law. I don't want Christianity, because we wish to follow the way of our fathers. We are Indians, and we intend to remain Indians. I don't want schools, because I want the children to be happy and free from restraint. I don't want the law, because we are good people. We never do anything wrong, and we have no use for the law. With regard to our souls, you always have a good deal to say about our souls. We don't want to hear anything about our souls. We know that we have souls, and we know there is a Muneto. Muneto will take care of our souls, and we don't need to trouble ourselves about them. We want to hear of something that will be for the good of our bodies only."

"I don't want Christianity, we don't want to know anything about our souls."

This speech was in marked contrast to the warm thanks of the Christian chief at Sandy Lake for the care which had been bestowed on the children at Emmanuel College. He referred gratefully to what had been done to bring his people to the knowledge of the Saviour, and said:—"We are trying to follow what you tell us and what our missionary here tells us, although we feel how weak we are, and, as you said on Sunday, in the words of one of God's servants, 'Who is sufficient for these things?' I have been elected chief in my father's place. You know how he tried to help the good work. You know how he gave up entirely all heathen ways, and tried to give himself up wholly to God. I am trying to walk in his footsteps. You have taught us that we are weak, and we know we are weak, but you have taught us, too, where to look for strength, and I trust in Him who is strong." "I trust in Him who is strong."

The Rev. C. J. Pritchard has been transferred from Nepowewin to Cedar Lake, and his place filled by the appointment of the Rev. N. K. Williams. An aged man, who was formerly a bitter opponent of Christianity, was baptized with his wife when the Bishop visited the station in June, 1898.

The approach of civilization to STANLEY does not facilitate the efforts of the missionary or pastor, for unhappily, as is well known, many of the white men exercise anything but a good influence upon the Red Indians. The Rev. R. McLennan's experience in this matter is no exception to the rule, for he says that the merchants who come at the time of the treaty payments are often men of loose morals, and that some of the fur traders set a bad example, but he excepts from this condemnation the officers of the Hudson's Bay Company. Three visits were paid to Pelican Narrows during the year. It is difficult to reach effectually the Chipewyan Indians, who regard that as their headquarters, since excepting for a month or so in the summer they are scattered about the country, and in some cases are distant four days' journey from Pelican Narrows. Mr. McLennan resided at Big Stone from January to June, 1898. The chapel, which was too small for the congregation, was enlarged entirely at the cost of the people, and even the provisions which the workers received were paid for out of the offertory. Stanley.

Ninety-five per cent. of the whole population in the rural deanery of which DEVON is the centre, belong to the Church of England, and are the fruits of the work of the Society; and the Rev. J. Hines, the missionary in charge, says that drunkenness is unknown among them, and that on the whole they are consistent Christians. Out of a population of about 1,500, four hundred are regular communicants, and that not from any superstitious motives, but "with the clear understanding of evangelical churchmen." Under these circumstances, there was naturally but little work among the Heathen, but Mr. Hines found plenty of occupation in guarding against the encroachments of the Roman Catholics and the Plymouth Brethren. He mentions the curious fact that the Plymouth Brethren apparently never attempt to win over Roman Catholics, and that the latter leave the Plymouth Brethren alone, both parties concentrating their efforts on the attempt to gain adherents from among the Devon. Large proportion of communicants.

members of the Church of England. Some of the sad results of the intrusion of these bodies of Christians into the C.M.S. field are thus narrated by Mr. Hines:—

> Four years ago the Red Earth Heathen were becoming anxious inquirers; most of the younger members of the band had been taught the syllabic characters, and so were able to read the Bible, and most of them did read it. They welcomed my visits as much as the Christian Indians of the same band, but during the past four years the Roman Catholics and Plymouth Brothers, as well as ourselves, have been working among them, and what is the result? Listen to the words of the chief man of the Reserve: "We used to look forward to your visits with the same pleasure that the Christians did, and we were willing to receive your instructions, but since these other white Christians have been going in and out among us, they have created confusion in our minds. They say your teaching is entirely wrong, but how are we to know whether they or you are right? It is not that we have a 'hankering' after the ways of our forefathers, that we have halted in our search after Christian truth, but it is the white man who has created confusion in our minds, and we do not know what to do."

"How are we to know whether they or you are right?"

Two new churches were built in the district during the year. Cedar Lake is occupied by the Rev. C. J. Pritchard, who is assisted by Mr. Hooker as schoolmaster and catechist. The Rev. J. R. Settee resided at Cumberland, and, travelling in the summer with a canoe and in the winter by sleigh, visited Sturgeon River, Pine Island, and a number of other places.

Battleford.

There was little change in the Mission at BATTLEFORD, under the Revs. R. Inkster and D. D. McDonald, but new work was commenced in the form of an effort to reach the Sotos, a tribe of non-treaty Indians. During the summer months they move from place to place, but in the winter they take up their quarters near Turtle Lake and gain a subsistence by fishing. They are thought to be bitterly opposed to Christianity, and a visit to them involves a journey of 200 miles for Mr. Inkster, but, as he rightly observes, it is the obvious duty of the Church to proclaim to them the Gospel message, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear.

Fort Pitt.

"Eventful both in spiritual matters and in material progress" is the description of the year 1898 which the Rev. J. R. Matheson, of FORT PITT, gives in his Annual Letter. There were forty inmates of the home for children of half-breed Romanists and Indians, and great blessing rested on the work among them. A woman, an unbaptized adherent of the Church of Rome, and the daughter of one of the leading representatives of Heathenism, handed over her child to the care of the missionaries, and there were other signs that the work was telling. Extensive and needed additions were made to the premises of the Home, and although there were practically no funds in hand when the work was commenced, and no appeal was made to man, yet just at Christmas the amount required to pay the workmen arrived by the mail from an unexpected source. Mrs. Matheson is now a fully qualified M.D. Nine adults and twenty children were baptized during the year.

The missionaries engaged in the work among the Blood Indians at FORT MCLEOD, in the Diocese of Calgary, were the Rev. and Mrs. E. F. Hockley, of the Canada C.M. Association, and the Rev. A. de B. Owen. The latter was in charge of the Kissock Homes, containing twenty-one boys and twenty-four girls. A great deal of sickness prevailed, and caused some anxiety to those in authority; but the moral and intellectual progress of the children called forth much thankfulness. There are 500 unbaptized adherents at the station. Visiting from house to house in the winter, and travelling in the summer to the various places where the Indians were to be found, occupied Mr. Hockley's time fully. He met with continued friendship from the people, but few of them expressed any desire to become Christians. However, heathen practices appear to be dying out, and the increasing industry and thrift displayed justify more sanguine expectations for the future. Fort McLeod.

The work at BLACKFOOT CROSSING is carried on by the Rev. and Mrs. H. W. G. Stocken and the Rev. C. H. P. Owen. Mr. Stocken reports that the year under review was one of much blessing. The Homes for Boys and Girls, the former under Mr. Owen, did good work. Five of the girls asked for baptism, and having bravely faced the opposition from their parents which the expression of the desire caused, were received into the visible Church in March, 1899. Patients continued to come in good numbers to the Hospital, including even Indian medicine-men, some of whom talked of giving up their heathen practices with a view to embracing Christianity. Dr. Turner is at the head of this institution, and is assisted by a daughter and a niece, who are trained nurses, and by another daughter and Miss Esam; he also helps with the English services, having been licensed by the Bishop for the purpose. The people were eager to read the Word of God for themselves, and translational work was consequently pressed on, the greater part being undertaken by the Rev. J. Hinchliffe, who is supported out of diocesan funds, and labours among the Peigan Indians. Evangelistic work was carried on by means of the Sunday services, individual dealing, and house-to-house visiting, in the last of which many of the Christians diligently engaged. Chief among these native workers was Paul Pukapinni, the story of whose conversion is thus narrated by Mr. Stocken:— Blackfoot Crossing. Ingathering of Blackfeet Indians.

Pukapinni ("Little Eyes") and his brother came fairly regularly to the services, but not to worship. Curiosity and ridicule seemed to engage his thoughts. But after a while the satirical smile died away, and Pukapinni listened as earnestly as Little Axe had done [Little Axe was baptized in 1897. See Annual Report for 1897–98, page 419], and his brother also; and all this while they never said a word as to what was passing in their hearts. "The An earnest convert.

wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh nor whither it goeth ; so is every one that is born of the Spirit." The blessed crisis came on a Sunday immediately after church. I had been preaching on the peace and blessing to be had in Christ Jesus, and contrasted them with the so-called pleasures of the Indian. The men came up to me on going out of church. Axe was the first to speak, and as he referred to my illustration of Indian pleasures, and showed me how little I knew of their nature, he told me of his earnest desire to become a child of God, and to be baptized. Then Pukapinni told me of a dream he had had, and how it had decided him to ask for baptism. In his dream he had entered the school porch, and was standing by my side as I rang the bell for the morning service. I had asked him some simple question as to his motive for coming, and he had told me, when suddenly he saw a spiral staircase passing up from where we stood far out of sight. In a moment I had urged him to ascend the staircase with me, and he saw himself ascending until we were so far above the earth that the people looked as specks. Presently we stood on the top and saw a magnificent country extending in every direction. It was very beautiful, he said, and when in his dream I asked him to say what he thought of the sight, he said it was more beautiful than anything he had seen before. I urged him never to forget the sight, and then bade him to descend again. He said, "I did so tremblingly, but reached the earth in safety." He felt that God had given him the dream, and hesitated no longer to obey His call. From that day he has made most remarkable progress in spiritual life and knowledge, so much so that the Bishop very warmly approved of the wish that he might be set apart as a catechist, and he was accordingly admitted to the office on the first Sunday in November. At his baptism he received the name of "Paul," and he does indeed seem to have caught much of that great apostle's spirit. Since his conversion he has been ceaseless in his efforts to preach the Gospel to his people, and with evident blessing. His own wife (since deceased) and another young woman were distinctly his children in the faith, and many others are now learning the Truth from his lips. I was telling him the other night of one, Brother Lawrence, who lived so near to God that he was always conscious of his presence, and in consequence exercised a remarkable influence on all with whom he came in contact. He replied, "That is exactly what I have been trying to do of late." I believe it ; his face and his whole bearing show it. He is so humble and so earnest, and his tact in dealing with the people is very striking.

An Indian's dream.

Mr. Stocken had the joy of baptizing six men and six women during the year under review, and eight of the Christians were confirmed. Other baptisms and confirmations took place in March, 1899, on the occasion of a visit by the Bishop of Saskatchewan, who wrote on the 24th of that month :—

Bishop Pinkham's visit to Blackfoot Reserve.

I went last Sunday to the Blackfoot Reserve to hold a confirmation—my third at that Mission since last Easter.

Our first service was in English ; it consisted of morning prayer, followed by the Holy Communion. All the native communicants were present, and their behaviour during the service, and especially as they knelt to receive the Holy Sacrament, was most intelligent and devout.

At eleven o'clock Divine service was conducted in Blackfoot. The attendance included the children in the Home and their teachers, the adult Native Christians, together with those who had been prepared for Holy Baptism, and a number of Heathen Indians. During the service Mr. Stocken baptized three adults. I gave an address on the subject of Christ's talking with the woman of Samaria, Mr. Stocken interpreting for me.

At a service held at 8 p.m., at which there was a large attendance, Mr. Stocken baptized eight adults ; after which ten were confirmed, and I had the privilege of admitting David Staines to the office of catechist. My addresses were very attentively listened to and closely followed. The contrast between the years of drought and barrenness, when there was not the faintest sign of spiritual life among these Indians, and the experiences of last Sunday was precious beyond anything I have had in my whole ministry. One of the newly baptized and confirmed is the eldest son of the principal chief.

But it must not be supposed, because there was so much to encourage, that difficulties and trials were unknown; on the contrary, the indiscretion of some of the Christians, the presence of some lovers of iniquity among the Indians, and of white men who led ungodly lives, and the efforts of the Roman Catholics—all these things proved sad hindrances to the spread of the Gospel.

Archdeacon Tims only spent the first half of the year under review at SARCEE RESERVE, but in that time he was permitted to baptize a family consisting of a man, his wife and five children, and also three of the boarding-school girls; while three young men, elder scholars of the boarding-school, who had been drafted into the Calgary Industrial School, were baptized there. The man and his wife already referred to were confirmed on Whit-Sunday, 1898, and after the administration of the Lord's Supper, which followed, the husband told Archdeacon Tims of the great joy he felt on the occasion, and said, "Nuskittsipoppi ekskaaiimiu" ("My heart laughed very much"). After the Archdeacon left for England, the Rev. S. J. Stocken resided at the Mission, and conducted daily prayers in the boarding-school, and the Sunday services were undertaken by the Rev. G. H. Hogbin, Principal of the Industrial School.

IV. DIOCESE OF ATHABASCA.

THE Rev. G. Holmes was received into home connexion, and with Mrs. Holmes sailed for the Mission in June, 1898. The Rev. A. J. Warwick returned to England in September.

Bishop Young suffered from ill-health during a part of the year under review. The nearest doctor being at Edmonton, he had to make the journey thither, and was obliged to camp out for two terribly cold nights. After lying for a time in the general hospital in Winnipeg, the Bishop came home with Mrs. Young in April, 1899.

The Rev. G. Holmes once more took charge of LESSER SLAVE LAKE on his return to the Mission at the end of the summer. During the voyage across the Atlantic he had three opportunities of speaking to his fellow-passengers on the subject of Foreign Missions, and before he left the steamer he was presented with an appreciative address and a sum of £10 10*s*. for the work at the Indian boarding-school. He found that that institution, as well as other departments of the work, had been efficiently carried on while he was absent by the Rev. and Mrs. W. G.

Lesser Slave Lake.

White. The school was really overcrowded with thirty-five scholars, even Roman Catholic parents being anxious to procure admission for their children. Mr. C. D. White labours in connexion with the school, and Miss Durtnall, whose salary is paid by the Women's Auxiliary of Canada, is the matron. The numbers attending the services were encouraging, but many seemed only to have "a name to live," and the Klondyke "rush," while it had produced some good results, such as the increased eagerness of the Indians to have their children educated, at the same time had brought several evils in its train. Mr. Holmes says :—

Evils attending civilization.

The arrival of so many traders, and consequently the keen competition in the fur trade, has not tended to improve matters. Drunkenness, immorality, and every other accompanying vice peculiar to modern civilization, is daily on the increase. Only a few days ago, while visiting amongst the Indians, I saw several very badly disfigured victims of a drunken orgie which had taken place a few days before. But none of them, I am thankful to say, were members of our Church. The Canadian Government propose to make treaty with our Indians next summer, and we are hoping that one result will be to place more effectual restriction upon the liquor trade.

He concludes his Annual Letter with an earnest appeal that the North-West Canada Missions may be constantly remembered in prayer.

The Rev. W. G. White, while in charge of the work at Lesser Slave Lake, paid a couple of visits to the Peace River Mission, conducting services in the houses of some Protestant half-breed families with whom he stayed on his way out and home. In the autumn he resumed his former work at White Fish Lake. The attendance in church and at the Sunday-school fluctuated considerably, owing to the periodical absences of the Indians on hunting and trapping expeditions. Mr. White mentions an incident which gave the Indians on the spot a visible proof of God's protecting care :—

Danger from fire.

One fine day, when a high wind was blowing, my helpers and I were stacking the hay in the lee of the bush. A fire burning in some pines a mile away, but nearer to and directly to the windward of our small encampment of three tepées and a tent, spread into the willows and long grass. On leaving the men to see if there were any danger, the women, on seeing how close the fire was, unheeding my advice to them, "When you see me run, then it will be time for you to run," pulled the canvas off the tepée poles, and, rolling up all their belongings, were in a few minutes, with their children, seated on top of their bundles as close to the water of the lake as possible. I went into my tent, the only one left standing, and sat down to read my Testament, II. Thess. iii. 3 being the verse I opened at. I prayed to Him who is faithful to avert the threatened danger. Seizing the food already prepared for the afternoon meal, I was just in time to meet the men on their way home, at the run. We sat down and drank our tea on the post, and before we could begin work again an unexpected shower of rain fell—God's way of putting out the fire.

No Annual Letter has been received from the Rev. C. Weaver, who is stationed at Wapuscaw.

The Rev. D. Curry took charge at Shaftesbury when the Rev. H. Robinson was transferred to St. John's for work among the Beaver Indians. The latter draws a touching picture of the physical sufferings of this people; and their spiritual needs are no less great, for until Mr. Robinson's arrival no Protestant missionary had ever been stationed among them, and only occasional visits had been paid by the Roman Catholic priests. Mr. Robinson writes :—

Poverty of Indians.

Though we have not the teeming millions, we have the hundreds that have their trials and sufferings, almost, if not quite, equal to India's famine, and nobody to help them. They have no houses to live in, nothing but a little canvas lodge to shelter them from the cold, and when the thermometer is registering 50 or 60 below zero, they are obliged to have a fire burning all night to keep them from freezing. They are greatly in need of clothing, especially the widows and orphans. Many of them are wearing all the clothing they have on their bodies, and when night comes some of them have only got one old blanket each. A good large bale of warm blankets for the old women would make their eyes sparkle with joy, and would certainly be something they have never seen. Oh, I pity the old women! If you could only realize their crying need, I know your eyes would not be dry, especially if you were to find one of them in the bush all alone, which is often the case, left there to die.

Sickness is another sad picture of misery which is nearly in every camp. The total number of people at St. John's is only about five hundred; they have been reduced to about one-third of the former number by scrofula, scurvy, consumption, &c., during the last ten years. I find it hard to visit the poor sufferers, not having any medicines to give them.

Fort Vermilion.

The Rev. M. Scott, of FORT VERMILION, continued to minister to the Indians in their distant camps as well as on the comparatively few occasions on which they visited the station. He met with both discouragement and encouragement in his work. Under the former head must be classed the case of an Indian holding an important position in his tribe, who at one time professed to be desirous of instruction with a view to baptism, but when the opportunity of being taught occurred, always had some Felix-like excuse as to the season being inconvenient. On the other hand there was one particularly encouraging incident which manifests the impression made on even the non-Christian Natives. One Sunday the steamer arrived, having on board some Roman Catholic half-breeds, who were much addicted to gambling—a vice which is prevalent also among the Indians. As soon as the boat arrived these half-breeds invited the Indians to begin to play, thinking that they had a good opportunity of winning some of their earnings. One of the Indians, a Heathen and a most inveterate gambler, but one who for some time had been thinking seriously of the Gospel message, asked with surprise, "Do you know that this is Sunday?" "Oh, yes," was the reply, "but what of that? We always gamble on Sunday, and the priest never says anything, though he sees us." "Well," said the Indian, "it is not thus that the minister who is here

"Do you know that this is Sunday?"

would think. He tells us that we are to keep God's Day holy, and gambling is not a work for the Sabbath." Mr. Scott adds that the importunity of the half-breeds failed to overcome the scruples of the Indians. There were fourteen pupils in the school of which Miss Scott was the matron, most of whom were the children of English-speaking settlers.

The Rev. J. R. Lucas has been obliged to leave FORT CHIPEWYAN, and is on his way home.

V. DIOCESE OF MACKENZIE RIVER.

THE influx of gold-seekers affected the work in the Diocese of Mackenzie River as in other parts of North-West Canada, but Bishop Reeve did not have quite so unfavourable an experience as some of the missionaries. He writes:—

> I dreaded this influx of the mining element because of the injurious effect it might have upon the Indians; but so far, thank God, my fears appear to have been groundless. There has been no drinking and no rowdyism. Our Sunday and extra services were well attended; surprise was often expressed at the good behaviour of the Indians. Many kind remarks, appreciative of our work, were made; and some said that henceforth they would be more willing than heretofore to aid Foreign Missions. A number of Penny Testaments were thankfully accepted, and also some of Sankey's "Songs and Solos." So many have put their little all into this venture that one feels sorry to think how few will realize their hopes and expectations.

The Ven. Archdeacon R. McDonald came home in June, 1898, to see parts of the Tukudh Bible through the press.

Ordination. The Rev. C. E. Whittaker was admitted to priest's orders in July, 1898.

HAY RIVER is under the Rev. T. J. Marsh. The work there received high praise from many passing travellers, including an inspector of police, and there was reason to believe that some at least of the visitors were led by what they saw to regard missionary work more favourably than they had been wont.

Bishop Reeve is in charge at FORT SIMPSON. Two adults were baptized and four communicants added to the roll. Day and night schools were held, and much individual teaching was given by the Bishop and Mrs. Reeve.

Fort Norman. For a part of the year under review the Rev. and Mrs. W. Spendlove were at FORT NORMAN, where the new church approached completion sufficiently for services to be held in it. A number of miners congregated in the neighbourhood, but they had to be left without any ordained man to minister to them, since the departure of Mr. Webb on furlough rendered it necessary to transfer Mr. Spendlove to FORT WRIGLEY. Through a boat accident on the rapids most of the summer mail and a large proportion of the supply of provisions were lost, and Mr. Spendlove wrote:—

Loss of goods and supplies for the year.

This means the loss of goods and supplies for the year, which cannot possibly be replaced this year. This is most serious to missionaries living over 1,000 miles from a settlement or shop. We are living, too, this year at a place well known as Starvation Fort. I nearly starved to death myself in 1887 at this place, Fort Wrigley, so I am writing from experience. Many Indians, too, have died of starvation, while the officer in charge of the post more than once had to eat the furs to save his life. In this our need and extremity I desire you to ask for prayer for myself and Mrs. Spendlove, who has no woman within 130 miles with whom to converse in English. A few years ago we lost a whole year's outfit and supplies. Still, we received help and kindness from the Hudson's Bay Company and the Indians. However, it is a severe strain to have to face a long Arctic winter under these circumstances. "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." The promise is ours, and once again we will claim and trust it.

Fort McPherson.

The work at FORT MCPHERSON, on Peel River, is under the supervision of the Rev. C. E. Whittaker, of the Canada C.M. Association, who had the advantage of the co-operation of the Rev. J. Ttssiettla, the Indian deacon. From this station the Tukudh Indians, some 2,000 in number, are reached. Most of the young, and middle-aged men can read, and are prepared to pay considerable sums for copies of the Word of God, and the Book of Common Prayer. The Rev. I. O. Stringer, whose Annual Letter, written in January, 1898, from Herschel Island, did not reach this country until the following July, was at Fort McPherson for a portion of the year 1897, and carried on the usual routine of work. Among other duties he performed the marriage ceremony for ten couples, and he mentions that, contrary to the custom which prevails in most places, the officiating clergyman on Peel River not only receives no marriage fees, but is expected to make some present to those whom he unites in wedlock. In May, 1897, Mr. Stringer and Mr. Young (a lay helper from Eastern Canada) crossed the great basin of the Mackenzie River to meet the Eastern Eskimo at Richards Island, and spent five weeks with them. They did not experience quite their usual hearty reception, for although they were treated with kindness personally, yet their teaching was received with a half-concealed hostility, which was even more trying than the indifference with which they had previously met. It was eventually discovered that some white men had circulated false reports about the missionaries, and that some murders which had been committed had further unsettled the people.

Herschel Island.

This effort to win the Eskimo for Christ was followed, as was briefly stated in last year's Report, by the occupation of HERSCHEL ISLAND by Mr. and Mrs. Stringer, who were accompanied by Mr. Young. The former, writing in January, 1898, thus described the place and the work:—

Herschel Island is situated on the Arctic coast about seventy-five miles west of the mouth of the Mackenzie. One end of it lies close to the mainland, but Pauline Cove, where the ships winter, is near the outer end, about ten miles from the mainland. About fifty houses of all sizes and descriptions are built on the little sandspit that forms one side of the harbour. The house we occupy is centrally situated. It is a comfortable frame house built of material sent from San Francisco. We burn coal brought from the same place, as there is not much driftwood close. The wooded land is about 100 miles from here. At the inner end of the sandspit there are half a dozen ice-houses, in which fresh meat and fish are kept through the summer. A little to one side is the graveyard, where fifteen or twenty tombstones mark the long resting-place of those who have died here during the last six years, far from their homes, on board the whale-ships.

Mid-winter within the Arctic Circle.

It is mid-winter as I write, and everything is covered with ice and snow. The winds are dreaded more than the frost. The days are now beginning to lengthen a little, and we shall soon again see the sun, which has not been visible since November 26th. On the shortest day we had a dim twilight, but it is not sufficient even yet to dispense with lamplight. The work here is somewhat different from that of Peel River. At present there are about fifty white men and a resident population of over 100 Eskimo belonging to more than half a dozen tribes. Several hundred other Eskimo visit this place from time to time during the year. At the Sunday services for the white men and for the Natives there is a fair attendance. Night school is held for the white men and day school for the Natives with an average attendance at the latter of about thirty. Singing practice once a week for the sailors gives an opportunity for a sociable evening, which all seem to enjoy.

Of the results of the work very little can be said. I am afraid there are many stony-ground hearers. Many seem willing to learn, and will listen attentively and assent to what is told them; still, there are the same evils and superstitions as before that tend to counteract all missionary efforts; but we must work on and hope and pray, even though there be no harvest for a time.

The sailors to whom he refers were those belonging to ships wintering at the island. The winter months may have been tedious to them, but they were far more fortunate than many, whose fate illustrates the risks incurred in the branch of commerce in which these men engage. Mr. Stringer refers to three vessels that were caught in the ice and had to be abandoned, and five which were frozen in some 400 miles distant from Herschel Island.

On the way to Herschel Island Mr. Stringer paid a visit to the Eskimo at Kitligagzooit, who gave the missionaries a cordial reception. Daily services were held, and the people were also seen in their own homes.

VI. DIOCESE OF SELKIRK.

The Ven. Archdeacon T. H. Canham and Mrs. Canham, who left England in May, 1898, arrived at the Mission towards the end of July.

The Rev. F. F. Flewelling has resigned his connexion with the Society.

Illness of Bishop Bompas.

Bishop Bompas, who has never visited England since his consecration in 1874, was very ill during the winter of 1897–98 from overwork and want of proper nourishment; indeed, he wrote that at one time he felt he could not have lasted many more days had he not been able to obtain green food. The missionaries of the Society in North-West Canada say but little, unless they are asked, about the hardships which they endure; but Archdeacon Canham, in reply to questions, has stated that he once found the Bishop with no food except a little tea and some candles made out of the country grease! He also said that the common idea that missionaries in that part of the world travel quite comfortably in the winter in sleighs drawn by a team of dogs is quite erroneous, since in temperatures of sixty or more degrees below zero it would be dangerous to ride, for drowsiness would come on, and sleep would probably mean awaking no more.

Hardships of his life.

The Rev. B. Totty was in charge of the work at BUXTON during the year, but the Bishop also was resident there for a part of the time. The Indians attended the services regularly when at the Mission, and school was carried on for the benefit of the children. At the evening service on Easter Day, 1898, the contributions of the people amounted to about $80. The Bishop writes that the stability of the Indian converts is somewhat endangered by the influx of miners, who surround them with many temptations, but adds that up to the time of writing none of the Natives had abandoned their Christian profession. Mr. Totty paid a visit to the Tanana country, and was greatly encouraged by the reception he met with. The Indians gave him the chief's house to live in, entertained him to the best of their ability, and listened most attentively to the proclamation of the Gospel message. There was a meeting for prayer every evening, and a school was occasionally held for the children, several of whom were baptized. Mr. Totty says that these Tanana Indians do not come much into contact with white men, and are far more teachable than those on the Yukon.

Buxton.

Visit to Tanana Indians.

Towards the end of the year Mr. Totty was appointed to succeed the Rev. F. F. Flewelling at MOOSEHIDE, the Indian village three miles from Dawson, as Klondyke is now called, where the Klondyke Indians have been located. He says that they are exposed to many temptations, for the white men often visit the village, and the Indians frequently go into Dawson, where they mix with people whose influence over them unhappily does not make for righteousness. He adds:—

Moosehide.

> The love of money is the root of evil among the Natives, and I fear this will prove one of the greatest hindrances to the progress of the Gospel. It is almost impossible to get them to do anything gratuitously for the Mission, though I am glad to say they gave quite liberally in church last Easter. There is no opposition shown to our work; all are nominal Christians, but we are anxious to see something more than this. We are praying that the graces of the Holy Spirit may be seen in their lives.

He proceeds to mention the case of a Klondyke Indian, a leading man, who when travelling down the Yukon never failed to engage in prayer at night, thus furnishing one instance at least of a Native who was not ashamed of his Christian profession.

Selkirk. SELKIRK, further up the River Yukon, was reoccupied on the return of Archdeacon and Mrs. Canham from furlough in August, much to the joy of the Indians, who hastened to church and school without delay. Some hundreds of white men, including a number of Canadian soldiers and police, are now residing in the neighbourhood. The Bishop says that the Indians to the south beyond this station are still unevangelized though anxious for instruction, but the total number of Natives in his diocese is only 2,000 or 3,000, and they are far outnumbered by the whites, of whom some 15,000 to 20,000 are found.

Fort Yukon. The Rev. J. Hawksley is stationed at FORT YUKON, where the Indians congregate who were formerly reached at Rampart House. Four services were held for the Natives each Sunday, in addition to one English service; but the work was hindered by the example of the Europeans who entered the country in search of gold, and who not only set a bad example, but also carried on a trade in "the vile concoction they call whiskey." But although Mr. Hawksley can report no great advance, at all events there was no retrogression. Mrs. Bompas, who was detained at Fort Yukon during the winter of 1897-98, rendered valuable assistance with the school work. Mr. Hawksley paid one visit to the Gens-du-Large Indians, who live some 200 miles distant from Fort Yukon, and found them most ready to be taught. They had not seen a missionary since Mr. Wallis visited them five years before.

Statistics of the North-West Canada Missions, 1898.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MISSION.

In 1856 Captain Prevost, R.N., drew the Society's attention to the savage state of the Tsimshean Indians on the coast of British Columbia, and a young schoolmaster, Mr. W. Duncan, was sent out. A great blessing was vouchsafed to his labours; and in 1862 the Christian settlement of Metlakahtla was founded. In 1881, however, Mr. Duncan refused to work on the lines of the Church of England, and ceased to be a missionary of the Society, and an unhappy schism among the Native Christians resulted. But peace was in God's good providence ultimately restored, though at a heavy cost. Prolonged disputes about the land ensued between Mr. Duncan's Indians and the Government; and in the summer of 1887 Mr. Duncan removed with some hundreds of the Indians to a place seventy miles distant, within the United States territory of Alaska. Since the departure of the disaffected party the conduct of the loyal Indians has been so excellent that the Government Commissioners, sent in November, 1888, to report on the condition of these disturbed districts, stated that the Metlakahtla Church Indians were in happy contrast to all others, and were a credit to their instructors.

The Diocese of British Columbia was subdivided in 1879; and the Rev. W. Ridley, formerly a missionary of the Society in the Punjab, was appointed the first Bishop of Caledonia, the Northern Division. The C.M.S. Mission Stations, with the exception of that at Alert Bay, are situated in his diocese.

Kincolith was occupied in 1866; Massett, 1876; Alert Bay, 1878; Hazelton, 1880; Giatwangak, 1882; Aiyansh, 1883; Kitkatla, 1887; Fort Rupert and Taltan, 1898.

THE Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Keen arrived in England in June, 1898, and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Corker in July. Mrs. R. W. Gurd came home with her children in July, and sailed again for the Mission in September; Miss M. West left for British Columbia in July. The Rev. W. Hogan has retired from the work.

The Rev. Francis Milnes Temple Palgrave, M.A., Trinity College, Oxford, has been taken into local connexion, for work on the Stickine River.

Bishop Ridley suffered greatly in the autumn from rheumatism, caused by prolonged exposure in the wet climate. For some weeks he was in great pain, but happily by December was almost restored to health, though still rather weak.

Metlakahtla.

The staff of the Mission at METLAKAHTLA during the greater part of the year under review consisted of Dr. and Mrs. V. Ardagh, the Rev. and Mrs. W. Hogan, and the Misses A. J. Tyte, R. M. Davies, H. Jackson, B. Davies, and A. J. Edwards, and they were joined at the end of the summer by Miss M. West, on her return from England. In the early months of 1898 Dr. Ardagh was associated with Mr. Hogan and others in the work among the Congregation, and took the greater portion of the preaching in Tsimshian, and also conducted a Bible-class in that language. This latter is not managed quite on the lines which are customary in England, for very few of the Indians who attend can read either the English or Tsimshian translations of the Bible. The plan adopted, therefore, is to give the Natives texts for them to commit to memory, and also to take a rough commentary on the general subject, laying special emphasis on lessons applicable to the time and circumstances. The studies were chiefly on portions of the Old Testament, for the Indians delight in the biographies which are there recorded. The Hospital had a larger number of in-patients than usual, owing to an epidemic of measles, and 2,015 visits of out-patients were registered. Visiting among the people was diligently carried on by Dr. and Mrs. Ardagh and the ladies. The Indian Girls' Home, under Miss Tyte and Miss Jackson, had a somewhat uneventful year; but there was one new departure in the work. It was felt that the children required more individual attention than they could possibly receive at the village school, and arrangements were therefore made to teach them at the Home; the result was encouraging, for there was a marked improvement both in their work and in the discipline which was maintained among them. Their duties at the Home prevented the ladies from paying the usual visit to the "North Pacific" Cannery, but care was taken to influence as far as possible the girls in the villages near to Metlakahtla. Dr. Ardagh went as usual to the Skeena River, working with Claxton as his base, where the hospital was kept open as long as the fishing season lasted. Miss Davies assisted with the medical work, and the Rev. R. W. Gurd accompanied the doctor when he itinerated among the other salmon canneries.

Indian Girls' Home.

In January, 1898, Bishop Ridley paid a visit to KITKATLA, in order to consecrate the church which had been designed and constructed by the Natives themselves. He was accompanied by some nineteen Indians from Fort Simpson, and a similar number belonging to the Metlakahtla Church Army, all bent on a ten days' Mission among the Kitkatlas. After the consecration of the church and the confirmation of four men and four women, the Indians began their Mission, of which the Bishop wrote in the C.M. Gleaner:—

Kitkatla.

> From dawn to late in the evening the sound of prayer, sacred song, and preaching was heard, excepting at meal times, and even then the grace expanded into long intercession. Mr. Gurd called it a religious epidemic. Nothing else was done. God and the soul were the sole topics. From day to day the number of awakenings was brought to me. There was excitement, but no extravagance that I knew of.

"A religious epidemi

An interesting ceremony took place on the occasion of the Bishop's visit, which he thus describes:—

> The wife of chief Sheuksh had been elected by the Kitkahtla band of the Church Army as one of their officers. At one point of the service in church Samuel Walsh, the blind captain, led by a sergeant, presented Sheuksh's wife to me for admission to the office. On the Holy Table the red ribbon had been placed. She knelt at the chancel rails. I then charged her to be faithful to Jesus, to be an example of holiness, to watch over the women of the tribe, especially the young ones, and to remember she must give a final account to Jesus at the great day. Then I placed the ribbon round her neck, and told her to think of it as a token of being bound as a servant to our Master.
>
> Old Sheuksh was in the front pew all the time on his knees, his lips moving as if in prayer, and his eyes fountains of tears. What a contrast with the savage past!

Enrolment of a chief's wife as a church worker.

The fact that the former disloyalty of Chief Sheuksh has entirely disappeared appears to be proved by a statement which has appeared in the papers, but of which no direct intimation has reached the C.M. House. It is to the effect that he sent a present of £20 through the Indian agent to Queen Victoria. This was duly forwarded to her Majesty, who graciously wrote the chief a letter, and asked him to accept a very fine steel engraving of herself, together with ten plaids woven of the finest lambs' wool. Sheuksh was delighted when these tokens of royal esteem were presented to him, and, calling his Indians together, caused the letter to be read to them, and said that though he could never expect to see the Queen here on earth, he hoped to meet her in heaven.

The Queen's acknowledgment and gift to him.

The Rev. R. W. Gurd conducted the services and Bible-classes as usual, but much of his time was taken up by minor matters, for the people constantly came to him about trivial quarrels and imaginary grievances, to the story of which he had to listen as patiently as he could. He gives in his Annual Letter an example of the cases with which he has to deal:—

Imaginary grievances.

> A man complains to me of the conduct of one of our churchwardens. I see by his facial expression that there is something amiss. "I have a very important matter to bring before you, Mr. Gurd. I have been unable to eat or sleep, or discharge my religious devotions or my secular duties—I have been so troubled. I daresay you have noticed that I have not attended the Church services lately." All this, of course, is introductory, and I am restless to learn what the trouble may be. "Plank," meaning Frank, the first two letters in the word Frank being unknown in Tsimshian. "Plank has been the cause of all my sorrow. Plank, whom I always trusted and thought to be a good man. Plank, who is a fellow-member of the Town Council, and who has undertaken the duties of a churchwarden, he it is who has thus grieved me." "That will do," I say. "Go and call Frank, and let him hear in my presence what you have to say."
>
> Frank arrives, and Amos, name of complainant, states that someone had told him that Plank had offered to sell a fishing-net to a man here, a cheaper and a better one than he had sold him, and has advised the man to return the net to Amos, because it is not worth the amount for which it was sold. The defendant states that he knew nothing about the selling of the net and has no intention of doing so. He did, however, in the course of a conversation, say that he could make a better and cheaper net than Amos. And so the complainant, not having a "Plank" to stand nor even to "sit on," was satisfied, and they both left apparently good friends. To settle this imaginary trouble exhausted nearly three hours of valuable time.

Faults of Indians.

He describes the people as (1) very wilful, wanting, like children, to have their own way and creating a storm if they do not get it; (2) conceited and proud, thinking that they know almost everything, and loving display; (3) crafty, cunning, and full of plots; (4) emotional, acting on the spur of the moment, but possessing little staying power; (5) suspicious, and given to harbouring imaginary grievances; (6) intense and fervid, naturally warm-hearted, and overflowing with enthusiasm. He adds:—

> I am thankful to be able to record that the Gospel of the grace of God is exercising a powerful and leavening influence over our converts, lifting them out of these elements and natural conditions of life, the love of self and the world, and in its place shedding abroad the love of God in their hearts. Influence of Divine grace on character of Indians.

Dr. F. E. Webb, of the Victoria C.M. Association, who spent some months at Kitkatla, corroborates the statement as to the improvement which has been wrought in the Natives. To some friends in Melbourne he wrote :—

These Indians, or at least the older ones of them, were a few years ago under the spell of superstition and fatalism, a prey to the terrors of the yelling, rattling, chattering "medicine-man," whom they believe to have supernatural power. The hands of these very individuals have not been free from blood. These people, who now sing with earnest pleasure the songs of salvation, knew nothing but the hollow dirge of the feast or the dismal wail of the mourner. In one or two instances the very lips that now partake of the Lord's Supper found their proudest occupation in tearing the raw flesh from a dead dog amidst the plaudits of the assembled guests. These changes are not by any means the most important. They are merely the surface indications of the moral revolution wrought by the "Gospel of Christ" which is the "power of God unto salvation." There are villages such as Fort Rupert, Alert Bay, Guaiia, and many others, where the great majority still reject the message of peace and goodwill to man. One visit is sufficent to convince the most casual observer that a miracle would be required to make them like those I have briefly described. Thankworthy contrasts.

Dr. Ardagh, too, who paid a visit to the station during the year under review, was much struck with the change that had taken place since his previous visit some years before. In his Annual Letter he writes :—

I remember in the winter of 1889 feeling rather nervous one night in the shack (there was then no proper Mission-house), which I shared with my companion, Mr. Gurd, when I heard the medicine-man's weird and horrid howlings and shoutings. We were at that time in the midst of heathen Kitkatlas, while a "potlatch" was on. It was then I had to bring for the first time modern skill to pit against the rattlings of the "medicine-man" in the case of a poor young fellow who had received a very severe cut into the knee-joint, and over whom the "medicine-man," in the midst of an awe-stricken crowd of Heathen, was rattling and performing his functions. That was the heathen side then ; compare now—that same patient is the churchwarden in Mr. Gurd's church, and is one of the most exemplary of all the Christians in that village.

A good deal of success was vouchsafed to Archdeacon W. H. Collison in his work at KINCOLITH, on the Nass River, although there was little variation in the character of the work. The Sunday and daily services, schools and classes, all gave cause for thankfulness, and a new weekly missionary prayer-meeting, held on the same day and at the same time as the prayer-meeting at the Church Missionary House, London, was commenced. At the close of a special Mission, which was held in the spring of 1898, two families renounced Heathenism and were afterwards baptized, and on the last Sunday in December another family, to win which efforts had been made for three years, were admitted into the visible Church. The character of the Native Christians, too, afforded satisfaction. Archdeacon Collison says Kincolith.

that it is interesting to note the astonishment of the miners at the civilization of the Indians, and adds:—

Miners' testimony to Christian character of the Indians.

Many of the miners came up the coast armed cap-à-pie with rifles, revolvers, and bowie knives; but when they saw their imaginary foes clothed and in their right mind, they were deeply impressed. "Well," said a stalwart American to me, "I never had any faith in Mission work before, but I guess, if I am spared to return to my country again, I shall tell every one of what I have witnessed here." Said another, at the close of a service at which many miners were present, "I am grateful for what has been accomplished amongst these people. Why," he added, "I owe my life to them. I was deserted by my party at the foot of a glacier amongst the mountains, and as the night was falling, I must have perished had not several of your Indians come to my rescue, and brought me out in safety." Another party informed me that when they left Vancouver's Island, they believed they had left civilization and Christianity behind; and added, "but what was our surprise when we had engaged a party of your Indians as guides, and were about to start on a prospecting tour, to be informed by them that being Sunday they could not go, since they were about to hold a service. Thus, we had no choice, and some of us felt ashamed that these Indians were more faithful to their profession than we were. One of them preached for us in fairly good English, and we were enabled to join with them in some of the hymns." Thus the Indians whom they had engaged as guides really proved themselves spiritual guides as well.

Indians engaged as guides prove to be spiritual guides.

The year under review was one of much sickness, which entailed a great deal of work on the missionaries, for it was necessary not only to prescribe and dispense the medicines, but also to see that instructions about taking them were duly carried out. Mrs. Collison was happily successful in training several women to follow her orders in nursing the sick. Some of the leading Indians were removed by death, among them being George Ginzadak, the head chief of the Nishkas, of whom the Archdeacon writes:—

A dying Christian chief.

In 1865 this chief was mentioned by the Rev. R. A. Doolan in his journal as "Kinzardu, a chief who is doing all in his power to undermine our work," and he is there represented as dragging members of his tribe by main force to a whiskey feast. I could describe many much darker pictures from Ginzadak's old heathen life, but I prefer briefly to give you a bright one; indeed, the closing scene in his new and changed life on earth. He had grown rather feeble during the spring, but was not confined to bed, so that when I received a message from him one Saturday evening requesting me to call on him, I was surprised to find him lying down. He raised himself up on my entering, and thus addressed me: "My brother, I have been long enough here. I want to arise and go to my Heavenly Father. I want to remove from the sorrows of this life to my home above. Will you sing for me? There are two songs I long to hear again: 'I will arise, and go to my Father,' and 'Rock of Ages, cleft for me.'" With the aid of several native voices, I sang the translation of both these, and then read a portion of Scripture and prayed. In praise and prayer his voice was heard throughout. Afterwards, at his earnest request, I administered the Holy Communion to him. I was desirous to postpone this to the following day, Sunday, but he replied, "It is best now; better not to postpone it." "Are your feet resting on the Rock of Ages?" I inquired, as I grasped his hand in what proved to be a final parting on earth. "Yes," he replied, "and my heart is strong." And early on the following morning, with the dawn of the Whitsuntide, the birthday of the Church, he departed to be with Christ.

Dr. Ardagh went in the spring to the Cannery at Fishery Bay, on the Nass River, as in former years, and found that visiting the Indians in the outlying houses was both difficult and dangerous, for he had to cross over streams thinly coated with ice, and with a large amount of superincumbent snow. The cold at times was intense, and at night it was not easy to rest because of the noise made by the large rats which infested the place. There was more than the usual amount of medical work, owing to an epidemic of influenza, which struck down a number of the Indians. The mortality, however, was not high, which was rather surprising in view of the miserable conditions under which the people live. From Fishery Bay the doctor was called to attend several cases at Kincolith, and had to travel by canoe or boat, which he did not find very pleasant on a river on which ice was running strongly with the swift tide.

Aiyansh.

The Winter School at AIYANSH, the formation of which was mentioned in last year's Report, met with good success. Forty-four young men attended at the beginning of 1898, and forty-eight engaged seats or desks for the five months' course of the winter of 1898–99. Instruction is given for from three to four hours every day, one hour being reserved for Scripture teaching. The students defray all the expenses incurred in lighting and heating, besides providing their materials and an honorarium for the assistant teacher. The Rev. J. B. McCullagh, who is in charge of the Mission, was careful to watch over the spiritual life of his flock, as well as to provide for their progress in temporal affairs. Feeling that there was but little private devotion among the Indians, he endeavoured to stimulate it by translating a little book entitled Abba, Father, by the Rev. C. G. Baskerville, of Tonbridge, a member of the C.M.S. Committee, which is designed to assist in private prayer and devotion, and bringing it into use at the various classes. The book was published from the Mission press, where three boys are being trained as printers.

During the year under review there were many white men prospecting for gold in the neighbourhood of Aiyansh, and Mr. McCullagh says that it was encouraging to hear their frequent and unexpected encomiums on the work of the Mission. He writes:—

Miners' opinions of missionary work.

One man, a doctor, whom I had asked to accompany me to visit a sick person, took me into his confidence on the way. "I don't mind telling you now," said he, "but I came here very much prejudiced against missionary work." "Indeed, and are you still so minded, having seen now something of the work?" I enquired. "No, sir," he cried, "I'm converted right down to the bottom." Another said on arriving, "You must find the time hang heavily on your hands here, having so little to do." (!) On leaving, the same gentleman exclaimed, "How on earth you are able to do all that is done here, with the Indians taking up so much of your time, is a mystery to us." Another type of man, in his inimitable style, remarked to a comrade on the trail after leaving our Mission, "Ef I hadn't seen it meself, and that thar preacher down Aiyansh 'ad a told it back east, I' d a sed he wuz lyin' straight!" A civil engineer, staying with us for a few days, took a great interest in looking into everything—village, church, school, printing offices, translations, &c.—with very inquisitive eyes. One evening he turned round abruptly from examining some manuscript pages, and exclaimed, "Well, I thought any kind of fellow could be a missionary! but it seems he must be 'all there.'"

A missionary must be "all there."

Bishop Ridley paid a visit to the Stickine River in April, 1898, and ministered to the thousands of Klondykers who were encamped waiting for the Government to make a road through to Lake Teslin. The Rev. F. M. T. Palgrave laboured at TALTAN, the chief Indian centre of the vast district, but Dr. F. E. Webb was unable to carry out his proposal to join him.

Hazelton.

A large number of miners passed through HAZELTON, where the Rev. J. Field is stationed, during the spring and early summer of 1898, and for the most part were orderly and well-behaved. Many of them came to the Sunday services, so that often there were more whites than Indians present, although the latter were diligent in their attendance when they were at the station. Seven adults and eight children were baptized, but the work was a good deal disturbed by the extravagant conduct of the members of the local Salvation Army, which is not connected in any way with the Salvation Army in this country. Mr. Field says that at one time he hoped for much from this movement, but the love of display which the Indians possess runs away with their judgment. He trusts, however, that with judicious treatment the present abuses may be stopped, and much good done through the "Army." Both Mr. and Mrs. Field suffered from indifferent health, and Bishop Ridley accordingly persuaded them to take a short holiday, during which Mr. E. C. Stephenson looked after the work.

Massett.

The Rev. W. Hogan was in charge of MASSETT, in Queen Charlotte's Islands, for some months.

Giatwangak.

At GIATWANGAK the Rev. A. E. Price met with much encouragement. The Native Christians walked worthy of their vocation, and many of them, members of the Church Army, did good and steady work throughout the year in all weathers, even a temperature of 24° below zero not being sufficient to "freeze them into passiveness." Ten adults were baptized during the year. One of these was the chief Dawallasqu, mentioned in last year's Report, of whom Mr. Price writes:—

"No wish to go back to the love of the world."

In his heathen days he was full of pride and self-conceit, a pillar on the side of evil, but now, through the grace of God, he is a humble follower of our blessed Saviour, and a good example to others, standing firm in the midst of temptation. Many have tried to turn him back to his old ways, but his answer has been the same to all, viz., "With the love of the world there are many sharp points, but not so with the love of Christ; it is all peace and joy; therefore I have no wish to go back to the sharp things, the other is best."

In February, 1898, the school was burnt to the ground, the church being with difficulty saved, and it became necessary to assemble the children in the workshop; but in spite of this the attendance was well maintained. The printing press, provided by the kindness of the Bishop, proved a great boon. At the village of Gitwun'lgol a family for which prayer had long been made joined the Christians, and one of the chiefs recognized the advance which Christianity is making by asking the missionary not to try to win the young men lest there should not be enough of them left to raise the "totem pole"!

Fears for Heathenism.

The missionaries at ALERT BAY, the Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Hall, Dr. F. E. Webb, and the Misses E. G. Beeching and C. Carleton, were cheered by a visit in October from the Bishop of Columbia, in whose diocese the Mission is situated, when eleven Indians were confirmed. Dr. Perrin was impressed with the devout spirit of the converts, and with the difference between the Heathen and Christian villages, and writes:—

> With regard to the work in this district there "remains much land to be possessed." The Heathen are very slow to make the change which Christianity would mean in their habits and lives, although they have had the Gospel preached to them; so we must hope on and pray on.

Mr. Hall says that he finds it more difficult to get a congregation now when he itinerates than it was fifteen years ago, when the message was new and attractive, and the Heathen crowded into one of their large houses to listen to it. At the same time there was much to encourage; seven adults were baptized, and the Christians manifested greater zeal in making the Gospel known to their countrymen. Miss Carleton mentions an interesting example of this:—

An unfinished Sunday-school lesson.

> I was cheered recently by a little talk I had with one of our young Christians, a teacher in the Sunday-school. We were walking home together from Sunday-school, and were talking over the lesson (we are taking Mr. Stock's lessons on the Life of our Lord), and she remarked, "I was so sorry we had to close the lesson so soon, I did not have time to finish, and the last part was the best (meaning the application, which was a particularly telling one in that lesson), so I have invited the girls to my house to finish it." I thought to myself how few teachers, even in England, would be interested enough in the lesson to finish it at home.

Industrial School.

The Industrial School for Boys prospered under the management of Mr. Halliday, who took charge of it on the departure of Mr. A. W. Corker. The average number of pupils was twenty-six, and their productions in the way of carpentering and cabinet-making are described by the Bishop as "excellent." Several have been baptized since the school was first opened. The Girls' Home, superintended by Miss Beeching, was not so full as in previous years, for theheathen parents will not allow their children to come under Christian influence, knowing that if the girls are taught to live as they should, they themselves will suffer pecuniary loss, since they virtually sell their daughters to the highest bidder. Consequently the only girls in the Home were either orphans or else the children of Christian parents. These proved quite satisfactory, and gained a knowledge of their Bibles which the Bishop characterizes as "quite remarkable," adding, "I have never seen children more at home with their Bibles." An interesting incident in connexion with this work is thus narrated by Mrs. Hall :—

Children "at home with the Bible."

A traveller's testimony, "These are splendid."

Very many steamers have touched here for fuel and water. One passenger was exceedingly interested in the work here. He was sent by the American Presbyterian Missionary Society to Lawrence Island, far away, in sight of the coasts of Asia, alone. The schools here were closed for holidays, but I collected ten girls in the school. These so pleased him that he asked that they might remain while he sent for two gentlemen, unbelievers in Mission work, and fellow-passengers. After catechizing the girls for nearly an hour, one seemed much touched, reproaching himself for his ignorance; he declared nothing but his own eyes and ears would have convinced him, and concluded by saying, "Well, well, I know children, but these are splendid, madam. They're the smartest crowd of young 'uns I ever struck."

Miss Carleton commenced a meeting for women which was fairly well attended; but the chief part of her work was ministering to the sick in their homes, and at the small Hospital which was built during the year. A great deal of sickness prevailed, especially while the Zawada-inuh tribe was "potlatching," and there were many opportunities of witnessing for Christ. Towards the end of June, 1898, the ladies followed the Indians to the Canneries, ninety miles further north, and spent six weeks with them, visiting the people, holding meetings for the women, and so on. Dr. Webb, too, visited several villages, journeying on the Evangeline, the Mission boat.

Reports of Special Funds.

REPORT OF THE WILLIAM CHARLES JONES INDIA NATIVE CHURCH FUND.

The interest of this Fund is available for assisting the Native Church Councils connected with the Church Missionary Society in India to employ more evangelistic labourers among the Heathen. Two important conditions are imposed regarding grants. It is necessary, before an application for a grant can be entertained, for a Native Council to show that the Christians whom it represents have actually engaged in aggressive evangelistic work through a Native Missionary Society, or that they are prepared so to do. It is necessary, also, that the Council be able to show that at least two-fifths of the cost of maintaining religious worship and pastoral work in its district has been raised from purely local sources; and that a definite sum has been contributed towards missionary work. The scheme also provides that the amount granted from the Fund to a Council shall not exceed the amount set apart by that Council for purely evangelistic purposes, or the amount raised by the Native Missionary Society in connexion with that Council.

Grants were made during 1898 to the following District Church Councils for the support of seventy-three evangelists:—

NOTICE TO TREASURERS AND SECRETARIES OF ASSOCIATIONS.

End of Financial Year. Final Remittance.

THE COMMITTEE OF THE CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY beg to remind the Treasurers and Secretaries of Associations that the Society's Financial Year ends on the 31st of March, and that they should make their final remittance and forward their Contribution Lists immediately after closing their Accounts.

No Balances shown.

Sums remaining unpaid on the 31st of March are not shown in the Accounts as Balances. The Contribution Lists should therefore agree in total with the amounts actually paid to the Parent Society to that date.

Branches.

Where an Association has Branches connected with it, the Money and Accounts of the Branches must be forwarded to the Treasurer or Secretary of the Association some time before the date for forwarding to London. Branches not doing so in good time shall be considered as self-excluded.

Branch Associations should, in every case where practicable, forward their Money and Lists through the Association with which they are connected, and not direct to the Parent Society.

Contribution Lists and Accounts.

Lists and Accounts (if not sent with the money) must be forwarded not later than April 10th (see last paragraph but one). At the head of the List should be furnished the name of the Diocese, Archdeaconry, Deanery, and County in which each parish is situate. It is very essential that this information should be given accurately to ensure correct entry in Annual Report. The date at which the Accounts of the Association are closed, and the names of the Local Officers, should be specified. Should no Officers be named it will be assumed that they remain the same as in the previous Report, and the List will be so printed.

Accurate information essential.

Local Officers.

The Contribution Lists should be written legibly to avoid mistakes in printing, and made up in the manner in which the same are printed in the Parent Society's Report. Forms of Account and ruled paper with directions for filling up the form may be had on application to the Lay Secretary at the Society's House. Where the Account or the List is a printed one, two copies should be forwarded. It would greatly facilitate the work of adapting the Local Report for the Society's Report if the following arrangements were adopted :—

Forms of Account.

Printed Lists.

(1) Items of 10*s.* and over (in alphabetical order.)
(2) Items of under 10*s.* ... ... } With separate totals for each.

Appropriated Contributions. Special Funds and General Fund.

Particulars of Appropriated Contributions and Contributions to Special Funds paid through Associations are printed with the Lists to which they respectively belong.

In order that the Society's General Fund Income for the year can be accurately ascertained before the accounts are closed and audited, it is essential that the total amount received through each Association for each Appropriated head of Account, and also for each Special Fund, shall be notified to Salisbury Square not later than April 5th. Should, however, the contribution list for the year have been forwarded by that date, such notification will not be needed, provided the list contains the necessary particulars, which should be in the form of a detailed list of subscriptions, for printing in the Annual Report.

Remittances should be made early in Financial Year.

The Committee take this opportunity of requesting that Local Treasurers will remit to the Parent Committee at the end of every quarter (or oftener in cases of large sums being received) any sum in their hands, over and above the amount required to meet disbursements, &c., the balance being remitted when the Local Accounts are closed for the year. This course would tend to equalise in a greater degree the Income and Expenditure in the earlier months of the Society's Financial Year, and save the Society a considerable yearly sum.

RESPECTING REMITTANCES.

Remittances.

Remittances may be made through Local Bankers, and their correspondents in London, to the account of the Society at WILLIAMS DEACON AND MANCHESTER AND SALFORD BANK, Limited, 20 Birchin Lane, London, in which case it is requested that advice of the same be sent by post addressed to the Lay Secretary.

Or Drafts may be forwarded direct to the C.M. House, payable to D. MARSHALL LANG, Lay Secretary of the Church Missionary Society, and crossed WILLIAMS DEACON AND MANCHESTER AND SALFORD BANK, Limited, acct. C.M.S.

Post Office and Postal Orders should be drawn on the General Post Office, and be made payable to D. MARSHALL LANG,
